Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Saturday, July 9, 1960.

General Tendencies: Most everyone wants to make some very unwise changes and new arrangements this Saturday, but you would certainly be wise to stick to persons, ideas, methods that have been found workable and satisfactory in the past. A very confusing condition arises tonight that requires no dissipating or questionable habits or actions be indulged in.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Be diplomatic with friends or serious rifts could occur that you would later regret. Also, be sure you know what you want and go after it. The evening is no time to be forceful in some social affair or situation.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Important you follow every rule or law that applies to you today and to be respectful with higher ups. In this way you gain the admiration and respect of powerful individuals. Discretion is most important now.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Imperative you be most careful while out driving and also at any duty you may be engaged in, or there can be serious damage. Also, be careful what you need — see that it is absolutely pure and fresh. Be very hygenic.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) Listen attentively to the ideas and advice of higher-up who has your interests at heart. Later, worry over some love affair or plans for recreation could be very disturbing.

Remember the maxim, "When in doubt — don't!"

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) Be certain you keep associates and closest kin apart today, since there could be instantaneous combustion if they are brought together. An argument must be avoided at all costs. Courtesy with everyone resolves the whole matter.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Make up your mind early whether you want to take care of chores at hand or be out in the bustling world of activity. Don't endeavor to do both. P.M. be sure you get your surroundings and clothing in order for busy days ahead.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You would like to take in some amusement that is quite expensive, but hesitate to spend the money. This is wise — turn to something equally pleasurable but which costs very little. Be charming — smile.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Important you take care of any property or family matters today .Embelish, spruce up and strive for harmony, even with color. P.M. be altruistic — help those who are near and dear to you.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You may feel that this is the day when you must clear up all those small accumulated duties at home, but it would be wiser to get out with allies and friends to constructive activities that will bring greater success.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) The ideal day to contact key people who will join with you in some constructive venture or help you to eliminate present worries. If you co-operate sincerely, this can be a very productive day .Don't take chances with finances.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Tend strictly to own affairs this day and adhere to all rules and regulations applying to you. Above all, control your temper. You will benefit greatly if you perform your civic duties. wisely, too.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) Better take greater interest in those who are near and dear to you now. Refrain from worrying over the inevitable or unavoidable. Study more modern methods so that you put them in operation later with real success.

If your child is born today . . he, or she, will be very sensitive and will wonder early at the rather peculiar actions and ideas of others. Hence, a very thorough education and much spiritual trainng is important or this youngster will get hurt and not be able to adjust to life. Then the chart becomes successful and happy — especially so because of the innate love of humanity so much an integral part of this beautiful nature.

British Labor Party Draws Battle Lines

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Another struggle for position opens within Britain's Labor party on the death of Aneurin (Nye) Bevan.

With the passing of a man who had established himself as a parliamentary figure of almost the same commanding stature as David Lloyd George and Sir Winston Churchill, the party is faced with the problem of electing a new deputy leader.

Leading contenders are probably pipe-smoking Harold Wilson, once called the boy wonder of British politics, a former Bevan lieutenant who recently has sought to avoid being conspicuously identified with either the left or right wings of the labor movement, and George Brown, who is popular among the unions.

The succession will be decided by the parliamentary Labor party this fall. The jockeying for position that may take place in the interval will constitute one more distraction for a party that some serious observers already regard as on the brink of a possible breakup.

Hugh Gaitskell became Labor leader nearly five years ago after the powerful trade unions blocked Bevan's path to power. Ironically, Gaitskell now finds the unions resisting his attempts to streamline Labor's constitution and bring the party up to date.

If the union leaders carry their opposition into the annual Labor conference this October, as they almost certainly will do, Gaitskell may have to consider resigning the leadership as an alternative to a humiliating retreat under union pressure.

By JOHN E. BIRD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CHALK RIVER, Ont. (CP) — Canada has taken a concrete step in the promotion of international co-operation in peaceful use of atomic energy.

Scientists from four countries—Germany, Austria, Japan and the Philippines — recently completed an advanced course at the Canadian atomic energy project here on atomic power systems being developed in Canada.

Along with three Canadians, the four foreign scientists made up the first class to attend a special school being sponsored by Atomic Energy of Canada Limited, crown company which operates this research establishment 130 miles northwest of Ottawa.

The scientists received advanced instruction on atomic power reactors using natural uranium as a fuel and heavy water to boil ordinary water to raise steam for electric generators.

"LEARNED A LOT"

Hans - Joachim Finke, 33, a chemical engineer from Karlsruhe, West Germany, said "we learned a lot about the Canadian atomic power program."

Karl Vecsei, 32, a mechanical engineer employed by the Austrian Research Institute, said the course gave him a better appreciation of Canadian progress in the atomic power field. He said his assistant will attend the next course starting in the Fall.

The two other foreign scientists who took the course are Takashi Kitamura, 28, of Osaka, Japan, an employee of the Kansai Electric Power Company, and G. R. Javier, 31, of Manila. They are engineers.

The Canadians are Donald C. Brooking, 49, of Montreal, an engineer with Shawinigan Engineering Limited; F. H. Hueston, 29, a chemical engineer with Eldorado Mining and Refining Limited, Port Hope, Ont., and Josef Zorzi, 49, an engineering consultant from Montreal.

CANADIAN METHOD

Besides giving foreign scientists an opportunity to study in Canada, the school also is expected to spread abroad informed comment about the Canadian approach to economic atomic power.

Canada is banking on a combination of heavy water and natural uranium. It's hoped that instruction of foreign scientists in this system will lead to other countries adopting the Canadian approach and also buying their natural uranium from this country.

A team of Yugoslav scientists who visited Chalk River recently said they were encouraged by what they learned in Canada. They said their country is in no great hurry to build atomic power stations and plans to wait until full results of the Canadian program are available.

Both the United States and Britain also have expressed increased interest in the use of heavy water and natural uranium in large-scale plants. Canadian scientists are confident that this is the best way to obtain economic atomic power in plants developing up to 268,000 horsepower.

FEE $600

The Chalk River school is open only to qualified engineers and scientists. They must have a university degree in physics, engineering physics, chemistry, metallurgy or engineering.

The fee for each 12 - week course is $600, which includes the cost of textbooks, laboratory books and laboratory materials provided for experiments.

Of the Canadians, Mr. Brooking and Mr. Zorzi took the course to prepare themselves for future activities in the atomic power field. Mr. Hueston is employed by the Eldorado company in the marketing abroad of atomic products including uranium. He said the training he received will enable him to talk with greater knowledge to potential customers.

The new stamp, also to be used on post bands used for mailing newspapers and magazines, will go on sale as the supply of present cards and bands run out.

Murder Charge Dropped Against Leonard Ede

Body in Trunk Bore No Signs of Violence

TORONTO (CP) — A murder charge against Leonard Ede, 39, has been dropped after a coroner's investigation found no evidence of external violence in the death of Mrs. Marjorie Scott, 36, whose body was found last month in a trunk in Argentia, Nfld.

Police today laid new charges of public mischief and causing indignities to human remains against Ede, arrested in Cleveland June 17.

Ede appeared in court today and was remanded to next Friday with bail set at $10,000. The new charges each carry possible maximum sentences of five years in jail.

Mrs. Scott's body, cramped into a small trunk, was discovered by a CNR agent at Argentia June 7 after being shipped express collect from Toronto. The coroner's report said no cause of death other than asphyxia could be determined.

The trunk, sent from Toronto May 4, lay unclaimed at Argentia, 80 miles west of St. John's for three weeks, until the agent noticed a peculiar odor. When he opened the trunk he discovered Mrs. Scott's body among clothing and sheets.

The woman's identity was established June 14 when RCMP matched fingerprints with those on file at Ottawa. Mrs. Scott, a peroxide blonde, was a native of Napanee, Ont. and had worked in various Ontario cities as a waitress.

She had been separated from her husband, who died two years ago in New Westminster, B.C. During the last 10 years she is believed to have been a close associate with Ede, born in Delta, Ont.

After a massive hunt and investigation in Toronto, police issued a murder warrant against Ede. He was arrested by Cleveland police.

Mrs. Scott's body was taken to the RCMP crime laboratory at Sackville, N.B. No cause of death was announced until today.

VALAPRAISO, Ind. (AP) — "Something the matter with your eyes, buddy," the sheriff's deputy asked the motorist with heavy sarcasm.

"Yes," the driver replied. "They're plastic."

Deputy Edward J. Blakely said this was the reply he got Friday after stopping a weaving car.

The driver had been blind since birth. Mary Ann Beavers, 20, Gary, Ind., said she had allowed her 25-year-old brother to drive at his repeated pleading to "just see how it feels."

There were four other persons in the car, and one of them tried to help the blind man steer.

Miss Beavers was charged with allowing an unlicensed driver to operate her car. No charge was filed against the blind brother, whose name was not obtained.

Non-op Railway Wage Dispute In Second Stage

MONTREAL (CP)—The slow process of conciliation in a labor dispute affecting 120,000 non-operating railway employees entered its second stage today after final attempts to bring the companies and the unions closer together apparently failed Friday.

Today the three members of the federal conciliation board met for preliminary work on the report they will present to Labor Minister Starr.

Mr. Justice J. V. H. Milvain of the Supreme Court of Alberta said Friday he expects to deliver the report to Mr. Starr by the end of July, but it might well not be made public then.

NO COMMON GROUND

Mr. Justice Milvain and his colleagues, union nominee David Lewis of Toronto and company nominee Philip Vineberg of Montreal, held three closed meetings Friday with representatives of the unions and the companies to see if there would be any point to further talks. It was clear no common ground had been discovered.

During the 25 days of public hearings by the board which ended Thursday neither side had moved from the stand it held when direct negotiations opened last November.

They could hardly be farther apart.

The 15 unions representing the non-ops-all railway employees performing off-train tasks—are demanding their average pay of $1.77 hourly be increased by 25 cents an hour.

The railways have refused to offer any increase. They say they simply can't afford one and that furthermore the non-ops are already adequately paid.

CrossingBlocked, Railway Fined

ST. THOMAS (CP) — Ruling that the Wabash Railway and not its employees was responsible for the prolonged blocking of a railroad crossing June 19, Magistrate F. R. Barnum levied a fine of $25 and costs Friday.

Evidence revealed the train had blocked the crossing for at least 19 minutes, preventing an ambulance from using the shortest route to the scene of a traffic accident.

Senator Kennedy Tightens Cordon On Eve of Democratic Nomination

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Senator John F. Kennedy tightened the cordon around his rival today as pre-convention battling over the Democratic presidential nomination neared a climax.

No matter where his opponents turned for support from uncommitted delegations, Kennedy's astute operators already had made their effective calls.

The Massachusetts senator—due to arrive here today — can point to banked - up support in every area still regarded as political open range in advance of the convention's formal opening Monday.

If the platoon leaders of delegations from California, Minnesota, Illinois, New Jersey and Pennsylvania consented to let their delegates vote freely, there seemed little doubt that Kennedy would gather a substantial majority of them into his camp.

These five states could provide 203 of the needed 761 votes for Kennedy's nomination. His bitterest enemies concede him around 600 votes on the first ballot.

To keep Kennedy from storming the nomination fortress on the first convention tally, Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon Johnson of Texas and other aspirants counted heavily on Minnesota and New Jersey from these five.

Before leaving New York, Kennedy said he is confident he will win the nomination without any prolonged convention fight. He said he had never contended he would win on the first ballot, as some of his strategists had hoped.

Also due in town today were Senator Stuart Symington from Missouri and Adlai Stevenson, twice a candidate for the presidency, who seems increasingly eager to accept a draft. Former president Harry Truman arrives Monday.

A 20 - member subcommittee was drawing up a preliminary draft of the proposed platform to be laid before the convention. Members voiced optimism they would come up with something that almost everybody would be satisfied with.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: A surge of cool air moved southward from Hudson Bay into Northern Ontario on Friday, setting off numerous showers and thunderstorms that spread to Southern Ontario by evening, but stopped short of the southwestern counties. Warm humid weather with scattered thundershowers will cover the province on Sunday to be followed by cooler weather in northern sections during the day.

ARMED REVOLT BREAKS OUT IN CONGO PROVINCE

Other Whites Flee 2 Europeans Shot,

LEOPOLDVILLE, Congo Republic (CP)—An armed rebellion broke out in the copper-rich province of Katanga today just as tension was subsiding in this capital city of the nine-day-old Congo Republic.

Two Europeans were shot to death Friday night by Congolese troops as they tried to flee from Kongolo in Katanga province.

Virtually all the other white residents succeeded in escaping by boats down the Luluaba River to Mabalo, acording to an official statement issued in Elisabethville, capital of the province.

Katanga, the wealthiest province in the Congo, lies southeast of Leopoldville on the border of the British protectorate of Northern Rhodesia.

A 12-hour rule of terror by a mutinous army in Leopoldville Friday ended with an agreement between Premier Patrice Lumumba's government and the mutineers to dismiss all white Belgian officers from the armed forces.

An all-night curfew was imposed on the capital, where the Congo Republic was born only nine days ago. This morning, it was "business as usual"—except that all white officers and administrators had vanished.

Streets were crowded with weekend shoppers. Many whites who Friday remained indoors were back at work this morning.

Claim Making Desk Officers Fly Takes Too Many Lives

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCAF policy of requiring senior officers in desk jobs to keep in flying trim was sharply questioned in the Commons defence committee Friday.

The committee also heard another acrimonious debate on the Bomarc anti-aircraft missile and its armament.

Harold Winch (CCF — Vancouver East) mantained that Air Vice-Marshal Keith Hodson, 44, chief of operations for North American Air Defence Command, should not have been flying when he was killed Tuesday in Colorado in a parachute jump from a T-33 jet trainer.

"Why do you risk the lives of senior officers whose ability is so essential?" Mr. Winch demanded.

Defence Minister Pearkes said senior officers must keep abreast of latest tactics and equipment developments. Air Vice-Marshal Hodson was on an "essential test" but the minister didn't say what it was.

Committee members recalled that Air Vice-Marshal Robert C. Ripley was killed in the crash of a Second World War Mitchell plane near here about two years ago and that Air Commodore Joseph Stephenson was killed in the crash of another Mitchell into Lake Michigan a few months ago.

Mr. Pearkes said the Mitchell

ROME (Reuters)—Italy's frail minority government today prepared to get tough with left-wing agitators in the wake of demonstrations Friday in which three persons were killed and at least 137 injured in clashes with police in Scilly's two main towns.

The clashes came amid continued left-right tension as a 10-hour general strike called by Communist - led unions caused demonstrations, but little violence, throughout most of the rest of the country.

A week of rioting already had caused seven deaths, scores of injuries to police, and led to hundreds of arrests.

Premier Fernando Tambroni's cabinet made clear it was determined to prevent street rioting from taking over the functions of elected government.

A bid to ease tension and restore order was made Friday night by Senate President Cesare Merzagore, who called for a 15-day truce.

Most leftists quickly accepted the truce offer. The Communists at first rejected it but then reversed themselves. But Tambroni's three-month-old regime feared acceptance of the truce would tie its hands in enforcing law and order.

Tambroni's goal is to bring his Christian Democrat government through the Oct. 31 deadline it set for itself when it was formed in April after weeks of political crisis.

His aim is to complete approval of the country's budget and clear the way for local and provincial elections Oct. 23.

The rioting in the Sicilian capital of Palermo, involving 20,000 persons, came after police with fire hoses and tear gas attempted to break up a crowd gathered to hear a Communist legislator.

A total of 72 policemen and 63 civilians were hurt in the clash including a woman seriously injured when she was hit by a bullet as she came out of a beauty parlor.

Democratic Meet May Prove One of Fiercest in History

LOS ANGELES (CP) — In Hollywood parlance, it promises to be a super-colossal production, a veritable Roman epic.

Supercharged by geographic and religious fireworks, it may be one of the fiercest gatherings the feuding Democrats ever staged.

But crowds are important. The Democrats want the greatest possible attention as they wrangle and debate and build up their forces for the crucial presidential battle next November.

But so bitter is the wrangling inside the party that out of the melee may also come ammunition for the Republicans during the presidential war.

The fight is centering on two dominant personalities.

Hard-core supporters on either side depict the depth of the party split—the tendency of the South to line up against the North; the conservative element lining up against the liberal wing; and to some smaller extent, Protestant lining up against Roman Catholic.

POOR OLD CBC GETS ITS LUMPS FROM ALL SIDES

Raked Fore and Aft By CCF, Grit, Tory

OTTAWA (CP)—It was open season on the CBC Friday in the Commons.

Complaints about the publicly-owned corporation — from programming to spending to alleged political patronage — flew thick and fast as the House debated the CBC's projected $71,700,000 spending program for the current fiscal year that began April 1.

Leading the attack was a phalanx of Progressive Conservative backbenchers from Quebec who charged that the corporation is a forum for Liberal and socialist propaganda.

At the other end of a different party line, Douglas Fisher (CCF—Port Arthur) expressed disquiet about the CBC's relations with the Conservative government.

He was "greatly bothered" about the role of government—and of Parliament generally—with respect to both the CBC and the Board of Broadcast Governors, Canadian broadcasting's regulatory body.

"The air certainly needs to be cleared up," Mr. Fisher declared as he called on Revenue Minister Nowlan, who reports to Parliament on broadcasting, to make a clarifying statement. Mr. Nowlan is to reply later to this and other points.

Mr. Fisher took out after the BBG as well as the CBC, which he criticized for its programming policies, contending that many of its programs are too "high brow" for the average Canadian.

Recent recommendations by the BBG regarding private television franchises in Toronto, Halifax, Ottawa and Winnipeg have caused grave doubts as to its impartiality, he said.

J. W. Pickersgill accused the CBC board of directors of "shocking irresponsibility" in removing corporation president J. Alphonse Ouimet as board chairman and replacing him with Robert L.

Sailor Dies After Dispute

TORONTO (CP) — Douglas Smith of Southampton, England, 35-year-old first officer of the yacht Pimpernel, died in hospital under anaesthetic Thursday after his fractured nose had been set.

Coroner Dr. Fred W. Ticket said he died of asphyxia, caused by the collapse of his lungs.

The 121-foot yacht, owned by Consolidated Truck Lines, left Toronto harbor for Port Dalhousie, Thursday after detectives questioned the five crew members.

LONDON (AP) — A 40-year-old mother of nine claimed today that she had tried to substitute a painting by her husband for one in the current Picasso exhibition at London's Tate Gallery.

The woman, Vivian Burleigh, told reporters: "I am sure my husband is a genius, but his own exhibition is not getting the attention it should. So I decided to do this."

Earlier Scotland Yard announced that they were investigating an attempt to steal one of the 269 Picasso paintings on show in the £100,000,000 exhibition.

It all began when a woman dropped a painting similar to a Picasso cubist exhibit. An attendant at the gallery noticed the similarity but just then a man with a red carnation in his buttonhole stepped up, identified himself as a Scotland Yard detective and said he'd "take care of the matter."

Then the woman disappeared. So did the man with the red carnation.

The Tate staff telephoned Scotland Yard and then sent Detective Inspector John Bruce to investigate.

While puzzled gallery staff were counting and examining the Picassos on exhibition, three students walked into the gallery with a painting they had found in the street.

"Is this yours?" one asked.

Worried officials checked the paintings again and then announced that this painting was not a Picasso.

Then Mrs. Burleigh called up the newspapers to say "I was the woman in the Tate."

She said she tried to hang the painting, by her husband, in the main gallery among the Picasso exhibits. But her husband found out what she was doing.

"My husband disapproved but I felt I just had to make some attempt to bring his talent before the public. I had hung other paintings by my husband there since the exhibition opened last Wednesday."

Her husband, Lionel, 52, said: "When I found out what she had been doing I made her go back and take down the paintings. Picasso's early work is wonderful, but his later work is rotten. I'm much better . ."

Castro Demands Pledge By U.S. Not To Attack

Oil Firm May Blacklist Ships Carrying Red Oil

LONDON (Reuters) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev said in Moscow today that Soviet artillery could give necessary support to Cuba if need be, Moscow radio reported.

Speaking to an all - Russian teachers' congress in the Kremlin, he said all people will support the Cubans in their "just fight" and no one will be able to defeat them.

"Don't forget that the United States is no longer far from the Soviet Union, and Soviet artillery can give necessary support to Cuba if need be," he said.

"Let the Pentagon remember the last (rocket) tests in which we proved that we can hit a target at a distance of 13,000 kilometres (about 8,000 miles).

"This, if you want, is a warning to those who might want to solve problems by force and not by reason."

"The peoples of the socialist countries will help their brothers in Cuba to defend their independence in order to make a failure of the economic blockade now announced by the United States," the Kremlin leader declared.

"Not only we, the working people of the socialist countries, but peoples of all countries must be vigilant against the intrigues of American imperialism.

"Everyone knows that an economic blockade by American monopolies may be the beginning of an intervention against Cuba. Therefore, we must raise our voice in defence of Cuba and warn that now imperialists can no longer plunder the world as they were able to do before.

"Now the peoples of the colonial and dependent countries are rising and fighting to free themselves from the shameless imperialist yoke, from the enslavement of the United States imperialists.

"And we on our side shall make use of everything to support Cuba and her brave people in the struggle for freedom and national independence which they have won under their national leader Fidel Castro.

"The socialist countries and all the people who stand for peace will give the Cuban people support in their just struggle, and no one will suceed in enslaving the Cuban people," Khrushchev proclaimed.

HAVANA (CP) — The sharp United States-Cuba crisis was heightened today by Premier Fidel Castro's charges of new aggressions and a warning by Soviet Premier Khrushchev that Russian rockets could hit the American mainland if the United States moved against Cuba.

In Moscow, Khrushchev in a bristling speech warned the United States to keep its hands off Cuba.

And in Havana, Castro declared that he now has at his command "100,000 militiamen with hundreds of thousands of rifles," plus new automatic weapons on the way.

OIL BLOCKADE

The new tension came in the wake of a sharp cut by the U.S. in the Cuban sugar quota and a suggestion of an oil blockade in retaliation against Castro's move in nationalizing foreign-owned refineries.

In New York, Standard Oil of New Jersey indicated it will consider blacklisting Western tanker owners and brokers who carry Soviet oil.

Castro, speaking confidently on his weekly TV address Friday night, said Washington could not have good relations with his government unless it promised publicly not to attack Cuba.

These were the conditions he laid down for good relations:

"Cuba's interests and aspirations to carry out its own policies must be respected. They must pledge before the world they won't hurt us militarily. They must renounce that commitment. They must declare positively our country will not be harmed, and that they will end all intervention in our economic policies."

Castro said U.S. handling of the oil problem was an example of American mistakes. Despite refusal of American-owned refineries to process Soviet crude oil—the refineries were seized because of that—he said Cuba will have plenty of oil.

Senate Leader Manuel Moreno Sanchez, a close friend of President Adolfo Lopez Mateos, said Mexico must provide Cuba with oil to cope with "a social and human catastrophe."

Mexico could not remain indifferent, he added.

Ousted Pastor Looks for 'Outside Job'

OTTAWA (CP)— An Ottawa minister who was ousted from his church said Friday he is looking for an outside job—"anywhere I can make an honest dollar."

Rev. A. Ian Burnett, 53, a Glasgow-born Presbyterian pastor and a popular Ottawa preacher, was dismissed from St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church after a two-year controversy erupted with a ruling by a commission of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada that his ministry had been "incapacitated."

Airport Group Will Meet Next Week - - Duncan

By DON HARVEY

Chairman Arthur Duncan of the East Central Ontario Airport Committee says he will call a meeting next week to get the group out of the summer doldrums. He said he hadn't called a meeting sooner because he's been tied up with numerous other things.

• • •

Ald. Harold Garner of Peterborough wants his city to do something soon about improving its airport.

"More and more industries are using their own airplanes," he said. "They want to know if we have an airport. It is a very definite need if we are going to get industry."

• • •

Heard the other night that Group Capt. Gordon Diamond, one-time CO of RCAF Station Trenton may go to Ottawa to fill the post made vacant at Air Force Headquarters when Air Commodore Joe Stephenson was killed. We've also heard another possibility: Group Captain Dick Cox might land the job. He's a former Station Trenton CO, too.

• • •

Loal air-force personel are betting that Air Vice-Marshal C. L. Annis of Air Materiel Command will go to NORAD to fill the vacancy made when Air Vice-Marshal Keith Hodson was killed this week. Second guess is Air-Vice-Marshal W. R. McBrien of Air Defence Command.

• • •

• • •

We've heard several times from several reliable quarters that about 50 F-101 Voodoos are sitting at a U.S. Air Force base decked out in RCAF markings. The Voodoo has been bandied about as a possible replacement for the RCAF's CF-100s, but so far the government hasn't made any announcement.

• • •

Group Capt. J. F. Edwards, chief staff officer (operations) at Air Transport Command, says that when ATC gets the C-103B, CC-109 and CC-106, it will be the best aerial transport command in the world.

• • •

Many RCAF and Army chaps in the Quinte district mourned the loss of retired Sqdn Ldr. Leonard John Dyte who died this week at Sunnybrook in Toronto. He apparently had suffered from heart trouble for some time. Scores of raw recruits back in the 20s looked on him as the top brass in the RCAF. That was in the days when he made a name for himself as a drill instructor at RCAF Station Camp Borden.

PRESCRIPTION?

Actually, a prescription is a passport to better health. Physicians study about ten years to be able to write one. Pharmacists study about five years to learn how to compound them. Drug firms sometimes spend millions to perfect the drugs in them. The few dollars all this knowledge costs saves you sickness-time and sometimes your life.

Bush Ambulance Service Obtains Resuscitator

In time of emergency such as a drowning, electric shock, or a dozen or more other such emergencies, a call to Bush's ambulance service for their resuscitator might well save a life.

Already this year the number of drownings across Canada has caused the Canadian Red Cross officials to express fear that an all-time record of deaths from this cause may result.

At the same time, however, there is reason to believe that many more drowning victims may be saved if the proper artificial respiration had been applied for a long enough period.

It is quite generally believed that the best possible artificial respiration in such cases of emergency can be given with the use of a resuscitator, now in use as standard equipment in most hospitals.

Portable resuscitators, such as that of Bush's, are in regular use by fire departments and by the armed services across Canada.

The resuscitator is an automatic breathing machine designed for that crisis in the hospital operating room when the patient ceases to breathe.

It forces oxygen into the patient's lungs, then expels it, forcing the patient's lungs to work. It can be adjusted to the lung capacity of any patients, from a newly born baby to a grown adult. It automatically signals when the patient begins to breathe naturally.

In an emergency such as a drowning the resuscitator takes over from manually applied artificial respiration which should always be practised until the resuscitator arrives.

A call for its use may well save a life. The telephone is WOodland 8-5588.

Bevan Cremated With No Service

TREDEGAR, Wales (Reuters) —The body of Aneurin Bevan was cremated Friday in a simple ceremony devoid of any religious formalities.

There was no minister, no prayer, no hymn and no funeral oration for the great orator of the Labor party.

Seeks Lodging For Harmsworth Race Visitors

TRENTON—Mrs. Hazel Docksteader of Picton is spending a few days in Trenton in connection with advance publicity about the Harmsworth Trophy world-championship speed boat races which will be held in Long Reach near Hay Bay, August 19, 20 and 22.

Mrs. Docksteader said an estimated crowd of 55,000 was expected to attend. She has been canvassing hotels, motels and homes in the Quinte district seeking boarding accommodation for the sports enthusiasts. Rotary clubs in the district have been asked to help secure accommodation.

2 Girls Return Home, 2 Others Still Missing

TRENTON — Linda Coon, 15, and Diane Emerson, 14, of Trenton, missing from their homes for two weeks, returned home early this morning and refused to tell where they had been.

The girls appeared to be well and healthy.

Meanwhile, two other girls were still missing. They were identified as Joan Vergilio, 13, of the Carrying Place Road and Gloria Lawes (Twyman), 16, of Wooler.

The four girls were said to be members of a Hate-Your-Parents' Club whose motto was Freedom.

The Lawes girl was visiting friends in Trenton when she vanished. One theory is that she and the Vergilio girl went away together. They were last seen Monday when Joan went to Batawa seeking work.

Joan's mother, Mrs. John Vergilio, said her daughter had no money and had taken no extra clothing.

GONE ABROAD

TRENTON — Miss Ina Ray Johnson and Miss Margaret Kleinwort, teachers at College St. Public School, left last week for an extended European tour aboard the Dutch liner "Ryndam". They will visit Holland, Germany, Switzerland and Sweden, returning to Canada at the end of August.

Idealism Does Not Exist Today Says Speaker

TRENTON — Guest speaker at Thursday night's meeting of the Kiwanis Club was Bill McNeely of Bath, Kiwanis International lieutenant-governor for district 6-A.

Enlarging on the Kiwanis International theme for 1960, "Freedom is up to you," Lt.-Gov. McNeely said: "Idealism is practically non-existent in the world today. We are all slaves of fear . . . fear of world-wide conflict . . . fear of public opinion and fear of ridicule. These fears are often stumbling blocks to the good men can do."

He said that in order to live up to the high ideals of Kiwanis, each member should strive to establish the club's ideals in the minds of other members of his community.

"The high ideals of Kiwanis are basically the teachings of Our Lord, and can be practised by al men, regardless of their faith," he said. "And a world in which these ideals are practiced is not a Utopian or unattainable state. The total membership of Kiwanis International is 260,000 and if all Kiwanians lived up to the ideals of the organization they could make a terrific impact on the world about them."

Lt.-Governor McNeely was introduced by Al. Weaver, who referred to him as a "dedicated Kiwanian" in outlining his long record of service in the club. E. M. Parker, Jr., a former lieutenant-governor, thanked the speaker.

Preceding his address, the lieutenant-governor presented the quarter-annual award to the president of the Trenton club, Dick Burnet. In presenting the award, Mr. McNeely warned members against complacency, and told them that they would have to work hard to keep up the standard which they had set themselves.

Hope to Catch Bandit Suspects Trapped in Bush

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)—Provincial Police said today there is a good chance of capturing two men—believed to be armed — who are trapped in dense bushland about 125 miles east of Montreal.

But a spokesman at search headquarters here added that darkness was hampering efforts by the police posse of 20 to 30 men, armed with revolvers and two sub-machine guns.

The two men are suspected of a $1,800 bank holdup Thursday in the village of Ham Sud, halfway between Victoriaville and Sherbrooke.

They are trapped in a dense wood about 10 miles deep between the Eastern Township villages of Sts. Martyrs Canadiens, St. Gerard and Garthby, about 15 miles from the scene of the holdup.

PLANE SPOTTED MEN

Provincial police, aided by a small, private plane which combed the area until dusk, twice caught sight of the men but both times they ducked back into woods and eluded searchers.

The first time, at 4.30 p.m., police opened fire on them and at 9.55 p.m. they had a "good look" at them when they darted across a road.

The search area was narrowed down from about 350 square miles as police closed in on the men and threw up cordons to block all exits. The posse was leaving the woods in ones and twos to be fed before continuing the search.

The two men eluded a provincial

Kirkland Lake Mine Will Close

KIRKLAND LAKE (CP) — Another link in Kirkland Lake's famous Golden Mile will disappear when Kirkland Minerals, one of the area's major producers, ceases operations July 31.

News of the huge underground works closing gave this community a jolt Friday. The gold mine employs 200.

The report followed a similar announcement earlier this year that Sylvanite mines will cease operations within a year.

Operating at a loss since 1955, Kirkland Minerals had been a major producer in the area since 1919. During the period it milled over 3,000,000 tons of ore which produced gold valued at $39,000,000.

Women's Institute Marks 50th Anniversary at St. Andrew's

IVANHOE — Another milestone in the history of Ivanhoe W.I. was marked recently on the occasion of the 50th anniversary of the Ivanhoe branch when 68 former members and neighboring Institutes gathered in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, and were welcomed by two charter members, Mrs. William Shaw and Mrs. William French.

Mrs. Reg. Haggerty presided at the piano.

A warm welcome was extended to all present by Mrs. K. Rooney, on behalf of the Rev. K. Rooney, and the session.

Mrs. Barton Haggerty, president of Ivanhoe W.I., presided, and also added words of welcome. Mrs. Haggerty compared the life of women 50 years ago with the women of today, saying "in spite of all the changes, the women were carrying on today with the same principles and with the same high standards."

MEMORIAL SERVICE

A memorial service was conducted by Miss Jayne Gay, in memory of members who have passed on: A poem, "Up Hill," by Rossetti, was read and a memorial hymn was sung by Mrs. Milton Shaw; "Out of the Hitherwhere Into the Yon," by James Whitcomb Riley, was read, and a one-minute silence observed.

The guest speaker, Mrs. George McCrimmon of Eldorado district, president of North Hastings W.I., chose for the subject of her fine address, "Friendship."

"Where would you find firmer friendships and closer ties than in the W.I.? The W.I. means friendship and adult education. That little pin you wear spells 'friendship' wherever you go.

"Friendship is something you must water like a flower garden if it would remain fresh, colorful and fragrant. Let us enrich our lives by seeing and writing to old friends and by making new ones.

"What has happened to the old fashioned wave of the hand as a greeting? A nod of the head seems so cold and formal. I do love these anniversaries and grandmother's meetings; they give one a chance to travel down memory's lane.

"In the olden days we had to depend on friends more, and were more neighborly; the taffy pulls, quilting bees, barn raisings and Sunday dinners were occasions of laughter and visiting.

SEEDS OF KINDNESS

"Seeds of kindness, good will and human understanding spring up in deathless friendship; big deeds of worth, and memories that will not soon fade out.

"Life is sweet just because of the friends we have made — and the things which in common we share, we want to live on, not because of ourselves, but because of the people who care. Its giving and doing for somebody else on that, all life's splendor depends, and the joy of this world when you've summed it all up, Is found in the making of friends".

Edgar Guest

Mrs. John Wallace thanked Mrs. McCrimmon on behalf of all present.

A musical number, "The More We Get Together", was given by Bannockburn W.I., a reading, "Masculine Criticism of the W.I." was given by Mrs. John Carlyle. Wellmans W.I. and the history of Ivanhoe W.I. was given by Mrs. J. C. Sills, as follows: this branch was organized in the Orange Hall, Ivanhoe, in 1910 with the following officers: president — Mrs. Andrew Downey; sec-treas. — Miss Nettie Benson; charter members — Mrs. D. L. Fleming, Mrs. Jno. Clements, Mrs. Albert Clements, Mrs. Hulsie Rollins, Mrs. Joseph Rollins, Mrs. William Shaw, Mrs. Sam Shaw and Mrs. William French.

The Ivanhoe branch from the Madoc Review of 1910, of the Women's Institute shows a membership of 22 held its first meeting at the home of the president, Mrs. Andrew Downey, where a most profitable and enjoyable time was spent. Subjects for discussion were: "The Production of Eggs", "Children's Rights", "Cake Baking".

The second meeting was held at the home of Miss Jennie Tanner and for a number of years this hospitable, spacious home was an ideal setting for the Institute annual, "At Home". Visiting Institutes were also entertained here.

COMMITTEES APPOINTED

In 1914 committees were appointed for war work. The women of Ivanhoe WI were untiring in their efforts. Boxes were sent overseas containing knitted goods, bandages, supplies as well as home relief given.

On June 25, 1935 the Branch met in Huntingdon Twp. hall to celebrate its 25th anniversary with 65 members and guests sitting down to the banquet tables. Mrs. D. L. Fleming, a past president, was toastmistress.

There were seven past presidents present and in token of their services, they were presented with a china cup and saucer. The guest speaker was Mrs. Joseph Wilson, Stirling, who chose for her subject, "Up the Hill and Over".

The large three tiered cake was made by Mrs. Richard Haggerty. Mrs. James Haggerty lighted the candles and Mrs. A. Clements blew them out. Mrs. Charles Mitz placed the knife in the cake.

MANY BENEFITS

Ivanhoe WI has benefited the community in a great many ways. It has broadened the vision of the home makers, enlarged their sympathies and enriched the social life. Some of the constructive things done were: placing a bell on Ivanhoe public school; a piano in Huntingdon township hall which has been replaced by a later model, recently, also dishes, curtains and equipment; providing an annual Hallowe'en party, thus keeping the children off the streets and away from wanton mischief; contributing to buy a tractor for a village in Greece; Tely. Milk Ship; world refugees; Hospital for Sick Children, and many other needy causes.

"Let us hand on our heritage, not only unspoiled and undiminished, but enriched and enlarged."

A piano solo, "Irish Airs," was given by Mrs. Gerald Clancy, of Wellmans.

The president, thanked all those who had taken part in the program and also those who had prepared and planned for this happy event, particularly Mrs. John Wright, who had a great deal to do with the preparations.

TEA IN CHURCH PARLORS

The tea table was appointed with white damask cloth and silver tea service at either end, gold-colored candlesticks and candles centring low bowls of roses and baby's breath and a basket of purple and white canterbury bells.

Candles were lighted on the beautifully decorated anniversary cake by Mrs. Kenneth Nicol of Madoc. The knife was placed in the cake by Mrs. Henry Wallace and the candles blown out by Mrs. Thomas Lawson. Mrs. Arthur Wood and Mrs. John Wright poured tea.

Refreshments were served.

Guestsg were present from Stirling; Madoc; Eldorado; Bannockburn; Harold; Tweed; Read; Foxboro and Wellmans.

Tariff Reductions Have Widened Gulf Between West Europe's Two Trading Blocs

By DAVE OANCIA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—The gulf between Western Europe's two trading blocs has widened.

This is one of the far-reaching effects of the tariff reductions made by members of the pace-setting European Economic Community (the Six) and the European Free Trade Association (the Seven).

These cuts have set the two blocs on courses that, unless there is a change soon, can only take them farther and farther apart.

In Britain, this is causing grave concern not only about the island nation's economic future, but also about the threat to the unity of a Western world faced with a ruthless Communist political, trade and economic offensive.

This concern has, for the first time in Britain's history, provoked a growing cry that the nation should give up her centuries-old policy of aloofness from continental affairs and join the Six in their efforts to build a United States of Europe.

LITTLE TIME

"We have not too much time," pleaded Lord Boothby, an outspoken former Conservative member of Parliament, during a recent House of Lords debate on international affairs.

To reinforce his plea for British participation in the Common Market, he added:

"So far as Europe is concerned the tide is ebbing. There is no longer time to wade in and test the temperature of the water and come out if we do not like it when it gets up to our ankles. The time has come to jump."

Similar demands now are being made frequently by most segments of the British press and many other leading personalities.

The latest appeals were touched off by the July 1 tariff reductions. The Six — France, Germany, Italy and the Benelux nations—made their second 10-per-cent cut among themselves.

The Seven — Britain, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Austria, Switzerland and Portugal — slashed tariffs 20 per cent on industrial goods traded among themselves. This was their first step towards formation of a regional free trade area.

DRAW APART

So far the rival blocs have kept in step. They will start to draw apart in earnest next January. Then the Six will make their first move towards a common external tariff and also reduce by a further 10 per cent the duties among themselves.

"Then the shoe will start to pinch," said one economist.

It will mean that tariffs in the Benelux countries and Germany will start to go up, while at the same time the barriers between the six nations will come down.

Thus, the members of the community will be encouraged to switch at least some of their purchases from traditional world sources to suppliers within the Common Market.

The Six, however, are trying to achieve far more than just free trade among themselves. To them, the creation of a single economy in Europe implies the common management of that economy as well.

POLITICAL AIMS

Possibly still more important are the political aims that lie behind the idea of the community. A continental Europe ravaged by war and nationalistic rivalries was gripped by a deep-seated desire to unite. This desire, fulfilled for many in the Common Market, has led to the development of a new and major force in world affairs.

When Britain decided five years ago not to participate in the discussions that led to the establishment of the community, the chief arguments she advanced were that she could not accept the supra-national aspirations of the Six or any weakening of the Commonwealth ties.

"The Common Market became a reality suddenly last summer although we have never believed it would," said Lord Boothby. "When we suddenly woke up to the fact that it existed, we panicked and rushed into the creation of the free trade area of the Seven.

"This was a profound mistake because it consolidated the division of Europe instead of healing it."

BRITISH EXCUSES

Boothby insists that Britain will never achieve successful negotiations going between the Six and Seven. All that the creation of the Seven has done is to consolidate and aggravate the present division of Europe and to provide the government with another excuse, in addition to the Commonwealth, for keeping out of Europe.

"Do we want to lead Europe or become an isolated offshore island? There is no choice between the Commonwealth and a united Europe. Imperial preference is a diminishing factor and would be negligible in five or six years.

"We must create in Europe a political and economic unity capable of standing on its own feet in the face of gigantic political and economic organization of the Communists on one hand and the United States on the other."

Canadian Canners, Foxboro, Act to Prevent Pollution

Taking prompt action following last year's complaints that discharge from the canning factory was polluting the water of the Moira River, the Canadian Canners at Foxboro have completed an elaborate disposal installation which is expected will do much to clear up the situation last year blamed for killing thousands of fish.

Bruce H. Smith, Moira River Conservation Authority chairman, said today that a report from the Water Resources Commission was to the effect that the canning company had done a wonderful job and that the installation was a model one that should be copied by all canning factories across the country.

COMMENDS COMPANY

"The canning company is to be highly commended on the prompt action which was taken. It shows the company is conservation minded," said Mr. Smith.

Late last summer low water conditions in the river, together with high water temperatures and pollution, killed thousands of fish in the river. Discharge from the canning factory was judged to be one of the main causes for the pollution.

To remedy the situation the canning company has installed piping and pumping equipment to pump waste water across the river, where it is discharged into a million gallon reservoir.

From the storage tank the effluent is sprayed from a three-mile line of pipe over a fifty acre area of property.

Both Mr. Smith and Alderman George A. Wishart, chairman of the conservation authority water committee, were high in their commendation for Mr. C. Finnamore, canning factory manager, for his prompt action following complaints of river pollution last year.

Sunday, Mr. Finnamore will be heard in an interview over radio station CJBQ on the regular Sunday broadcast feature, "Our Valley."

British Cabinet Shuffle Coming

LONDON (CP)—Big changes in the government are in prospect. They may be announced within two weeks.

Two senior ministers are definitely quitting, it was understood today. They are the chancellor of the exchequer, Derick Heathcoat Amory, who is returning to the family textile business in Devon, and the Earl of Home, Commonwealth relations secretary, who is expected to take a Conservative party post in Scotland.

There is also a possibility that Viscount Hailsham, lord privy seal and minister for science and technology, will be involved in the extensive reconstruction that Prime Minister Macmillan is contemplating.

Although speculation on new appointments is always risky, the expectation is that Heathcoat Amory will be replaced at the treasury by Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd.

A possible successor to Lloyd at the foreign office is Housing Minister Henry Brooke.

The forthcoming changes are not expected to affect Macmillan's No. 2 man, R. A. Butler, who will probably remain as home secretary and leader of the House of Commons.

Postal Workers Get Pay Boosts

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP)—Pay increases for 15,758 postal employees ranging from $300 to $480 a year were announced Friday night by Postmaster-General William Hamilton in an address to the Federated Association of Letter Carriers. The increases are retroactive to July 1.

The increases average 12.5 per cent and will cost the government $7,341,595 a year which in dollar amount is the "largest single increase" ever granted letter carriers, postal clerks, mail handlers and dispatchers, Mr. Hamilton said.

In the case of letter carriers and postal clerks, the increase will be $420. For mail handlers it will be $300 and for dispatchers $480. "Appropriate" rates of increase also have been granted for part-time employees in these classes.

Letter carriers before the increases started at a salary of $2,850 a year and could reach a maximum of $3,600. Postal clerks had a minimum of $2,850 and a maximum of $3,900, mail handlers $2,640 and $3,360.

Ashram, Old Hindu Custom, Proves Success at Albert

Friday saw the conclusion of the first Canadian Ashram, held at Albert College for the past seven days. Led by Dr. E. Stanley Jones, noted missionary, author and evangelist, the Ashram proved to be a deeply moving experience for the more than 140 persons in attendance.

"Deeply spiritual" were the words used by Dr. A. E. MacKenzie, principal of Albert College, to describe the Ashram, adding that this spiritualism struck a much deeper note than other church gatherings of this nature which he had experienced.

The Ashram is a "gathering of people to discover a more vital relationship to Christ and His Kingdom" to quote the Rev. Gordon C. Hunter of Asbury-West United Church, Toronto, convener of the Canadian Ashram. Mr. Hunter indicated that the event had proved so successful for all concerned that they are looking forward to another Ashram next year.

Ashram is an old Hindu custom which Dr. Jones became acquainted with during his missionary work in India. Through the use of this custom an Hindu leader could take aside his disciples, dropping all caste barriers for the occasion, to search for God. Dr. Jones has put this custom into a Christian context, using Christ as the leader around whom the Ashram is built. Similarly there is no distinction drawn as to a person's denomination or walk in life.

Following the Canadian Ashram, Dr. Jones, together with several of his associates, will be attending ten more Ashrams in the United States. Then he will carry on to lead Ashrams in South America, the United Kingdom, Europe and the Middle East before returning to India. Next year he will again return to North America for another series of Ashrams.

Assisting in the leadership of this Ashram were Dr. C. Thompson, Mary Webster, Thomas Carruth and Mrs. Marjorie Wilkinson, who come from various places in the United States and Canada. So, too, did the people attending. Besides a large number from all sections of Ontario, there were people from Saskatchewan, Manitoba, New York, Maryland, Illinois, Tennessee, New Jersey and Georgia.

Those in attendance ranged in age from three to 80. Dr. Jones is 76 years old himself. There was a planned schedule of activity for all.

The only worry which confronts the organizers of the Canadian Ashram is for the future. If each person in attendance returns next year, which seems extremely likely from the casual conversations which took place upon departure yesterday afternoon, and brings one friend, accommodation is going to be severely strained. This worry is not overly great, however. If the current Ashram grows too large, such as happened in Texas, two Ashrams will have to be held in Canada.

Last Of The Great Rebels?

Nye Bevan is dead.

It would be too pessimistic to say that this marks the end of an era. But real rebels are getting scarce.

Nye was such a one. He did not pick the easy path. He first pushed into the international news in the war years, when most of his colleagues in the British Labor Party were busy co-operating with the Conservatives in running the country's war effort. Almost certainly it did no harm to have a voice raised occasionally in angry opposition to the way affairs were being run. Bevan did that—and the antagonist he chose for his duels was not some worried little under-secretary but the House's acknowledged master of repartee, Prime Minister Winston Churchill himself. Winnie tore several yards of skin off Nye on more than one occasion—but Nye gave as good as he got. So doing, he won himself friends, even in the camp of the enemy. When he became seriously ill earlier this year, references to "Good old Nye" were heard in London's most conservative clubs. It was the same homage to a fighting spirit that won for Stalin the grudging tribute of "Uncle Joe" after he had proven his right to his pseudonym, meaning "steel", by waiting iron-nerved until the Nazis were at the very gates of Moscow before throwing in his carefully-nurtured reserves.

Bevan was no moderate. He may well have come to the Labor Party too late, for it may be that if the two-party system needed for the British parliamentary system is to be preserved it is today essential that Labor should be a party of moderation—socialist, perhaps, but moderately so.

To say that, though, is to define a role for Labor which is not yet certain. It may be that a Liberal renaissance will force Labor to relinquish its present role as the alternative to the Conservatives as the government. If so, Labor will be in dire need of a few rebels—and in any event it will be a sorry day in the political life of any nation when affairs have reached such a state of stagnation that no useful purposes whatever are served when the voice of the rebel is raised in the land.

Natural Reaction

The Congo is giving the Dark Continent a black eye.

Opponents of granting independence to African colonies will be secretly delighted, but outwardly alarmed, at the current rioting in that newly-established republic and at the manner in which the natives are insulting and abusing white residents.

Those who advocate turning over control of their homelands to the Africans will be full of excuses for these events—will blame the Belgians for precipitate action, or will seek to minimize the extent of the disturbances.

Almost nobody will ask an honest question and give an honest answer—what, do you suppose, would have been the reaction of a highly-civilized white population if it had just won independence from black or yellow overlords?

Civilization changes some things—but not the tendency to settle old scores when the opportunity arises.

Simple Solution

Hon. Michael Starr, Federal minister of labor, reports that an Elliot Lake mine is seeking 100 skilled miners, and is unable to obtain them, at the same time that some miners in the area are asking for government assistance to move to other parts of Canada.

The men, probably, think that if they take these jobs they will have to move eventually, but that in two or three years the government will not be as likely to assist them as it is today.

We can suggest a solution to Mr. Starr. He might take note of the names of the miners who apply for the Elliot Lake jobs—and guarantee them assistance in moving whenever work is not available.

The other men? What evidence will Mr. Starr have that they are really anxious to work?

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

IT MEANS SPIRITUAL GROWTH

Practicing the presence of God!

There was a famous religious figure some centuries ago, Brother Lawrence, who gave this religious exercise its name, described it, and commended it to multitudes of people.

Practicing the presence of God means something more than simply reflecting on religious truth. It means more than making good resolutions. It means more than reading the Bible, or praying, or attending to any church duty. It means precisely what it says — practicing the presence of God.

Try it sometime. Relax and cause your mind to become as completely free of thought as you can possibly make it by the exercise of your will. Then think about God — not just about this or that aspect of God. Think about God with the whole of your mind. Try to make yourself conscious of His reality. Push Him steadily into your mind. Let no extraneous thought edge in and take possession of even the smallest area of your consciousness. Let the whole of it be occupied not just by a thought about God but by God Himself. If you can think of lifting something up and holding it against the wall, perhaps that figuring will help you lift up not only your mind but the whole of your personality and bring it in contact with God.

It is at one and the same time easier than you would think and more difficult. You may not achieve it the first time you try it. Try again — and again, and again.

Why Are People Timid?

New York Times

"What is it," asks Justice Frankfurter in "Felix Frankfurter Reminisces" a recently published transcript of a series of recorded conversations, "that makes so many men timid creatures?" Justice Frankfurter offers some answers: "People want to avoid unpleasantness . . . People want to be asked to dinners at certain houses. They want to run for office . . . Perhaps they are timid because, as Billy Graham said the other day, they would rather be liked than right. Dozens of reasons suggest themselves. To become aggressive or adventurous it may be necessary to lead, and leadership draws to it responsibility — something hardly anybody these days seems to want. Good old "George" still does many of these things each of us ought to be doing (and probably could do better). Timidity may offer the promise of unruffled obscurity, or a feeling of false security — false because "security" (if one means freedom from danger, risk, care, apprehension or doubt) does not exist, and a reading of history suggests it never did.

• • •

It may be proposed at the risk of being called non-progressive or worse ,that timidity will increase before it noticeably decreases. The conformist, is not necessarily a timid man, but the odds strongly favor his being one; it is, obviously easier to conform than not. It is also much harder not to conform — to be brave — today than it ever has been because more of us are living more closely together than ever before. The boundary between "city" and "country" no longer is firm. Once upon a time the nonconformist — seeking solitude, elbow room, quiet or whatever — could retreat to the "country" and if he chose, burn steaks stuck on sticks over a charcoal pit any old way he wanted (or eat his meat rare) and nobody would care, because his nearest neighbor was miles out of sight and hearing. Today he does not burn steaks for fun, but because it is the thing to do, and unless he burns them down on a patented charcoal - burning device of a certain size with an electrically rotated pit he lacks status and his keeneyed neighbors, fifty feet or so away, will take note.

• • •

The sad part of timidity — it may be proposed further — is not the adult's efforts to hide it, or to compensate for it, behind a brassy gegariousness (or behind the wheels of bizarre cars with one or two syllable names and nervous exhausts), but rather the adult's efforts to press conformity upon children by example and precept. A child who appears to be content from time to time to play by himself runs the risk, these days, of being taken to a child guidance counselor or by a parent demanding to know why the child does not Join the Group.

• • •

An observer who lives in a certain suburb of this city calls this department's attention to what he considers to be a disturbing phenomenon. In this suburb, he says, are hundreds of children of all ages. Near it is a patch of woods, covering perhaps 15 acres. It is, he says, a rather rare patch of woods in that, being located between one suburb and another, it has not been "improved"; ... underbrush and fallen trees remain undisturbed. It is, of course, a wonderful retreat for birds; this observer in the course of many solitary bird-watching expeditions reports never having seen any children of any age exploring these woods. No well-beaten paths across these woods anywhere, although no "keep out" signs mark the perimeter. No children track Indians across the carpeting of last year's leaves no imaginary bears are hunted, no overnight camps are set up there, no knights with broomstick swords or clothespole lances come seeking dragons. The children, he says, are playing (mostly baseball) in the streets, or in their neat little yards — but they are not exploring. This apparent absence of adventures, he says, both puzzles and worries him. Perhaps, he adds wryly, the woods need "keep out" signs to make exploring attractive.

• • •

Conformity is, in the young, an enemy of imagination and hence a foe of adventure, an ally of timidity. But perhaps the wheel will turn; every action begets its reaction, and we may yet enter an Age of Rebellion, when men will revolt — quietly, possibly, but firmly — against the organization, the group, the committee. Or will we remember too late that when too many men are "timid creatures" the real casualty is that perishable, invisible and precious thing we know as freedom?

Urges Atomic Noah's Arks

Winnipeg Tribune

Sir Alister Hardy is professor of zoology and comparative anatomy at Oxford University and is recognized as one of Britain's outstanding authorities on natural history. Sir Alister is worried about the consequences of an atomic war.

Writing in The London Times recently, he commented that a nuclear war could mean not only an appalling loss of life, but also the loss of all that civilization stands for—all the treasures of art, music and literature, all records of human thought, achievement and endeavor. He held that the latter loss would be far more lamentable than the death of millions.

Sir Alister appealed to the nations to try to prevent this calamity from happening. He had two suggestions, both of them reminiscent of Noah's Ark. He said: "It would be a comfort in our death throes to think that a few mortals might survive and their distant descendants might yet rediscover Shakespeare and Shelley, hear Beethoven on a record and turn the pages of our magnificent but sad history".

He suggests that mankind should construct a number of arks — perhaps one on each continent — and that durable plastic or concrete maps of their location should be left in all sorts of places about the world. Sir Alister admitted there might be some difficulty about what should be placed in the ark — in science, for example, should we pass on the secrets that caused our doom?

He also suggested that consideration might be given to an even more ambitious kind of ark — one constructed in a deep cavern or disused mine, protected from contamination and stocked with food, water and oxygen to last a long time.

Relays of volunteers might be persuaded to take turns in living in the shelter — just in case. "Instead of a dove, special indicators connected with the atmosphere and surface would tell the prisoners when at last they could venture out and hope to live".

It is hard to tell how serious Sir Alister was in making his ark suggestions. Perhaps he hoped that arks, in order to survive an atomic deluge might make the nations work a bit harder to prevent the deluge from happening.

Elusive Paragon

The Times of London

The other day a Swedish management consultant addressed the Office Management Association on "The Perfect Secretary." The odd thing about this is that it does not sound odd at all. The world of affairs has long been haunted by the image of this elusive paragon. To inquire why we believe her to exist is not to imply that she does not, but nobody talks abount the perfect cook or the perfect charwoman or (for that matter) the perfect management consultant. Although we are more than half persuaded that there is such a thing as a perfect secretary, nobody has ever heard of the perfect Secretary of State.

Handshake Old Gesture

National Geographic Bulletin

Thousands of office seekers will be out this election year shaking hands with the man on the street and the woman in the supermarket in the United States.

Though the friendly handshake is a political and social institution of great antiquity, no one knows exactly how or where it began. The best-known explanation is that the right hand holds weapons, so ancients extended an empty right hand to show peaceful intent.

Another theory suggests that people got into the habit of clasping right hands as a sign of assistance.

In Babylon, the leading politician had to shake at least one hand a year. During the new year festival, custom required Babylon's king to grasp the hands of the image of Marduk to signify he received his authority directly from that deity.

• • •

Hand taking was part of the ancient Hindu marriage ceremony. Romans clasped hands in court as a sign of agreement, peace, or friendship. This became the Christian practice of extending the right hand of fellowship.

The handshake travelled with western culture. It even affected the customs of American Indians, who had greeted friends with various gestures, including blowing in one another's ears.

In the 1880 annual report of the Smithsonian Institution's Bureau of Ethnology, Garrick Mallery noted that "shaking hands on meeting" was the "annoying etiquette of Indians in their intercourse with whites". He said, however, that this "foreign importation" was a recent innovation and rarely used between Indians.

Mallery added, rather testily: "The senseless and inconvenient custom of shaking hands is, indeed, by no means general throughout the world, and in the extent to which it prevails in the United States is the subject of ridicule by foreigners".

Across the Pacific, meanwhile, Thai children were being taught the "senseless" custom to replace the traditional "wai" greeting in which the palms are pressed gently together.

• • •

Though the handshake has spread, it is still not universal. It finds its counterpart in many other forms ranging from weeping to kissing.

A Chinese of the old order shakes his own hands. The Ainu people of Japan make guests feel welcome by rubbing their own palms together. Andaman Islanders blow into one another's hands. A Lepp places one hand on a friend's shoulder in a half-embrace. The inhabitants of bleak Tierra del Fuego employ the hands in a bone-crushing bear hug.

A Moslem shakes hands with thumbs up then touches his breast, forehead, and lips to express respect and affection.

Many primitive peoples indulge in ceremonial crouching and weeping. Aborigines of Australia and New Zealand, for example meet with loud lamentation to commemorate friends who have died since the last encounter.

The ceremonial kiss had declined in recent centuries. The Dutch scholar Erasmus, who died in 1536, said a really well-mannered caller started his visit by kissing his host, hostess, all the children, and the dog and the cat. The quaint custom survives, perhaps in the predilection of office seekers for kissing babies.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

HEIGHT FAR DOWN ON LIST OF THINGS MAKING MAN TRULY BIG

"Dear Dr. Molner: My grandson, 11, is quite small for his age, and the pediatrician said at the rate he is growing he may not exceed five feet. His mother in five feet, three, father five feet, eight. I am five feet but his grandfathers were tall. The child excels in all sports, but is sensitive about his height.—E.H."

One formula for estimating height is to take the mother's height and multiply by 1.08. Then average the result with the father's height. According to this formula, the boy would grow to five feet, seven inches.

He sounds like a vigorous, well - muscled boy, and you know what Abraham Lincoln said — something about the Good Lord knowing what He was doing because He made every man's legs just long enough to reach the ground.

However, it might make the parents and the boy feel better to consult a gland specialist for assurance that everything is in proper order. Being tall, I've noticed, isn't important to anybody except people who lack height and worry about it. Height is far, far down on the list of things that make a big man.

• • •

"Dear Dr. Molner: I have heard that dark shadows under the eyes, that is, 'bags under the eyes,' are often due to vitamin deficiency.—A.L."

No, this condition is not the result of vitamin deficiency. It has odo t has to do with skin texture and coloring, and fatigue can accentuate it. Loss of tone of skin and the small amount of muscle under the skin, associated with aging, etc., are important considerations.

• • •

"Dear Dr. Molner: I am 55 and have had mastoid infection since I was a child. Could I syringe my ears with anything that would dry them up? — J. P. M."

I doubt it, my friend. I doubt it so much that I'll give you a flat "no." Infection of such long standing is going to be stubborn. But rather than let it continue, go to an ENT (that means ear - nose - throat) specialist and let him decide the best way to help you. If you don't have a personal physician, call the county medical society and ask them to give you the names of two or three ENT specialists.

• • •

"Dear Dr. Molner: Some time ago you discussed a wrist ganglion, I would appreciate a discussion of the other kind. My dad has had treatments for a neuralgia of sphenopalative ganglia, which seems to control the pain.—S.M."

"Ganglion" (plural: ganglia) means "knot." In my earlier discussion, of a ganglion (or "knot") in the wrist, the term applies to a "knot" or swelling in the sheath of a tendon, commonly in the wrist.

The other type of ganglion refers to a bunching of nerve cells from which nerve fibers emerge. This is a normal part of the anatomy. In your dad's case, the neuralgia means that something has affected certain ganglia. It could be due to infection or toxemia of some sort. In this particular area, there may be some connection with sinus disease.

As to the other symptoms you mentioned, I am not familiar with their being related to this particular type of neuralgia, so I should suspect these other symptoms to be from some other cause.

• • •

"Dear Dr. Molner: What do you do with a child of six who for no apparent reason at all throws objects at people and spits at them?—B.S.W."

This child is mad at something or somebody, and is expressing his resentment against the world. Check the home situation: Bickering? Excessive domination by one person or the other? Friction between brother or sister? You may need help from a child guidance centre.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

HUNTING AND FINDING

A collector of books for a great research library had been hunting for years to find a certain book to complete a rare set. He had searched the world's bookshops, libraries; he had advertised, and at last he had almost given up ever finding what he wanted. Then he found the book in an obscure home in South Africa — a missionary had it among his few treasures!

Life is really a grand hunt. And there is something to it that has all the thrills of the chase — if we enter it hoping to find something before the search is over.

The curious thing is that we usually find what we are looking for at the time when we least expect — and in the place that we never dreamed of finding it. But that is what makes life worth while.

Many of us discover in the heart of someone whom we have found late in life, the very elements that our heart demands to make it a complete working power. And then we appreciate it the more!

If you hunt for qualities you hope to find in those you love, the chances are that you will find them. You may find them in "the out-of-the-way places" of your friend's character — but if you hunt long enough, the very finding of them is sure to endear all the other rare qualities hidden about the ones you looked for.

Always seek — that you may find!—

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

How does a tiny bird, one year old, no bigger than your thumb, weighing less than three pennies, and a mother, know what to feed its babies?

How does this tiny, fragile creature that was born this time last year, but which left here last September, and travelled higgledy-piggledy on wind and rain and autumn gales two thousand seven hundred miles to Guatamala as the great big jetliner flies, and then, last month, came back the same two thousand seven hundred miles, a stranger, to its homeland, to build its nest for the first time — how does this miraculous little atom of life know what to feed its young? Who tells it? What instruction did it get?

For mark you, it does not feed its babies what it eats itself. The first food poked into those gaping tiny gullets, no bigger than thimbles and equally hollow, must be specially adapted food. It must be the right food. The exactly right food, but quite distinct from what the warbler has been eating hitherto in its first year of life.

Oho, who prescribed the formula for the babis?

Observe, I have started to capitalize the Who, and it is time I did.

I think science is wasting its time fiddling around with the atom and outer space and similar non-essentials.

What man wants science to confirm is: Who is back of all the mysteries, fantasies and staggering improbabilities of nature that we see about us everywhere. And by what processes does He operate? To learn these processes and understand the language in which He imparts the processes, is more important to the salvation of man than to solve the riddle of the universe. Copyright: Canada Wide

A Lift for Living

Roots of Life Need Godliness

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

At the close of World War I, a great European leader was being feted in America for his heroism. He modestly disclaimed any signal merit of his own by saying he was simply a tree in a forest of courageous spirits.

If we are to think of life as a tree, we may consider the roots of life in terms of our nature's qualities — honor, conscientiousness, faith, hope, love. These are the tendrils which give us stance and through which we draw sustenance for our spirits.

Also we may think of the roots of life in terms of the associations into which these tendrils go. We may say that our roots are family ties, social circles, national patriotism, religious associations.

Take family loyalties which are so deep. "Where'er we may roam, be it ever so humble, there's no place like home." The young bride and groom, so lost in each other that they are oblivious to any thing else in the world; that parent and child looking into each other's eyes and seeing there the kind of person each wants to be. These family roots are so subtle, and so under the surface, that we often do not see how much sap of life comes through them until something breaks a home.

FAMILY TIES BROKEN

Some time ago a college sophomore was pouring out his heart to me. His father had deserted his mother. His stepfather had so mistreated him that his mother had taken him away to her parents near Chicago. These grandparents were more or less dependent on their son, this boy's uncle, who was supporting the boy at school although he did not approve of his objectives in education. To climax his pathos, the girl on whom he staked his hope seemed to be losing interest. That boy, who tried to appear so self-sufficient on the campus, in the privacy of our conversation spoke with a breaking voice: "It seems that whenever I tie to anything it somehow lets go."

Yes, the roots of the family do feed our lives. Yet how easily the canker worm can get at these roots. That love of husband and wife — how easily it can deteriorate into possessiveness. And the bond between parent and child may be bruised with selfish interests. If we are going to keep the loyalty of the home, we must be devoted to the whole life of the loved one, body, mind and spirit.

A family is not sufficient unto itself. Home ties are not safe unless the members of the family have larger interests in causes outside themselves. Family love flourishes best when it is spending itself on something larger than itself. Home-makers must also be community-builders.

Now take the roots of life that run beyond the family into social groups. Every schoolboy knows the story of Damon and Pythias. Pythias was condemned to death by Dionysius, the tyrant ruler of Syracuse. Before his death he made the request that he might return home to settle his affairs. Whereupon Damon offered his life as hostage until Pythias returned. Pythias returned just in time to save Damon from death, and Dionysius was so impressed by the fineness of their friendship that he asked the privilege of being allowed to enter into that kind of noble relationship.

But suppose we just let these roots of friendship run where they will. Where do they go? They follow the lines of least resistance and natural tastes. We tend to like those who are like us and dislike those who are different. God would have us go out and make friends of the unlike and the unlikely. He would have us join churches not for class interest or economic advantage or social prestige. The church is a fellowship of those who love and serve for the sake of those who suffer.

LOVE OF COUNTRY

Turn now to the roots of the nation. There are few emotions nobler than love of country. "Breathes there the man, with soul so dead, Who never to himself hath said, This is my own, my native land!"

Yet we remember Edith Cavell, the British nurse, who was executed by the German occupiers of Belgium in World War I for her acts of mercy to the Belgians. As she was being led to her death, she exclaimed; "Patriotism is not enough." We observe codes of honor within our national boundaries which do not apply to the citizens of other nations. To spy on a neighbor is abhorred; to spy on another nation is an approved practice. To kill a fellow citizen is murder; to kill a foreign enemy is called heroism.

If we are ever to have peace, roots of loyalty to our nations must reach out into the Kingdom of God. We call this "a nation under God." We must make it so.

The first Psalm describes the godly man as one who "is like a tree planted by streams of water, that yields its fruit in its season, and its leaf does not wither." Our roots of family and friendship, of community and nation need to be nourished in godliness.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED E. WILSON

RINGS

Jewelry is very popular in Birdland: necklaces, studs, tiaras, and even rings — the last mentioned not found on fingers or toes, but around bills, necks, or eyes.

The so-called ring-necked duck might better be called ring-billed, because he wears not only one but two white rings on his bill, while the dull chestnut ring encircling the lower part of his neck cannot be seen unless we get a close-up view. The female has no ring around her neck, but wears an eye-ring, and a single ring on her bill. All these misplaced rings are most confusing for the observer trying to use them as identification marks.

As a matter of fact, the mallard might better have been termed the ringnecked duck, for he has a distinct white ring separating his lustrous green head from his ruddy chest. His spouse has no neck ring — indeed she is unlike him in every way except the white tail and the blue band edged with white (known as the speculum) on the wing.

VERY MUCH ALIKE

The ring-billed gull though quite correctly named is actually difficult to identify, its pattern is so nearly identical with the herring gull's, an equally common member of the family. The only distinguishing marks are hard to see when a bird is in flight — unless both kinds are in sight and at the same distance, when it can be told that the ring-billed is smaller. But good binoculars are necessary to see the black ring (even though it is conspicuous at close range) or the yellowish or greenish legs of the ring-billed instead of the flesh coloured legs of the herring gull. And most confusing is the fact that second year herring gulls have a "semblance of ring" on their bills. Probably the best way to tell these two apart is to notice the manner of flight. The ring-billed is more buoyant.

Eye-rings are common — and often useful to the bird student. Of several kinds of vireos, the blue-headed (or solitary) is the only one with a white eye-ring; the ruby-crowned kinglet has a very distinct, white eye-ring, whereas the golden-crowned has an imperfect circle. Both Connecticut warblers have prominent white eye-rings, otherwise they might easily be mistaken for the female mourning warbler. The gray eye-ring of the gray-cheeked thrush is not at all noticeable; but the yellow eye-ring of the olive-backed (a similar looking bird) is quite clear.

Women's S.G. Names 1960 Officers

The June meeting of the Women's Study Guild took the form of a pot - luck supper held on the lawn of the home of Mrs. S. Geneja, RR 1 Corbyville.

Following the supper, the ladies adjourned to the house, where the annual meeting and election of officers was held. The outgoing president, Mrs. L. Reid, thanked all the executive and members whose co-operation had made the year a successful one.

Following the annual reports from the executive and conveners, Mrs. Wylie brought in the report of the nominating committee and conducted the election of new officers. The new officers are: president, Mrs. Fleming; vice - president, Mrs. Burford; secretary, Mrs. Trill; treasurer, Mrs. MacEwen.

Mrs. Wishart presented a gift, on behalf of the Guild, to Mrs. Fry, a member who is leaving town.

Mrs. McDowell read a letter from the Save the Children Fund informing the group that their new foster child is a Tunisian girl, Njamou Shouis.

Mrs. Coulter and Mrs. Stanton conducted the worship service. Mrs. Stanton read a passage from Ephesians and Mrs. Coulter read a selection from the book, "No Escape from Life", and closed with a prayer for tranquillity.

The program, on the topic, "Mental Health", was given by Mrs. Buchanan, Mrs. Archibald and Mrs. Orr. Mrs. Buchanan began by reading the report of a meeting of the Guild held 20 years ago on the same topic. Mrs. Buchanan stated that mental illness is the least understood of all ailments and modern scientific advances in the field are not known to the general public. The tendency toward mental illness can be inherited, but the disease can be prevented from developing by insuring a healthful environment.

If emotional difficulties are recognized early and treated in childhood or adolescence, fewer people would require long hospitalization in adult hood. Eighty per cent of the patients in mental hospitals improve or recover and former patients can lead a useful life after discharge.

Mrs. Orr outlined the history of mental hospitals in Canada. The mental health movement started in 1850 in the U.S., replacing the old idea of custodial care with the concept of active treatment.

Rockwood, the mental hospital in Kingston, began in 1854 as an asylum for criminally insane women. Today it is a 550 bed hospital run by the Ontario government. The modern trend is toward smaller institutions of about 250 beds.

Mrs. Archibald explained the purpose of mental health year, which will end in September, 1961. It is a two-year effort on a world-wide basis, whose purpose is to foster good human relations and to bring the subject of mental health to the attention of the people.

Projects to be studied in several countries in Europe and America, include childhood mental health; a cross culture survey of mental health attitudes and the psychological problems of immigration. Mental illness is more prevalent in urban industrial areas and investigation will be taken to discover ways in which mental stress can be reduced in contemporary society.

After an interesting discussion period, the meeting closed with the benediction.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ernest Meandro are pictured following their marriage in St. Stanislaus Roman Catholic Church, Sudbury, Ontario. The bride is the former Miss Martha Sharon Gilbert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry T. Gilbert, of Copper Cliff, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Meandro of Gatchell. (Photo by John Jackson, Sudbury, Ont.)

MEANDRO — GILBERT

SUDBURY — Red and white carnations and votive lights decorated the altar of St. Stanislaus Roman Catholic Church in Copper Cliff for the recent wedding of Martha Sharon Gilbert and Frank Ernest Meandro.

Assistant priest at the church the Rev. J. Graham, celebrated the morning nuptial mass.

Mrs. B. Teus played the organ, and accompanied herself for the singing of "Ave Maria".

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry T. Gilbert, of 1 Balsam St. Copper Cliff. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Meandro, 60 Morrison St. Gatchell.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white organza over silk taffeta, with "daisy" flocked design. A yoke of organza with larger "daisy" design had a scalloped Sabrina neckline, and short scalloped sleeves. The bouffant skirt billowed out over a hooped crinoline to a circular hemline. Her fingertip veil of silk tulle was gathered to a pearl-studded tiara. She carried a cascade bouquet of red and white roses, white stephanotis and ivy sprigs.

Miss Stephanie Gilbert of Toronto was maid-of-honor for her sister. The bridegroom's sister, Miss Sylvia Meandro and Miss Alice Jones, were bridesmaids. Little Laura Bradden of Scarboro was flower girl.

The bridal attendants wore identical floor-length gowns of white-dotted cherry red Swiss organdy. Their dresses were styled with rounded necklines, short sleeves and full skirt. They wore white picture hats of mohair, and carried nosegays of white carnations.

The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Sergio Piccinini, of Ottawa, as best man. The bride's brother, Mr. John Gilbert and Mr. Jerry Falcioni ushered the guests to the flower-marked pews.

Mrs. Meandro wore a two-piece Midnight blue frock of imported silk crepe, with a rose shade straw hat and a shoulder spray of American Beauty roses.

The newlyweds enjoyed a motor trip to Niagara Falls, New York, Pennsylvannia, Ohio and Michigan. Returning by way of Sault Ste. Marie, they visited the bridegroom's grandfather, Mr. Frank Beltrano, who is confined to his home, with sickness.

They will live at 17 Park St., Sudbury.

Guests were present from Sault Ste Marie, Orillia, Belleville, and Scarboro.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was entertained at several showers, when she received many lovely trousseau gifts.

Shower hostesses were: Mrs. Thomas Strong and Mrs. George Thorpe, of Copper Cliff, an evening party and presentation of a floor polisher; Mrs. Alice Jones, of Sudbury, and Mrs. Jay McCarthy, of Copper Cliff, assisted by Sylvia Meandro, miscellaneous showers; Mrs. Walter Johnstone and Mrs. Lloyd Sleaver, a dinner party at the home of Mrs. Johnstone, on Nickel St., in Copper Cliff. The bride was presented with a vacuum cleaner.

The Mark of True Beauty

By ALMA MASON

Many of the world's finest men and women can lay no ardent claim to beauty of form and face. In fact, seldom do we find exquisite physical perfection allied to spiritual grace.

Regularity of feature and rounded symmetry of body is a joy to behold. It is one of nature's clever creations. However, with advancing years the human body deteriorates physically. Then, when an inner brilliancy born of steadfast courage and a wholesome attitude towards life, shines through faded eyes and tinges a tired wrinkled smile with ageless comeliness, one realizes that all real beauty originates in the soul.

Wasteful, sinful living leaves scars that cannot be erased on a once attractive face. Dissipation slackens the lines around the mouth, makes the lips assume a petulant droop and causes the eyes to become as hard and cold as agates.

Steady spiritual growth invariably sweetens and softens the lips, etches laughter wrinkles in the face and lends a bright, inextinguishable glow to fading eyes.

When we say, "love is blind," we are packing a terrific amount of sublime philosophy into three simple words. How beautiful are the faces of those we love! Can we really describe the physical characteristics of beloved faces? To us they are eternally beautiful. A mother regards her child through a love lens. To everyone else he may appear ordinary, even ugly in appearance. To her he is a perfect rose in her garden of affections. The freckles and the turned-up nose and the brush of red hair flaunting a cowlick are the very essence of fairness to a fond parent.

The expression, "all brides are lovely," finds its truth imbedded in the radiance which transfigures the countenance of a happy person beloved by another.

MOTHER'S HANDS

A young man was called to the bedside of his dying mother. He picked up one of her work-worn twisted hands from the coverlet. Ashamed of the disfigurement of her hands, she pulled them away and hid them. The boy felt the hot sting of tears on his cheeks as he said, "To me they are the loveliest hands in the world. All through the years I have seen them busy for others, scrubbing, polishing, caring for the sick, stroking an aching hand, stitching far into the night, creating, toiling, praying. Each finger is more beautiful and precious to me than all the wealth of the universe."

Certain smiles add brilliancy to an otherwise unattractive face. The patient smile from a bed of pain lends superb enchantment to plain features. The impish, toothless grin of a lovable small boy is a joy to behold and casts a ray of sunshine over a dull day. The smile that is persistently worn over a troubled heart lifts the face into the elegant realm occupied by a vivid flower or a brilliant butterfly.

In the time of Shakespeare every workman wore a badge relative to the trade he belonged to. Shakespeare spoke of them as "wearing the sign of their profession." Those whose lives pass through the crystal prism of love and self-sacrifice will have no need to fear waning loveliness as years advance. The clearly cut magnificent mark of God will be forever printed on their brows for all to see. They will achieve a beauty which will never vanish but which will improve with the progress of the years. It will glow steadily with the composite, enduring colors of patience, kindness, generosity, humility, courage and sincerity.

The mark of true beauty is never "skin deep." It is "heart deep." It is shaped in the soul and is only visible through the eyes of love.

There's a dear little old lady
Living on Shabby Street;
She's feeble, bent and gray of hair
But has a face so sweet.

We noticed first her coat so worn
And then, her shoes quite thin
And felt a pity permeate
And flood out hearts within.

But when we looked into her face,
We found instead of care,
More beauty than the finest clothes
That you or I could wear.

For shining in her faded eyes
And crinkled in her smile
Was wealth beyond the reckoning
And jewels mile on mile.

She does not need a gorgeous coat
Or feet so finely shod;
What need has she of outer things?
Her face reflects her God.

Going Places

Copenhagen Sparkling Gem Teeming With Color, Motion

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

Copenhagen — New Yorkers say that outside of New York it is all Connecticut, though not one in 20 Americans lives in Gotham. But with one in four Danes living in Copenhagen, it might more accurately be said that outside of Copenhagen it's all Aalborg.

What's more, there are few sights worth seeing in this compact country not within a day's round trip of Copenhagen, fair warning should someone try to coax you out of the capital and into a four-day "fairy tale tour."

A few hours to the west by forced drive and forced draft ferry, on the island of Funen, lies Odense, Denmark's second city. Here you can see the street and house where Hans Christian Andersen may or may not have been born. But the funny old lane with the tumbledown houses is thick now with souvenir shops where the prices in the windows are quoted in American dollars, and the Andersen house has an imposing museum built on to it so that it's hard to tell where history ends and tourism begins.

Less than 25 miles north of Copenhagen, across a lovely rolling countryside dotted with half-timbered thatched-roof farmhouses, lies Elsinore and Hamlet's Kronborg Castle. Its courtyard, halls and dungeons are haunted by gawkers instead of ghosts these days.

CHARMING AND BRIGHT

But Copenhagen itself is the place most Americans have been looking for, a rare sparkling gem of a city with a charm as mellow as a Danish blue cheese and as bright yet subtle as a sip of skvavit.

Two impressions quickly etch themselves on the visitor's consciousness — motion and color. Thousands of bicycles stream through the city ridden by old people and children, policemen and postmen, women with babies strapped to baskets, businessmen with briefcases dangling from handlebars. Special lanes have been built for them on most thoroughfares, and not a few strangers have almost been hit thinking they were standing on the sidewalk.

Color drenches Copenhagen. A string of five blue tree-bordered lakes arches through the heart of the city. Skiffs with bright red, yellow and blue sails dart between flocks of swans, watched over by apartment houses with gay pastel awnings on their balconies.

Baskets and boxes of flowers peek from every window — even in office buildings — and scores of flower stands spring from and bring life to the cement expanse of City Hall Square. City dwellers, who never have enough of flowers, rent plots on the outskirts of the city and spend weekends at these colonies coaxing more color out of the earth. Even road signs are in color, and at night the squares flame with neon as gaudy as ever seen on Times Square.

The heart of Copenhagen is Tivoli Gardens, a crazy combination of Disneyland, Coney Island and Central Park without the self-consciousness of any of them. Ringing with screams from the roller coaster and echoing with symphony concerts and parades, it is the synthesis of everything Danes love. There are 23 ever-jammed restaurants, including some of Copenhagen's finest, funhouses and ferris wheels, playgrounds and picnic grounds, pagodas and a pantomime theatre.

By day Tivoli is a pleasant floral garden, by night a madhouse of milling thousands, and on weekend midnights it explodes with its own exuberance in a shower of spectacular fireworks.

HAS PEACEFUL SIDE

There is a peaceful side to Copenhagen. On a stretch of canal-front known as Gammel Strand the last of the fishwives peddle their wares each morning, protected by law though modern markets have long since supplanted them. When they are gone only the stone statue of their image on the quay till recall them.

From the teeming harbor to the majestic square called Kongens Nytorv runs a picturesque inlet known as Nyhavn, perhaps Copenhagen's most photographed sight. A shelter for fishing boats, it is lined on both sides with colorful eighteenth century buildings housing seamen's beer joints, beatnik cafes and that venerable Copenhagen institution, Tattoo Jack. Here, too, Hans Christian Andersen once lived.

There is the peaceful promenade of Langelinie out by the harbor, where Andersen's Little Mermaid scans the sea, and in summer there is the Schumann circus, held nightly, under the high-vaulted ceiling of a circular theatre which makes it one of the best places in the world to watch a circus.

FASCINATING SHOPS

And on the line of little streets from City Hall Square to Kongens Nytorv known as Stroget, there are the fascinating shops full of silver, porcelain, glass, antiques and surprises such as Pipe Dan (13 Vestergade). Familiar to more than 5,000 North American customers and countless others, it may be the world's most unique pipe shop.

Harald Dan-Christensen is the inventor of a check-mark shaped pipe with a tall, narrow bowl designed to smoke cool and even as no pipe before it. These his six craftsmen turn out by hand at the rate of three a day each, in endless variations and at prices ranging up to $300 apiece for the man who has everything, including money.

Each pipe comes with its own wooden tobacco-tamper plus a custom-fitted scraper tailored to the shape of the bowl, to keep the cake to a precise one millimeter. A customer may order a shape only by approximate price; Dan never knows what the quality will be until the briar is cut. Prices vary by as little as 15 cents, and except for a flock of machine-made price-leaders at $2.50, scarcely any two pipes cost the same.

But then, nothing in Copenhagen is quite the same as it is anyplace else.

> In a recent column, the Sloanes mentioned a 27-inch suitcase they use, made of nylon and reinforced with metal on all sides except the top, which is a large zippered flap. So many readers have asked for further information that the Sloanes are unable to answer all the letters. So, for those who are interested, Shirley and Bob advise that their particular bag is made by Atlantic, though many other manufacturers create something similar. They paid $17 for it on sale though, again, actual prices range upward and downward from that figure. While they wrote in the column that the bag measures 27 inches across, they find now that their tape measure slipped and it is actually 29 inches, the size they consider ideal.

Private Art Gallery Springs From Old Home

WINNIPEG (CP)—Five Winnipeg housewives have converted an old house into their private art gallery.

The women, who started painting three years ago, renovated the house, painted it and hung 98 canvases they consider good enough for exhibition.

The venture began when Mrs. Peggy Sellers found that one of her friends, Mrs. Donna Moore, had the same idea as she did—to take up painting as a hobby.

They hunted up other acquaintances with the same interest and now meet once a week with artist Gissur Eliason to guide them.

"When they first started their styles were similar," said Mr. Eliason. "But it's amazing, as time went on they became very individualistic."

The other women in the group are Joan Osler, Barbara Schlingerman and Bette Rothwell.

Their gallery came about when the Moores, looking for insurance against apartment buildings going up in their area, bought the house near their own home.

The women worked a week nailing up 238 yards of burlap and sheets of black building paper.

Four hundred invitations were sent to friends before the exhibition. Paintings are for sale but the women are not exhibiting "with dollar signs in our eyes," said Mrs. Sellers.

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

How does one become obsessed, moderately or otherwise, with a certain subject? It probably has not gone that far, but in recent columns, we have been holding forth about trees. Trees have always held a kind of fascination for us and to see a house standing without trees of any sort around it makes us feel a bit sad.

Driving through the green state of Vermont a couple of years ago, the trees inspired us with a kind of awe. A few days ago, driving down the long winding road to Weslemkoon Lake, came the same kind of feeling. At one spot on that road, the trees seem particularly tall; there is almost no underbrush and the sunlight filtering through at that moment gave it a magical, ethereal quality.

It is amusing to see only a couple of signs reading "Curve Ahead," when there are nothing but curves on the road that must be miles long.

Besides their value to drainage and soil conservation and the usefulness of their products to man, the forests are of service to plants and the lower animals, other than man. Tall trees protect plants that need only filtered sunlight rather than direct rays, and give shelter to their own smaller kind from heavy rains and snowfall. The woods serve the lower animals in many different ways. Many tree products are used directly as food, such as nuts, berries, leaves, twigs, roots and bark.

Eric Walter Bastin wrote that "it is a fascinating sight to watch a flock of crossbills feeding in a hemlock on a wintry day, or to observe the antics of a tribe of hungry cedar waxwings should it happen upon a mountain ash with fruit remaining. Among the mammals, beaver and deer are typical of many that rely on trees for food."

What an impressive sight the forests of our country must have been for the pioneers. With the ever-present danger in summer of forest fires, it is well to remember that a solid forest growth, if cut or burned, is not automatically replaced later on by the same species. If a stand of spruce is destroyed today, in thirty years it will be taken over by trees like aspen, willow and cedar; it is possible that the stand of spruce will never occur again.

Many things can be done by people like us to assist and protect our trees. Be careful to avoid forest fires when hiking or camping, especially if you are a smoker. If you find a fire too serious to deal with, report it immediately and, if possible, offer your help. Avoid damaging trees by cutting or peeling bark, as such injuries can admit disease, rot and fungus. For fuel, try to use dead limbs and driftwood, rather than wood from living trees.

Help to spread the facts about conservation of our woodlands. Encourage young people to train for careers in fields of forestry, conservation, biology, plant pathology and related activities—trained professionals are always needed. Use the forests and trees, the parks and gardens, with a pride of ownership and feeling of partnership; plant trees and shrubs about your properties.

Longfellow's "Evangeline" begins with the words: "This is the forest primeval." In an appeal by the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests for the prevention of forest fires, that line has been changed slightly to read: "This is the Forest Prime Evil."

In this district, we are most fortunate to have many provincial parks and camping sites near us—Presqu'ile, the Sand Banks, the United Empire Loyalist section of Adolphustown, the O'Hara Mill Area, with Algonquin Park and Upper Canada Village and Park not too far distant.

We are happy to note that on August 1 will take place the official opening of the Colonel Roscoe Vanderwater Conservation Area at Thomasburg, honoring that fine gentleman whose heart was so much in the work of the Moira River Conservation Authority.

Wedding

REFAUSSE — BONISTEEL

FRANKFORD — Trinity St. Andrew's United Church was the scene of a pretty wedding on July 1st, when Barbara Jean Bonisteel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Bonisteel, Brighton, became the bride of Walter Eugene Refausse, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Refausse, of Glen Miller.

The Rev. R. B. Green officiated at the ceremony in front of an altar banked with white and pink gladioli.

Wedding music was played by Mrs. Lenda Baker and solos were sung by Miss Kathleen Bonisteel.

Entering the church on the arm of her father, the bride was gowned in a dress of white imported brocade, styled with a bouffant, floor-length skirt. The back of the fitted waistline was adorned with four material roses.

Miss Linda Phillips, as maid-of-honor and Misses Beth Bonisteel and Geneva Bonisteel, sisters of the bride, as bridesmaids, were dressed in corresponding gowns of pale blue embroidered taffeta with full skirts, matching hats, pearl accessories and carried bouquets of white Shasta daisies.

The best man was Mr. Alan Mitchell, of Syracuse, New York, and ushers were: Messrs. Lennie Phillips and Barry Hart.

The reception was held in the Sunday School Hall of the church, where the bride's mother received the guests. She was gowned in a blue rayon ensemble with full cocktail length skirt and white accessories.

For the wedding trip to Europe, the bride travelled in a white dress of arnel topped by a short jacket in a contrasting shade of turquoise. Her outfit was completed by white accessories, shoes, gloves and hat.

Out-of-town guests were present from Toronto, Cobalt, Frankford, Bracebridge, Streetsville, Ajax, Belleville, Willowdale, Peterborough and Kingston.

SAFETY RULES in the car are of primary importance when children are passengers. One you may have overlooked: moppets should not eat lollipops or ice cream bars on rigid sticks while the car is in motion. Should a sudden stop be unavoidable, the stick could cause a painful mouth injury. (Of course, your toddler is always snug in his car seat!)

THE SECOND MARRIAGE

If all the letters I have received recently are any criterion, the summer months are not for just the young brides, as is the general thought, but also for many older women. These questions indicate that there is quite a lot of confusion as to the proper procedure to be followed at the wedding of a widow or divorcee.

The second marriage definitely has a different set of forms that should be adhered to. For example, the woman who has never been married before may have an elaborate wedding. But it is considered bad taste for the widow or divorcee to have anything but the simplest kind of ceremony. The service may be performed in her home or in a church, but the arrangements should be dignified, and planned on a small scale.

There is some contention as to whether it is proper for a woman to wear the traditional bridal white upon the occasion of her second marriage. I do not concur with those who advocate this as correct. It always has been the prerogative of the first-time bride to wear a white bridal gown. I think it should be kept that way.

After this, an afternoon gown, or suit, in any of the lovely pastel shades so popular today, is the correct attire. A hat should be worn, not anything resembling a bridal veil. A bouquet should not be carried. A corsage is correct in this instance.

Following tradition, only one attendant is considered proper in the second wedding. She should be gowned in accordance with what the bride wears (dress or suit) in a contrasting color, and of a different style.

If the wedding is held in a church, the bridegroom may have as many as three groomsmen, one of whom is the best man. If held in the home, he would have only one, his best man. The reason for this is that ushers are not needed at a home wedding ceremony.

Only intimate friends and members of the families should be invited to the ceremony and any celebration afterwards. For this reason, invitations are usually handwritten notes sent personally by the bride-elect.

Announcement of a widow's second marriage should be made by her parents, just as upon the first occasion. If they are deceased, then a close relative should be chosen.

In the past it was not considered good form for a divorcee to send out announcements of her re-marriage. This always seemed very stupid to me. Because of announcements not being sent out, haven't we all had the embarrassing experience of meeting an acquaintance whom we have not seen for years, greeting her as "Mrs. Doe" — only to find that she was divorced two years ago and is now "Mrs. Smith"?

Common sense would seem to indicate that announcements should be sent out the day a widow or divorcee are remarried. Just to keep the record straight.

Question: I am sixteen years old. When my father says I should be home at midnight, after an evening at the movies and the hamburger shop, and the boy I am with makes fun of the idea, wanting to stay out later, what do I do?

Answer: What your father expects of you. If your escort refuses to follow your wishes, take a cab home if necessary. Always carry "mad money" with you in case you need it! By the way, wipe this boy off your list in the future. No good will come of further dates with this type of character.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont. (CP)— The West Algoma Local Council of Women has asked city council to place benches at bus stops for the convenience of elderly citizens.

Graduating Class Given Banquet

Mr. Linton Read was guest speaker when the graduating pupils of Foxboro Public School, their parents, teachers and guests met in the church hall on the occasion of the graduation banquet held on June 27, sponsored by Foxboro Home and School Association. A delicious meal was served by the grade seven girls, Lynda Ashton; Carol Sullivan; Christine Creiney; Susan Hill; Maria Romanchych and Anne Finnamore.

Mrs. C. Finnamore welcomed the guests, on behalf of the Home and School Association, congratulated the students for their success in achieving this goal and told them that without the guidance of their teachers on each of their school days they could not have succeeded. He proposed a toast to the teachers, to which Mrs. F. Tucker, principal of the school, responded by telling the students that all the teachers wished them success and urged them to continue their education.

Mr. M. Piperni proposed a toast to the graduating class which was responded to by Larry Scott. Linda Clarke thanked the Home and School Association for making the banquet possible and for all the little things done by the members during the year to make school life even more pleasant.

Mrs. Finnamore said it was a privilege, on behalf of the association, to present each student with a silver dollar, namely Teddy Arthurs, Donna Cassidy, Monna Cassidy, Linda Clarke, Hans De Vries, Jean Gough, Cathy Hubble, Lloyd Johnston, Helene MacPhee, Danny Piperni, Ronald Purves, Larry Scott and Phillip Stephens.

Mrs. Finnamore called on Mrs. C. LaRue, president of Foxboro Women's Institute to present the prize of $10 given each year on this occasion to the best all-round student in grade eight. Cathy Hubble was the successful student this year and gave a little speech of thanks to all concerned.

Mrs. V. Rose introduced Mr. Linton Read, vice-principal of Moira Secondary School who spoke to the students stating, "it's a great moment to arrive at the end of grade eight with high school days ahead — you didnt' know much about getting along with other people when you arrived at public school, but you have learned to respect the rights of others; to accept responsibility — this is the end of childish behavior and there are new horizons of knowledge awaiting you when you attend Moira Secondary School, but you must not give your time, you must invest your time in study at school to achieve success. Mr. Read stated that the school books cost between $15 and $25 for the first year and suggested that if the students were going to purchase new clothes for the fall term that the girls may wear grey skirts and whiet blouses and the boys grey slacks and white shirts and maroon blazers with the school crest making a most attractive uniform.

The thanks for the talk were expressed by Mrs. R. Pyear. Mrs. Finnamore also thanked eevryone who had helped to make the evening a success.

Luggage Given Teacher as Farewell Gift

The pupils, teachers, music teacher, Miss G. Pitman, and some of the mothers of the junior room pupils gathered in the auditorium of the Foxboro Public School on closing day to hold their Dominion Day program and to say farewell to the junior room teacher, Mrs. R. Pyear, who is leaving to accept a position in Queen Alexandra School, Belleville, next term.

The program opened with the singing of O Canada. Mrs. Pyear's Room; a musical play — The Sleeping Beauty; a play — The Cat and the Queen, Gr. 4 pupils; "The Offending Hat Gr. 5 pupils; "The Maple Leaf Forever was sung followed by a poem about Canada by Joyce Moorcroft; Bobby Dafoe played a group of numbers on his accordion; Cathy Hubble — piano solo; the senior room pupils staged an amusing skit — "Amateur Night at Radio Station P.U.N.K."

Mrs. C. Finnamore called on Mrs. Pyear at this time and expressed the regret of the Foxboro people to see her leave and the hope that she would be happy in her new position.

Two pieces of luggage were presented to Mrs. Pyear for which she expressed her thanks The pupils sang "For She's A Jolly Good Fellow".

Mrs. Pyear has been teaching in Foxboro for the past five years and is now living at 19 Strathcona Drive, Belleville.

The pupils were dismissed for lunch and the teachers and mothers enjoyed a coffee party and a short social period.

Second Glance

A FIVE MILLION ACRE PARADISE

It seems some animals (be said) lack wit, and "it," and rhyme,

For "Nature hath" (says Shakespeare) "fram'd strange fellows in her time,"

But all are safe in parks that are—in words by Kipling lent—

—From Sanctuary by C. S. Stokes.

"Of all the countries we visited, the most outstanding was Africa," declares Mrs. G. K. Graham, Trent Road, on her return from a recent cruise around the world. "It is full of interest and unbelievable contrasts, almost beyond comprehension."

Of much importance is the world's finest animal and flora kingdom, founded and set aside in the Union of South Africa by law under the Presidency of Paul Kruger, in 1898. It is called Kruger National Park.

Thus protected from man's civilization, the wild life in this five million acre reserve is not in the least "cabined, cribbed and confined." Visitors are strictly required to keep to the network of roads that extend the 200-mile length with an average width of 40 miles, lest they expose themselves to the danger and anger of lions, hippos, elephants, zebras, crocodiles, wildebeests, giraffes, buffaloes, warthogs and such. Everyone must be at one of the 15 rest camps situated throughout the park, at least within half an hour after sunset and until half an hour before sunrise.

The bird life is amazingly varied and strangely different from birds known in our land; such as the honey guide with its prime purpose in life to find a well-stocked hive of honey! When it has done so, its next step is to find a man or beast which will be led to such a find and make available a share of its sweetness to the finder, the honey guide.

The crested cuckoo, a striped type, acts as a barometer. On rainy days it has a very shrill call which becomes lower and lower as the days turn into dry ones.

Buffaloes and antelopes are on good terms with the tick bird for services rendered; devouring ticks that collect on the animals' coat while grazing, and for giving a penetrating whistle whenever danger threatens. Ox pickers also give similar service by their jabbering and they roam all over the animal with ease, upside down or no.

Winners for noise - making among the sanctuary birds are the bush babblers whose "absonant babel" is heard for miles. Yet they will cease abruptly. Because they usually fly in groups of seven, they are known as the "Seven Sisters".

ONE KNOCK — GULP!

Rollers or blue - jays have no fear of visitors and revel at the sight of a caterpillar, which, when captured, is struck against the perch branch a number of times until quite dead, then swallowed in one gulp.

The prize for neat building, however, goes to the hamerkop. Built of mud and branches about four feet in diameter with a circular doorway that admits only the builder and crowned with a dome - like affair, the nest is round and is used repeatedly. It lasts for years and is so strong that a man can sit on it, without damaging it. This brown feathered bird measures about a foot and three inches from beak to tail-tip.

Once a party of park visitors suddenly heard a wailing in some nearby trees where several lions were walking about. They were greatly alarmed. Perhaps a park attendant had come to harm. What could they do? Fortunately, a park's lorry came down the road and the driver was besieged with, — "Hear the pitiful crying! How can he be saved?" as the wailing increased. But the man merely smiled as he said, "It's only a bird, the trumpeter hornbill."

Bellevignette: Much of the information above concerning Kruger Park is found in a 448-page volume entitled "Joyful Errand" by C. S. Stokes, which Mrs. Graham brought from Africa and kindly loaned to us. It is interesting to note that the proceeds of the sale of this work by Mr. Stokes are entirely devoted to the South African National Council for the Blind. Dr. L. Van Schalkwijk, chairman of the council, writes in part: "There are approximately 30,000 blind persons of all races in the Union. It is the sustained aim of the council to reduce this incidence over the years . . . in fact, evidence to support this claim is already available . . . I pay tribute to Mr. C. S. Stokes for his generosity, but more particularly for his humanity in assisting us to carry on our good works on behalf of the blind of races in the Union . . ."

Women's Institute

FOXBORO W.I.

Members of Foxboro Women's Institute welcomed the girls of the 4-H Homemaking Club — A Club Stands on Guard — their leaders and mothers when they met at the home of Mrs. L. Lewis. This club was named "Foxboro Teen-Aiders" and the girls in their own way explained to the group what they had learned.

A great deal of credit is due their leaders Mrs. G. Bradshaw and Mrs. L. Lewis, the lub was indeed a sucess, 19 girls had attended Achievement Day in Stirling, and six of the girls who had received county honors, went on a bus trip to Ottawa and had enjoyed dinner with the compliments of Mr. Lee Grills.

Donna Moorcroft read her Club Story which was part of the course saying that even though she had always wanted to be a nurse, that after learning more about first aid, she was more than ever interested in nursing as a profession.

Jean Gough and Susan Hill demonstrated how to put on a large arm sling, a clove hitch sling for the wrist and an ankle sling while Sharon Lewis explained their use. Lynda Ashton was patient while Shirley Stephens and Maxine Edwards demonstrated the Holger-Nielsen method of artificial respiration - and Diane Bradshaw explained what they were doing and said that perfect rythm must be maintanied while replacing operators.

WRITE STORIES

The girls each had to write a story about someone who had contributed to the field of medicine and Jean Mann had written a story about Florence Nightingale, which was read by Lynda Ashton. Linda Piperni read an article on "safety first in the home", written by Diane Bradshaw.

Each girl had compiled a record book and equipped a first aid kit and these were on display.

Nany Reynolds had an excellent display of costume jewellery which she had made as a hobby and after explaining how the jewellery was made and how much pleasure she had derived from her hobby she said "no matter how much spare time you have, there is always some form of pastime to bring enjoyment and satisfaction in seeing a job well done".

Mrs. Longwell is one of the older members of this Institute and because of ill health is unable to attend the meetings, but was able to take part at this meeting by asking Mrs. G. Schell to read an amusing poem, "My Get-up-and-Go Has Got Up and Went."

Mrs. Longwell also wrote a paper—"Agriculture Today and 70 Years Ago," read by Mrs. G. Gay which said in part, "looking back 70 years I can remember seeing the grain cut with the cradle and the hay cut with the scythe and plowing done with horses and sometimes oxen. The grain was made into sheaves by twisting a handful of the cut grain and tying around the sheaf by hand, how different it is now that the combines have taken over. If the old folks of long ago could see the great changes they would say that they lived in this world 100 years too soon.

Mrs. J. Ewing gave her paper, "He Who Works with Nature, Works with God," which was the motto for this meeting. Mrs. Ewing brought to the attention of the group that even though one may work the soil and plant the seeds only the Master Gardener can make them grow and whoever plants a seed beneath the sod and waits to see it push away the clod, he trusts in God.

An amusing poem, "How Much Is A Farmer's Wife Worth" was read by Mrs. M. Kilpatrick.

Mrs. M. Waller agreed to attend a district workshop, "Eat To Live" — expenses to be paid by the branch. A donation of $10 was to be sent to the Salvation Army.

The branch public relations officer, Mrs. J. Churchill, gave her report of the Officers' Conference at Guelph, and Mrs. J. Reynolds and Mrs. C. Hubble reported on the district annual at Bethel-Zion.

There will be no meetings in July or August. A bus and boat trip is being planned for August and a family "Fun Night" for the evening of July 14, on the lawn of Mrs. L. Lewis.

STORIES OF FAMOUS HYMNS

By HORACE B. POWELL

O BEULAH LAND

I've reached the land of corn and wine,
And all its riches freely mine;
Here shines undimmed one blissful day,
For all my night has passed away.

My Savior comes and walks with me,
And sweet communion here have we;
He gently leads me by His hand,
For this is Heaven's border-land.

A sweet perfume upon the breeze
Is borne from ever-vernal trees,
And flowers, that never-fading grow,
Where streams of life forever
flow.

The zephyrs seem to float to me,
Sweet sounds of Heaven's melody,
As angels with the white-robed throng
Join in the sweet Redemption song.

Ocean Grove, New Jersey has long been a famous and popular headquarters for Methodist summer camp meetings.

Edgar Page Stites, author of "Beulah Land", was visiting at the camp grounds many years ago when he wrote his hymn verses. They were promptly set to music by John R. Sweney, who was leading the singing at some gospel meetings then in progress on the grounds, and soon were being sung and popularized at the religious services.

Mr. Sweney, whose music did much to carry the song to fame, was born in 1837 at West Chester, Pa., and was a choir leader by profession. During the war between the states he conducted an army band and when the conflict was over he taught for many years at the Pennsylvania Military Academy at Chester, Pa. It was during these later years that he became rather famous as a song leader at summer religious rallies.

In 1899, when Mr. Sweney died, his funeral was held in the Methodist Church at West Chester and Ira Sankey, the singing evangelist, sang Stites' hymn of Heaven at the services.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

George T. — Adele can't keep house.

Adele T. — I just have no knack for it.

• • •

George T. — My wife and I have been married six years and have three youngsters. We are in love and could be ideally happy — if not for one little problem.

Adele just doesn't know how to do housework. Her mother always kept a maid and she didn't even bother with her own room. I know it's awfully hard for her — especially since she has been pregnant or caring for an infant right along. I try to help her all I can and we have a woman coming in twice a week. Just the same the house is always a mess.

I wouldn't mind much myself, but Adele cries about it and is ashamed to have anyone visit us.

• • •

Adele T. — I don't know what's the matter with me. I just seem to have no knack for keeping a house.

It wouldn't be so bad if I hadn't been brought up in a beautifully kept home. I love nice things and disorder upsets me so much I could scream, but I can't get anything done — except keep running after the kids and feeding them.

When I get up in the morning and look at the mess around me, I just get sick. I rush around getting everyone breakfast and by the time George leaves the house I feel exhausted. I don't think I'd do a thing all day if the kids didn't scream for my attention.

• • •

The Council: Perhaps it would help Adele to know that there is nothing extraordinary about her case. When a woman with three youngsters under five can't keep an orderly home, it is no indication that she is a poor housekeeper.

Of course, experience and physical stamina help. Possibly Adele is a little short on both. Probably she would like to do more than is physically possible and this drains her nervous energy as well.

Adele should accept the fact that her home cannot be a showplace while she has tiny children. She should set a few reasonable, minimum standards. If she cannot keep up with those, she should lower the standard a bit.

Psychologists find that most of us can overcome a feeling of being overwhelmed by simply tackling the most urgent jobs first. With three small children, laundry is probably a big problem. Adele should get that out of the way with her early morning energy. Then she should set about superficial ordering of the house — and then relax if she can!

Brief rest periods throughout the day will help. She should sit down or lie down whenever possible. And when she relaxes she shouldn't look around thinking what she should or might be doing. That rest period is the most important thing in the world while she is at it. If she stops worrying, she'll be able to get up refreshed.

Adele should have no feeling of shame about her home. Nobody expects perfection of her and she shouldn't expect it of herself.

(Courtesy Mrs. R. W.)

One tablespoon water, 8 cups rhubarb (chopped), 10 cups sugar, 2 large oranges, 2 large lemons, (use grated rind and juice of oranges and lemons), 3 ginger roots. Stir over medium heat until sugar melts, then bring all to quick boil for 3 minutes. Remove from heat. Stir in 1 bottle of liquid pectin. Skim then ladle into sterilized jars and seal with paraffin, addng a second coating when cool.

ANSWER:

Thank you for this seasonal recipe. I have mailed to you a recipe for Rum and Butterscotch Pie which appeared here on April 30th. But since you may not favor using rum, here is the standard recipe.

BUTTERSCOTCH PIE:

1 baked 9" pastry shell; filling: 1-4 cup butter, 1 1-4 cups dark brown sugar, packed, 1-8 teaspoon salt, 1-3 cup all-purpose flour; 1 teaspoon cornstarch, 2 cups plus 2 tablespoons milk, 3 egg yolks, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla, 3 tablespoons firm butter

Meringue: 3 egg whites, 3 tablespoons sugar, 1-4 teaspoon vanilla.

FILLING:

Melt butter in heavy saucepan; stir in half the brown sugar and heat with constant stirring until smooth, thick liquid forms, then boil 1 minute. Remove from heat. Blend remaining sugar with next 3 ingredients and stir into hot liquid. Slowly stir in half the milk, so as to keep mixture smooth; then add rest of milk. Place over medium heat and cook and stir until thickened, 5 to 6 minutes. Remove from heat. Beat yolks well; quickly stir in about 1-2 cup of the hot mixture; then return to saucepan, cook and stir 2 minutes longer. Remove from heat; stir in 1-2 teaspoon vanilla, then butter until melted. Cool.

MERINGUE:

Beat egg whites until stiff, add sugar 1 tablespoon at a time, beating well after each addition; add 1-4 teaspoon vanilla and beat until stiff but still shiny. Turn filling into pastry shell, pushing well up around rim. Swirl meringue over filling so it touches crust all around. Bake at 300 deg. Fahr. 20 minutes until golden.

AMBITIOUS PLANS — Twelve-year-old David Stanley-Jones checks a model of the observatory he and seven other youngsters plan to build on Richards Mountain near North Cowichan, B.C. The boys have already built a 1½-mile road up the mountain side and hope to raise $5,000 to complete the project. (CP Photo).

Teenagers Hacking Stairway Up Mountain to the Stars

They are the eight members of the Astronomers and Explorers Club (Astex) who has completed almost a mile and a half of road up a mountain where they plan to build a $5,000 observatory.

What they lack in finances — and this is considerable — they are making up in enthusiasm and hard work, and few people in this community on Vancouver Island doubt that they will soon look up to see a brand-new observatory at the 1,100-foot level of Richards Mountain.

Many residents of the area have been glad to pitch in and help.

The observatory is to be built in eight-foot sections and trucked up the mountain to the site.

North Cowichan council approved in principle the entire project, and will lease four or five acres at $1 a year. Entrance fee to the club is $5 for senior members and $2.50 for those in their early 'teens.

Studies will be done on forestry plants, weather, rocks, minerals and the stars.

DEMOCRAT

Acknowledged front-runner is a Boston-bred war hero with a dynamic personality—Senator John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, 43. Kennedy is the only major aspirant to have fought his way through the state primaries, the springtime pre-convention popularity contests.

These Texan buddies, it seems, are getting the indirect support of former president Harry Truman also 78, who tossed a bombshell in pre - convention manoeuvring by demanding that Kennedy step aside in the fight, ostensibly because he is too young.

Truman has charged and Johnson has agreed that the convention is rigged in Kennedy's favor, a charge that Kennedy has denied.

The odd feature of Truman's charge is that the party's elder statesman is supposedly backing a fellow Missourian, Senator Stuart Symington, for the nomination.

Symington, trailing a bad third, seems a little out of place in the ferocious infighting.

Perhaps even more out of focus is 60-year-old Adlai Stevenson, hanging around for a draft call but with no intentions of making any fight for the nomination. Defeated in the last two general elections, Stevenson shows no zest for a third try.

CLAIM MAKING

is a serviceable plane. The RCAF accident rate had been cut "considerably."

Art Smith (PC — Calgary South), wartime pilot, and Paul Hellyer (L—Toronto Trinity), former aeronautical engineer, said the Mitchell is difficult to handle. Mr. Hellyer suggested it be taken out of service.

Mr. Winch said with sarcasm that this couldn't be done because it was government policy that the armed forces have only obsolete equipment.

Mr. Pearkes said senior officers might be required to fly at any time and thus were required to keep in practice.

In the Bomarc debate, Mr. Hellyer succeeded in goading Mr. Pearkes to the point where he said nuclear warheads for the missile "won't be required unless the enemy comes."

Mr. Hellyer, Liberal defence critic, asked whether the government intended to run to Washington when the enemy was overhead to ask for nuclear warheads.

Progressive Conservative members protested vigorously and committee chairman G. Ernest Halpenny (PC — London) ruled further questions on warheads out of order.

Mr. Pearkes said arrangements are being made with the U.S. to supply nuclear warheads for the Bomarc "if and when" they are required. They would be used under authority of the prime minister of the day.

Mr. Hellyer said this was not in accord with U.S. law. Would the Canadian prime minister have to telephone the U.S. president to get authority for use of the warheads?

Mr. Pearkes said "all this has been answered before by the prime minister."

"No, it hasn't," Mr. Hellyer retorted.

POOR CBC

Dunsmore of Montreal.

"This was a shocking affront to Parliament," said the Liberal MP for Bonavista - Twillingate. "It was a clear breach of the law" in that Parliament had intended that the president of the publicly-owned corporation be chairman of the board.

"Whatever head was responsible for this ought to have rolled."

A former Halifax news broadcaster said that the CBC's radio and television networks do not carry enough commentaries about things that count in Canada.

Robert McCleave (PC — Halifax) said the CBC carries too many broadcasts about issues in the United States, Europe and other countries.

Remi Paul (PC — Berthier-Maskinonge - Delanaudiere) said: "I believe (the CBC) is a high-quality organization." He went on to note that public funds have "far too generously been put at the disposal of the CBC," and to suggest that a royal commission be established to inquire into CBC spending, which he and other Quebec conservative MPs represented as extravagant.

CHARGES FAVORITISM

Mr. Paul also charged that the CBC in Montreal showed favoritism on the night of the Quebec election, June 22, by inviting several newly-elected Liberal legislators to appear on television while passing over Union Nationale leaders.

Mr. Pickersgill accused the government supporters of trying to turn the CBC into "a kind of Tory radio Moscow."

The government members were complaining because Liberals are allowed to speak on the CBC.

"I should like to know why Liberals should not be allowed to speak on the CBC, or Tories or CCFers."

Bass Bug Fishing With a Fly Rod

Of all the methods that have been invented to enable an angler to catch black bass, the most fascinating — and the most difficult — is fishing a bass bug with a fly rod. Of course, since spinning has become popular a great many light-tackle fans have deserted the fly rod and gone over to spinning gear. But there are still many of the dedicated who stick to the fly rod, and for good reason — the method is a challenge that get into your blood and you can't shake it off.

Being an outdoor writer, naturally I meet or see a great many fly fishermen. Having fished in most of the States east of the Mississippi and all over eastern Canada, I have seen just about the best of them. Yet, believe it or not, I can count on the fingers of one hand the men whom I consider to be finished performers with a bass-bug rod.

It must be remembered that bass-bug fishing is done, for the most part, in shallow water. Bass, particularly big bass, are easily disturbed. In shallow water they feel that they are vulnerable, exposed to their natural enemies. Thus, minor disturbances, which probably would not bother them at all in deeper water, make them wary in the extreme when they are in the shallows. Fish for them with a bass bug at 40 feet and your chances of hooking big bass are slim indeed. A bass bug should be fished at long range, 70 feet or better, to get the best results in clear water.

TOP-GRADE EQUIPMENT

To handle that much line with a fly rod you have to use top-grade equipment. Most of the "bass-action" rods that you can find in the sporting goods stores are nine feet long; stiff, fast-affairs with little character. I have a pretty good casting hand, but one of those bass-action things will cripple my right hand and forearm in less than half an hour. Too many people (and that includes the rod manufacturers) confuse stiffness in a fly rod with power. The two are not the same at all.

My bass-bug rods are 9 ft. 6 in., 9 ft. 9 in., and 10 ft. long. They have plenty of strength in the lower rod, next to the grip, but they are slow, with the action distributed throughout the entire length of the rod, from tip to grip. The middle sections of these rods have built into them some of the "parabolic" principle that provides more power with less weight. As I say, they are slow rods and they require their own particular type of timing, but they are accurate and easy to handle. With one of these it is not too difficult to drop a bass bug into a peach basket at 75 feet. That's what you need for distance and accuracy — a good rod and reasonably good timing.

A shore-line bass does not, as a rule, lie out in open water. Usually he is beside or under something, such as a rock, a log, or a patch of lily pads, where he can see what goes on without exposing himself too much. Suppose you spot some bassy looking water around an old stump. The bug should drop within a foot or so of that stump, right on his dinner plate. One that lands six feet or so from the stump more often than not is a wasted cast.

It is important to remember that bass-bug fishing is a leisurely business. If you hurry, you defeat your own purpose. Cast your bug to likely spots and then fish it slowly. Usually we wait until the ring of the splash has spread to a diameter of eight or 10 feet before raising the rod tip and giving life to the bug.

RETRIEVE SLOWLY

Once the retrieve has started, don't set up a regular pattern. Vary the retrieve. "Wink it," pop it, move it six inches or so and let it rest. The longer a bass can look over this seemingly crippled offering, the better are your chances for raising him. A fast retrieve usually is a wasted one. Of course, in a river where the current carries your bug along, you must, of necessity, fish your bug somewhat faster than in quiet water, but always you should strive for the slow retrieve, as slow as possible under the circumstances.

In hard-fished lakes, the shore lines are pounded hard, day after day, with all manner of equipment. The bass along these shores either are caught out or scared out by the constant disturbance. All right, look for the shallow, swampy coves and marshes that nearly always are there. In those swampy areas you can find dark pockets of open water. Use a weedless bug and move your boat as quietly as possible. Not many people fish these places and you will be surprised at the sizeable fish you can find with a long line and a weedless bug.

About the only open water in a bass river that is worth while fishing with a bass bug is the "fan" at the end of a deep pool — the shallow stretch where the water tapers off in depth to enter the next riffle. Often these are veritable gold mines for big bass. Have your boat handler hold the boat well back in the pool while you explore these places with your bug. Cast across-current, using a long line, and play the bug as it swings down and across below you.

As I say, the bass bug is a fascinating thing to fish. True, it requires a goodly outlay in money to put together a good outfit and a lot of practice to be able to use that outfit effectively. But once you learn to handle your outfit properly you will find that not only is it a fascinating way to fish for bass but also the most deadly-productive method yet devised.

ARMED REVOLT

Several thousand others have fled across the swirling Congo River to Brazzaville, capital of the former French Congo colony, in panic and fear at rumors of rape and riot sparked by the troop mutiny.

The ferry to Brazzaville, closed down Friday to halt the exodus of Europeans with administrative skills needed by this new republic, was still not running in the morning.

Thousands of Belgian women and children anxiously awaited a resumption of the ferry to leave the country following Friday's wild rioting by troops.

The first planeload of refugees from the Congo, described by fellow French passengers as "terrorized people," arrived in Paris today en route to Brussels. Most were women and children.

Belgium rushed troops to the Congo. A detachment of 164 Belgian infantry volunteers, carrying automatic weapons and dressed in combat fatigues, flew from Brussels Friday.

President Joseph Kasavubu took personal command of the 25,000-man army to halt the mutiny Friday. He went to the big Leopoldville army base and appealed for order when he talked to the restive troops.

British Girl Seeks Medal

By PAUL WESTBROOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Mary Bignal's bright blue eyes are set on two targets—a world record in the pentathlon and a gold medal in the Olympics at Rome this summer. If she succeeds in the latter she would be the first British woman to win an Olympic track and field title.

She was awarded a special prize by a board of Soviet track and field experts last September for her performances in a meeting between British and Soviet athletes at the Lenin Stadium in Moscow.

To Britain it was one of those moments of glory that seldom come to a team that opposes the formidable Soviet athletes. To Mary, it crowned a season that saw her become the greatest all-round woman athlete Britain ever produced.

OLYMPIC HOPES

The nearest mark to Mary's reach is probably a world record in the broad jump. Last May she beat her own British record with a leap of 20 feet, 7 inches, three inches short of the world mark held by Poland's Elizabeth Krzesinka.

In the pentathlon her chances would be better if she could improve in the throwing events. However, last August she became the first British woman to exceed 4,000 points for this event when she set Empire and British records with 4,679 points at Wolverhampton. The world record, broken twice within a week by Russia's Irina Press, now stands at 4,959 points.

Mary's career began in 1957 when she won the All - England schools broad jump championship. With the title went a scholarship at Millfield, an expensive school in Somerset that specializes in sport. Two months later she won her first international against the Soviet Union.

Early last year, she met Thiti Burakamkovit, the son of a wealthy Thailand government official. The rules of the school forbid boy friends and rather than not see Thiti she quit the school in a blaze of newspaper publicity.

She moved to London to share a room with Canadian sprinter Eleanor Haslam of Saskatoon and came under the wing of John Le Masurier, one of Britain's top high jump coaches. She has since cleared 5 feet, 6 inches, only two inches off Thelma Hopkins' national record.

Museum Party Finds Old Fort On James Bay

TORONTO — Evidence of the bombardment and defence of a British fort in Canada, 250 years ago, has been uncovered by archaeologists from the Royal Museum. A field party has returned from Fort Albany on James Bay with finds including cannon balls, grenades, musket balls, gun flints and parts of muskets.

The expedition to Fort Albany was supported by the Ontario Department of Travel and Publicity on the advice of the Archaeological and Historic Sites Board of Ontario. Walter Kenyon, assistant curator of ethnology at the Museum led the party. Kenneth E. Kidd, curator of ethnology, who is well known for his excavations of Ste. Marie and other historic Canadian sites, also visited the site and evaluated certain aspects, particularly those concerning its form and the trade carried on there.

The archaeoligists believe they have located the site of the Hudson's Bay Company fort which was occupied by both English and French from the 1680's until 1721. No other early British fort remains in such undisturbed condition, and future excavations may provide invaluable information about the design of early Hudson's Bay posts and the life that was lived in the Canadian wilderness in the 17th and early 18th centuries.

Field director Walter Kenyon said that his crew had great difficulty excavating at Fort Albany because of the deep frost. The ground was thawed to only a few inches beneath the surface and while this will mean that the site is excellently preserved, normal techniques are impractical. He said it might be necessary to clear off the site in the early spring, and leave excavation until the fall of the year when the sun had thawed a few more inches of ground. Despite these difficulties, many details of the fort were determined in this year's exploratory expedition.

A moat runs around the fort, and the earth-works and bastions are clearly visible. The location of one building within the fort was established. In addition to the evidence of battle, many spikes, nails, bits of hardware and even the door of an early an unusual bake oven were turned up. The archaeologists also found a number of glass beads of the type traded to Indians.

Fort Albany was the scene of numerous pitched battles between French and English from 1686 to 1709. The first Fort Albany was built by Hudson's Bay in the 1670's on "Bayly's Island", which is believed to be the present Albany Island. For unknown reasons, the fort seems to have been moved to a new site, on Fishing Creek, about five to nine years after it was completed. The new site was more easily defended, but in spite of that, a French force which came overland from Montreal, captured it in July of 1686. The French felt that the English were encroaching on their fur-trading territory, and attacks of this kind were frequent although the two nations were not then at war.

The English built a new post near the one occupied by the French, and there were skirmishes and unrest until 1689 when the French captured the new English post and seized their ships. In the same year, England declared war on France.

In July of 1693, strong English forces arrived in James Bay and took Fort Albany without a struggle. The French attacked again in 1709 without sucess and the Hudson's Bay Company remained at the Fishing Creek Post until 1721, and then moved back to Albany Island, perhaps to the site of their present post.

The site under investigation is Fishing Creek and is most likely the fort occupied from the late 1680's until 1721.

Letter Carriers Stick With CLC

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP) —The Federated Association of Letter Carriers (CLC) voted Thursday night to stick with the Canadian Labor Congress. The association's annual convention rejected a motion of its own executive committee to sever relations with the CLC.

The executive committee had charged the CLC with not helping nor encouraging unions of civil servants and with allying itself with a new political party.

CLC president Claude Jodoin told the convention he was surprised by the executive committee's attitude because the CLC had always supported unions of provincial and federal civil servants and the principle of collective bargaining for them.

Corn, Soya Beans Producers Ask For New Tariffs

OTTAWA (CP)—Ontario producers of corn and soya beans, seeking to expand their output, asked the federal government Thursday for new tariff protection against imports from the United States.

The Ontario Federation of Agriculture, in briefs to Finance Minister Fleming on behalf of both producer groups, pressed for a tariff on the present duty - free imports of all oil-bearing seeds, oil seed meals and vegetable oils.

It also asked that the Canadian delegation to the forthcoming negotiations under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade seek a tariff structure on corn "more in keeping with the needs of the Canadian corn industry."

PRODUCTION GROWING

In a recommendation on behalf of the Ontario Soya-Bean Growers' Marketing Board, the federation said that since 1937 Canadian soybean production has grown to the point where it meets half the domestic demand.

Meanwhile, Ontario soybean prices had been declining since 1951, partly under the influence of duty-free U.S. imports which last year were valued at $45,000,000. This was hampering expansion of the Canadian soybean acreage.

The submission on behalf of Ontario corn producers recalled that from 1936 to 1947 the duty on U.S. corn entering Canada was 10 cents a bushel, while the U.S. tariff on Canadian imports was 25 cents a bushel.

Canadian seed corn exports to the U.S., which never had exceeded 85,000 bushels a year, now had dropped to 50,000 bushels while imports of U.S. grain corn were running at 12,000,000 bushels.

Plants That Grow Well in Shade

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

What will grow well in shade and look attractive all summer? The choice is wider than you might think. Astilbe is a good choice here.

There are many members of this family ranging in height from four feet down to six inches high. Most of those offered by our nurserymen are two to three feet tall and all have lovely lace foliage that remains good looking all summer with moderate care.

The flower spikes are frothy masses of tiny flowers in creamy white several shades of pink from apple blossom and salmon to deep red.

The Astilbe, also called herbaceous spires, is a perennial shrub like plant that can be raised from seed or bought in plant form. They bloom from June through August. Dense shade seems to restrict their bloom somewhat but in semi-shade they bloom freely.

They will also do well as pot plants indoors for the winter. Use a rich soil mix in the garden or pot and feed generously if you expect abundant bloom.

NEW LIFE, BEAUTY

When seeking plants that will tolerate shade do not forget that the trees or shrubs that rob plants of sun also take most of the nutrients from the soil as well as a great deal of the moisture. Many of the plants that never become thrifty in shade would take on new life and beauty if you would supply them with regular feedings and additional water to disolve it and make it available to the feeding roots.

One solution is to sink to soil level deep cans such as fruit juice cans that have had bottoms and tops removed and several holes punched in the sides. Place on in the centre of three plants and fill with water or liquid manure as often as necessary. Unglazed clay tiles are also useful used in the same way.

Astilbes are very hardy and will come through a hard winter without protection but will thrive best in soil that has a good amount of humus and mulches can be added when the ground warms up in the summer. Use sawdust, ground corn cobs or peat moss. See that the moss does not cake and prevent moisture from penetrating the soil. Be sure the soil is damp before adding the mulch.

Other suggestions for shady places are Olympic hybrid lilies. These will tolerate semi-shade so will the oriental lilies such as Speciosum Rubrum and the gold band lily Auratum Platyphyllum. Pahysandra, Japanese Spurge forms a shiny mat of broad evergreen leaves Periwinkle or Vinca is another creeper that thrives in shade.

Shrubs for shade include Kerria, Alpine currant, Holly and Hydrangea.

Perennial flowers include the lovely old fashioned Bleeding-Heart. There is a white form with fine lacy foliage that is at home among shrubs and in semi-shade. The Helebores Christmas and Lenten Rose tolerate semi shade and need a sheltered position. You can have a bright splash of color in shady places with a bed of tuberous begonias. The common blue violet, not as shy as we have been told, is very hardy and makes a thick, pleasing ground cover in shade or sun. Drought and poor soil does not phase it. Violet Royal Robe a fragrant deep purple. Violet Rosina a deep pink, the big double Russian Violets or the big white violets are good choices.

Funkia or Plantain lilies takes several forms. There are those with big heart shaped leaves and long spatulate types. The variegated leaves of the dwarf type or the pale green leaves of Subcordata Alba are especially good. These make good ground covers for lily beds.

One more suggestion, Lily-of-the-valley. There is a new hybrid form that has larger heavier textured bloom on long strong stems. They will form a solid mat in shade or on the north side of buildings.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The Canadian Ladies' Open Golf tournament gets under way in Peterborough next week. Teeing off will be young and old veterans, champions, ex-champions, would-be champions and tyros.

From this part of the golfing world, Mrs. Betty Ingram will be the lone representative of the Bay of Quinte Country Club, while Mrs. Pat Culhane, Barbara Kimmerley and Mrs. Ron McPherson will carry the colors of the Napanee Golf Club.

BETTY INGRAM

Enthusiasm shone in the eyes of Betty Ingram when we talked with her about the upcoming tournament. The attractive young matron did not show any signs of nervousness, in fact she was looking forward to the big links adventure with something akin to confidence.

Not that she expected to pull a sensational white rabbit out of the tournament hat by coming home with the title, but at least she could get the feel of things—and find out what this big time tournament stuff was all about.

After all, Mrs. Ingram has done remarkably well, golfwise, after playing the game but six years.

Golf came rather easy to her. She picked her first club back in the summer of 1953 or 1954—and last fall she was presented with the trophy emblematic of the club ladies' championship. That in itself is no mean feat considering the number of topflight distaff side golfers that play under the banner of Quinte.

A love of the game, natural ability and a lot of perseverance paid off for Betty. She soon got out of the novice class and after a couple of years was "shooting a good ball." It wasn't too long before she was under the 100's and the last two years she has been turning in low 90 cards.

She was the first lady golfer of the Bay of Quinte to record an under-90 score, shooting an 89 last year, only to have Mrs. Monica MacDonald snatch the record from her with an 88 a week or so ago.

"That was wonderful," Betty smiled. In fact she was the golfer who "broke" the story to this reporter. "I hope soon to be shooting in the low 80's." And with her confidence and consistent improvement, it may come sooner than she thinks.

Last year was her best year on the Quinte course. She not only won the ladies' championship, but the Business Girls' Trophy as well. She added the CLGU pin. These in addition to numerouse awards won at district club tournaments.

Her entry in the "Open" is her first step along the big tournament trail. She is curious and confident. Her terse comment was "I hope I do well."

PAT CULHANE

Pat the Man is a golfer, too, but when we asked him that funny question, he smiled, made no comment, and nodded in the direction of the better golfer of the Culhane family.

The name of Mrs. Pat Culhane is a familiar one on golf courses of the district. Numerous trophies and awards bear evidence to the golfing ability of this quiet, charming lady.

Mrs. Culhane has played for the past twelve years under the standard of the Napanee Golf Club and still does. She will represent that club in the Open next week, despite the fact she resides in Picton.

She has won the ladies' championship of her home club three times, as well as numerous other awards. She and "Mr. Pat" won a high honor in the Quinte "Mr. and Mrs." tournament a week or so ago.

She shoots in the low eighties and has carded 79's. Playing in the Ladies' Open is no new experience for Mrs. Culhane. This is her third appearance. She played in Weston two years ago and Brantford last year where she qualified.

Wallop Cubs, Pirates Lose

They've won only six of 19 since mid - June, when Tom Sheehan replaced Bill Rigney as manager. And they've lost four in a row since Sheehan, who chewed them out about the card games and late hours, was named skipper for the rest of the season by owner Horace Stoneham.

The Giants were second, four games out of first, when Sheehan took over. Now they've tied with St. Louis for fourth place, 8½ games behind, after Friday night's 7-1 thumping by the Cardinals.

First - place Pittsburgh split a twi - night doubleheader with the Phillies at Philadelphia, winning 8-3 after a 10 - inning 6-5 loss. That shaved the Pirates' lead to five games over Milwaukee Braves, who beat Cincinnati Redlegs 6-3. Los Angeles Dodgers moved into third place with a 5-3 victory over Chicago Cubs, the Dodgers' fifth straight and 10th in 12 games.

RUN FAMINE CONTINUES

The Giants, scoring just five runs in their last five games, manged only four singles off rookie Ray Sadecki (3-4), a 19-year - old lefthander. They got two of them in the first inning, with Orlando Cepeda getting the RBI, while dropping to fourth place for the first time since May 15, 1959.

The Cardinals broke Jack Sanford's shutout string at 21 innings with three runs in the third on singles by Sadecki and Joe Cunningham and Stan Musial's two- run homer. It was Sanford's sixth loss in 14 decisions.

The Phillies beat Pittsburgh for the third straight time in the opener, ending the Pirates' winning string at four as Ruben Amaro doubled and slid home under the throw on a single by winning reliever Dick Farrell. Fred Green (4-3) was the loser in relief, while Farrell, now 7-2, blanked the Pirates on one hit for 3 1-3 innings.

VIRDON HAS GOOD NIGHT

Bill Virdon, who homered along with Don Hoak in the opener, rapped two doubles and a triple in the second game. A walk, and one - out singles by Hoak and Bill Mazeroski broke a 3-3 tie in a four - run fifth against Dallas Green (1-3). Bob Friend won his 10th on the fourth try over two weeks, checking the Phils on seven hits.

Hank Aaron and Wes Covington each drove in two runs for the Braves, with Aaron's 24th home run wrapping it up in the third inning off Jay Hook (7-8). It was the fifth straight loss for the reds, who had only two hits, one Wally Post's home run, before chasing winner Juan Pizarro (5-2) in the ninth.

The Dodgers twice came from behind, then broke a 3-3 tie in the sixth on a walk and Duke Snider's two - out triple off Bob Anderson (2-6). Wally Moon tagged reliever Don Elston for a homer in the eighth. Ed Roebuck (7-1) won his sixth in a row with 6 2-3 innings of four-hit, shutout relief. He now has allowed just one run in the last 25 innings, reducing his earned run average to 2.03.

Besmanoff phoned matchmaker Deacon Allen Friday to say he could not fight here because of an injured ankle.

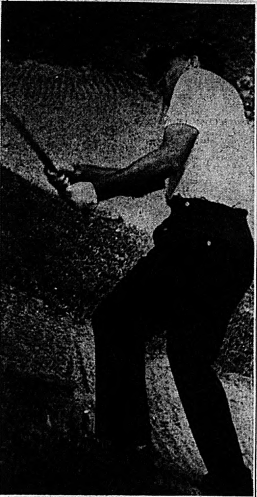
Indians Drop 3rd In Row To Chisox



OVER AND OUT — Art Wall, Jr., the 1959 Masters Champion, blasts out of a sand trap on the ninth hole of Toronto's St. George's golf course. Wall stretched his lead in the Canadian Open Golf Championship to three strokes Friday with a five-under-par third round. (CP Wirephoto).

It wasn't so long ago that the New York Yankees were wondering when Whitey Ford would get back to form and round out their pitching staff. Now the stubby southpaw is the only starter who has won in the past five games.

Jim Coates, Ralph Terry and Bob Turley all missed decisions in that span, and Friday night Art Ditmar was tagged with the loss as the Yankees were beaten 8-0 at Boston by the seven-hit pitching of Bill Monbouquette.

Despite the loss, New York retained a three-game lead over second place Cleveland in the American League. The Indians dropped their third in a row to the Chicago White Sox, 4-1. Washington rapped third place Baltimore 9-5 and gained a fifth place tie with the Detroit Tigers, who lost 5-4 at Kansas City in 13 innings.

Ditmar (7-5) dropped his second in a row when Boston scored twice in the fourth on two-out singles by Don Buddin and Haywood Sullivan. The last place Red Sox then scored six in the seventh off reliefer Eli Grba on four walks and just two hits—a three-run homer by Willie Tasby, and a three-run pop fly double by Frank Malzone. Monbouquette (8-7) walked three and struck out eight, saving his second shutout by fanning pinch-hitter Gil McDougald and getting Tony Kubek on a fly with the bases loaded in the seventh.

FOUR UNEARNED RUNS

Washington scored four unearned runs while handing the Orioles their fifth straight defeat at home. Julio Becquer's two-run double brought the Senators from behind in the fifth against Jack Fisher (5-7). Dan Dobbek homered for the Nats, who also scored on a balk by reliever Gordon Jones. Pete Ramos (5-9) was the winner, giving up nine hits in his first complete game in eight tries since Memorial Day.

The White Sox, now 7-4 against the Iindans, beat Gary Bell (7-7) with two runs in the first inning. Sherm Lollar's sacrifice fly brought in the clincher after Luis Aparicio doubled and scored as Ken Aspromonte threw wild on a bunt single by Nellie F[illegible] Frank Baumann (5-4) won [illegible] first as a starter since June [illegible] with a six-hitter.

A two-run single by Bill Tuttle did it for the A's after Charlie Maxwell's 13th homer gave Detroit a 4-3 lead in the top of the 13th. The Tigers, who have lost 9 of 12 to Kansas City, had tied it 3-3 on Al Kaline's two-run homer in the seventh. Johnny Kucks (2-3) was the winner and Dave Sisler (5-3) the loser, both in relief.

Kitchener Dutchies Suspend Senior Hockey Activities

KITCHENER (CP)—Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series have voted to suspend operations temporarily.

The decision was reached at the club's annual meeting after officials contended that the Kitchener Memorial Auditorium commission has placed them in an "untenable position" by negotiating to bring in an Eastern Professional Hockey League club.

The commission owns 37 per cent of the issues shares in the club, a strong contender in senior amateur hockey for 14 seasons and Canada's representative this year in Olympic competition.

The club elected no officers but named a slate of directors who may meet at a later date to elect officers.

In the motion to suspend operations, club directors said every effort will be made to operate the club elsewhere. Places mentioned included Waterloo, Galt and Guelph.

whowever, the officials said they are prepared to continue operating here provided a professional team does not move in.

The club also criticized the commission for refusing to pay its share of an operating deficit incurred last year. Other shareholders are paying on a pro rata basis.

Fishing Pals for 50 Years

BURLEIGH FALLS, Ont. (CP) —Fifty fears ago Bernie F. Lempert ran into his friend Aaron Cohn in Toledo, Ohio, and suggested they go fishing together at Burleigh Falls.

They've been coming back ever since.

Monday night the two Toledo men will be honored at a testimonial dinner along with two other long-time fishing visitors—Frank Creed of Struthers, Ohio, and Joe Auer of Buffalo.

The dinner is being presented by Mr. and Mrs. Peter Fyffe, operators of the Park Hotel. The four have stayed at the hotel in this resort centre 20 miles northeast of Peterborough for a combined total of 210 fishing seasons.

As far as Cohn and Lempert are concerned most of the time has been spent chasing muskies.

The two, both 77, figure they have accounted for about 700 in their half-century of roaming the Kawarthas. They've tossed lures into many waters but their favorites are Lovesick and Stony Lakes, almost within casting distance of their hotel.

Cohn's biggest muskie was 22 pounds, caught the first year he fished here. Since then he's never managed to get above 19. His partner's best was a 24½-pounder in 1955.

For would-be muskie anglers he has this advice:

"A fisherman can't catch a muskie or any kind of fish by sleeping in a boat or keeping his gear in the tackle box. The job is to have bait in the water and be alert."

The pair have never quarrel[illegible] on a fishing trip.

Hawk, Hunter Skullduggery Wins Over Jumbo, The Rock

By GEO. H. CARVER

Sports Editor

They should furnish wrestling referees with handcuffs as standard equipment.

By that method perhaps, the R[illegible]paging Rock-n-Rip ranglers [illegible] get their come-uppance.

Apparently it cannot be done by any other system of offence and defence.

They show not the slightest regard for official authority seen or unseen, seeing or unseeing.

Last night they pulled all their skullduggery from the bag to defeat the Mighty Jumbo and Jack LaRock.

Referee Al. Korman who displaces a lot of air inside the ring couldn't cope with the antics of the silver-pated pair. After all, he couldn't judge what he couldn't see, and the R-n-R's took full advantage.

In addition they nearly yanked Jumbo's head from its socket by merely grabbing fistfuls of beard and pulling it in a jerking motion.

Then they wrapped the big fella's neck neatly of not gaudily in the hold-rope. The noose [illegible]d very effective but there [illegible]t much Korman did or [illegible]ld do about it.

The Hawk-Hunter pair were in an ugly mood when they came out for the second fall. For in the first the big Jumbo had flattened the Rock with his "Splasher" and that was that.

One crouched at the heels of the Jumbo. The other pushed. Jumbo went down and that was it.

But the Double R's came mighty close to defeat in the third chapter.

They gave the Jumbo some rough treatment before he tabbed LaRock and Jack worked Hunter very nicely. In fact he had him down for a two-count and would have won if the Hawk had not leaped into the ring to break it up.

Hunter seized the advantage and with two or three neck twists and the aid of biddy-buddy won the fall and the bout.

Wall Is Three Strokes Up In Open

By MILT MacPHAIL

Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Methodical Art Wall Jr., heedless of the pressure, carried a three-stroke lead today into the showdown round of the $27,000 Canadian open golf championship.

"I'll just go out and play golf," said the smiling 36-year-old professional from Pocono Manor, Pa., who shot a five-under-par 67 here Friday for a 54-hole total of 200, 16-under-par.

Despite his nonchalance, Wall wasn't forgetting about first-prize money of $3,500, a nice pay for four days.

"I'd like to think I'll win, but I don't make predictions, said the slender pro from Pennsylvania who was golf's leading money winner and Masters champion last year.

SUB-PAR ROUNDS

Wall's third consecutive third sub-par round—he shot 66-66 in the first two—gave him a three-shot lead over Bob Goalby of Crystal River, Fla., who also carded a 67 for 203.

Another stroke back at 204 were Gene Littler of Singing Hills, Calif., and 48-year-old Sam Snead, the 1938-40-41 winner of this tournament from White Sulphur Springs, W.Va.

The pressure caught up with Toronto's Al Balding, who became the gallery favorite after shooting a competitive course record 64 in the opening round and following with a 70. Angular Al was just one stroke behind Wall going into Friday's round, but the 36-year-old Toronto pro blew to a 77 and out of the title running with a 211.

A feature of the day's play was a hole in one by Mac Main of Danville, Va. He aced the 140-yard par-three sixth using an eight-iron and finished with a 71 for 214.

Alan Johnston, 26-year-old pro from Montreal, took over as the low Canadian with a three-under-par 69 for a total of 209. That tied him with three others, including defending champion Doug Ford.

Wall, out in even-par 35, blistered the back nine with a five-under-par 32 that included an eagle-three on the 17th hole. Art, who tied for second place in last year's Open at Montreal, also had five birdies sinking putts from three to 40 feet, and was one over par on two holes.

Balding, 36-year-old former beer truck driver, was still in contention after touring the first nine in par 35. But he collapsed on the back nine, taking a 42. The killer came on the 183-yard 16th when he had a three-over-par six. After his tee shot landed on the edge of a sand trap, he muffed two shots, chipped on and then two-putted from seven feet.

"I wasn't playing well and that's all there is to it," said Balding who probably remembered last year's Open at Montreal when he collapsed after leading in the first round.

The cutoff score for today's final 18 holes was 218, two-over-par for the 54 holes.

Cliff Lumsdon Training Hard For Big Swim

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Defending-champion Cliff Lumsdon of New Toronto has begun the final phase of his training for the around-the-island swim in hopes of capturing his third title in the July 19 event.

A victory in the 25-mile grind would give the husky Canadian more than the $5,000 first prize. It would tie him with his friendly arch rival, Tom Park of Long Beach, Calif.

Park and Lumsdon have pretty well monopolized the annual swim around Absecon Island since its inception in 1954. Park won it that year, repeated in 1955 and took it again in 1958. Lumsdon was second behind Park those three years and beat the former Hamilton, Ont., swimmer in 1956 and last year.

In between, Alfredo Camarero of Buenos Aires managed to slip in for a win in 1957. Camarero is not competing this year.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Don Larsen, the righthander who pitched the only perfect game in world series history, was sent to the minors Friday by the Kansas City Athletic's after losing 11 games in a row.

It was in the fifth game of the 1956 world series, when New York Yankees regained the championship from Brooklyn, that Larsen came through with the standout individual performance of all time in series play.

Larsen was optioned to Dallas-Fort Worth of the American Association as John Tsitouris was restored to the active list by the Athletic's. Tsitouris, a 24-year-old righthander, suffered a broken jaw when struck by a line drive in batting practice May 4.

The Yankees traded Larsen to the Athletic's in a seven-player swap that sent Roger Maris, now the major league home run leader, to New York last December.

Larsen, 30, managed only a 55-63 won-lost record for his eight seasons in the majors after breaking in with the old St. Louis Browns in 1953. He had spent four years in the minors.

With the Athletic's, Larsen had an 0-5 record in eight starts.

Deseronto Wins Over Flyers 6-4

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Pat Maracle's relief pitching and Reggie Garrison's clutch hitting provided the Deseronto Athletics with their third victory a 6-4 win over the RCAF Flyers, at Deseronto last night.

Garrison hammered a two-run triple that snapped a 3-3 deadlock in the seventh inning, scored the insurance run himself, and earlier cracked a single to drive in the Athletics' second run.

Meanwhile the veteran Pat Maracle took over from Al "Sonny" Maracle with two out, a man on third and RCAF ahead 3-1 in the third frame. He gave up just five hits over the remaining 6 1-3 innings, struck out 12, and walked only two. The starter had allowed five hits.

Bob Butterfield was the loser, issuing two walks and Garrison's triple in the seventh, before giving way to Ken Kibblewhite. They allowed but two hits apiece while five errors proved costly. Butterfield whiffed eight and walked six. Kibblewhite was zero and one.

Crowell's double and Girard's triple scored the Flyers' initial run while Butterfield's long triple, Duff's single and Smith's double plated two more and brought on Pat Maracle. Base hits by Desimone and McDonald and an error gave RCAF an unearned marker in the eighth.

An error, walk and passed ball got the winners' first run. Pat Maracle got Deseronto's first hit of the game in the fifth followed by two errors, two walks and Garrison's single to tie the tilt 3-3. Butterfield's two walks brought Kibblewhite in to face Garrison in the seventh. A passed ball scored the sixth marker.

Garrison's two key hits and singles by Maracle and Gerald Hill accounted for all Deseronto's safeties.

"Duffy" Duff and "Diz" Desimone had two singles each for the Flyers, Gil Girard and Butterfield had triples, Ron Smith and Andy Crowell doubles and Kim Matheson and "Bugs" McDonald singles.

On the Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—Calais II, a keen running English-bred, went it alone Friday to win the featured Halifax Plate by a head over Tadoussac before 6,637 fans at the New Woodbine Park. Prompt Hero was third.

Hidden Treasure, winner of last week's Woodstock Stakes, heads a field of 11 in today's $7,500 Achievement Handicap, a run of one mile. Co-feature will be the $7,500 Jacques Cartier stakes.

Champagne Velvet finished third to Victoria Park and Quintain in the $50,000 Queen's Plate, when Hidden Treasure ran a surprisingly poor race.

Harness Racing Bits

Kingston Horseman's Driving Club's second 1960 meet on Friday, July 1st, produced good races before a fine crowd who were treated to some extra large payoffs from the betting stand. The top price of the day was the $39.00 "John Dekyper" paid to win the 2nd heat of the "B" classified. Only two people in the crowd risked a bet on John Weeks' horse after he finished 6th in the first heat.

The "D" classified was won in straight heats with identical times of 2:19 by "Country Dot."

Candy Queen from Campbellford was twice second. "Guy MacDuff of Kingston won third and fourth and "Danny Bert" of Picton was fifth and third.

In the C classified race "Anne Lee Mac Duff" of Perth Road won the first heat but cut up at the gate the 2nd time and was seventh. "Jimmy Belwyn" of Kingston was 4th in the 1st heat and won the second heat. "Ace Hy" of Brighton was second twice while "Partnac" from Prescott and "Melissa" shared the third places.

The B. classified was also split with "Victoria B Gratton" taking 1st and 2nd and "John Dekyper 6th and 1st. "Buddy C Abbe" was second and fourth. "Silver Bomb" from Arnprior was 3rd and 6th and "Smithfield Lass" of Napanee was 7th and 3rd.

The "A" classified was split with "Lee MacDuff" being first and second and "Blacklock's Pride" of Belleville being second and first with times of 2.13 4/5 and 2.14 2/5. "Finch Boy" was twice third and "Lucky Rhumba Gratton" twice fourth.

The Old Woodbine finally got started on Monday, July 4, and on Tuesday, July 5, "Betty Abigail" owned by Jack Jeffrey of Belleville was just nipped at the wire in 2.11 1/5.

She came right back on Wednesday night in a division of the Beaches Pace to be fifth.

In a division of this same stake "Miss Trippelwyn" was second and "Linda MacDuff" of Kingston was third.

Quinte Driving and Riding Club's race meet for tonight has 3 races well filled and a promise of some excellent racing. The first race goes at 6.30 p.m.

Peterborough cancelled their meet scheduled for tonight because of an Orange day celebration.

Takes Lead In Decathlon

TORONTO (CP)—George Stulac, 25, of Toronto took the lead with 3,607 points Friday night as the first day of the Canadian decathlon championship and Olympic trials ended.

Don Steen, Burnaby, B.C., schoolteacher, stood second with 3,369 points after three events of the 10-event championship.

Biggest surprise of Friday's meet was unknown Dave Morris of Sudbury whose time of 49.5 seconds in the 400-metre race earned him 884 points, the highest number of points awarded to any competitor Friday for one event. His day's total was a third-place 3,314.

'Aggression' Says Castro

Cubans Will Quit If Kings Go to Jersey

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Jersey City will fall heir to Havana's International Baseball League franchise next week, but may get only apart of the team that goes with it.

Eleven Cubans are on the Sugar Kings' 23-man roster. About half plan to quit the club rather than submit to a franchise shift denounced as American "aggression" by Cuban premier Fidel Castro.

Among those who may go home to Cuba is Sugar King manager Tony Castano. He made his decision Friday but sealed it in an envelope and [illegible] it would remain a secret until the team ends a road trip at Miami next Thursday.

With both the Cuban players here and with club president Bobby Maduro in Havana, there was confusion and dismay when league president Frank Shaughnessy of Montreal announced Friday the Havana franchise would go to Jersey City, subject to approval by league directors.

Shaughnessy said an emergency exists in Havana and "I feel that our players can no longer be given any guarantee of safety."

Maduro said the move "is completely outrageous" — a decision "Cubans will interpret as a demonstration to harm the nation."

MEANS BANKRUPTCY

"For me it means bankruptcy and loss of an entire holding of $400,000. I don't know what I'm going to do."

Maduro, one of the most popular directors in the eight-team league, said he owes a Cuban bank $100,000, owes an additional $60,000 to others and would have to return $100,000 for radio rights to Cuban games and a part of $3,000 for advance ticket sales.

Castro lashed out at Shaughnessy's action in a television address at Havana Friday night. The Cuban premier said shift of the franchise is "another aggression" which violates "all codes of sportsmanship."

"American players when they came here got nothing but respect and admiration," he said. "The people treated them cordially and there is no record of attacks on players of any kind. But violating all codes of sportsmanship, they now take away our franchise.

"It is another aggression they've committed. We never told our players not to play in the United States in spite of attacks against us there."

WILL TALK OVER

Gabe Paul, general manager of Cincinnati Redlegs, who have a working agreement with the Sugar Kings, and Havana general manager Paul Miller were to arrive here today to confer with Sugar King players.

"We don't know about politics," Castano said ruefully after a closed meeting at which he broke the news of the franchise switch to his players. "We only know about baseball . . . I'm sorry for the boys."

Castano did not name the "five or six" players he said planned to quit the team rather than accept Jersey City as a new home. Nor would the players identify themselves.

Castano said the team will remain intact at least until the four-day series against the Marlins in Miami is completed next week.

Queen's Drops Six Sports

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

KINGSTON (CP) — Queen's University has dropped at least six sporting activities from its list of intercollegiate competition.

Pat Galasso, secretary-treasurer of the university's athletic board of control, said lack of capital and increasing cost of equipment and travelling have forced reduction of the university's participation in intercollegiate sports to football, basketball and track and field.

Sporting activities dropped for an indefinite period include wrestling, boxing, skiing, badminton, tennis and hockey. All sports, however, will be retained on an intramural basis, Mr. Galassco said.

The dropped sports will not be reintroduced into intercollegiate competition until the student body has had a chance to vote on the mater, Mr. Galassco said.

"We were dependent upon the student body," he said. "The students determine their own athletic fee. This was handed down by a ruling of the Alma Mater society in 1939."

He said funds from football, especially money collected in the university's championship years of 1955 and 1956, were carrying the sports teams. This money ran out last year.

"We definitely hope to get back into the sports we have dropped in the near future but that is up to the students," he said.

The dropping by Queen's University of six sports from intercollegiate competition, announced Thursday night, seems to be an isolated action, a survey of athletics officials at Ontario universities showed Friday night.

Pat Galasso, secretary-treasurer of Queen's athletic board of control said lack of capital and increasing cost of equipment and travelling have forced reduction of the university's participation in intercollegiate sports to football, basketball and track and field.

Sporting activities dropped for an indefinite period include boxing, wrestling, skiing, badminton, tennis and hockey. All sports, however, will be retained on an intercollegiate basis, Mr. Galasso said.

An official at the University of Toronto said Friday night: "This is an internal problem at Queen's. Although we're upset by it, there's nothing we can do."

PLANS HOCKEY

Rev. H. (Tommy) Marceux, head of the athletic council at the University of Ottawa, said that university actually plans for next year its first intercollegiate hockey team in 10 years.

This means skimping a bit—but not much—on other schedules such as football, basketball, skiing, tennis, swimming and volleyball, he said. Neither these sports on the intercollegiate level nor any intramural activities will be abandoned, he said.

An official at Hamilton's MacMaster University said: "We have contemplated no changes. In fact next year's schedules have already been made up."

Athletic officials at the University of Western Ontario in London, Ont., could not be reached for comment. Although Western does not compete in all the sports dropped from the Queen's list, it does extremely well in some of them.

Shatter 13 Relay Records

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario athletes broke 13 Canadian records Friday night at the 1960 Canadian relay championships.

Four native, three open and six meet marks were bettered as the Canadian boys primed for the Olympic trials next week in Winnipeg.

Ontario teams were victorious in 12 of the 15 events run off during the meet, sponsored by the Toronto Olympic Club.

First record to fall was in the men's four-mile relay, won by the Toronto Olympic Club in 17:33.4, a Canadian native record. This was :01.4 better than Hamilton Olympic Club's mark set in 1957.

The first of seven records broken by the suburban East York track club was in the men's sprint medley relay. The time of 3:24.4 broke Canadian open, native and meet records. East York also set a distance medley relay mark of 10:2 to better Canadian open, native and meet records.

SETS MILE MARK

A meet record was set in the men's one-mile relay which East York did in 3:13.6.

Ron Wallingford, formerly of Ottawa and now running unattached out of Toronto, won the men's two-mile in 9:18.9 for a meet record.

Chris Murray of Toronto, captured the junior men's 1½-mile event in 6:59.8 for Canadian open, native and meet records. B. Andrews, Galt, was second. Nancy Lewington of the Hamilton Track Club set a meet record in the women's 100-yard dash, sprinting the distance in 11.2 seconds.

N. Adams of the Cleveland Track Club equalled Canadian native and open records with his time of 9.6 seconds in the men's 100-yard dash.

BREAK 3 RECORDS

In the men's distance medley relay in which the East York team broke three records, 16-year-old Bruce Kidd, anchor, covered the distance of one mile in 4:10.6. Kidd won the Viscount Alexander Trophy as Canada's outstanding teen-age athlete in 1959.

He is noted primarily as a three-mile runner and showed his ability in the shorter distance as he crossed the finish line 20 yards ahead of the New York Pioneer Club anchor man, J. Brown.

'Stan, Sliver' Show How Game Played

NEW YORK (AP)—Baseball may be a young man's game but grey-beards Ted (The Kid) Williams and Stan (The Man) Musial are still showing how the game should be played.

Time doesn't seem to dim the Williams or Musial batting eyes. In fact, judging from their play in recent weeks, the two old standbys are getting better.

On June 8, Williams was batting .235. Plagued by a pulled leg muscle, bedded by a cold and bothered by age, the 42-year-old Boston slugger was on the verge of quitting.

Two days later he hit his fourth home run of the year and his entire outlook changed. He went on a batting and home run hitting tear which has brought his average up to .345, his season home run total up to 14 and his career homer mark to 506. In the last four weeks, Ted has blasted 32 hits in 82 times at bat for a .390 average.

Musial, back in June, was even closer to quitting than Williams. The 40-year-old St. Louis star had plenty of time to ponder his .229 batting average on the Cardinal bench. It was then that he gave serious thought to calling it a career after nearly 20 years with the Redbirds.

He returned to the lineup June 24 but didn't get going until two days later. Since then he has rapped 16 hits in 33 times at bat, a .485 clip that boosted his average 60 points to .289.

Canadians Make Strong Bid In Dragon Races

CLAYTON, N.Y. (CP)—Canadian sailors made a strong recovery Friday in the sixth annual international dragon trophy races as they captured three of the first five positions in overall point standings during the second day of the three-day regatta.

Racing in three-foot-high waves on Lake Ontario with winds of more than 34 knots, Charles Steinback of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club, Toronto, skippered his dragon yacht Tannin to first overall standing with 121½ points. Sailing superbly, Steinback came in first in both the morning and afternoon races.

The regatta, a five-race series, concludes after a single race today. The winning skipper earns the right to compete in the world championship Gold Cup races in Europe next year.

Second Friday was Al Townsend of the Royal St. Lawrence Yacht Club, Montreal who sailed to 112 points aboard his yacht Nina.

AT THE PARK — Brigitte Bardot stars and handsome Jacques Charrier co-stars in Raoul J. Levy's production of "Babette Goes to War," opening Monday for its first Belleville showing at the air-conditioned Park Theatre, filmed in CinemaScope and Eastman Color. The Columbia comedy also co-stars Francis Blanche, Ronald Howard and Hannes Messemer. Charrier, incidentally, is Brigitte's real-life husband, father of her recent new-born son. On the same program, the added Brigitte Bardot attraction, also in Color, "The Night Heaven Fell," with Stephen Boyd and Olida Valli.

Palmer Running Third

Nagle Leads British Open

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (CP)—The British open golf championship entered its fourth and final round today with Australian Ken Nagle holding a two-stroke lead after 54 holes.

Nagle fired a one-under-par 71 in the first half of a scheduled 36 holes Friday for a 207 total, nine under par. Rain forced postponement of the last 18 holes until today.

The 196 - pound farmer's son held a two-stroke lead over Roberto De Vicenzo, 37 - year - old Argentine playing out of Mexico, who soared to a three-over-par 75 in the third round for a 209 total. De Vicenzo had 67s in the first two rounds while Nagle scored a 69 in the opener and a 67 in the second 18.

PALMER THIRD

American Arnold Palmer, Masters and U.S. Open champion, and Syd Scott of England were tied at 211. Palmer fired a 70 Friday while Scott shot a 67.

Joe Carr, Irish holder of the British amateur title, also fired a five-under-par 67 for a 212 total and fifth place.

Defending - champion Gary Player was eight strokes back of the leader, firing a 72 for 215, while Australian Peter Thomson, four-time winner of the British Open, soared to a 75 for 216.

Palmer went into the final 18 holes with the nagging thought that the fickle Scottish weather may have killed his chances of collaring the first grandslam in professional golf history.

FOUR STROKES BACK

Palmer was four strokes behind pace - setting Nagle after three rounds and was charged up for the sort of rallying final round that carried him to the U.S. Open and Masters' titles this year.

"I agree that play was bound to be suspended for a while," he said. "But the sun came out, the weather took a turn for the better and water lying on the course should have been regarded as casual water. We have casual water all the time.

"I think the decision to suspend play for a day was a little premature. It made a turmoil of evdrything."

T-V TIPS

The average television set is literally jammed with an assortment of tubes (between 18 and 20) all of which must be functioning perfectly for peak performance of the set. Sooner or later these tubes lose their efficiency or fail completely — usually just when your favorite program is starting.

Finding a faulty tube isn't always easy, for the filament may still light and give the appearance of normal operation. Quite frequently a tube may test O.K. in a tube tester but fail to perform in the set — or apparently work well in the set and test bad in the tester. The only true test is to substitute a good tube for the one that is under suspicion and check the performance of the set.

At CIRCLE TV SERVICE, 364 Coleman St., there is no substitute for quality. Only name brand, Canadian made tubes are used — backed up by a 90-day guarantee. But — for finding and correcting television troubles — there is no substitute for the experience of our trained technicians. Phone WO 8-6791 for prompt service.

Democratic Parley Will Get Best Coverage in History

By BOB THOMAS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The best - covered convention in history—that's the radio-TV outlook for the Democratic parley when it begins Monday.

The man making the prediction is Bill Henry, co-ordinator of radio-TV arrangements for both conventions. He's done the job since 1948.

This year, he says, Americans "won't be able to get away from the convention."

"You'll see it in your living room, you'll hear it in your car; you'll even have it in the bathroom. No convention has ever been so widely covered on radio and TV.

"The reason is that it shapes up as a good fight But the coverage of the Republican convention is going to be almost as big. I think that people sense this is going to be a hot campaign. Nobody is a sure winner and this time an incumbent isn't running."

A long-time columnist for the Los Angeles Times, Henry has also been a broadcaster since the early days of radio and will be reporting for NBC at both conventions.

Jack Christie, radio-TV director for the Democratic national convention, reports that 980 persons have been accredited, aside from network personnel. Countries represented include Japan, Canada, Great Britain, France, Italy and several in South America.

AT THE BELLE — Steve Reeves and Mylene Demongeot have the romantic leads in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's spectacular film, "The Giant of Marathon." Filmed on a vast scale in Color and Cinemascope with a cast of thousands. The picture is continuing its successful engagement at the Belle Theatre

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Sunday, July 10

General tendencies: Until sundown this Sunday very adverse and difficult aspects are in operation for taking any chances whatever. Be sure you let everyone see that you are aware of the necessity for holding steady to what you know is right, especially by the worship, studies of your choice. Tonight conditions lift somewhat and you can gain support of others.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Until 3 p.m. you realize that th[illegible]nditions under which you w[illegible] reared and your ambiti[illegible] are quite diversified. So, be sure you do not take any contemplated steps until after sundown when you come to a definite decision.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — By going to church today, you can prayerfully clear your thoughts so that you no longer feel that a higher - up has imposed upon you and perhaps not to advance. P.M. have fun socially.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) —If you permit, you can spend this day just puttering around and giving way to petty worry. Get out early to services of your choice, then be in the company of good friends. Enjoy cultural, social, spiritual pleasures. Think loftily.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — An ideal day to think over what your true ambi[illegible] are and how you are goi[illegible] attain them. Then permit nobody to dissuade you from your planned course of action. Consult with wise advisers who know what they are talking about.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — You are pretty much of the old school and modern trends and ideas do not sit very well with you. This is good, since you can carry on in your own individual fashion and ultimately be ahead of others. P. M. plan new week's work.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)— It is important you become more broad - minded and also that you adhere to the Golden Rule more tenaciously so that you become a fine example for others in the future. P. M. put new philosophy into practice.

L[illegible] (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)— It [illegible]d be wise to test out first some of those intuitive ideas you have before putting them into active expression. They may not be correct. P. M. don't be extravagant where entertainment is concerned.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — A close tie may disagree with you quite decisively, but be sure not to lose your temper and realize that everyone is entitled to his, or her, opinion. Learn to co-operate more and don't be so narrow - minded. Don't fight.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — This is one of those days when you feel you are not following the right philosophy of life, that church - going is a waste of time. Are you sure you have been living up to its tenets? Live your religion and all is well.

Ca[illegible]icorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) [illegible] You are convinced that family life does not jive with the modern approach in the outside world and would rebel. Think carefully and realize that the old standards of behavior are ever new and ever right. Adjust gracefully.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Instead of rebelling against one who is rather pompous but nonetheless right in his, or her, viewpoints, show respect for that individual and you win out. P. M. plan some charming entertainment and delight all about you.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — The day is fraught with problems, so be sure you think along highly spiritual lines so that you avoid trouble and actual fisticuffs. A dear friend confides in you this evening and this makes you very happy. Be kind, generous.

If your child is born today... there will be a restlessness in this nature difficult to control if you do not early give your youngster fine spiritual training and personal guidance. And also be sure you give as fine an education as possible. Any profession followed should be one dealing with the public in general and especially in social or philosophic spheres. There is rare ability in dealing with others here.

General Tendencies: This is a day and evening to think in terms of your worldly success and honor and just how you can so attend to your own affairs that a more ingenious and intelligent course of conduct will result. Be sure you seek out those advisers who have deep penetration in your interests and follow what pertains to you. Be resourceful.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Important you go to higher-ups now for the advice you need. This should be during the daytime for any career or government problems and in P.M. for any intimate problems which may be vexing you. Be discreet.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Every sort of information can be yours now, if you will go after it, that will assist you greatly in the future in both personal and business matters. Be broad - minded, however, courteous and listen most carefully to what others have to say.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Take heed of suggestions given you by co-workers now so that you may be more efficient and happy in your work. Also, go to one in authority for the finest ideas and he, or she, will be most willing to co-operate and assist you.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — It is possible to get the co-operation of vital persons in your life at this time and also to gain their admiration. This will brighten your future. Then set in motion new ideas that will be formed. Expand.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — It is possible now to get all those accumulated duties behind you by using more modern and streamlined methods. Do so. Get an early start. P.M. be very devoted to loved one and show thoughtfulness, generosity.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Important you know what your true relative position is with others now. Engage in long and specific conversations that will benefit you. P.M. fine for going to some charming social affair where you can make excellent impression.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — You can do much to make your surroundings more lovely and practical today, as well as reach greater harmony with persons important to you. Also, delve into new interests that please.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — If attuned properly astrologically, you arise in tune with your finest influences. This will lead you directly to those persons of high position and character who will be very helpful to you. P.M. have lots of fun informally with them.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Attend to business affairs which kin want you to and which were thoroughly discussed over the weekend. Also a good time for other practical affairs connected with banking institutions, etc. Activity is the keynote for today.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) The right day to plan your work and other activities very intelligently. Make out a time schedule. Then get in touch with those you wish to have connected with your affairs in the future. P.M. have fun with good comrades.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Since your greatest love is to help others, you must first today consider how to attain a far greater income so that you may do so to a grand scale. Handle all practical affairs with wisdom. Charm those with whom you do business.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) If you are very friendly with those persons whom you contact today, they will gladly co-operate with you and assist you to reach your goals more readily. P.M. be sure you go out with them socially and have a lovely time. Be gay.

If your child is born today . . . there will be a great ability for anything connected with business, so be sure to train along these lines early. Nonetheless there is also much desire to learn about matters spiritual and philosophical, so that with such knowledge brought into modern-day living, the life may become more successful and true happiness may be experienced along life's highway.

OUR RIGHTS MR. "K"—Placard-bearing wives and mothers of Kaufman Rubber Company employees at Kitchener, Ont., march on city hall July 6 to demand the mayor intervene in a dispute between workers and the company. Members of the United Rubber Workers have been on strike since June 23 but violent clashes have broken out between picketers and employees returning to work. One of the signs read: "We want our democratic rights Mr. K"—a reference to the company's owner, Mr. A. R. Kaufman.

THE GOLDEN YEARS

Don't Jeopardize Health, Happiness By Delaying Retirement Too Long

By THOMAS COLLINS

How long will you live?

If you are still short of retirement and are trying to figure out what to do with your freedom when it comes, a little calculation about your prospects can help you make up your mind.

A 62-year-old man this week faced up to what was perhaps the greatest crisis of his long business career, and by quietly figuring out how much longer he could be expected to live, he came to a solution of his problem.

He had a slight heart condition, and unexpectedly he got a new boss. The heart condition had been with him for three years, and his doctor told him he would be all right until a ripe old age if he didn't drive himself too hard. The new boss appeared on the scene overnight because of declining revenue in the company, and the indication was that he had better drive himself harder or pick up and go.

HAPPENS TO MANY

"I have no copyright on this particular predicament," he said. "Over the last couple of years I have seen many of my friends caught up in changing business situations and in mergers. For the young folks in the company it is never too bad. They can make peace with the new order of things and they have no status to lose. Past age 55 it is another story.

"I could have made peace with the new order, I think, but with a heart condition, why should I? Especially if I could (1) get together enough money to retire now and (2) if I still had enough life left to matter."

This man said that he obtained figures from the American Actuarial Society which stated that under normal conditions 91 per cent of all people 60 years old live to be 65. On the average, he said, he found that men of 65 could expect to live to age 79 or 80.

"This meant that if I quit now at 62, I had a very good chance of having at least 17 years of life left. Seventeen years would take me at age 62 back to age 45. The living I have had since age 45 has been a lot of living. Certainly it was enough not to gamble on. Certainly it was enough in which to seek a new career in life."

The man worked out his finances like this: His income was $9,800 a year and out of this, once taxes, bus fare, lunches, white shirts, good suits, charity donations, and all the rest was deducted, he figured he and his wife had roughly $7,000 to spend. They own their home, worth $12,000 and had $11,000 in Government bonds.

HAS THREE CHOICES

At age 65, if he quit now and he didn't touch his pension before that time, the man figured that the pension plus other income would bring in $280 a month. His problem was to tide himself over the next three years before he could collect. He considered various options. He could remain in the house, cut down expenses to about $3,500 a year, and live on the government bonds until 65. He could rent the house furnished for maybe $125 a month, move south, and set up a standard of living at $300 a month. This would take $175 a month out of his savings bonds or about $2,100 a year. When he was 65, he would still have about $5,000 in bonds left. The third choice was to sell the house, move south on $300 a month, and use the savings bonds money. He would just about consume it all by the time he was 65 and at that point would still have left the $12,000 he got from the house.

"The third choice is the one I have taken. I am giving up my job and selling my house. In the next three years of freedom and good health — with maybe 17 more years of life on deposit — all sorts of wonderful things may happen. If nothing does happen, I may take my $12,000 and buy a little grocery store and live on the $280 a month we will have.

Your Car

Don't Let Car Troubles Spoil Your Vacation

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

Like most cars, yours probably works harder around vacation time. To keep it trouble-free, you will undoubtedly have the tires, brakes, battery, plugs, points, timing, cooling system and lubrication checked. But don't stop there.

Alignment and wheel balance belong on the list, too. So do the oil and air filters. Headlight aim should certainly be tested, as well as taillight, stoplight and turn signal operation. And, of course, you can't afford to overlook windshield wiper blades. Prepare the finish, too. Have it cleaned and well waxed before starting, especially if you expect to be near shore areas.

Finally, carry along emergency tools, including spare fuses, fan belt, flashlight, lantern or flares and a tow rope. You may never need any of these items, but it's wise to be prepared.

From N. S.: "My car ride is too bouncy, even though I have put an extra five pounds of air in each of the tires. Would this indicate bad shock absorbers?"

(A) Either faulty shocks or weak springs.

C. M. asks: "With the automatic shift lever in Drive and the brake holding the car at a standstill, the transmission of my car becomes noisy. What could be the cause?"

(A) The fluid level could be too low, or possibly too high. If not, better have a transmission man look it over to check out the other possibilities.

J. L. writes: "It's probably insignificant, but I notice my 1960 engine used slightly more oil than usual during the past month. There is barely 11,000 miles on the odometer."

(A) This would be normal. Hard driving in summer heat tends to thin out engine oil causing it to burn off a bit more readily.

From J. E.: "I took a trial drive in a 1954 sedan that is up for sale. It has an engine knock — a heavy thump which which really gets noisy when you try to pick up speed. My brother thinks it's a main bearing knock. Do you feel he is right?"

(A) I would suspect so from your description, although it might be a flywheel rather than a main bearing knock.

Tariffs Block Russian Cars

TORONTO (CP)—A car dealer in suburban Agincourt said Thursday government tariffs and duties blocked plans to import 1,000 small Russian-made Moskvich automobiles.

Lloyd McDonnell of Modern Motors of Agincourt said government regulations increased the price from an original $860 to $2,300. Freight costs would amount to $200-$300, excise tax nearly $700.

He said there are so many difficulties involved in bringing the Moskvich line to Canada that it is obvious "Ottawa doesn't want us to bring in Russian cars."

LONG WAIT

DANVILLE, Que. (CP) — The committee in charge of Danville's centennial celebrations sponsored a beard-growing contest, and Clemente Gosselin is the only entrant. To win, he will have to keep his beard until Labor Day.

Mrs. John S. Faulkner, of 51 Lambert Drive, Belleville, formerly of 290 Beech St., Ottawa, won this magnificent 1960 Chevrolet during the contest sponsored by the Raoul Landriault stores in Eastview and Hull. Left to right are: John S. Faulkner, Raoul Landriault, owner of the Landriault stores, and Mrs. Faulkner.

Lucky Purchase Brings Belleville Woman New Car

Mr. and Mrs. John S. Faulkner of 51 Lambert Drive, Belleville, formerly of Ottawa, made a lucky purchase recently.

By buying a dining room suite at a Landriault furniture store, they wound up with a 1960 Chevrolet.

Mrs. Faulkner won the car — a white, two-door, with two-tone blue interior — in a contest sponsored by the Raoul Landriault stores in Eastview and Hull, Quebec. With purchases the customer was given a ticket on the Chev. which was drawn for June 30th. Mrs. Faulkner "never gave it another thought," until a call was received from Otawa last Thursday night, she said.

"My husband took the call as I was not at home, but they wouldn't give him any information, so I had to call back when I returned," she said.

The Faulkners and their family — they have a 14-year-old son, and two daughters, aged seven and two years — were surprised and delighted to receive the good news, particularly since they didn't own a car.

"We won't feel so much like a tourist, now we have a car and can get out and see things," she said.

Mr. and Mrs. Faulkner travelled to Ottawa by train on Friday, to receive their prize, and drove the car back Sunday.

"This is the first time we've won anything like this and I guess it won't matter if we don't win again," Mrs. Faulkner commented.

Mr. Faulkner, who is Bell Telephone Company foreman, came to Belleville in January. His wife and family arrived during the Easter holidays.

AVM T. Cowley Dies at 70

VICTORIA (CP) — Air Vice-Marshal Arthur Thomas Noel Cowley, 70, pioneer Canadian flier and former director of air services with the transport department, died here Thursday after a lengthy illness.

Winnipeg-born Tom Cowley piloted 175 types of aircraft—more than any other Canadian—during his 40 years in Canadian aviation. He had been in retirement since 1954.

As senior RCAF officer and civilian flying authority, he flew regularly and added new types of aircraft to his "collection" at every chance. He flew a jet plane at the age of 62.

Air Vice-Marshal Cowley served as an instructor before going into active service in the First World War.

In 1939 he was made RCAF director of manning, rebuilding the service by enlisting, sorting out and training thousands of men. He became commanding officer of Camp Borden training station in 1940.

Subsequent moves took him to various commands, including No. 1 Training Command in Toronto, the largest in Canada.

He retired from the RCAF [illegible] the Second World War. He was brought out of retirement by then Reconstruction Minister C. D. Howe and made director of air services, a position he held for eight years.

SURVIVES FALL OVER NIAGARA — Roger Woodward, 8, of Niagara Falls, N.Y., is fed a glass of milk at Niagara General Hospital after he survived a 167-foot drop Saturday over the Horseshoe (Canadian) Falls following a boating accident. The nurse is Eleanor Weaver, Reg. N. of Niagara Falls, Ont. (CP Wirephoto).

'Conqueror of Greatest Wonder in World' Resting Quietly After Miracle of Niagara

He is trying to forget he is the first person ever to live after being swept accidentally over Niagara Falls' giant torrent of waters and murderous rocks below.

Veteran river men regarded the seven-year-old's survival with awe and called it a miracle. His shoes were torn from his feet but he was only slightly cut and bruised.

An adult companion who went over with him after their boat upset Saturday was killed, and Rodger's sister was rescued at the brink of the roaring cataract.

"I knew I was going over," blonde, blue-eyed Rodger, of Niagara Falls, N.Y., told reporters. "When I was at the top my feet were down and my head up . . . then my head was down and my feet were up.

"I could feel it every time I hit a rock. . . .

"I can't swim too good . . . Jim was trying to turn the boat to go back. The motor went out of control and everything started going fast."

GRAB SISTER

His sister, Deanne, 17, was rescued at the brink of the 167-foot Canadian Horseshoe Falls by two United States tourists. Their companion, James Honeycutt, 40, was drowned. The small boat the three were in was found only as splintered wreckage torn and smashed by Niagara's murderous power. A life preserver also was found below the falls.

Honeycutt, a contractor at the Niagara Power Commission project and a friend of the Woodward family, was swept to his death by the torrent, estimated to fall at 212,000 cubic feet a second. His body has still not been recovered.

The 70-pound boy said he was in Honeycutt's arms as they approached the falls, but then they became separated in the swift-moving water.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Woodward expressed utter disbelief at the Democrats Likely to Adopt Strong Civil Rights Plank

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A plank pledging a bold federal attack on racial discrimination, written over strong southern objections, appears headed for adoption in the Democratic party platform.

The platform goes before the Democratic national convention Tuesday after preliminary action today by the full platform committee. Approval by both groups seemed certain.

But unanswered was what southern delegates might do about it. They could walk out of the convention in protest as some did in 1952 or they could stay and fight out the issue and take a probable defeat.

Their final decision, some of them said, was tied to the fate of the candidacy of Senator Lyndon Johnson of Texas for the party's presidential nomination.

Southern backers of the Texan were reluctant to stir up too much trouble lest it embarrass him with northern delegates who support him for the nomination but also favor a strong civil rights declaration.

Northern civil rights groups were jubilant over the plank approved Sunday night by a 20-member drafting committee of the convention's full 109-member resolutions committee.

Speaking for the southern delegates, Senator Sam Ervin of North Carolina said he could not accept the civil rights proposal. He declined to speculate, however, on what steps southern delegates might take.

Wording of the plank was not made public. But it promised to use full powers of the federal government to end racial discrimination in voting, public education, employment, housing and other fields.

The plank commits the Democratic party to enactment by Congress of legislation to broaden powers of the attorney-general in the racial field. He

Father's Wealth, Own Personality Sweeping Kennedy Toward Victory

LOS ANGELES (CP)—Wealth, personality and energy appear to be sweeping the Democratic presidential nomination into the hands of Massachusetts Senator John F. Kennedy even before formal voting begins.

The thunder of support could be heard as the party today opened its five - day convention seeking a candidate to crush the Republicans in next November's presidential election.

And the 43 - year - old writer, lawyer and war hero, responding to reporters' questions, declared that he would increase taxes if necessary to bolster United States defence should he become president.

Although nomination voting doesn't start until Wednesday, weekend pre - convention manoeuvring pointed to defeat of the "stop-Kennedy" forces. Chief of these is Senate Majority Leader Lyndon Johnson, a burly Texan whose powerful congressional strength seems no match for the skilful, well - heeled Kennedy machine.

Kennedy's father, Joseph, reported to have amassed a fortune of more than $200,000,000, predicts his son will win the nomination on the first ballot with the necessary minimum 761 votes.

California Governor Edmund (Pat) Brown, like Kennedy a Roman Catholic, added to Kennedy's weekend bandwagon growth by releasing his 81-vote delegation to vote as they please after voting for Brown on a token "favorite-son" first ballot. Brown also announced he personally would support Kennedy.

Only remaining great questionmark is the decision of the 80-vote Pennsylvania delegation, also headed by a Catholic, Governor David Lawrence. Lawrence who has expressed doubts a Catholic can win the presidency, will meet with his delegates today to decide its support.

A facade of gay bunting covered this convention city. Clowns mixed with Hollywood stars and curvaceous beauties coursed through the jammed downtown headquarters hotel.

Meanwhile, Adlai E. Stevenson, two - time party candidate for president, said he would be willing to accept a cabinet post.

Two Fliers Picked Up

Reds Shot Down U.S. Plane Over Barents Sea on July 1

LONDON (AP)—The Soviet Union announced today it had shot down a missing American plane over the Barents Sea July 1 and that the two fliers were picked up.

Moscow Radio said a new Soviet note was handed to the U.S. Embassy protesting a "violation" of its air space by the B-47 reconnaissance craft.

This was the first word of the fate of the plane, which disappeared July 1 with six men aboard while on a scouting flight over waters north of Norway and the Soviet Union.

The U.S. air force said the plane, based temporarily in England, had been on an electromagnetic mapping mission.

The Soviet broadcast said notes also have been handed to Britain and Norway.

Centennial of Orange Lodge Of Ontario East Is Marked

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Glorious 12th and 100th anniversary of the Grand Orange Lodge of Ontario East was celebrated Saturday by thousands of Orangemen marching in colorful parades.

Ottawa was bright with orange and blue decorations and clothes as 50,000 marchers wound through city streets. In Peterborough 10,000 men, women and children marched in a three-mile long parade.

A Protestant witness service in Toronto Sunday marked the 400th anniversary of the Protestant Reformation and was attended by 3,000 shirt-sleeved Orangemen.

More than 800 turned out in the Quebec village of Inverness to celebrate the Battle of the Boyne with Orangemen from around the globe.

"English is the world's language now," said the grand master and sovereign of the Grand Lodge of British North America.

"If there was a need for another (language) in Canada there would be some argument for pursuing a bilingual culture. But the fact is that the 10,000,000 Canadians who speak English only include 1,500,000 who are not Anglo-Saxon.

"Those who campaign for all Canada to learn and speak French render a disservice to Canada and are out of step with the times."

At Kingston, Edward McKaern, 61, of Lynn, Ont., disobeyed doctor's orders and collapsed and died of a heart attack during the parade.

Most Canadians Have Fled From Leopoldville in Congo

OTTAWA (CP)—Most Canadian citizens in Leopoldville, capital of the strife-torn Congo Republic, have been able to escape across the Congo River to Brazzaville, in the former French Congo colony, External Afairs Minister Green said today.

But he indicated, in a report to the Commons, that poor communications have prevented Canadian oficials at Leopoldville from learning the situation of Canadians elsewhere in the country.

Mr. Green, replying to Erhart Regier (CCF — Burnaby-Coquitlam), amplified previous reports that some 247 Canadians were registered at the Canadian trade office in Leopoldville. Virtually all are missionaries and their families—many of them in up-country posts distant from Leopoldville.

BUSINESS AS USUAL

The minister said that a report Saturday from Roger Bull, Canadian trade commissioner there, said the situation in Leopoldville was under control with "business as usual." But Mr. Bull had been unable to report on the situation elsewhere in the country.

Mr. Green said that some time ago Canadians in the country had been told that, in the event of trouble, they should try to make their way to the nearest British territory.

Mr. Regier asked Defence Minister Pearkes for assurance that he would not hesitate to use his department's facilities to ensure the safety of Canadians in the Congo.

Mr. Pearkes said the government would do everything possible to help them. Mr. Green said Canada is acting in co-operation with the United Kingdom, and that no British planes have yet been sent to the area.

Earlier today, an official of the external afairs department said he is not aware of any Canadian business people there. The department was awaiting further reports from Mr. Bull.

"We are anxious," he said. "We are always concerned when Canadians are in danger."

Most of the Canadians were believed to be at scattered up-country missions throughout the newly-formed West African republic which straddles the equator. Communications between these missions and Leopoldville, the capital near the coast, were difficult or impossible.

Officials said they had received no reports during the weekend from Mr. Bull. They said conditions in the Congo are "in a state of high confusion".

No special instructions had been sent to Mr. Bull, who would work in close collaboration with British and other European and American diplomatic representatives and with Belgian and Congolese officials if they were able to help.

One oficial said he expects that most of the Canadian missionaries have been notified what to do. Missionaries generally were dificult to persuade to leave their posts. Usually they were in a special position in the community and not in any special danger.

Trains Crash In Cape Breton

STELLARTON, N.S. (CP) — Two freight trains crashed head-on one mile west of here this morning derailing 11 cars and blocking the CNR's main line to industrial Cape Breton.

No serious injuries were reported, although several trainmen received minor cuts and bruises.

SIXTY AMERICAN MISSIONARIES ARE BESIEGED

Rebellious Congolese Terrorizing Whites

LEOPOLDVILLE (CP) — The Congo Republic today appealed for United Nations help as its mutipous army clashed with Belgian troops trying to protect the terrorized white population.

At the same time, 60 American missionaries and their families were besieged by mutineers at a mission station in the southeastern Katanga Province. The group, which included 40 children, radioed for help.

Premier Patrice Lumumba, who took over rule of this former Belgian colony June 30, urged the UN to send specialists to help reorganize the mutinous army. He made the request personally to UN undersecretary Ralph Bunche, now in Leopoldville.

Belgian troops battled Congolese army rebels today in the Atlantic port of Matadi, 150 miles southwest of here. The rebels were trying to prevent a shipload of white refugees sailing for Belgium.

Rebellious Congoles troops were reported terrorizing whites today in two key cities—Luluabourg and Stanleyville—as fleets of planes rushed to bring out refugees.

A radio message reported fighting between armed Congolese and whites besieged in Shinkolobwe and another message reported Belgian troops marching to relieve the town.

CITY PANICS

Luluabourg, in the centre of the Congo and once intended to become the republic's new capital, was reported still in a state of near panic, with mutineers attacking white civilians and looting homes and stores.

At least 10 Europeans were killed in the weekend of violence. Official Belgian reports said three were killed and one wounded when African rebels besieged hundreds of whites in a hotel in Luluabourg Sunday. They were rescued by Belgian paratroopers.

Belgian troops brought most of the native troops under control, but looting and pillaging was reported continuing today. One report said a large number of whites were barricaded in a building.

Another flareup was reported in Stanleyville, storied city astride the equator in the northeast. The Belgian radio said Congolese troops mutinied, invaded an airfield and prevented a plane loaded with refugees from taking off.

Annual Rental For Guantanamo To Be Returned

Ike Will Not Comment Until Request Received

HAVANA (AP) — The Cuban government implied Sunday it may demand that the United States abandon its Guantanamo naval base in eastern Cuba.

President Osvaldo Dorticos told a labor demonstration attended by 100,000 that Cuban territory is "not for rent or sale to foreigners."

He said the annual rental cheque paid last month by the United States for the base would be sent back to Washington.

Under a treaty signed in 1934 the United States has a perpetual lease on the 45-square-mile base at a rent of 2,000 gold dollars—the equivalent of $3,386.25—a year.

The bespectacled, beardless president, growing daily in stature in Cuba's revolutionary Hierarchy, delivered the main address at the rally after pneumonia kept Prime Minister Fidel Castro in bed.

MAKES TV SPEECH

But illness did not keep Castro off stage entirely. Looking feverish, the 33-year-old prime minister put an army field jacket over his pyjamas and made a 45-minute television speech from his bedroom.

Speaking in a hoarse voice, the revolutionary leader again attacked the United States as an aggressor nation and hailed the Soviet Union as the champion of underdeveloped countries.

There was growing speculation here that Cuba may be preparing a formal accusation of aggression against the United States before either the Organization of the American States or the United Nations. Foreign Minister Raul Roa made a sudden trip to the United States over the weekend for consultations with Cuban diplomats at the UN.

"The whole world is turning against the United States," Castro said repeatedly in his bedside chat, which he delivered with his usual arm-waving to dispel any idea he was seriously ill. He wound up with thanks to the Soviet Union for its support of his

Cuba Requests UN Meeting On U.S. Dispute

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Cuba today requested a meeting of the United Nations security council to consider the worsening dispute with the United States.

A spokesman for the Cuban delegation said a formal complaint has been handed to the current president of the 11-nation council, Ambassador Jose Correa of Ecuador.

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP)—President Eisenhower today outlined a U.S. goodwill aid program for Latin American nations, but said Cuba's Castro regime would be included only if it shows willingness to co-operate.

At a press conference at the summer White House, after a meeting with State Secretary Christian Herter, Eisenhower declined to discuss the Cuban crisis in detail. He brushed aside a question about his reaction to a hint by Cuba's president that Cuba might demand the United States abandon its Guantanamo naval base.

The president declared he would wait for such a demand before having any comment.

The president and Herter held a first round of discussions at the summer White House Sunday night just 24 hours after Eisenhower warned the Soviet Union against trying to set up a Cuban regime dominated by international communism.

Herter, who flew here from Washington Sunday and plans to return shortly after today's session, declined comment on the talks.

There was no official comment either on another development which appeared to indicate a further turn for the worse in U.S.-Cuban relations.

That was an announcement by Cuba's President Osvaldo Dorticos that his country would return to the United States the money paid recently for the annual rent on the U.S. Guantanamo naval base in Cuba. Dorticos strongly implied that the United States would be told to give up the base.

THREATENS U.S.

Eisenhower's warning to the Soviet Union to keep hands off Cuba came Saturday night a few hours after Soviet Premier Khrushchev had pledged Communist support to the Castro regime in its quarrel with the U.S. Khrushchev threatened that the Soviet Union now has the rocket power to blow up the U.S. if it made any move against Cuba.

Eisenhower was advised of this while he was trout fishing. After a telephone conference with Herter, the president put out a statement denouncing what he called the Soviet "clear intention to establish Cuba in a role serving Soviet purposes in this hemisphere."

The president noted that the American republics are committed by treaty to resist outside interference in the area.

"I a firm in the most emphatic terms that the United States will not be deterred from its responsibilities by the threats Mr. Khrushchev is making," Eisenhower said.

"Nor will the United States, in conformity with its treaty obligations, permit the establishment of a regime dominated by international communism in the western hemisphere."

Canadian Army Soon to Get Radar So Accurate It Can Track Golf Ball

CAMP GAGETOWN, N.B. (CP)—A radar so rapid and accurate that it can track the flight of a golf ball soon will be delivered to the Canadian Army.

This was disclosed here Saturday by officers who have been working on the development. The armies of other NATO countries are reported highly interested.

The radar will be used to back-track enemy mortar shells to their source so that immediate fire can be brought to bear on the mortars. It is a refinement of present equipment developed by the United States and used by the Canadian Army. It is accurate within 15 yards. A computer associated with the radar calculates and provides the site of the target.

One officer said he has tested the new Canadian equipment by tracking golf balls in flight.

A new tactical development by the Canadian Army was shown to a group of reporters here while elements of the 3rd Canadian Infantry Brigade performed Exercise Lightning in a driving rainstorm.

The new tactical development was the use of small helicopters by the reconnaissance squadron of the Royal Canadian Dragoons, a tank regiment. The helicopters look for tank targets three to four miles in advance of the tanks.

The army wants some 40 of these helicopters and 40 transport types but the government has not yet approved expenditure of the some $40,000,000 required for this purpose.

Nearly every officer says bluntly that the army needs the Bobcat amphibious armored personnel carrier for overland, over - water mobility. Development of the Bobcat is nearing completion and the government may order it into production by the end of this year. One Bobcat would cost about $35,000 and the army wants some 500 of them.

Infantry officers said new land mines have been developed for the army as a result of the Korean experience with massed human attacks. One experienced combat officer said the mines are "terrible, just terrible" in inflicting casualties.

WHAT DOCTORS SAY ABOUT

Meningitis Not Inherited

● Jaw Click

Q. What is spinal meningitis and is there a cure? Is there any danger or possible risk to offspring of a person who has had the disease? Is insanity the eventual outcome of meningitis?

A. Spinal meningitis is inflammation of the cellophane-like covering of the spinal cord. Meningitis occurs when the spinal canal is invaded by germs or virus. With modern drug therapy the outlook for a person with meningitis is far better than it was only a few years ago. In severe cases there may be some after effects but insanity is hardly one of them. Meningitis is not "handed down" or inherited.

Q. I have recently developed quite a click in the right side of my jaw. It is loud enough to be embarrassing when I eat. Would you advise treatment or will it go away?

A. Many people have this experience at times. There is no cause for alarm, provided the jaw functions in a normal manner. It is very likely that the click will disappear in time. If not, a competent oral surgeon should be consulted.

Unique Water Theatre Opens At Gananoque

GANANOQUE — Something unique in entertainment — a water musical presented in a specially built water theatre — was officially opened in Gananoque on the St. Lawrence River, Saturday night.

The review, "Gananoque 1960", presented by the 1000 Islands Water Theatre Aqua Productions, stars the world renowned Peterborough Ornamental Swimming Club.

Produced and written by Jack Telgmann of Kingston, the musical is a series of clever swimming routines woven into stories and set to original music.

The specially built, $50,000 water theatre, reputed to be the only one of its kind in the world, was erected last month on the river front premises of the Gananoque Canoe Club. It utilizes the St. Lawrence River as a "stage" and the natural island scenery as a backdrop.

Proceeds of Saturday nights performance went to the Ontario Crippled Children's Association.

Muskie Will Join "Brother" In Cottage

"George" doesn't know it yet — but he's got a twin brother.

"George" is a 25-pound muskie which was caught eight years ago and now graces a place of honor in the cottage of Fred Harrison, 34 Parker Street.

The "twin" arrived yesterday and weighed 25 pounds. It was 46 inches in length.

The big muskie, hooked in the Trenton River, near Frankford by Wib Kingston of Campbellford on a red plug put up a terrific battle.

It took the combined efforts of Messrs. Harrison and Kingston to land the lunker. At that they were forced to beach it, before it said "uncle."

Now "George II" as it has been dubbed, will shortly share the top spot above the mantel with brother "George I" in the cottage.

TOURIST HIGHWAY

The Okanogan Cariboo Trail Association, formed in 1930 to promote North American tourist travel, this fall plans a 1,000-car motor caravan from Weed, Calif., to Dawson Creek, B.C.

The caravan is aimed at drawing attention to a plan to extend the international highway from Nome, Alaska, to Guatemala in Central America— a distance of 6,000 miles.

The association of tourist and hotel groups from Canada and the United States has succeeded in promoting travel on Highway 97 (solid line on map.) The 3,000-mile highway now weaves from Weed, in northern California, through Oregon and Washington states and B.C. and joins with the Alaska Highway between Dawson Creek and Fairbanks, Alaska. Broken line shows proposed north and south extensions. (CP Newsmap.)

Bank Robbers Still at Large

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP) — Provincial police searching for two suspected bank robbers in dense bushland near Victoriaville, Que., were beginning to wonder today if they were still in the woods.

A spokesman at search headquarters here said neither the 20-to 30-man posse armed with two sub-machine guns and revolvers, nor local residents had sighted the men, who were believed trapped in a wood 15 miles deep.

Both men, suspected of a $1,800 bank holdup Thursday in the village of Ham Sud, halfway between Victoriaville and Sherbrooke, were sighted twice by the posse Friday. Both times they got away.

Lightning Moves Whole House Seventeen Feet

CUMBERLAND BAY, N.B. (CP) — Lightning moved a house here Saturday.

With owner Percy Barton inside, the building was raised from its foundations during an electrical storm, and shifted nine feet forward and eight feet sideways.

Mr. Barton, in his 60s, found the doors were jammed and he couldn't get out. But his telephone was working, so he summoned a neighbor to his aid.

A lightning bolt is believed to have gone down the chimney to the basement, blasting the 22-by-26 foot building upward.

The chimney flue, windows and dishes were broken.

Huge Gotham Traffic Jam Follows Strike

NEW YORK (AP)—Thousands of commuters affected by a strike of the Long Island Railroad got out of bed before dawn today to make their way into the city by bus, subway, taxi and car pool.

The city braced itself for a monumental traffic jam.

City bound traffic was unusually heavy in some of the roads leading in from the struck railroad's area — the city's Borough of Queens and Nassau and Suffolk counties on Long Island.

The railroad, busiest commuter line in the United States, was struck early Sunday by the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen after efforts by Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller failed to settle the pay-hours dispute.

The pivotal issue in the dispute is a demand by the strikers for a five-day week to replace the present six-day week with no cut in pay.

Business Women Open Convention

One of the highlights of the five-day meeting will be the founders' luncheon Wednesday to honor the original members. Charter clubs were Montreal, Winnipeg, Saskatoon, Vancouver and Victoria. Miss A. Josephine Dauphinee, 84, of Vancouver, a member of the Vancouver club since 1923 and a charter member of the Canadian Federation in 1930, will be the guest speaker.

Powers Indicted On Spying Charge

MOSCOW (CP) — American spy-plane pilot Francis Powers has been indicted on a charge carrying a penalty ranging between seven years and life imprisonment, the Soviet secret police announced Saturday.

The indictment charges Powers with espionage under Article Two of the Law for Criminal Responsibility for State Crimes.

The next step is for a trial date to be set—unless the indictment is quashed—by the military collegium of the Supreme Court consisting of a high-ranking military officer as chairman and three other officers.

There was no indication when the date would be set.

Powers, 30, is charged with flying over the Soviet Union to make aerial photographs of industrial and defence establishments and gather other intelligence information. His U-2 plane was shot down May 1.

India Prepares For Strike by Two Million

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — Some 7,000 police and national guards today patrolled strategic points in New Delhi as India braced for a threatened nation-wide strike by 2,000,000 government workers.

Police rounded up strike leaders who announced they would defy a government order declaring the strike illegal.

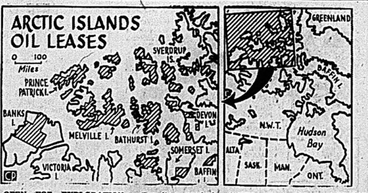
The strike, which threatened to be the biggest labor dispute in independent India's 13-year history was due to start at midnight tonight.

The Indian cabinet met to discuss the latest developments. The government has decided to dismiss low-ranking employees who join the strike.

Many groups of workers plan to ignore the strike call.

Steel-helmeted police moved into the grounds of the central telegraph office here and set up a temporary operational office.

They also guarded the main telephone exchange, and posted radio trucks at the two chief railroad stations in the capital.



OPEN FOR EXPLORATION — Permits have been issued for petroleum exploration on more than 39,000,000 acres in the Arctic Islands.

A total of 39,046,000 acres (shaded areas on map at left) is involved in the archipelago. The leases run for 12 years. (CP Newsmap.)

Hoedown Fans Enjoy Program At Gardens

TRENTON— There were thrills galore for country hoe down fans at Trenton Community Gardens Saturday night.

Master of ceremonies Gordie Tapp kept the two-hour program going at a fast pace. The songbirds, the Haymes sisters, went from western ballads to rock 'n' roll with the greatest of ease and even managed to execute a few dance steps on the shaky, diminutive platform at their disposal.

The ever-popular Rhythm Pals entertained.

Wrestling will be the next attraction at the gardens on Wednesday.

May Form UN Club in Town

TRENTON — Trenton may soon have a United Nations group—if the plans of Miss Kay Samuels of Toronto, bear fruit.

Over the weekend, Miss Samuels was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Curtis, Front St., and discussed the possibilities of forming a U.N. group here.

Miss Samuels, electrical engineering lecturer at the University of Toronto, said few people have any idea of the work done by delegates to the United Nations. Through small groups, such as she hopes to form in Trenton, the average individual could learn of the functions and activities of the world body and of the U.N. effort in the preservation of world peace and in such matters as the advancement of the "have-not" nations.

Discussion would be an integral part of the group meetings, and citizens having a varied national background would be encouraged to join the group, thus providing an opportunity for them to get to know one another better.

Issues Warning

TRENTON — Sgt. Gordon Steenburg, Trenton's safety officer, warns children against riding their bicycles across the hydro dam on the river. Sgt. Steenburg said there have been drownings at the dams.

Five Climbers Fall 300 Feet

Stroh, leader of a six-man lost footing at Avalanche Point, party, told rescuers the group at the 8,500-foot level of the 9,300-foot mountain, during a descent.

The party, including one woman, was tied together by a 120-foot rope. Stroh lost his footing in a minor avalanche and fell, pulling the others behind him.

A 29-man rescue party, including a doctor, went to the accident scene Saturday night and took out the injured Sunday.

Dr. Hugh Mackay said Russell Burditt, who suffered severe head lacerations, was the most severely injured. All, however, were reported in good condition.

The woman, not immediately identified, escaped injury.

Lottery Winner Ready to Pay Ransom for Son

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Searchers today found a cap, some clothing and schoolbooks belonging to eight-year-old Graeme Thorne, kidnapped on his way to school last Thursday.

Police rushed to the brushy area near Seaforth, one of Sydney's northern suburbs. The boy's school case had been found there Friday night, and the area was searched. Finding of the other articles set off another search.

The only word since the boy disappeared was a phone call late Thursday. A man speaking with a foreign accent demanded £25,000 for the return of the child, saying otherwise he would "feed him to the sharks."

Police today said they were baffled and "just about where we were last Thursday."

The parents, staying close to the phone, said all they want is their son back.

"The kidnappers will get the money if they keep their word and return our boy unharmed," said the father, Basil Thorne, who won £100,000 in a lottery last month.

Heavy Damages To Synagogue

Also destroyed was a hand-carved altar installed in 1932 at a cost of $10,000. The fire was started by lightning.

Rix Athabasca Mine Will Close

TORONTO (CP)—Rix Athabasca Uranium Mines Ltd., in the Beaverlodge area of northern Saskatchewan, will close down its operations this week.

W. G. Bouck, president, states that extensive exploration has failed to reveal further ore and present workings have become uneconomic to operate.

He added that company officials are examining other mining properties with a view to profitable use of the company's resources and personnel.

Rix Athabaska has been a mining operation only—shipping its ore for milling to Lorado Uranium Mines Ltd. and Eldorado Mining and Refining Ltd. Its contracts have been on a month-to-month basis, so that there is no unfulfilled contract to sell.

It started production in April, 1954, and to the end of 1959 shipped ore worth $6,868,563.

Beating Fatal To Windsor Man

WINDSOR (CP) — A 54-year-old man found brutally beaten in his downtown Windsor apartment early Sunday died in hospital hours later of multiple injuries. Police called it manslaughter.

Mr. Joosse died about 11:30 p.m. A police constable at the scene said the dead man apparently suffered broken arms, a possible broken back and other injuries.

Mr. White, a Windsor bartender, said the man he knew as Sammy woke him and asked to call police and ambulance.

Mr. White quoted the visitor as saying he had knocked at the Joosse apartment half an hour before Mr. Joosse "in bad shape" struggled to the door.

Officials End Paint Dispute

TORONTO (CP) — Representatives of Toronto painting contractors and union officials Sunday ended a dispute which had threatened more walkouts by the city's 1,600 union painters.

The dispute centred around the union's demands for the right to discipline 30 members who refused to honor a strike last May by Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers (CLC), Local 46, against Toronto painting contractors.

A union spokesman said Sunday the contractors agreed at the meeting to leave internal discipline to the union.

He Was Not Misquoted

Professor Gideon Rosenbluth of Queen's University is a man to remember.

He told the House of Commons banking committee: "To accept the advice of a trade association on how the Combines Investigation Act should be amended is a little like asking burglars to amend the law on theft, or having liquor control legislation on the advice of alcoholics."

This caused Gordon O'Brien, manager of the Fisheries Council of Canada, to declare the statement reflects "a shocking situation" in the philosophy concerning trade associations taught to commerce students at the university.

"We do resent, most strongly, a university professor suggesting that the advice of people in industry should not be taken too seriously—and on a matter of primary and vital concern to industry."

Prof. Rosenbluth, bless him, then distinguished himself.

He did not claim he was misquoted.

"My quotation is correct," he told a reporter.

He added: "But Mr. O'Brien's interpretation is wrong. It did not say governments should not listen to trade associations."

It is a good point. He did not say this. But, for that matter, Mr. O'Brien did not say that he did. Mr. O'Brien said that Prof. Rosenbluth said that the advice of people in industry should not be taken too seriously. And if Prof. Rosenbluth did not say precisely this, he said something very close to it.

What's more, we think he is right. It is "a little," but only a little, like asking burglars to amend the law on theft to accept the advice of a trade association on how the Combines Investigation Act would be amended. The resemblance results from the fact that sometimes trade associations have been suspected of infractions of the said act as it is now written. Trade associations should certainly be heard regarding suggested amendments, but their advice ought not to be accepted unless it coincides with what legislators believe is in the best interests of the nation as a whole.

Hens and the Color Line

The Hamilton Spectator notes a wide difference in tastes when it comes to eggs. New Englanders like them brown, but in the Niagara Peninsula a sudden preference for white eggs has arisen.

The Spectator quotes a Welland poultry farmer as saying that "white eggs come from a lighter, smaller and far more temperamental bird, the Leghorn. They scare so easily that when I feed them or collect eggs I have to knock on the door first. If I didn't, they would panic and fly into a corner and smother."

This leads the Spectator to exclaim that "things have come to a pretty pass" but "it shows that the trend toward psychiatry has finally reached the farm."

The Leghorn does indeed, lay a white egg, but it is not the only variety to do so. This is an ability all varieties of the Mediterranean breeds share in common. Brown eggs are produced by the English varieties (Orpingtons, Sussex, etc.), and also by the Asiatic varieties (the feather-footed Cochins, Brahmas and Langshans). The Asiatics are big birds, but poor layers. The English birds are also big and were once raised primarily for meat, while the Mediterraneans were kept to produce eggs. The smaller Leghorn is admittedly more easily frightened than the placid Orpington, but we did not know they were as scary as described by the Welland poultryman. If they are now so easily frightened, it must be because of the strides made in making Orpingtons, for example, good layers, and the even more impressive results obtained with American varieties (Plymouth Rocks, Rhode Island Reds and Wyandottes, etc.) notably Rocks, in the egg-laying department. We wonder, though, whether some of the other Mediterraneans (such as the Minorcas whose big, black cocks can make even a chesty Orpington rush to the feeder for a bit of extra poundage), are equally perturbed. And in any event, don't some of the American breeds lay white eggs? Finally, just how did this white and brown division start, anyway, when all domestic fowl are supposed to have been developed, over the centuries, from the jungle fowl of the East Indies?

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

COMING AND GOING

There is an interesting verse in the Gospel of Mark which says, "Many were coming and going, and they had no leisure even to eat." This description sounds just like modern times, not like the slow moving world of two thousand years ago.

One of the sources of the tragedy of many lives today is the lack of time. There are millions of business and professional men and women — and housewives, too — who are so busy coming and going that they have, sometimes, "no leisure even to eat." While eating is not our most important activity, it is certainly necessary, and we may be sure that when people are too busy to eat, they are neglecting a good many other things.

There are so many pressures today, so many fascinating distractions, so much to see and hear and do that it is hard to find time to be quietly alone. But we all need, often, to be alone, to be quiet, to stop and ask ourselves who we are and where we are going. Leisure to do this is as important as finding time to eat.

Jesus' answer to this problem comes a few verses after the one quoted. It was to go alone up into a mountain and pray. The mountain may not have been necessary, nor is it necessary now, but the solitude and the prayer were. They are still the best answer.

In fact, this may be the needed answer to our deepest questioning.

How to Get Good Mileage

Galt Reporter

No two motorists are alike, and as a result no two identical motor cars will give the same gas mileage. Such is the opinion of engineers of General Motors of Canada, but they add the encouraging fact that most motorists can improve the miles - per - gallon ration in their present motor vehicles.

While automobile engines are designed to give the best possible performance, engineers caution that every needless revolution of the engine is wasting gasoline. Prolonged idling of the motor thus eats into the gas supply, without moving the car one inch. On a cold morning, it can help to warm up the engine briefly, as without this warm-up there can be strains on the motor that would offset the gasoline economy. But other things being equal, the motorist should avoid leaving the car standing with the engine running.

Conservative speeds require far less fuel. At high speeds, gas consumption is greater because of increase wind resistance and engine and tire friction. And under normal traffic conditions, high speeds are difficult to maintain without excessive acceleration and braking. A 40 - mile - per - hour average can be maintained while seldom exceeding 50 miles per hour, but to maintain a 50-mile per hour average, the motorist must reach 70 miles per hour wherever possible.

This type of speed-up and slow-down driving accounts for many of the needless revolutions to the engine, and eats heavily into the gas supply. Other factors to be considered are the desire to surge away from stop lights, and the load carried, for any excess weight also decreases gasoline mileage.

The GM engineers point out that many people who complain about poor fuel economy are the same ones who are most proud of their car performance, and who find it necessary to have their brakes adjusted most often. Proper maintenance of the vehicle will, of course, also contribute to fuel economy and this would include setting ignition timing, cleaning and adjusting distributor points, spark plugs, carburator idling speed, mixture settings, tire pressure, brakes, and regular lubrication and oil change.

All of these things can contribute to fuel economy, and we might add, such a car in first class condition, and such driving habits should go a long way in promoting highway safety.

Nurses Once Drunkards

Hamilton Spectator

"The nurses are all drunkards, sisters and all, and there was immoral conduct practised in the very wards."

So wrote a London surgeon in 1851. With few exceptions, mostly in the religious orders, it summed up the state of hospital nursing in those times. Private nursing, where it existed at all, was left to old crones whose leading characteristics were usually a taste for gin and a total ignorance of hygiene.

The story of Florence Nightingale has been told often enough, and too often with a sentimentality that would have nauseated its subject who was impatient of sloppy emotions, and, like all true humanitarians, ruthless to the point of cruelty. The month of June, 1960, marked the one-hundredth anniversary of the founding of the Nightingale Training School for Nurses, the beginning of an honored profession, and so it merits observance.

Miss Nightingale decided the school should be "a home . . . a place of moral, religious and practical training . . . a place of training of character, habits and intelligence, as well as acquiring knowledge." She took no part in the training, but kept a sharp eye on the notebooks and characters of probationers.

If, in her saturnian heart, Florence Nightingale had any emotion at all, it was for the army—the soldiers and their health. It was primarily in this cause that she exhausted her energy. Soldiers were, in a curious impersonal way, her "children." Civil nursing was a secondary interest which perhaps explains why she waited four years after the end of the Crimean War before using funds donated by a grateful public.

In these days it is not possible to understand fully the intense veneration veterans felt for Florence Nightingale. It was a near-mystical link between them. She maintained her interest in her school of nursing, but years later, as a little old lady sunk so deep in retirement that many thought she had joined the legendary dead, it was not of her school that she dreamed, but of "her" soldiers. Latter day psychologists may make of this what they will, but it was a wonderful force for good.

Absolute Honesty?

Manchester Guardian

Dr. Frank Buchman is the initiator and leading figure of Moral Re-Armament—a movement which places a great and proper emphasis on absolute honesty. Recently, to mark the opening of world assemblies at Caux and Mackinac Island, Dr. Buchman made a broadcast. This has received wide publicity both through the publication of pamphlets reprinting its text and through paid advertisements in newspapers.

It began in this way:

"There is a hurricane of common sense sweeping through the world. 'A Hurricane of Common Sense'—that was the headline in a newspaper read by the leaders of Washington. It refers to the manifesto 'Ideology and Co-existence,' which in the past six months has gone to 73,000,000 homes."

The identity of the newspaper may be of some interest.

We began by assuming, since it was read by the leading men of Washington, that it must be the Washington Post, the New York Times, or the Herald Tribune.

But no, it was none of these.

Could it then be the Washington Star, the Sun of Baltimore, one of the Philadelphia papers, or the Richmond Times-Dispatch?

No, again: it was none of these.

On inquiry it turned out to be the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Advertiser.

It is a weekly, given away free, and almost all its content is advertising. It contains a column by its publisher, Mr. Paulin, under the pseudonym "Tarpaulin." The headline quoted by Mr. Buchman appeared above this column on March 31.

The Bethesda-Chevy Chase Advertiser may, of course, be read by leading men in Washington: we do not know, having never heard of it before. If, however, one looks at the list of cabinet members, only two of the 11 live in the Bethesda-Chevy Chase area. (The labor secretary, Mr. Mitchell, does not give his address.)

The point may be a small one, coming at the beginning of a broadcast in which Dr. Buchman deals with great matters. In any event, it is one on which individuals will want to form their own conclusions.

Civic Fatuity

Civic government, more than any other level of government in Canada, affects the daily lives of its citizens. The appalling fatuity of so much that goes on in so many municipal governments makes one wonder if man has really improved much since the Stone Age.

Many Actors Not Able to Handle Success

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

If you are struggling for recognition in the theatre, or if you have a son or daughter attracted to the perilous profession of acting, let me recommend a new book, "The Psychology of the Actor," by Yoti Lane.

Miss Lane, a British teacher of drama, has written one of the very few sensible books on the theatre I have ever seen. It is candid, cool-headed, and adult—and may help more careers than any number of tomes on the "technique" of acting.

Her book deals primarily with the forces and factors that turn young people to the theatre as a form of expression. While she is sympathetic to acting, she recognizes the powerful neurotic drives that propel youngsters into dramatic careers.

In a private survey conducted over a period of years, Miss Lane tried to discover what the actor thought of himself and of his public, what sort of child he was, and the kind of family life he enjoyed (or, more frequently, disenjoyed).

• • •

She frankly discusses the sex problems in the theatre, the enormous increase of homosexuality, the changing social and economic conditions of the industry, and the possible future of the acting profession.

Miss Lane is not a writer, nor does she pretend to be. But she does have something much more important than literary finesse—the tool of Freudian psychology, which she uses carefully and skillfully to cut beneath the glamorous facade of the theatre and expose the nerves and bones and blood that make up the acting personality.

"Techniques" of acting can be learned easily enough by anyone with talent. But thousands of people are in the theatre who do not belong there temperamentally. They are attracted to it for wholly neurotic reasons, and are incapable of handling success even if they should accidentally stumble into it. They could be helped immeasurably by reading this book, and by taking it to heart.

The general theatre-going public, too, could learn a lot from "The Psychology of the Actor." Most audiences look for the wrong things on the stage because they have many misconceptions about the actor, and are unable to distinguish between a "personality" and a "talent." Only when we have wiser audiences will we have better performances.

Dozens of books about the stage, in all its aspects are published every year, and few of them have any lasting value. Every college drama school should certainly include Miss Lane's book in its curriculum — it would save the students, and their parents, years of anguish and barrels of money.

Some People Ride Sharks

Corner Brook Western Star

There must be people who ride sharks or hang on to their tails. Otherwise a research panel of the American Institute of Biological Sciences would not tell them to stop it. Riding sharks is dangerous the panel solemnly concludes after a survey of shark attacks.

Shark-riding is in a class with wrestling alligators, taming tigers and making house pets of lions. But there are people who do these things, too, for pay or for fun, so shark riders are only variants of a group notably lacking the instinct of self-preservation.

They aren't going to stop because they have been told it's dangerous. If it weren't dangerous they wouldn't be riding the shark-rider risks nothing but drag racers on busy highways, the shark-rider risks nothing but his own life.

FACTS OF PARKINSONISM NOT ALTOGETHER GLOOMY

Dear Dr. Molner: Please write about Parkinson's Disease. My husband, who is 64, has it. We have already been told there is no cure, but there must be something we can do to help at home, along with the aid that drugs give. —Mrs. B.F.J."

Yes, there are things you can do at home.

But first, let's offer a few words of advice to people who are having an encounter with this disease. I have mentioned Parkinson's Disease, or Parkinsonism before, but not at any length. Since Parkinsonism is probably going to become a more frequent problem in the future, it deserves greater understanding.

This is a disease which involves a small and very specific centre in the brain. The result is that muscular activity becomes difficult. There is a chronic rigidity of the muscles, and when the person with Parkinsonism makes additional effort required to move, there is a tremor or trembling as it is done.

If you don't realize what this is like, hold the muscles in your hand and harm as tense as you can for a minute or two — you'll find this is a long time! Then, still holding the muscles tense, reach for a pencil and write something. You will readily see why, if you had to hold your muscles tense all the time, you would find the tremor or trembling starting to develop.

Parkinson's Disease begins insidiously. The fatigue is often attributed to "age," and the shakiness to "nerves." Gradually the tremor of the hand increases, walking is a bit more difficult, there often is a change in facial expression because of the muscular rigidity.

Too often the patient as well as members of the family deny that the disease exists. This is a mistake. They should face the facts. The facts are not altogether gloomy, and if you admit that a problem exists, you can find out what to do about it.

Here are some of the optimistic things you should know about Parkinsonism. It does not shorten life. It does not ordinarily progress rapidly. It develops slowly, or may remain static for years. It has no relation to intelligence — I've known both prize fighters and college presidents who have had it.

And after the disease appears, it does not affect intelligence, sanity, hearing or vision. It may however, affect speech in that the muscular activity of speaking becomes more difficult.

While it is true that it is fruitless as a rule to look for a "cure," there are a good many things that can be done to make the difficulty less bothersome. One of them is to realize — and this applies to the patient's family and friends as well as to the patient — that the trembling, difficulty of speech (if that happens to be present) or other symptoms do not mean that the afflicted person can't see, hear and think as well as ever. This is a muscular disturbance. Tomorrow let's discuss what you can do about it.

• • •

"Dear Dr. Molner: My husband has kidney stone attacks. Sometimes he passes some stones, sometimes not. Is there anything that can be done to avoid them?—Mrs. J.F."

Yes. An abundance of fluid (water, etc.) to keep the urine diluted is the best preventive for kidney stones. If stones, when passed, have been analyzed, it then becomes possible in many cases for the doctor to suggest diet changes, or medication to alter either the acidity or alkalinity of the urine, to inhibit formation of more stones.

• • •

"Dear Dr. Molner: Will taking baking soda for indigestion cause hardening of the arteries?—E.B.C."

No. But if you are on a low-salt diet for elevated blood pressure or heart disease, you should not take baking soda, as it is too high in sodium content. Other drugs, such as aluminum hydroxide gel, either alone or compounded into liquid or tablet form, will work as well.

Wool to Coat In Six Hours

St. John Telegraph-Journal

From producer to consumer in six hours and 10 minutes — that's the new world record in transferring wool from the back of six Scottish sheep to the back of a man in the form of a jacket.

The operation involved shearing the wool, washing, drying and dyeing, teasing, carding, spinning and winding the yarn, looming, washing, milling, stretching and pressing, cutting and tailoring.

We don't know whether the sheep who provided the raw material were happy or not with the finished product, but everyone else engaged in the operation was including the individual who now sports the resulting jacket. Especially the Scots of Pitlochry who took the honors away from England.

This sort of thing could develop into quite a competition for new and better times. The previous record, however, stood for almost 150 years. It was established in 1811 — 13 hours and 20 minutes.

YOUR MIND GALLERY

Mental pictures act upon the soul in quite the effective manner that actual pictures do upon the mind through the eyes. Beautiful pictures inspire, for they visualize the real of us.

I have often walked through great art galleries and watched the effect the wonderful pictures had upon different people. I have watched those with every evidence of wealth in jewels and raiment, as well as those who seemed to have but little in a material way. And I have noted that the effect is about the same — inspiring in every case.

But the greatest gallery in the world is the one that each of us carries in his own mind! There are the pictures of our victories as well as our defeats. There are shown all phases of our desires — some in magnificent colorings, some in tints of quiet gray. But they all have become a part of us. We would regret to lose a single picture from this mind gallery — this Institute of Experience.

But we should keep adding all the time to this mind gallery — keep improving it. What sort of pictures are you hanging there? Do you love to go to them again and again? Do you thrill as you show them, in your life actions, to your best loved friends? What kind of a collector are you, anyway?

Do you like to walk through your mind gallery?

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A neighbor of mine on the weekend was in a minor highway collision with a car driven by a pair of ducktails who immediately took command of the situation in the best abusive tradition of the TV thriller. My neighbor being up in years was not inclined to engage in fisticuffs with the threatening young ducktails, and they had pretty well dominated the situation when the highway police arrived on the scene.

In the discussion that followed, during which the ducktails naturally enough quieted down somewhat my neighbor said:

They were stunned.

My neighbor reports that the effect of his words was sensational. The two arrogant youths literally wilted.

"You can see from the tire marks," said my neighbor to the constable, "How they attempted to cut around me on the wrong side on the gravel shoulder. They are obviously sub-normal, or they wouldn't drive like that."

The constable, rising to the occasion, agreed that they were sub-normal. He took their names and addresses, gravely requiring them to spell their names and street names, taking note of their ages and all other particulars in the distinct and patient tone one uses in addressing small children.

Cyril Nicholas Establishes Museum Near Outlet Park

Cyril Nicholas, Picton printer, has built a spare-time hobby into a valuable and outstanding collection of antiques. He has established a museum near the Outlet Provincial Park, 10 miles south of Picton, which is attracting widespread attention. Nicholas is shown holding a 16th century English battle axe in the gun and edge weapons section of the museum.

Cyril Nicholas' 14-year-old son Stephen holds General Lee's campaign sword: This weapon was presented by the General's granddaughter, Catherine Lee, to Mrs. Nicholas' aunt, a personal friend in the U.S.A., for inclusion in the museum.

PICTON — The only privately-owned museum in Ontario, established without assistance from organizations or societies is being operated near the entrance to the Outlet Provincial Park, 10 miles southwest of here. Sole owner and collector of the unique display of museum pieces is Cyril Nicholas, Picton newspaper linotype operator, who began gathering antiques as a hobby some 30 years ago. Nicholas now has a collection of more than 1,400 articles, a large percentage of which he gathered in his spare time, at little cost, from attics, storerooms, and barns in Prince Edward County, or purchased at auction sales. Many of the items were presented to him as gifts.

When the Nicholas collection began to crowd the family out of its Mary St. home, a modern bungalow was secured at the intersection of the Outlet Beach-Sandbanks roads, to house the exhibit. Canadian and American museum officials and antique dealers who have seen the collection judge it to be one of the best of its kind on the continent. George Seldon, ex-curator of the Rochester, N.Y. museum, last week visited the Nicholas museum and rated it as "outstanding". "I can't understand how one man could collect such a variety of articles", he remarked.

REFUSES $10,000 OFFER

Mr. Nicholas has no idea as to the total value of his museum. He recently refused a $10,000 offer for his arms collection alone. Items in one showcase, which includes General Lee's campaign sword, are valued at $3,000. There is nothing for sale at the Nicholas museum. He refuses to part with the smallest item.

Next in importance to the arms collection is the display of early Canadiana, including many items brought to Canada by the United Empire Loyalists. Rare volumes of books include the Upper Canada Statutes, First Session of First Provincial Parliament, 1792, and Acts of Congress of United States of America, 1792.

Nicholas' edge weapon collection includes swords, daggers, battle axes and spears dating back to the Norman conquest of England. There is a pair of Saxon swords, handmade from iron, a pair of Claymore swords, a seven-foot 15th century English pole-axe, African spears, Congo throwing knives, Malay kris daggers, Turkish yatagams and a Junjabi brass shield. Oldest pistols are a cased set of flint-lock English duelling pistols dated 1740. Indian relics include an Indian chief's pipe tomahawk of 350 years ago and a Jesuit dagger of the same period.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Traffic and water mishaps claimed the lives of 35 of 41 Canadians reported killed accidentally during the weekend.

ASK BOYCOTT

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Chain Store committee of the Retail Clerks International Association voted Saturday to boycott all Sears Roebuck stores and asked for similar action by all unions in the United States and Canada. It said the boycott was noted because the big mail order chain "is pursuing a national policy of anti-unionism." The vote followed the firing of 262 employees of a Sears store in San Francisco, May 25 "because they respected a picket line of the International Association of Machinists."

With Reluctance Tax Aid Refused Father of Deaf

OTTAWA (CP) — The income tax appeal board with "extreme reluctance" has refused to permit Peter Teresko of Regina to deduct from his 1957 taxable income $1,250 he paid out for speech therapy for his partially deaf daughters.

Both girls were born with a severe hearing impairment. Mr. Teresko sent them to a school for the deaf on the advice of medical authorities.

The revenue department disallowed the claim on grounds that the payment was not made to a medical practitioner, dentist, nurse or hospital. It ruled that the children attended a school and that those in charge were not nurses.

Board member R.S.W. Fordham, said the department's legal interpretation was correct.

"Deserving as the appellant's unhappy plight certainly appears to be, it so happens that it seems impossible to bring the circumstances within" the Income Tax Act.

JAIL MAYOR

Volcano Erupts, Evacuate 268 From Tiny Isle

NOUMEA, New Caledonia (Reuters)—A rescue ship today evacuated all 268 inhabitants of a tiny Pacific island following the violent eruption of a previously-extinct volcano there.

Messages reaching here said almost the entire five-mile-wide island of Le Lopevi in the New Hebrides was "on fire." The island lies 1,500 miles northeast of Sydney, Australia.

A giant cloud of smoke and red-hot cinders was visible 100 miles from the island after the volcano erupted Sunday afternoon. A pilot flying over the area said the northwestern section of the island appeared to have been completely burned out.

Priest Stops Catholics Stoning Orange Parade

DUNGIVEN, Northern Ireland (Reuters) — A Roman Catholic priest Sunday prevented a riot in this County Derry village when stonethrowing Catholics charged a police-escorted procession of Protestants.

Police were preparing to disperse the crowd of about 200 Catholics when Father Hugh Conway forced his way into the crowd to make a fist-shaking impassioned appeal for order.

Hundreds of police stood by to prevent violence as Orangemen prepared to parade in connection with the July 12 celebrations of the anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne in 1690.

Two Policemen Are Found Slain

HIGHLAND PARK, N.J. (AP) A former Hungarian freedom fighter who collects sport cars, jazz records and formal clothes is being sought for questioning today in the slaying of two policemen.

After bail was set at $250, police said Fekecs asked the two patrolmen to accompany him to his apartment so he could pick up money for the bond.

The proposal also expressed sympathy and understanding for what it called peaceful sit-in demonstrations carried on by southern students groups against lunch counter restrictions.

Ervin contended the reference to the sit-in strikes would, in effect, constitute party endorsement of the demonstrations.

Women's Activities

PARKDALE BAPTIST M.F.

The Ladies' Missionary Fellowship of Parkdale Baptist Church met at the home of Mrs. Snyder on July 7th with 16 members and four guests present. A few choruses were sung and Mrs. Blake led in prayer.

The Scripture, Psalm 27, was read by Mrs. Mitchell.

Following the business session, Mrs. Snyder presided and read a poem on "Prayer," which was followed by a season of prayer.

Mrs. Colley opened the devotional period. Miss Frances read Luke 11: 1-4, and gave a message on "The Lord's Prayer."

"Our Father"—one is truly privileged to be able to call the Creator and Maker—Father.

"Hallowed be Thy name" — remember when speaking to God in prayer that He is the Holy God.

"Thy Kingdom come"—when prayer for the salvation of loved ones is made, pray in the right spirit, that it be for His Kingdom, not for one's own benefits.

"Thy will be done"— so often prayer is made for something that satisfies, the will of the petitioner, not God's will—one should accept God's answer to prayer, even before one gets it—God does not need human help to answer prayer.

"Give us our daily bread"—the Lord expects one to ask Him for his daily needs.

"Forgive us our sins"—one ought to have a forgiving spirit. If one finds fault with other Christians he is hindering God's work.

"Lead us not into temptation" —if one didn't have temptations one wouldn't grow as a Christian.

She finished her inspiring message by saying that all can be disciples in winning others to Christ.

Mrs. Blake closed the meeting with prayer.

Mrs. Hoile was presented with some lovely shower gifts.

Refreshments were served and a time of fellowship was enjoyed by all.

Wellington Crescent Holds Pet Show

On Friday afternoon Wellington Crescent had its first special event in the form of a "Pet Show." Dogs, cats, birds, fish and turtles were put in separate circles where judges performed the difficult task of choosing the biggest and smallest animals, the funniest, the prettiest, and so on.

Don McCormick and Don Desaulniers took charge of judging the dogs and chose the biggest and smallest, the dogs with the longest and shortest tails, and the dog that could do the most tricks.

Mike Howe and Bev Hamilton, who were in charge of cats, had quite a time choosing the prettiest cat and the one with the longest whiskers.

In the turtles, birds and fish circle the judges were Rose Marie Burt, Judy McKnight and Pat Howe, who chose the biggest and smallest animals, the brightest colored and then decided the winner of the turtle race, bringing the first week of the playgrounds to a close.

Here Is One Expert's Advice On Lighting Barbecue Fires

VICTORIA (CP) — The biggest mistake people make when cooking food on an outdoor barbecue is their fire, says Carl Breitschmid, who teaches proper methods at a course being offered by the Greater Victoria school board.

"Most of them put on too many charcoal briquets, or not enough. When there's too much it's a waste of fuel, and you spoil your meat—dry it out too much."

Mr. Breitschmid, a native of Switzerland, was formerly chef in Lucerne, the French Riviera, Italy and Montreal. He now runs a delicatessen here.

He gives instruction to pupils at his own backyard barbecue pit. The five-week course costs $10 and the pupils get about $4.50 of that back in meals prepared on the grill.

TASTY FARE

While the pupils watched at one lesson, thick steaks sizzled over the glowing coals and chunks of pineapple and corn were barbecued in foil.

On previous nights they had helped prepare and eat barbecued salmon, chicken, pork chops, potatoes, apples, oranges, bananas and other dishes.

"T-bone steak should be an inch and a half thick or even thicker. Lower it close to the fire for three minutes to sear it. Raise it five or six inches above the fire and let it cook for 10 to 12 minutes.

"As soon as the juice starts to bubble, turn it over and do the same on the other side. Twenty or 25 minutes is right for a two-inch steak."

START FIRE EARLY

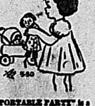
As for the fire, the chef said: "A good chef should always start his fire long in advance. I start mine 40 to 45 minutes ahead. While the fire gets under way he can prepare other things and the guests can swim or play games.

"Then get people to help. Give them something to do. Barbecuing takes time. It's a leisure thing. It's not like rushing into a restaurant, sitting at a counter and gobbling the food down. It's meant for relaxation."

Mr. Breitschmid said there is more than one place a barbecue can be set up.

"Some people are putting barbecues in their boats. Catch the fish, clean it and put it straight on the barbecue."

Mother's Helper



A "PORTABLE PARTY" is a good thing to take along for your toddler when you're joining friends for an informal outdoor visit. Fill a cart or doll carriage with toys, add a box or two of animal crackers. Park it near enough so you can watch what goes on, but far enough away for mutual privacy.

Mr., Mrs. Robt. Little Mark 50th Wedding Anniversary

Last Wednesday afternoon and evening a charming "at home" was held at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Little, Shannonville, R. R. No. 2, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Little's 50th anniversary, with 130 relatives and friends present.

Receiving at the door were the grandchildren, Mr. Donald Little and the Misses Cheryl and Gail Juby, while the hostess, Mrs. Kenneth Vivian and Mrs. Kenneth Juby invited to the tea room.

The tea table was most attractively appointed with an Irish linen and lace cloth centred by a white and gold three-tier anniversary cake topped by a golden "50" surrounded by flowers and adorned with golden leaves. The base was misted with clouds of gold and white tulle. Tall, white rainbow-drip candles in crystal and gold candelabra, completed the setting. The rooms were prettily decorated with gold and white wedding bells and floral arrangements of roses, delphiniums and baby's breath.

Pouring tea during the afternoon and evening were: Mrs. Alexander Goodfellow, (the bridesmaid of 50 years ago), Mrs. Stanley MacDonald; Mrs. S. J. Fitzgerald and Mrs. Percy Moore. Those who served included Mrs. Delmer Breadman, Mrs. Bruce Nickle, Miss Linda Gawne, and Miss Linda Johnson.

Mrs. Malcolm Little, the hostess, had charge of the tea making, while Mrs. James King; Mrs. Cecil Reid, and Mrs. Gordon Johnson arranged the plates.

The Misses Gail and Cheryl Juby were in charge of the guest book during the afternoon and evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Little were married at Shannonville Methodist Church with the Reverend W. S. Wickett officiating. After the reception at the bride's home, they left on the evening train for Toronto and points west, later returning to Milltown, where they have resided until 12 years ago when they moved to Shannonville.

They have three children, one daughter, Mrs. Kenneth (Ruby) Juby, and two sons, Mr. Malcolm Little and Mr. Garnet Little, all of Shannonville.

Mr. Little, who is now retired after operating a grist mill for many years, employs his spare time at carpentering.

Down through the years, Mr. and Mrs. Little have always taken a keen interest in community affairs, the United Church; and the Agricultural Society.

They were the recipients of many lovely gifts, floral tributes, cheques and folding money as well as good wishes from friends both near and far. Telegrams were received from their cousins Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Little, of San Antonio, Texas, and the Hon. Leslie B. Frost, Premier of Ontario extending congratulations and best wishes.

Mr. Clark Rollins, M.P.P. also extended his congratulations and presented the honored couple with a wall plaque from R. Jennings, deputy provincial secretary, bearing the legend: "Heartiest congratulations and best wishes for many more happy years together".

Lady Cooked, Scrubbed to Help Husband

VANCOUVER (CP)—In a comfortable old eight - room house Lois Smith looked after her children, cooked, scrubbed and made beds for as many as seven student boarders to earn money to keep her husband at his law books.

"It's been fun and I'd do it again," she said after 30-year-old Joseph C. Smith graduated in law at the University of British Columbia, standing third in a class of 65.

The couple had one child when he enrolled in 1957. Last October two more—twin girls—were born, one in a taxi and the other later in hospital.

Joe won scholarships and bursaries each year to cover his fees. Last summer he was a railway sleeping-car conductor. The summer before that he took contracts for lawn-mowing and drain-tile installation.

Mrs. Smith, a graduate nurse, could have made more money in shorter hours nursing than in keeping a boarding house but decided she would rather be with her children at home.

Before studying law, Joe taught three years in Vancouver schools. Previous to that he interrupted his college career for a one-year mission in England for the Church of Latter Day Saints. His wife served a similar mission in Minnesota.

Throughout three years at law school he taught Sunday school.

Referring to his scholastic success, he says "she made it possible." But it's not over yet. The family now goes to New Haven, Conn., where Joe will study for his Master's degree in international law on a fellowship at Yale University.

Christ Church Holds Centennial Celebration at Thomasburg

ROSLIN — A number from here attended the centennial celebration of Christ Church, (Anglican), at Thomasburg, last weekend which marked an epoch in its history and long will be remembered by the congregation with pride and sentimentality. Since the donaton of the first building to be used as a church by Thomas Nichol in 1860 to last Sunday, parishioners have passed to higher service leaving behind tangible memories of their presence within the church walls.

MEMORIALS

Memorials to faithful members are numerous, recalling families who have played an important part in the progress of the parish, including Mr. and Mrs. John Suttle; Miss Coyle; Samuel Graham; Mrs. Charles Geen; Murney Geen; Charles and Richard Porter; Chester Blakely; Mrs. Edward Carter; Donald Morton; Mr. and Mrs. William L. Sherry; Miss Carroll and Mrs. Jennie Wilson.

Among the rectors during the past century were the Rev. John De Pincier Wright; the Rev. John Lyons (later Bishop of Ontario), and the Rev. F. C. Beazer who guided the parish for 17 years.

To commemorate the centennial of Christ Church, a condensed history has been published including a list of rectors and interesting pictures which are available at nominal cost, from the present rector, Captain George Willoughby, Mr. Cecil Geen and other church officials.

It is noted that the first Thomasburg school was on the site of the present church; and was also used for services. When the Rev. William Fleming was appointed first rector of Roslin Parish in 1859, plans were made for building. At that time the parish included Roslin, Thomasburg and Tweed.

Last Sunday's centennial services were exceptionally well attended with Canon F. Arthur Smith, of Christ Church, Deer Park, Toronto, as guest speaker in the morning and the Rev. Dalton L. Woodward, of Powassan, rector 1956-59 at the evening service.

Also in attendance were the Rev. F. C. Beazer now retired and residing in Peterborough; the Rev. R. F. Gardham, Rector 1951-59 now of Theresa N.Y., Captain Willoughby was in charge.

On Saurday evening a lawn social, also a part of the Centenary celebration was held on the Thomasburg school grounds, which attracted many visitors. Mr. Cecil Geen, as chairman for the program, called on Lee Grills M. P. Clark T. Rollins, M.P.P., and reeve of Hungerford and Harold Varty for brief remarks.

Included in the entertainment were: Miss Margaret Bates, on the organette; Mrs. Harry Brown and Mrs. Gerald Clancy, Stirling, piano and novelty numbers. Iris Lohnes and Jackie Cooke, Belleville, (tap dancing); Mr. G. Dyson (Thomasburg United Church, pastor) a reading and a solo accompanied by Mrs. A. Bates; four-year-old Janice Clancy, Stirling, a solo; Randy and Timmy Gray, Roslin, vocal solos; the Rawdon Junior farmers square dance group.

The quilt made by the Ladies Guild was auctioned and went to Miss Ruth Morgan.

MONTGOMERY — KING

At St. John's United Church, Tweed on Saturday, June 25th, the Rev. D. Louie united in marriage, Miss Moyra King, daughter of Mrs. Ethel May King, Toronto, and the late Mr. Jack King, England, to Donald William Montgomery, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Montgomery of Tweed.

Organ music was by Mr. Fred Porter and Mrs. W. R. Hamilton sang, "Answer," during the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. Johnny Atkinson, of Toronto; the bride was lovely in a waltz-length gown of white embroidered Chantilly lace over taffeta with scalloped neckline and short cap sleeves. Her gown was fashioned with tight fitting bodice, and the bouffant skirt, worn over many crinolines, was accented by tiny bows near the hemline. Her finger-tip veil was caught to a crown effect headdress of rhinestones and tiny seed pearls; her elbow-length gloves were of matching lace and she carried orchid-tinted carnations.

Mrs. Joyce Atkinson, of Toronto, was her sister's matron of honor and Miss Betty Montgomery, Peterborough, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid. They were gowned identically in sheath dresses of white lace over taffeta with matching short jackets, fashioned with wide cummerbunds of orchid silk organza. They wore white picture hats caught at the back with orchid bows, white gloves and shoes and carried cascades of orchid and white tinted 'mums.

Little Miss Mary Lou Juby, of Peterborough, was a pretty flower girl in white embroidered eyelet with matching short jacket and wide cummerbund of orchid organza, caught to a large bow in the back. Her headdress was or orchid pleated organza and she carried a basket of orchid and white tinted baby 'mums.

Mr. Robert Montgomery, Waterloo, was his brother's groomsman, and Mr. Joe Bergeron, Toronto, was usher.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in St. John's Church hall with the bride's mother receiving the guests in a flowered beige gown of pure silk, with matching beige hat and corsage of soft pink carnations. The bridegroom's mother assisted in an aqua blue silk brocaded gown with matching jacket, white accessories and corsage of soft pink carnations.

For the wedding trip to the Eastern United States, the bride donned a two-piece suit of beige brocaded silk, mauve accessories and white gardenia corsage.

On their return the young couple will take up residence at 135 Keewatin Avenue, Toronto.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Mrs. L. F. — She isn't smart to turn down a rich young man.

Susan F. — But I'm not comfortable with him.

• • •

Mrs. L. F. — My 20-year-old daughter, Susan, is a sweet and beautiful girl, but I'm afraid she doesn't have very much sense.

She is extremely popular and during the past year has won the love of a most desirable young man. Peter is the son of a professional man, and he is now finishing graduate work and will enter his father's profession. He is good looking and a real gentleman.

Peter can give Susan so much comfort, but she says she isn't interested. She is fond of a very poor boy. Leonard is a nice fellow, I agree, but life will be a struggle with him. He has no special trade and no business head.

• • •

Susan F. — I can't be like my parents, just thinking about money and comforts. Love is much more important. My mother says you can love a rich man just as easily, maybe more so, as a poor one, but it doesn't work that way for me.

Peter is very nice, I'll agree, but I don't feel as happy when I am with him as with Leonard. I didn't go to college and he often talks over my head. Nearly all of his friends went to college, too, and it's a little embarrassing when they discuss things I know nothing about.

My mother has all sorts of dreams of glory for me, but I'm a down-to-earth girl, and I want to be happy with the one I love.

• • •

The Council: When a girl turns down a rich man to marry a poor one, it is assumed by cynics that she's a fool and by romantics that love has triumphed. Yet neither is necessarily true.

The fact is that being wealthy or moving in "high society" is frightening to many young women. They feel they may not be able to keep up socially with other women in their new set and this makes them insecure in their married life. If there is a difference in educational background, this fear is naturally intensified.

When she gets older and gains more confidence, a woman usually recognizes that it takes little more than common sense and a kindly nature to move comfortably in any social group. She can always make up her educational deficiencies if she is willing to put forth a little effort to learn.

The prize example of a young woman with the self-confidence to enter a social circle far removed from the one into which she was born is the Norwegian fisherman's daughter, Anne-Marie Rasmussen, who married into the Rockefeller family. Undoubtedly, young Rockefeller sensed that this girl of humble background and modest educational attainments could be happy with his family and friends because she was not handicapped by fear. Without this handicap she will be able to learn whatever she finds desirable.

As for Susan, we don't think she ought to be too hasty in her decision. If she dislikes Peter for reasons of personality or character, of couse she is right to turn him down. But if she is rejecting him out of fear, she may be making a mistake.

In any case, Mrs. L. F. should not apply pressure. It is essential that Susan make this decision out of her own mind and feelings. If she doesn't, the marriage doesn't have a good chance of success — no matter how much money is involved.

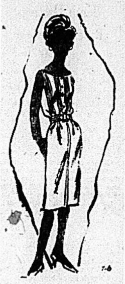
Summer Success



By VERA WINSTON

The sleeveless sheath is one of this summer's sartorial successes. We've seen it everywhere, fashioned in a variety of fabrics and in many colors.

This one comes in pale blue or black as well as white. It is of cotton broadcloth with pin-tucked bands on the button - front bodice.

The skirt has a fold down the front and a kick-pleat in back. There is a wide - stitched belt of the fabric.

MODERN MANNERS

Carolyn Hagner Shaw

THE IMPORTANCE OF A PLEASANT VOICE

It is generally accepted throughout the world that the American woman excels in cultivating charm. Charm is that elusive difference between being plain "Mrs. Doe" and being the delightful person that everyone enjoys being with. However, I think that too often a woman will give a great deal of thought to her clothes, her makeup, and her manners and at the same time neglect one of the most important items necessary to create that illusive "charm." What? Her voice.

If all women had the opportunity of hearing a recording of their own voices, in natural conversation, I am afraid they would find it a surprising and disillusioning experience. Faults that can become habits are easily cultivated. Unfortunately, unless some kind soul tells us about them, they become a part of us. Hearing ourselves as others hear us is an excellent way to correct these faults.

Since most of us don't have the opportunity of hearing our own voices recorded, try listening to yourself by putting a newspaper in front of your mouth as a sounding board. Then cup the ears and repeat the alphabet slowly. This may seem a slightly unfair test, because one is inclined to recite the alphabet in a monotone. Even so, a really flexible voice will run up and down the scale in spite of the monotony of the subject matter.

If you find yourself talking in a high-pitched monotone, if your voice is over-shrill, if it is whiny, or if people constantly ask you to repeat what you've said, because you mumble, it's time to do something about it. A marked improvement can be gained by spending a few minutes a day doing simple exercises.

Practising breath control can be done at any hour of the day and will help you to improve your speaking voice. Practise taking deep breaths, letting them out slowly on the lowest note you can muster. This brings the tone register down the scale to where the pleasant low tones are made.

To make sounds mellow and round, you have to use the lips fully. Tight lips bring out flat expressionless tones. Counting or reciting poetry before a mirror, where you can exaggerate lip movements, is also a beneficial exercise.

Have you ever had the feeling that you don't make a lasting impression on the people you meet? Perhaps by allowing your voice to become rasping and unpleasant, you unknowingly annoy those with whom you come in contact. So take stock of your speaking voice and remember the trite, but true, saying that "It's not always what you say, but how you sound when you say it, that counts."

"I WANT A BIG RECEPTION"

A young girl, who is to be married in August to a man of moderate income, has written me a rather interesting letter relative to the kind of wedding reception she should have.

"I want a big reception, in a leading hotel or club. I want champagne and all the fixings. A gala occasion that I can remember for the rest of my days. I want it perfect in every respect, elaborately so. But, because of the fact that my family is in moderate circumstances, I am being accused of wanting to be a 'show-off.' The family says I am thoughtless of my father, who would definitely be strapped financially to accede to my wishes. My husband-to-be, knowing I have my heart set on a big reception, has offered to dip into his savings towards our future home, to help make my dream come true. Am I being unreasonable in wanting so desperately to have a big wedding, when it is out of line with our circumstances? After all, I only expect to be married once!" So writes the young girl of whom I speak.

My only answer is that this young lady is showing an extreme lack of good judgment. There are several ways of looking at it. First, there isn't a girl alive who doesn't want a wedding day that she can remember all of her life. But, just because she is being married, it doesn't necessarily mean that she has the right to be utterly selfish and to completely disregard her family's financial position. Should the occasion be an elaborate one, looking back on it isn't going to bring joy if in your heart you know that the family is paying dearly for the sacrifice they made to please you. The idea of husband-to-be drawing from his savings is unthinkable. Entertaining the thought at all shows an utter lack of good taste, and common sense, on the part of the young lady. (If I were the young man, in this instance, I would stop and wonder just what kind of girl I was marrying!)

Of the many wedding receptions I have attended in my time, the ones that stand out are the small, intimate gatherings, where nothing too fancy or elaborate was served, but where everyone caught the spirit of the occasion, remembering it with a warm feeling. I think many will bear me out in this belief. An elaborate, over crowded, overdone affair may cost three times what the smaller one does, but it can also leave one cold.

There are many different and charming ways to hold a simple and beautiful wedding, if your means are small. From time to time I will pass on a few ideas which not only will fit perfectly into the requirements of modest incomes, but also will definitely give the bride something to remember, and it will be a pleasant memory, too!

Old Fashioned Chicken Shortcake For Press Club Picnic

By Mary Moore

Our branch of the Press Club had its summer picnic at Stoney Creek Battlefield Monument Park. Because some of the items of food will serve from 16 to 20 people I thought you would welcome the best ones.

Marion George made old-fashioned chicken shortcake that stole the show. The pieces of chicken were big and plentiful and the biscuits were perfect. If you are going to have only 8 or 10 guests you can cut the recipe in half.

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

MONDAY

Hot or Jellied Consomme; Cold Meat Platter: Sliced Liverwurst, Sliced Ham, Sliced Headcheese; Mustard Pickles; Potato Salad; Cucumbers in Sour Cream; Rye Bread; Coffee Walnut Parfait; Iced Tea.

OLD-FASHIONED CHICKEN SHORTCAKE:

Two 4 to 5-lb boiling fowl (or 3 three-lb. chickens), 1 1-2 cups flour, 8 cups fat-free chicken stock, 2 cups rich milk or thin cream, 1 cup butter or chicken fat, salt to taste and white pepper; freshly made biscuits (see below). Cover cut up chicken with cold salt water. Add one-quarter of a medium-sized onion sliced, 1 stalk of celery with leaves chopped, and 1 bay leaf. Cook until tender. (Marion used her pressure cooker at 10 lbs. pressure for 1-2 hour for 3-lb chickens.) Take chicken from pot, cool and remove meat from bones in as large pieces as possible. Strain and cool the broth and skim fat from top. It may be used for the sauce. Make the sauce by melting the butter or chicken fat and adding 1 tablespoon each finely chopped onion and celery. Add the flour and blend in. Stir in the chicken broth and milk or cream until thick. Add salt and pepper to taste and one chopped green pepper, one chopped sweet red pepper (or canned pimiento) and the chicken. Heat through in heavy pot or double boiler. Serve on split and buttered tea biscuits (see below).

TEA BISCUITS:

Four cups sifted pastry flour (do not use cake flour), 4 teaspoons cream of tartar, 2 teaspoons baking soda, 1 teaspoon salt, 2-3 cup shortening or margarine, 1 to 1 1-3 cups milk. Sift the flour, measure it, and sift again with the cream of tartar, soda and salt. Cut in the shortening until the size of small peas. Slowly add 1 cup milk, mixing it in gently with a fork. Add only enough additional milk to make the dough hold together. Pat it out on flour board to one inch thickness. Cut out with floured cutter into 16 or 20 large biscuits. Bake on ungreased cookie sheets for 10 to 12 minutes in blazing hot oven of 475 deg. F. Split, butter if desired and serve hot chicken (above) over.

On Thursday I will give you the recipe for a big 3-layer chocolate cake with clear lemon filling, which I took to the picnic, and which the girls were kind enough to rave over.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The moon may or may not have shone over Bali-Bali, Soho, Manipoora, Times Square, Antarctica or Shannonville last night—but who cares, the stars are out and probably shining in Kansas City this afternoon.

They are wearing the uniforms of the National and American All-Star teams in the 28th annual duel which like last year will be a two-phase operation. The teams go at it again in Yankee Stadium on Wednesday.

The American League has a five-game edge on their National League rivals in the 27-season all-stars battling. It has copped 16 wins.

The records show that in practically every game an all-star or stars have become super-stars temporarily. Individual brilliance has far outshone team play, as is often the case in all-star clashes no matter what phase of sport.

Fans turn out in droves to see these aggregations of the game's most brilliant players in team and individual action. They do not merely come to see the players they read and hear about, but to get the chance perhaps of seeing one or some of them produce a performance that has brought them stardom. They are seldom disappointed.

Strangely enough, the hitting has outshone the pitching in the majority of the games. Homers have played a terrific part. After all, why shouldn't they. When you cluster a half dozen top homer-getters on one club, something is bound to happen.

The greatest mound performance in all-star history is that of King Carl Hubbell, despite the fact the National Leaguers lost the game, 9-7. It was the 1934 classic when the Giants' mound star struck out Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Jimmie Foxx, Al Simmons and Joe Cronin in a row.

Babe Ruth won the first all-star game in Chicago in 1939 with a two-run homer off Wild Bill Hallahan. The A.L. won it 4-2. In 1935 69,812 fans, the record Star game attendance, again saw the American League win it 4-1 when Jimmy Foxx blasted a titanic homer off Bill Walker.

Strangely enough it was an All-Star game that cut the blazing career of one Dizzy Dean short. It happened in Griffiths' Stadium, Washington, in 1937 when Earl Averill's third inning liner broke the Great One's toe and the A.L. went on to win 8-3.

Five National League hurlers blanked the junior loop stars 4-0 in 1940 when Paul Derringer, Bucky Walters, Whit Wyatt, Larry French and Carl Hubbell silenced the American League bludgeons.

The 1941 classic was a Ted Williams glory-producer. Arty Vaughan had smashed out two four-baggers for the National bats with two mates aboard. The Great Silver had his biggest thrill when he drove a Claude Passeau pitch into the seats in Detroit for a 7-5 victory.

The junior league bats provided the victory power in the 1942 and 1943 epics. Lou Boudreau and Rudy York homers won the '42 game 3-1 and Bobby Doerr belted a three-run four-bagger the next year off Mort Cooper to grab the 5-3 victory.

Again Ted Williams stole the thunder in 1945 when the Bosox slugger hit homers off Passeau and Rip Sewell for the American League's 12-0 victory.

The Nationals came back in 1950 when Red Schoendienst drove the ball out of the park in the 14th inning at Comiskey Park. The next year the Nats won a home-run slugfest when Stan Musial, Bob Elliott, Gil Hodges and Ralph Kiner cracked four-baggers while George Kell and Vic Wertz parked 'em for the Americans.

In the wild 1954 game at Cleveland the American Leaguers blasted out four of the six homes clouted. Al Rosen with two, Ray Boone and Larry Doby homered for the A.L., while Ted Kluszewski and Gus Bell belted 'em for the losing Nationals.

Milwaukee was the scene of Stan Musial's 1955 triumph when the pride of St. Louis hit a solo homer off Frank Sullivan to give the Nationals at 12th-inning 6-5 victory.

Today? Who knows. It could be a Maris or a Mantle, or an Aaron, a Matthews or a Mays.

Who Will Run Kings?

Cubans' Shift Poses Problem

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Directors of the International Baseball League will meet in New York Wednesday to officially decide whether to transfer the Havana franchise to Jersey City.

Jack White, general manager of the Richmond club said:

"If most of the rest of the league thinks putting the franchise at Jersey City is best, then I'm for it. What worries me especially is this—if we put the team at Jersey City, who's going to run it? Bobby Maduro or the rest of the league?"

Maduro, owner of the Havana franchise, has vigorously protested Shaughnessy's decision to remove the team from the Cuban capital. It was uncertain whether Maduro would attend the New York meeting.

WON'T LEAVE

But Havana manager Tony Costano said he will not accompany the team if the Cuban franchise is transferred.

He made the comment after Paul Miller, general manager of the Havana club, and Gabe Paul, general manager of Cincinnati Reds, had met with the squad's Cuban members, some of whom have said they will not stay with the team.

Shaughnessy and Paul will meet Tuesday in Jersey City to discuss the possible franchise shift.

WEST CHESTER, Pa. (AP)—Bill Alley, a member of the U.S. Olympic team, set a world record Saturday by throwing the javelin 283 feet eight inches. Alley broke the record of 282 feet set last year by Al Cantello, of Norristown at a meet sponsored by the West Chester Athletic Club.

Surging White Sox Three Games Shy

Bosox Sweep Yankees Series

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

The last time New York Yankees saw Chicago White Sox they left them for dead, sweeping a four-game series and tumbling the American League champions to fifth place, five games behind.

Not only did the Yanks figure the Sox were through, but they said so. And those Yankee quotes—tacked up in the Comiskey Park clubhouse—have done more for the White Sox than another starting pitcher.

By winning 14 of 20 since that Yankee sweep, the Sox have scrambled back to third place. They now are just three games shy of the top after splitting a doubleheader with Cleveland. The Indians clung to second by half a game, ending a four-game slump with a 6-2 victory in the opener before the White Sox came from behind to win the cap 6-4.

The Yankees, who have lost five of their last seven, were whipped 9-5 at Boston for a three-game sweep by the last-place Red Sox.

BIG DETROIT COMEBACK

Washington Senators beat Baltimore Orioles 2-1 and Detroit Tigers, after trailing 7-0, cracked Kansas City Athletics 12-10 as Rockey Colavito hit two homers and drove in six runs.

Saturday, Boston edged New York 6-5, Chicago beat Cleveland 8-4, Detroit whipped Kansas City 6-1 and Washington topped Baltimore 7-2.

The White Sox made it five out of six against the Tribe with five runs in the sixth inning Sunday. A solo homer by Jim Landis got it started and a three-run homer by Roy Sievers, who has hit in 16 consecutive games, put it away. Mudcat Grant (6-3) lost in relief and Russ Kemmerer (5-4) won, also in relief.

Vic Power won the opener for the Indians, tying it 2-2 with a triple in the sixth and breaking it up with a double in the eighth. Reliever Johnny Klippstein (3-3) won, Early Wynn (4-7) lost.

YANKS RATTLED

The Red Sox, matching their longest winning streak of the season with four, roughed up 11 Yankee pitchers for 31 hits and 23 runs in the three-game series. Willie Tasby and Vic Wertz drove in 15 runs between them in the set. Tasby homered in the first inning Sunday off loser Ralph Terry (4-4), went 5-for-5 and drove in four runs. Wertz put it away with a grand-slam homer in the second inning off Whitey Ford, making his first relief appearance of the year.

It was the eighth bases-loaded homer of Wertz's career, a total second only to the 17 slugged by teammate Ted Williams among active American Leaguers. Williams was hitless Sunday but became the seventh player ever to drive in 1,800 runs. He did it while hitting into a forceout.

The Senators got their runs on homers by Jim Lemon and Dan Dobbek, with Lemon's 21st breaking a 1-1 tie in the ninth. It was the fifth straight loss for the Orioles. Reliever Tex Clevenger (2-5) won and Jerry Walker (2-2) lost.

Colavito's second home run, No. 17 for the year, was the clincher for the Tigers, coming with two on in the seventh inning. Eddie Yost also homered for Detroit. Dick Hall (5-6) lost his fifth in a row and second within 24 hours and reliever Don Mossi (7-6) won.

Juniors Bow To Cannifton By 9-4 Score

By PETER CARVER

Capitalizing on weak Belleville pitching in the first inning the Cannifton Clippers scored four runs which paved the way to their 9-4 victory over the Belleville Juniors here Saturday night.

The winners plated two more in the second and added singles in third, fifth and seventh. The Juniors scored a pair of runs in the second and third stanzas.

Pat O'Connor went all the way for Cannifton setting the Juniors down on three hits, whiffing four and walking three.

Bill Latchford started for the losers but lost his control in the first inning and he gave way to Larry Soden. They allowed seven hits, walked twelve men and struck out seven. Asseltine came on in the seventh and retired the last two batters.

Locke on first by an error, scored on Ethier's long double. Forsythe singled another run home. Latchford loaded the bases and then walked one run across as did Soden, to open up a 4-0 Cannifton lead. Three walks, a single, an error and a passed ball gave Cannifton two more runs in top of the second. A stolen base, a walk, an error, and Morris' base hit gave Belleville back two runs.

Two singles and a walk scored one more for Cannifton in the third. The Juniors came back in their half of the third, a single, a walk, two errors and a passed ball accounted for two runs. Three walks and a fielder's choice plated the Clippers' final run in the seventh.

Don Forsythe led Cannifton with three singles while Gerald Ethier had a double and a single.

Asseltine, Follwell and Morris each had a single for the Juniors.

May Protest Olympic Choice

TORONTO (CP)—Two of the selections made Saturday for Canada's three-person gymnastic delegation to the Olympics will probably be protested by the Central Ontario Gymnastic Association, a COGA official said Sunday.

The selections followed the Canadian championships and Olympic trials held here Friday and Saturday.

Chosen by the technical committee of the Canadian Gymnastic Association were Mrs. Ernestine Russell Carter, Canadian women's champion for several years, Louis Parker, 17, a Vancouver schoolgirl, and Richard Montpetit of the Immaculate Conception team, Montreal.

The COGA official said the association feels Miss Parker should not have been chosen because of the wide spread between her final point standing and Mrs. Carter's.

Pirates Pad Lead to Five

Climbing Dodgers Reach 3rd Spot

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

The Pittsburgh Pirates have the largest lead in the National League at the All-Star break in five years, but who's the hottest club in the race? There's just one answer—the world champion Los Angeles Dodgers.

While the Bucs have padded their lead to five games over second place Milwaukee Braves, by picking up 1½ games over the past two weeks, they've played no better than .500 ball in that span. But the Dodgers, who were in sixth place, 12 games behind two weeks ago, have won 12 of 16 since for a four-game gain.

With Frank Howard walloping home five runs and Norm Sherry's homer breaking a 7-7 tie, the Dodgers knocked off St. Louis 11-7 Sunday and regained third place from the Cards. It was the sixth victory in seven games for the Dodgers who lost 4-3 to St. Louis Saturday.

LAST-INNING WIN

The Pirates, holding the biggest bulge at All Star time since the 1955 Dodgers set a record with an 11½-game spread, defeated Philadelphia 6-2 with four runs in the ninth—their 12th last-inning victory. Milwaukee cracked Cincinnati Reds 7-1, and San Francisco Giants, after losing five in a row, scored five unearned runs in the seventh inning for a 5-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

All Saturday's games were won by one run. Philadelphia edged Pittsburgh 2-1, Chicago won 7-6 over San Francisco and Cincinnati defeated Milwaukee 6-5.

Howard, who has 12 hits in his last 23 at bats, was 3-for-5 in their 16-hit barrage, upping his average to .301. He drove in two runs with his 13th homer in the first inning, doubled home two more in the sixth and then singled ahead of rookie Tommy Davis' first major league home run in the eighth. Sherry's shot, his eighth, came in the seventh inning and beat reliever Bob Duliba (4-4).

MUSIAL STARS

Stan Musial, who makes his 18th all-star appearance today in Kansas City, drove in the Cards' first four runs, three with his sixth homer in the first inning off Stan Williams. Musial had two of the Birds' six hits before Ed Roebuck (8-1) came on and won his seventh in a row with three innings of no-hit relief. The Dodger righthander has allowed just one run in his last 28 frames.

A throwing error by Robin Roberts (5-8) who had won four in a row, gave the Pirates the tie-breaking run in the ninth. Pinch-hitter Rocky Nelson and Bill Virdon added RBI singles in the rally, with another run scoring on catcher Cal Neeman's error. Harvey Haddix (6-4) backed by Bob Skinner's running catch with the bases loaded in the sixth, was the winner. Ted Lepcio homered for the Phils.

Wes Covington socked across four runs for the Braves. He brought in the winner with a sixth-inning double off Bob Purkey (8-5) and then hit a three-run homer as Milwaukee scored four unearned runs in the seventh. Lew Burdette (9-4) was the winner.

The Giants scored the clincher on a single by Sam Jones and Joe Amalfitano's triple after a three-run homer by pinch-hitter Dave Philley. Loser Don Cardwell (4-7) had allowed just one hit until the seventh. Jones (11-8) won it with three innings of two-hit, shutout relief.

South Hastings Baseball League

Soring half a dozen runs in the top of the sixth inning, Latta snapped a 3-3 deadlock and captured a 9-3 decision over Foxboro in SHBL play Saturday night.

The winners picked up ten hits on their way to victory while each club committed three errors, Latta's trio proving costly as the losers scored twice in the fifth and once in the fourth.

Gary Gow started and Garfield Hall took over in the sixth on the Latta hilltop. They gave up just three hits while Gow fanned six and walked four, Hall whiffed two and walked none.

L. Cronkwright poked out a double and two singles while sparking the Latta attack. Frank Ray had two singles, D. Rollins a triple, H. Meeks a double, R. Parks, W. Gow and G. Gow a single each.

Latta	001 026—9	10	3
Foxboro	000 120—3	3	3

Latta picked up another victory yesterday afternoon by defeating Cannifton 6-3 in the completion of a protested game of July 4th. The game picked up at the first of the fifth yesterday, Latta holding a 3-2 lead at the time, with the winners outscoring Cannifton 3-1 during the final five frames.

The protest arose from the July 4th game when umpire Al Kelleher threw out Cannifton manager Gord Oliver. The league upheld the protest that followed, forcing the completion of the game yesterday.

Art Wall Wins Open By 6 Strokes

By MILT MacPHAIL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Art Wall Jr. has left no doubt he is fully recovered from a kidney ailment and knee operation that knocked him off the professional golf trail for nine weeks this year.

The 36 - year - old ace from Pocono Manor, Pa., licked the suburban St. George's Club course for the fourth consecutive day Saturday to score a six-stroke victory in the Canadian open golf championship.

Wall, one of the game's most dedicated players, posted a 269, 19-under par for the 72 - hole tournament, to collect first-prize money of $3,500 and the Seagram Gold Cup.

He closed with a three-under-par 69 in the final round, punctuated by a violent 45-minute thunderstorm that forced play to be stopped for nearly two hours.

THOUSANDS DRENCHED

The storm, accompanied by hail and lightning, hit while thousands of spectators and 54 of the field of 67 pros and amateurs were on the course. Water was a foot deep in places.

Wall, with earlier rounds of 66-67-67, finished well ahead of Bob Goalby and Jay Hebert, each with 275 $2,050 apiece for second spot. Bob Shave, rookie pro from Cleveland, was fourth at 277.

Defending champion Doug Ford had a 281 as did Sam Snead, 48-year-old veteran who won the open in 1938, 1940 and 1941. Don January posted the best score Saturday, a six-under-par 66.

Toronto's Al Balding, who shot a competitive course record of 64 in the opening round, tied with Alan Johnston of Montreal for low Canadian honors. Each had 284.

Balding, after his great opening round, followed with a 70, a heart - breaking 77, and closed with a 73. Johnston finished with a 74 after shooting 66-76-69.

They won $231 apiece and will meet in a 18-hole playoff in the first round of the Canadian Professional Golfers Association championship at Winnipeg Aug. 4 to decide the Rivermead Cup, awarded to the low Canadian in the open. Another $300 goes to the winner and $200 to the loser.

Goalby cut the margin to one stroke, shooting a three-under 32 on the front nine while Wall was 34. But Wall regained his three-

National Favored in All-Star Classic

By JOE REICHLER

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The National League, winner of only one of the last four mid-summer clashes, ruled a 13-10 favorite to defeat the Americans today in the first of two All-Star clashes this week.

A capacity crowd of 30,611 was assured for the first All - Star game ever played here. A larger crowd, between 45,000 and 50,000 was expected to attend the second game, to be played in New York's Yankee Stadium Wednesday.

Former president Harry Truman had purchased four tickets and was expected to attend, passing up the opening of the Democratic convention in Los Angeles.

The American League chances suffered a serious setback when it became known Sunday night that Mickey Mantle, the star centrefielder of the New York Yankees, might not be able to play. Mantle re-injured a knee in last Saturday's game in Boston and was restricted to a pinch hitting role Sunday.

DECISION AT GAME TIME

"I don't know whether I can make it," Mantle was reported as saying, "and I won't know until just before the game."

If Mantle can't play, his place in centre field may be taken by Al Kaline of the Detroit Tigers. Kaline was named to the squad and Kaline.

With both squads featuring right-handed strength, managers Walter Alston and Al Lopez chose to open with right-handed pitchers. All indications were that the opening pitchers would be Bob Friend of Pittsburgh against Bill Monbouquette of Boston.

Friend, 29, has appeared in two all-star games, receiving credit for the National's 1956 victory and getting charged with the defeat in 1958. He has allowed seven hits, yielded two runs in 5 1-3 innings. His season's record with Pittsburgh this year is 10-5.

Monbouquette, 23, is only in his second season in the majors. A year ago at this time, he was on the verge of being returned to the minors by the Red Sox but since then has developed into the ace of the staff. His record for the second division Boston club is 8-7.

NATIONALS HAVE POWER

The Nationals appeared to have the edge in power, especially if Mantle is unable to do any more than pinch hit. The senior circuit has a power-packed lineup featuring such home run sluggers as Ernie Banks (26), Henry Aaron (24), Eddie Mathews (19), Ken Boyer (20) Willie Mays (18) as well as Joe Adcock, Bob Skinner, Del Crandall and Bill Mazeroski in the starting lineup.

The reserves include Vada Pinson, Bill White, Skinner, Roberto Clemente, Smoky Burgess and 39-year-old Stan Musial who has played in 17 all-star games, more than any other player. Musial currently is the hottest hitter in the National League. In his last dozen games, he has collected 20 hits in 41 times at bat for .488.

Ted Williams, the great Red Sox slugger, was certain to see action, although he could not be a starter. The 42-year-old slugger, who has driven in a record 12 runs in 16 previous games, is a reserve on the AL squad which lists such power hitters in the starting lineup as Roger Maris, Bill Skowron and Yogi Berra of the Yankees; Minnie Minoso of the White Sox and Frank Malzone of the Red Sox. Other starters are second baseman Pete Runnels of Boston and rookie shortstop Ronnie Hansen of Baltimore.

The Americans boasted some mighty fine reserves in catchers Sherm Lollar and Elston Howard, infielders Nellie Fox, Luis Aparicio, Vic Power, Jim Gentile, Brooks Robinson and outfielders Harvey Kuenn, Al Smith

Each manager has 10 pitchers.

Batting Orders All-Star Game

KANSAS CITY (AP)—All star managers Walter Alston and Al Lopez were indefinite Sunday about their starting pitchers for today's 28th annual mid-summer classic.

Alston, skipper of Los Angeles Dodgers, said he leaned toward either Bob Friend or Vernon Law, star righthanders of Pittsburgh Pirates.

Lopez, boss of Chicago White Sox, said his nominee probably would be among Gary Bell of Cleveland, Bill Monbouquette of Boston or Chuck Estrada of Baltimore.

Lopez named his batting order as follows:

Minnie Minoso, White Sox, lf
Frank Malzone, Red Sox, 3b
Roger Maris, Yankees, rf
Mickey Mantle, Yankees, cf
Bill Skowron, Yankees, 1b
Yogi Berra, Yankees, c
Pete Runnels, Red Sox, 2b
Ron Hansen, Orioles, ss

Alston, in naming his batting order, said he would lead off with Willie Mays, the Giants' brilliant centre fielder, provided the American League starting pitchers was a lefthander, or Bob Skinner of the Pirates if the opposition was a righthander.

Following is the National League batting order on the assumption that the American League would open with a righthander:

Skinner, Pirates, lf
Mays, Giants, cf
Eddie Mathews, Braves, 3b
Hank Aaron, Braves, rf
Ernie Banks, Cubs, ss
Joe Adcock, Braves, 1b
Bill Mazeroski, Pirates, 2b
Del Crandall, Braves, c.

'Dark Horse' a Surprise

Close Races Feature Meet

A "dark horse" nearly pulled an upset in the top class of the Quinte Driving Club's fine racing meet here Saturday night.

"Brenda Dillard" a last-minute entry in the B classified race, came from nowhere in the first heat to defeat the favored "Blacklock's Pride" and "Lee Mac S", and but or an unlucky literal break in the second might have taken top honors.

"Blacklock's Pride" driven by 18-year-old Larry Zebedee of this city, and "Lee Mac S" owned and driven by Irwin Ness, also of Belleville were the bettors' favorites.

The Zebedee horse led the seven-horse field in the first lap of the first heat but rounding the stretch in the second, Dillard flashed to the front and finished a half length the winner. The Ness horse was third.

"Dillard" broke at the first turn of the second heat and was a bad seventh in the back stretch. "Blacklock" was leading all the way and with Zebedee driving a fine race shook off the Ness threat by a nose to win. Dillard came from behind to finish a close third.

It was one of the best meets to date with each heat furnishing close hard-driving finishes. The weather and track were fine and a thunderstorm that threatened early veered off to the south and disappeared.

Another last-minute entry in the C classified tossed a scare into the favorites. "Stewarts Widow" led the seven-horse pack in both heats only to bow the "Port Hope's Girl" by a neck in both cases. "John DeKuyper" finished a neck behind in third in both heats.

"Smithfield Boy" was favored in the D classified but failed to show anything finishing fourth in both heats. "Melissa" won the race taking second behind Ace-Hi in the first heat and winning the second.

Written for The Associated Press
By BING CROSBY

Comes now my seasonal seminar on the subject of retirement.

I've given it considerable thought—in a negative sort of way.

My stand is that a fellow shouldn't go into voluntary retirement while his golf game is up to par, and he is genuinely enjoying the kind of work he is cut out for.

Golf was not invented as a game for desiccated old duffers who are trying to duck the boredom of counting their money and hoping to escape the social fluff invented by their wives.

Let's think about that categorically: My golf game isn't too bad. I let the government count my money. I'm having a ball performing my none-too-strenuous professional chores. And Kathy has no truck with social chaff.

AND SO TO HOPE

This brings me to the subject of Bob Hope, the fellow who refers to me as the Crow of the Crooners. Why he works so hard, I'll never know. He's really loaded, but he works even to the exclusion of his golf which is a game I know he loves with all his heart. But he works day and night. He would do anything, fly anywhere to pick up a plaque.

It's better to do an odd job here and there—as the spirit moves you. The ABC spirits only move me to do two of their specials a year, and I take jobs out at 20th Century-fox when they don't interfere with my time with my family, my fishing and golf. Why, I can have a romp with the children after their morning feeding and be ensconced in the barber chair of the Fox make-up department in five minutes flat.

We've got High Time all wrapped up now and, from what I've seen of the rough cut, we may have a winner.

My next special for the network is set for Oct. 5, and there isn't much I can tell you about at this point except that I'll have three of my boys on for a return engagement. They did right well on their last outing.

Gary Cowan Low Amateur

TORONTO (CP)—Gary Cowan, a native of Kitchener now playing from Toronto, Saturday ended as low amateur in the Canadian open golf championship with a sudden-death one-hole victory over Phil Brownlee of Toronto.

The two ended the 72-hole open with 296 scores, eight-over par. Cowan birdied the first hole of sudden-death play against Brownlee's even par.

stroke edge on the 10th with a par four while Goalby went two over regulation figures.

Wall came home with a two-under-par 35, climaxing a round that included six birdies and three one-over-par holes.

He had a birdie three on the first hole, dropping a 10-foot putt, and followed with birdie putts from one to 25 feet on the fifth, seventh, 11th, 15th and 18th.

MISSED PUTTS

A missed three-foot putt sent Art one over par on the par-four fourth. He w[illegible] over on the seventh wh[illegible] 0-foot putt and al[illegible] on the 14th w[illegible] putt rimmed the cu[illegible]

"I think the bird[illegible] 15th was the turning point," said Wall who posted his first victory since winning the Flint Michigan Open a year ago.

"I was pretty sure then that I could win. As far as the tournament is concerned, the par-five holes did it for me. I played them well."

There are five par fives at St. George's and Wall played them in 17 under par for the tournament.

Gary Cowan, 21, a native of Kitchener now playing out of Toronto, won low amateur honors in this 51st open. He defeated Phil Brownlee, 19, of Toronto in a sudden-death playoff after each finished the regulation 72-holes tied at 296. Cowan birdied the par-four first hole while Brownlee was par.

OFFER TO KWONG

EDMONTON (CP)—Edmonton Eskimos of the WIFU have offered fullback Normie Kwong two bonuses to induce him to play. They offered Kwong, who announced his retirement earlier in the week, a $500 bonus should Eskimos make the playoffs and another $500 if they reached the Grey Cup. Kwong turned down the offer.

Palmer Stroke Behind

Nagle Wins British Open

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (CP)—Veteran Kelvin (Kel) Nagle of Australia carded a 34-37—71 to win the British open golf championship Saturday with a record-tying 278 and edge out Pennsylvanian Arnold Palmer in the stretch.

The 39-year-old Nagle, who had never finished high in a major British tournament previously, was unrattled by the large gallery on the 383-yard 18th hole where he needed a par 4 to defeat Palmer.

He hit his second shot two feet from the cup, missed his first putt and sank the second—a six-incher—to clinch the title and £1,250 ($3,337) first prize money.

Palmer fired a hot 34-34—68 in the final round on the par 36-37—73 course. The 30-year-old U.S. Masters and U.S. Open titleholder wound up with a 279 total for the 72-hole tourney.

PGA, TOURNEY NEXT

British Walker Cup player Guy Wolstenholme finished with a 31-37-68 for a 283, tying the amateur aggregate total record for the tournament. America's Bobby Jones won one of his three British Opens with a 283. The amateur course record is 67.

Nagle's 278 equalled the record set two years ago by four-time winner Peter Thomson of Australia, at Royal Lytham and St. Anne's, England.

Roberto De Vicenzo, an Argentine who plays out of Mexico, had a 34-37-71 to finish third with 282 and tie with Harold Henning of South Africa and Ryder Cup player Bernard Hunt of England.

Hunt fired a 33-33—66, tying the pro record for St. Andrews, to put himself in for a share of the £700 third-place money. Henning had a 69.

HIGH TENSION

High tension was crammed into the final holes.

At the 18th, with thousands ringing the fairway and green, Palmer boomed a drive 300 yards up the hill, hit a wedge three feet from the pin and sank for a birdie 3.

Nagle was playing the 17th when he heard the roar go up after Palmer's closing birdie putt. At the time he was lying 10 feet from the cup—with a difficult putt for a birdie 4.

"I knew I had to get that putt or a birdie at the last," he said afterward. "The hole had been kind to me all week."

He sank the putt for his birdie. On the 18th Nagle hit a beautiful nine-iron to the final green just two feet away, and had to battle his way through the thick crowd to reach the green. Obviously nervous, he jabbed his short putt, then judged the winning one home from nine inches.

Louise Suggs Wins Tourney

WARREN, Ohio (AP)—Veteran Louise Suggs of Atlanta won the $16,000 Trumbull open golf tournament here Sunday, and extended her year's winnings to $12,062, tops for the tourists.

She racked up a 72-hole total of 288, four-under par, for Trumbull Country's Club's 6,246-yard par 73 course. Her prize was $2,500.

"Supertest II" Sets Record

BUFFALO (AP)—An Ontario speedboat, Miss Supertest II, set a course record Sunday in the Buffalo Launch Club's 12th annual International Trophy hydroplane regatta.

She averaged 103.507 miles an hour in the fourth heat but did not place in the finals.

'Sliver' Records 1,800th R.B.I.

BOSTON (AP)—Ted Williams, 41-year-old Boston slugger, registered the 1,800th run batted in of his major league career Sunday in a game against New York Yankees.

Williams grounded to second base in the fourth inning sending home Willie Tasby from third. The play sent the Sox in front 7-3.

Williams remains seventh in the all-time major league RBI standings behind Babe Ruth (2,209), Lou Gehrig (1,991), Jimmy Foxx (1,921), Ty Cobb (1,901), Mel Ott (1,860) and Al Simmons (1,827).

Taylor Horse Wins Handicap At Delaware

Stratus carried 117 pounds and covered the mile and ⅜ in 2:16 2-5, two-fifths of a second off the track record. He paid $25; $12 and $9.40. Sailor's Guide returned $5 and $4 and King O' Turf $7.60.

Meanwhile, at Inglewood, Calif., it was announced that Taylor's Victoria Park, winner of Canada's Queen's Plate this year, has been pulled out of competition.

At other U.S. tracks Saturday:

Tempestuous ($14.80) captured the $114,700 Hollywood Derby at Inglewood, Calif., as heavily-favored New Policy faded to fourth. T.V. Lark was second and Blank Check was third.

Royal Native ($4) put in a strong bid for the U.S. filly and mare championship of the year when she easily outran the field in the $28,950 Molly Pitcher Handicap at Monmouth Park. Quill was second and Miss Orestes was third.

A nose separated the winning Keenation ($47.30) from second-place Irish Lancer in the $28,250 Peter Pan Handicap at Aqueduct. Francis S. was third.

At Detroit, Little Fritz ($13.20) inched out Hymient and Sink Not Sunk in a photo finish for the $50,000-added Michigan Mile. Manassa Mauler, the favorite, was out of the money.

On-And-On ($11.80) won the $25,000-added Arch Ward Memorial Handicap at Arlington Park. Little Tytus was second and Clandestine third.

Canadian Wins Dragon Trophy

CLAYTON, N.Y. (AP)—Charles Steinbach of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club, Toronto, won the O'Keefe Trophy dragon class regatta Saturday although he finished sixth in the final race.

The skipper of the Tannin had amassed a big lead in the first four races of the five-race series for small sailboats and finished with a total of 151½ points.

Paul E. Paquin of the Point Claire Club, Montreal, came second with 141 points. Dr. Robert Townsend of the Royal St. Lawrence Club of Montreal was third with 137½.

Defeat B.C. Crew

Youths Stun Row Brass

PORT DALHOUSIE (CP)—Four St. Catharines youngsters, three of them not yet out of high school, stunned rowing experts here Saturday at the Canadian Olympic rowing trials.

Rowing with the poise of veterans, the rangy St. Catharines Rowing Club crew showed their heels to a highly-favored University of British Columbia team to win the four-oared berth on Canada's 1960 Olympic rowing team. The time was seven minutes, 44 seconds.

They finished the wind-swept one-mile, 550-yard course easily, sitting two lengths out in front of the defending Olympic champions with the only other entry, Hamilton Leanders, back in third.

In the single trial, Tony Biernacki of Ottawa came home in front, but it is doubtful that he will go with the St. Catharines four to Rome.

Officials of the Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsmen have to get the Canadian Olympic Association to make an extra place on the rowing team for him. Only 15 competitors were to go to Rome.

Biernacki, who finished second for Canada at both the 1958 British Empire Games in Wales and last year's Pan-American Games in Chicago, was three-quarters of a length in front of Jim Roche of Hamilton.

Jon Pearce of Toronto Argonauts Rowing Club, son of former Diamond Sculls champion Bobby Pearce, was third.

Hitting—Willie Tasby, Red Sox, had perfect 5-for-5, including a home run, drove in four runs and scored three in 9-5 victory over the Yankees.

Pitching — Ed Roebuck, Dodgers, won seventh in row with three hitless innings of relief in 11-7 decision over the Cardinals.

Favor Yankees Over Canadians

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The United States is favored to even the series against Canada in the fourth annual International Cup best-ball golf matches here Tuesday.

The U.S. edge in its 18-hole play with Canada's eight-man pro-amateur contingent could be the host club champion, Ward Wettlaufer of Buffalo.

Wettlaufer, a member of last year's Walker Cup champions, is playing his finest golf and two weeks ago shattered the record for the 6,581-yard, par-72 Country Club course with a 64. He will team with U.S. Captain Dow Finsterwald against the Canadian pro-amateur twosome of Stan Leonard of Vancouver and Gary Cowan of Toronto.

Julius Boros, Doug Ford and Paul Harney complete the U.S. professional gathering. Chuck Kocsis, Ed Meister and Bill Campbell are the other U.S. amateurs.

Jack Kay of Montreal, Al Balding of Toronto and Bob Cunningham Jr. of Toronto make up the remainder of the Canadian pros, who will team with amateurs Bob Panasiuk of Windsor, Bruce Castator of Toronto and Nick Weslock of Toronto.

The U.S. ended Canada's grip on the cup last season when it scored a sudden-death playoff victory. The Canadians won in 1957 and 1958.

The pairings: Boros and Kocsis against Kay and Panasiuk; Harney and Campbell against Balding and Castator; Ford and Meister against Cunningham and Weslock; Finsterwald and Wettlaufer against Leonard and Cowan.

Leafs Drop Pair to Wings; Royals Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Rochester Red Wings found the ultimate weapon to humble league-leading Toronto—the home run.

The Wings hit five of them Sunday to take an International League doubleheader from the Leafs, 11-4 and 3-2. Outfielder Leon Wagner came up with two in one inning. The 11 runs in the first game, triggered by a nine-run sixth inning, were the most scored on the Leafs' stingy pitching staff.

Miami turned back Columbus twice, 5-2 and 4-2 despite four Jet home runs. Montreal edged Buffalo 8-7 in the first game, then lost the nightcap 2-1 on an extra inning home run by Harry Hannebrink. Homeless Havana broke Richmond's five-game winning streak, 7-1.

On Saturday, Richmond shut out Havana 6-0, Buffalo edged Montreal 7-6 in 13 innings and Miami beat Columbus 2-1. Rochester at Toronto was rained out.

Wagner's feat came in the big nine-run inning and each homer came with a man on. Jim Frey homered for the Wings with a man on for a 2-2 tie in the second and doubled in another in the big sixth.

RICKETTS THE WINNER

Dick Ricketts (6-8) was the winner while Steve Ridzik (9-4) lost. The Wings tagged reliever Russ Heman (7-1) with his first loss in the second game when consecutive singles by Wally Shannon, pinch-hitter Luke Easter and Chris Cannizzaro broke a 2-2 tie. Shannan and Billy Harrell homered for the Leafs as Bob Tiefenauer won his sixth in seven decisions.

A pair of southpaws, Rudy Arias and Jim Archer, pitched Miami to within a game of the seventh-place Jets. A two-run homer by Woody Smith off loser Al Jackson evened things after Johnny Powers and Ray Mejias homered in the first for Columbus. Two in the ninth sewed up the first game victory for Arias (3-3).

Archer (5-7) gave homers to Mejias and Bob Herrera in the nightcap but his own triple, Leo Burke's double and Dick Brown's two-run homer in the third helped him to a 4-0 lead that cost Diomedes Olivo his fourth loss against five victories.

George Risley's ninth inning double broke a 7-7 tie helping Montreal's Bill Kunkel (7-7) to the victory while Hannebrink's blast, his second of the day, broke a 1-1 tie for Bill Smith's fifth straight victory against no losses. Ron Graber homered in the second game for the Royals as Rene Valdes (5-10) lost. Ruben Gomez (2-2) lost the first for Buffalo.

Mike Cuellar pitched the Cubans to their victory, giving Richmond only seven hits. Len Cardenas, one of the Cuban members of the team reported ready to quit if the club shifts to Jersey City, had a double and triple and scored three runs while Borrego Alvarez drove in three. Jim Bronstad lost.

AT THE BELLE—Lovely French star Mylene Demongeot has the romantic lead opposite Steven Reeves in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's spectacular film, "The Giant of Marathon," filmed on a vast scale in Color and Cinemascope, with a cast of thousands. Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Tuesday, July 12, 1960

General Tendencies:— Today and tonight find most everyone in a happy frame of mind, eager to advance and progress and under unusually good aspects for starting to place into motion over-all ideas and ambitions that they can reduce to a workable expression.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Support from private sources can be attained now and then you will be able to increase prestige and help those who have been good to you. Generosity will mean their being able to reach their goals, too.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) This is one of those fine days when others seem to go along with all your views and you can get a great deal accomplished; also in matters of recreation and hobbies. Make it a point to help those who have proven loyal and good.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Be out in the business world early. Seek a better position or advance in present one. And if you are helpful to others you can also increase property and business benefits. P.M. become more popular socially. Meet the right people.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Whatever means a great deal to you can be bettered now through more modern approach or handling. If you carry through with what has been commenced, you gain good will and are able to forge ahead speedily. Work.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — It would be a fine idea to contact professional advisers in matters of property, taxes, all practical affairs that need betterment. P.M. an enjoyable time can be had with loved one. But you must be charming and full of life.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Now it is possible to learn exactly what associates are thinking in connection with corporate ventures and your part in them. Get all problems clarified and cement better relations. P.M. go to dinner at some delightful spot.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Make good use of those fine artistic talents today. See that you blend colors properly, get arrangements synchronized. Greater efficiency brings greater rewards, too. Expand.

Scorpio (Oct .23 to Nov. 21)— This can be one of the most happy days for you. Delve into those activities that please you most, particularly the creative. Later you can find favor with loved one and spend a most delightful and happy evening with him, or her.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Concentrate upon how you can best assist close ties, though it may be necessary to be in the world of outside activity. Pick up little thoughtful gifts on your way home. Harmony at home is of utmost importance to your happiness.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Sit down and enumerate what you intend to do or accomplish today, then full speed ahead and be sure to act in a practical fashion. Don't be devious. Get together with those persons whose ideas are akin to yours.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) If you think and act positively along lines such as property, caree[illegible] and artistic expression, you [illegible] gain a very great deal now. You can fill that wallet if you try. P.M. take treatments to improve throat condition.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) Now is the time to make a beeline for whatever you want that is ethical and to attain it. Be charming and wear that lovely smile. P.M. fine also for greater progress in social affairs. Meet the right people.

If your child is born today .. the delightful little creature will worm himself, or herself, into your heart immediately and into the hearts of all others as time goes along if you early give the proper training, especially in matters of the Highest Laws of Life. Also, be sure to teach early self - confidence through proper activity. Then the chart is ideal for any profession where property or finances are concerned.

CONQUEROR OF

"one in a million" survival. They said Honeycutt often took the two children boating.

SAVED BY PRESERVER

Constable Percy Baker of the Niagara Parks Commission police attributed the "miracle" to the boy's life preserver.

"He was saved by the thing . . . and his light weight. He rode the water instead of going in it—like a cork. He was thrown clear.

"He made one trip no one else will ever make."

Deanne said Honeycutt told her "a pin has sheared off the motor". Suddenly, Honeycutt pushed the outboard motor back in the water and seized the oars. The boat was moving fast towards the falls.

"I held on to the boat when it overturned but the other two were carried away," Deanne said. "I thought this was it. There was water all around. I remember I tried to swim, then a man grabbed me and another man pulled me out."

HARD TO BELIEVE

Rodger was pulled from the water below the falls by the crew of the Maid of the Mist. Captain Clifford Keech said he spotted an "orange thing," the life preserver, bobbing in the water.

"It was just a few feet in front and I had to take a second look—I couldn't believe my eyes. It was unbelievable. I knew he had come over the falls . . . He was yelling for help."

He said the boat made three passes at the boy before Rodger grabbed a life ring tossed from the deck. The entire rescue operation took eight minutes.

"The boy was shouting that his sister was still in the water," Captain Keech said.

Dr. Robert Frizell said Rodger was conscious throughout the ordeal. . . . "He wasn't upset any more than perhaps a kid who had fallen into a pool."

When the youngster went over he was wearing the preserver, swim trunks and running shoes.

SEES GIRL

John Hayes, 44, of Voxhall, N.J, was standing on Terrapin Point on Goat Island when he saw the girl struggling in the water.

"I grabbed for her and got two fingers. Then I saw I couldn't hold her and I called for help."

Dwight Hartschuh, 23, watched with his wife Shirley from another boat as the drama unfolded.

"The man in the middle was working the oars," said Mr. Hartschuh. He was trying to pull against the current but wasn't getting anywhere.

"The girl was in the back and the boy was up front. The girl seemed to be really frightened. I don't know how they stayed as calm as they were."

IN THE FOAM?

Riverman Major Hill said in Toronto Rodger must have been carried over the vortex of the falls and shot forward into the foam which is about 50 per cent air. The Hill family has pulled an estimated 500 bodies from the surging rapids and whirlpools below the falls.

Only three men have survived the plunge—all daredevils protected in rubber or metal cylinders. One of these men, Jean Lussier who went over in a rubber ball in 1928 watched the boy's rescue.

"This kid conquered the greatest wonder in the world," he said with awe.

Mr. Hill called for a safety patrol on the river above the falls.

He said it may take a major disaster to make the government authorities realize safety measures on the upper river are inadequate.

Some day a cabin cruiser might go over the falls, killing all aboard.

NEEDS PATROL

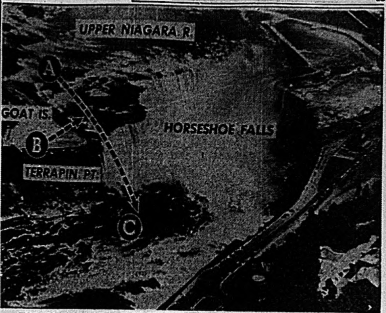
"There should be a permanent patrol boat stationed above the falls on the Canadian side to watch for boats that come too far down river."

Mr. Hill is in Toronto hospital with a chronic ailment.

The Hill family are veterans of the river. Mr. Hill's father, William (Red) Hill, shot the lower Whirlpool Rapids three times. His brother died going over the falls in a barrel in 1951.

Major Hill has shot the whirlpool rapids four times.

Mr. Hill recommended placing a marker buoy on the upper river to warn boats from going farther. Disobedience should be punished by a heavy fine.



HOW BOY AND SISTER WERE RESCUED AT FALLS — Diagram shows how Roger Woodward, 7, and his sister, Diane, 17, were saved when boat in which they were riding on Niagara River capsized (A) and went over Horseshoe Falls at Niagara Falls, Ontario, Saturday. Diane was saved when two men from New Jersey waded into the river from Terrapin Point (B) on Goat Island. They hauled her to safety. Roger went over the falls with the boat but was saved at the foot of the falls (C) by the captain and others on the sightseeing boat Maid of the Mist. (AP Wirephoto).

Lacrosse Body Suspends Three

HUTTONSVILLE (CP) — The Ontario Lacrosse Association handed out three suspensions, one to a referee, at a meeting here Saturday.

Referee Norm Shortridge of Dundas was given an indefinite suspension after he admitted hitting coach Jim Robertson and Skip McVicar, both of Kitchener Intermediades, last Friday.

Russ Cragg of Brooklin was also suspended for a year.

Peterborough team manager Ed Redmond has been suspended for 10 games because of abusive language.

Owen Sound Intermediates and Long Branch Juniors both had victories taken away from them for using ineligible players.

Newmarket was awarded a June 18 game won by Owen Sound after Dave McComb played for Owen Sound while under suspension.

Huttonsville is 30 miles northwest of Toronto.

Lands Plane On Freeway At Rush Hour

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Motorists on Los Angeles freeways are notoriously hard to surprise.

But even those who thought they'd seen everything got a start Friday from Ken Baird: He landed his light plane neatly on the outbound lanes of the Golden State Freeway, without touching wingtip to fender. He had accurately matched his 60 m.p.h. landing speed to the flow of rush-hour traffic.

Baird, 46, of nearby Burbank, said he was forced down by a broken piston in his Piper tripacer.

To keep from blocking traffic, Baird taxied 500 feet to the shelter of a paved shoulder. Then a passing motorist halted, attached a rope, and towed the plane two miles to the nearest exit.

SIXTY AMERICAN

The Stanleyville rebels disarmed their European officers and took over command, and later "invaded the European city about two miles from the airfield," the Belgian broadcast said.

Leopoldville, however, was generally calm.

Premier Patrice Lumumba broadcast an appeal for order in the sprawling territory. But he protested the armed Belgian intervention was based on "fallacious excuses."

The fighting centred in the rich southern province of Katanga, which has threatened to secede and join neighboring British-controlled Rhodesia.

"The Congo is falling apart," said a British diplomat in Leopoldville. "This has become a country that is a body without a head."

Conditions generally were chaotic. Public transport, mail and communications were disrupted. Food supplies were uncertain.

Heaviest fighting was reported around Elisabethville, capital of Katanga province. There at least 31 persons—six of them whites—were reported killed.

TROOPS IN ACTION

About 800 Belgian paratroopers and commandos went into action on the appeal of provincial Premier Moise Tshombe to restore order in Elisabethville, second largest city in the Congo, but pockets of rebels held out.

Several hundred Europeans besieged in a hotel of Luluabourg, in Kasai province to the north, were rescued by Belgian paratroops. Frank Vandergrif of Birmingham, Ala., a Presbyterian missionary, reported four whites had been killed in Luluabourg.

Belgian sailors recovered control of port installations that rebel Congolese troops had seized at Kitona, Boma and Matadi, at the mouth of the Congo River.

Belgian troops liberated about 200 Europeans held prisoner by Congolese mutiners at Goma, on the frontier of the Ruanda-Urundi trust territory, and freed another group of whites held captive in a train at Kabalo, in northern Katanga.

FLY REINFORCEMENTS

The Belgian government started flying in 2,000 troops to reinforce 4,000 left in the territory and in nearby Ruanda-Urundi when Congo became independent June 30.

Premier Tshombe of Katanga province, describing himself as the "head of state," appealed to Rhodesia to send troops to help restore order. The British government rejected the appeal, refusing to recognize Katanga as a separate state.

Royal Rhodesian Air Force planes dropped blankets and medical supplies along the Congo border for white refugees.

The Italian government sent transport planes to evacuate Italian citizens after receiving word of the slaying of the Italian vice-consul in Elisabethville.

A fleet of 12 four-seat aircraft flew from the British colony of Kenya to Uganda, adjoining Congo, to pick up refugees who escaped across the border.

U.S. Ambassador Clare Timberlake conferred with UN Undersecretary Ralph Bunche in Leopoldville and top leaders of the new Congo government. There were rumors of possible UN intervention. But the Belgian government, while pledging to restore order in its former colony, denied asking UN or any other foreign intervention.

The flight of whites from the Congo grew. The governor of neighboring Northern Rhodesia, Sir Evelyn Hone, reported more than 3,000 refugees had reached that British territory.

Seven hundred refugees from Albertville were reported fleeing across Lake Tanganyika by ferry. A Norwegian ship arrived in Luanda, Angola, with 145 Belgian, Dutch, French and Italian refugees.

Refugees all told stories of threats or brutality at the hands of the native soldiers, many of them drunk.

OIL MEN STAY

BRITAIN WORRIED BY U.S. USE OF BASES

Mr. K. And Ike Trade Charges Of Provocation

Pledge to Stop Spying Broken Says Khrushchev

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Nikita Khrushchev accused the United States today of trying to start a war and hinted at stronger retaliation if American planes continued to intrude on Soviet air space.

The Soviet premier said violation of Russian territory by an American air force RB-47 reconnaissance plane shot down July 1 showed that "the ruling circles of the United States, with the complicity of their partners in the aggressive blocs, are openly provoking a serious war conflict."

Khrushchev also charged that the flight proved President Eisenhower's promises to end espionage missions over Russia "are not worth a broken penny."

Khrushchev again repeated warnings that Russia would retaliate against Western bases used by the United States for intelligence missions over the Soviet Union.

"In this instance the intrusion of the American plane was cut short in the very beginning," he told a Kremlin press conference. "And this is why the Soviet government has restricted itself to the destruction of this plane."

ORDER STANDS

But, he said, an order given by Defence Minister Rodion Malinovsky to Soviet defence forces to hit back at Western bases should be understood "just as he had declared it."

The Russian leader said he thought the two airmen would not be tried at the same time as Francis Gary Powers, pilot of the U-2 shot down over Russia May 1.

Khrushchev said he thought the Soviet Union would take the matter of the RB-47 to the United Nations — first to the security council and then to the general assembly. But no firm decision had been made.

Khrushchev said the Soviet government had delayed 11 days in announcing that the RB-47 had been shot down in order to see what alibis the United States would come up with.

He said his government was hoping for another cover story like the initial explanation that the U-2 shot down on May day had been on a weather flight.

TO BOILING POINT

(The Associated Press quoted Khrushchev as saying that resumption of American U-2 spy flights over the Soviet Union would "heat the existing tension to boiling point and bring matters to the outbreak of war.")

Khrushchev said statements by the two American airmen who survived when the plane was shot down showed that they had instructions to fly along the northern frontier of the Soviet Union for "intelligence purposes."

"We confused the Americans on May 1, so we thought why shouldn't we do the same on July 1", Khrushchev remarked.

The U.S. air force after the RB-47 disappeared on July 1 said it was surveying electromagnetic fields in Arctic waters to gain information for improved navigational maps.

After the Soviet spy charge was made Monday, President

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — The White House today accused the Soviet Union of "a deliberate and reckless attempt to create an international incident" in shooting down an American reconnaissance plane in the Arctic.

At President Eisenhower's vacation headquarters, press secretary James C. Hagerty also denied Russian claims that the plane was over Soviet territory when it was brought down July 1.

"The American RB-47 plane was over international waters and at no time was over Soviet territory, Soviet territorial waters or Soviet air space," Hagerty said in a statement.

"The shooting down of this plane as the Soviet government alleges can only have been a deliberate and reckless attempt to create an international incident."

HITS AT KHRUSHCHEV

Hagerty also hit at efforts by Soviet Premier Khrushchev and his government to liken the new plane episode to the U-2 spy plane mission of last May.

"Any attempt to connect the flight of this aircraft with the—U2 flight of May is completely without foundation and the Soviet authorities, including Mr. Khrushchev, know this."

Hagerty said the United States will make a formal reply later in the day to the official Soviet protest note delivered Monday to a U.S. Embassy official in Moscow. The press secretary said the American reply would be made public in Washington later today.

The Hagerty statement was the first official U.S. reaction to the Russian announcement Monday that the Soviets had shot down another American plane. The Kremlin charged the plane had violated Soviet frontiers.

Khrushchev told a press conference today two of the crew members he said were captured had admitted they were on a spy mission.

Prior to Hagerty's statement all government officials had been under orders to make no comment on the incident.

PARIS, Ont. (CP)—Provincial police are investigating the death Sunday of Bernard K. Nunan whose body was found in a field near his RR 2 Paris farm home. Cause of death has not been established.

Khrushchev Repeats Promise To Aid Cuba if U.S. Attacks

MOSCOW (CP) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev today repeated his declaration that Russia will defend Cuba if it is attacked by the United States.

"If the time comes when aggressive action is performed against that country," the Soviet leader told a Kremlin press conference, "we will lend our support."

He scoffed at President Eisenhower's statement that the United States would not permit the establishment of any government in the western hemisphere dominated by international communism.

"Who gave the U.S. any right to allow or disallow?" he asked.

"What right has the United States to dispose of the destinies of any other nation?"

Khrushchev agreed when a questioner asked if his support of Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro's regime amounted to an attack on the Monroe Doctrine.

"The Monroe Doctrine has outlived its usefulness," he said. "It has died a natural death. The only thing left to do with the Monroe Doctrine is to bury it, just as you bury anything dead so it will not poison the air."

Khrushchev called the decision of the U.S. to suspend purchases of sugar from Cuba an "aggressive step."

He said the Soviet Union and its allies would gladly buy all Cuba's sugar. He said the Communist bloc would pay for the sugar with goods—a barter deal.

In other Cuban developments, Cuba accused the U.S. Monday of economic aggression as a result of the sugar quota cuts and called for an immediate meeting of the United Nations security council to deal with the charges.

The council probably will meet Monday to consider the Cuban assertions.

The Cuban move came as President Eisenhower at his vacation headquarters in Newport, R.I., announced a new American aid program for South America that will probably run into the billions of dollars—no figures were given. But indications were that if Cuba wants to get in on it, the Castro regime will have to mend its anti-American ways.

In Havana, Castro was reported resting comfortably after being stricken with pneumonia last week. He promised he would be completely well by July 26, the anniversary of his successful revolutionary movement.

In Mexico City, Foreign Minister Manuel Tello said that two Mexican congressional leaders who sided with Cuba against the U.S. were not speaking for the Mexican government.

Instead Tello Monday night took a neutral stand toward the dispute. He said President Adolfo Mateos hopes the two governments will resolve their differences.

Democrats Blaze Way To New Chief

Truman Says It's "Rigged"

The head men deny it, saying in effect that Truman is all wet and that the older statesman who is boycotting the convention is merely angry because he himself cannot control the delegates' decisions.

Kennedy's own convention newspaper, a four-page daily tabloid, seems to echo that sentiment in reprinting an editorial taking a sock at Truman for making any such suggestion.

Yet a close look at the pattern of developments indicate that while the conventon may not be rigged, someone may be tampering with the works.

Take that old-style volcanic fire that the Democrats used to toss at the Republican party and that "awful man" Nixon—the Republican vice-president.

It certainly was missing when Frank Church, the youthful Idaho senator who delivered the keynote speech at the convention opening Monday night, said "there will be no personal atticks against any Republican, past or present."

"The issue in the coming elec-

Feud Over Negro Rights

LOS ANGELES (CP) — Under the tinselled facade of a glittering convention opening courses the acid of a party feud over Negro rights that threatens to corrode the greatest political show the Democrats have ever staged.

Even before the formal convention opening Monday — with its parade of movie stars, the blare of trumpets, the miles of bunting, the flood of cliched rhetoric and the roar of 4,500 delegates and alternatives — the die seemed cast.

Senator John F. Kennedy held an impregnable position as the potential presidential nominee for the November general election.

Adherents of Senate Democratic leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas refused to give up hope that he can win the nomination with a dramatic last-hour rally.

CALL CONFERENCE

In line with this Johnson called a press conference today for what an aide called "an important announcement concerning the issues involved in the convention" and Johnson's position concerning them.

Asked whether Johnson would announce then that he was withdrawing from the race, the aide replied "No, definitely not."

But if Johnson wouldn't give up, only a relative few among the delegates questioned that Kennedy will go beyond the required 761 votes for the nomination on the first presidential bal-

Birth Pangs Of New Era

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The 1960 political conventions, although they figure to be the dullest in years, are in a real sense part of the birth pangs of a new and revolutionary era.

It will be a double revolution: In men and events.

1. Almost everywhere around the world before the end of the 1960s a new, younger generation of men will have become the new leaders, none of whom was a dominant figure only 15 years ago when the war ended.

2. The struggle between the United States and communism has within the last few months entered a new, intense and unpredictable phase which will require new American vision, efforts, methods and strategy.

WILL BLAZE WAY

The Democratic convention this week and the Republican convention later this month will blaze the way toward the new leadership when they pick their presidential candidates.

Almost certainly the Democrats will name Senator John F. Kennedy, 43, while the Republicans choose Vice-President Richard Nixon, 47. Only 15 years ago neither of them held any public office nor was known.

The older generation of leaders —all of whom were dominant figures by the end of the war—is coming to an end, either through retirement or through disability or death.

Crucial problems lie ahead.

Adlai Has Girl Trouble

LOS ANGELES (CP) — Adlai Stevenson is in a state of deep distress. He's got woman trouble.

It's not enough that someone is tapping his convention telephone lines—as the police report —but an elderly lady, determined despite her years, is forcefully trying to lead him to the presidential altar.

The whole thing, he says, is causing him a lot of embarrassment. Not that he would mind being president. But he seems to sense the situation is hopeless, though the lady—75 - year - old Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt — is persistent.

She strode into the convention city Monday, full of political cunning and intrigue. She talked the reluctant Stevenson — who says he would accept a draft but won't fight for the Democratic nomination—into introducing her at an overflow press conference.

"She has seen fit to come here from New York," he said, "on a mission that has come to my attention only in the last few hours."

He made the introduction and then bolted, saying he had another engagement.

Then the reporters found out why Stevenson was embar-

Plane Flights To Be Discussed By Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—The question of American reconnaissance flights over Russian territory is a subject which would "naturally" be discussed by Canadian and American cabinet ministers here today and Wednesday, Prime Minister Diefenbaker said in the Commons.

He made the statement about three hours before three U.S. ministers were due to arrive here for a Canada-U.S. cabinet defence committee meeting.

Mr. Diefenbaker was replying to Opposition Leader Pearson who asked assurances that the subject of U.S. flights, without specific permission, from NATO bases would be taken up during the meeting.

Hazen Argue, CCF House leader, asked whether Canada has protested to the U.S. the latest "provocative" incident of an American reconnaissance plane being shot down over Russia.

Mr. Diefenbaker said a protest would not be in order because the statement of President Eisenhower in May that the reconnaissance flights would be discontinued still held good.

American Troops Requested by Congo Govt.

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Christian Herter cancelled a trip to Ottawa today to concentrate his attention on a request of the Congo government for United States troops.

Defence Secretary Thomas Gates reported this at the Washington airport as he prepared to leave for Ottawa and participation in a conference on defence matters.

Herter, Gates and Treasury Secretary Robert Anderson had been scheduled to fly to Ottawa. The meeting is to deal with U.S. supply of nuclear warheads for Canadian missiles.

"NAZI GET OUT"

HILDESHEIM, West Germany (Reuters)—A blare of bugles and the roll of drums competed with cries of "Nazi get out" at the rally here Sunday of the extreme right-wing German Reich party. The martial music came from a band of white-uniformed youths. The shouting came from five busloads of trade union members massed outside the inn where the Reich party was ending its three-day national congress.

Katanga Province Set Up As an Independent State

ELISABETHVILLE,, Congo gained its independence from ince threatened the Congo today as Premier Moise Tshombe of Katanga announced he had set up an independent state.

Tshombe, 42-year-old member of a wealthy Negro plantation and business family, said in a radio broadcast from Elisabethvile that his Katanga government wants to form an "economic community" with Belgium and wants economic and military assistance from the Congo's former white rulers.

Tshombe said he would welcome aid from other nations of the free world if the Belgians do not support his secession from Premier Patrice Lumumba's central government in Leopoldville, which meanwhile asked the United Nations to help it regain control of its mutinous, rampaging native army.

Tshombe accused Lumumba of using Communist tactics and promoting chaos in the Congo, which gained its indtpendence from Belgium only 12 days ago.

Although Congo President Joseph Kasavubu has appealed repeatedly for the European population to stay and help run the new nation, Tshombe charged that Lumumba is trying to drive the Belgians and other West Europeans out and supplant them with technicians from Communist countries.

"After elctions, which were falsified in certain provinces . . . a central government based on an extremist majority has been created," Tshombe said.

At least 12 Europeans and scores of Negroes have been reported killed in the army mutiny that followed Congolese independence. At least 15,000 of the 100,000 whites have fled to neighboring African territories

The Congo Army mutiny spread to Elisabethville Sunday. Native troops besieged several hundred Europeans in a hotel and killed eight Europeans, including the Italian consul. Tshombe appealed for aid from Belgian troops stationed at bases in the Congo.

A European official reported to Brussels by telephone from Elisabethville today that the Belgian Army was in full control of the city of more than 75,000 and that "confidence is being slowly restored."

Lumumba went to Elisabethville on a peace-making trip, but Tshombe refused to see him. The Katanga premier sent three of his ministers to the airport with a curt request for Lumumba to move on as an "undesirable."

Some mining officials were reported to have returned from refuge in the neighboring Rhodesias. Others were promised a military escort if they would return to reopen the copper mines, which closed Monday, throwing thousands out of work.

Possible Change In Agreement Will Be Studied

Plane Downed by Russia Had Left Oxford Base

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain today announced it will ask the United States whether there should be "any modification or improvement" in arrangements for basing American planes in this country.

Prime Minister Macmillan made the announcement in the Commons after Socialist members had bitterly criticized the use of such bases for reconnaissance flights over Russia.

Macmillan declared he had just heard the U.S. is protesting to Moscow today against the shooting down of an RB-47 plane "over the high seas" July 1.

"This information corresponds precisely with what we believe to be the case," he said.

The agreement for the United States to maintain bases in Britain was reached by the Labor government before the Conservatives returned to power in 1951.

Since the Russians shot down a U-2 intelligence plane May 1, Labor MPs have been barraging Macmillan with questions about whether he has agreed to the presence of such planes in Britain. They also have demanded details on whether American planes based in Britain have flown over Russia for espionage reasons.

"These questions have a bearing on either the scope of intelligence activities or the way in which they are conducted and controlled.

"It has never been the practice to discuss such matters in the house and I have come to the conclusion that it would be contrary to the public interest for me to depart from this precedent."

Macmillan recalled the agreement on bases signed by Labor Prime Minister Attlee and Presieent Harry Truman. He added that on the question of consultation between President Eisenhower and himself about the agreement, he could say this:

"Ever since the Attlee-Truman agreement with regard to the use of bases in this country we have had good working arrangements between ourselves and the Americans, but I am taking up with the president the question whether there should be any modification or improvements of these arrangements."

Meanwhile demands mounted for assurances that Washington is consulting fully with Macmillan's government on the activities of

FRESH ATTEMPT TO KILL BOMARC PROGRAM FAILS

Commons Committee Rejects Move 5-4

OTTAWA (CP)—A new opposition attempt to kill the Bomarc anti-aircraft missile program has failed.

The Commons defence committee rejected by a vote of 5 to 4 Monday the motion of Harold Winch (CCF—Vancouver East), seconded by Paul Hellyer (L—Toronto Trinity), that expenditures on the program this year be cut to $1 from the estimated $8,000,000.

Five Progressive Conservatives led by Egan Chambers, parliamentary secretary to Defence Minister Pearkes, voted against the motion. Mr. Winch, Mr. Hellyer and two other Liberals voted for it. Four Conservatives and one Liberal were absent.

Even if the committee had voted to scrap the Bomarc—virtually impossible because of the 2 to 1 Conservative majority in membership—the government would have been under no obligation to heed the recommendation. But the recommendation would have been included in the committee's report to the Commons.

CLAIMS USELESS

Mr. Winch said the Bomarc is "useless" because Mr. Pearkes himself had stated time and again that the only real defence was the fear of retaliation. No amount of air defence could stop nuclear destruction of Canada.

Mr. Chambers said that if there were no air defence the West's main retaliatory force—the United States Strategic Air Command — could be destroyed on its bases.

Abandoning the Bomarc would be like doing away with the soldier's helmet on the grounds that it wouldn't protect him against a direct hit by a high - explosive shell.

Mr. Hellyer, Liberal defence critic, said Russia would not attack North America at least until it had sufficient long - range missiles to knock out fixed bases, including those of the Bomarc.

Americans Like Guard Spectacle

OTTAWA (CP)—Thirty members of the English - Speaking Union of the United States saw the changing of the guard on the Parliament Hill lawn Monday and then watched the Commons open another week's business.

"A great experience," said coordinator Peter Romilly, who then led his group to a reception tendered by Speaker Roland Michener.

The group also called on Mayor George Nelms at city hall and were scheduled to spend the evening in homes of Ottawa members of the union, which is dedicated to better understanding among English-speaking nations.

The 30 Americans come from seven cities including New York, Tulsa, Philadelphia and Baltimore. They started out Friday at Quebec and leave Ottawa Wednesday for Winnipeg, Calgary, Jasper and Banff in Alberta and Victoria and Vancouver.

Wages Not Involved

Transport Workers Strike Settlement Said Imminent

About 40 members of Teamster's Local 938 (Ind.) went on strike today against Smith Transport Ltd., Dundas St. East, claiming unfair working conditions. Wages are not involved. But both management and union spokesmen believed the strike, which started at 8 a.m. when a picket line was formed, would be short-lived.

"A list of grievances has been piling up for some time," said business agent Ed Banks of Kingston, "and the company hasn't tried to settle them."

"This thing will be settled in the near future. In fact, it's almost imminent."

Depot manager Elliott Whiteman said a settlement might be reached today.

Mr. Banks said that if the strike does not end soon, there is a possibility union members at other Smith Transport depots in Ontario will go out on strike in sympathy.

The strikers, who include all employees under the rank of foreman and excepting office workers, are protesting against lack of washroom facilities at the depot ("we have to use the back yard"); no drinking water; use of highway drivers for local pick-ups and deliveries while local drivers are on short hours; use of only one man in loading piggyback railroad freight, which the union says is unsafe; and unsafe loading facilities at the depot.

"This morning was the first time I'd heard of some of the grievances," said Mr. Whiteman. "I can't tell you any more than that. You will have to wait until company officials from Torono come down — and I'm not positive that they will be coming."

Mr. Banks, Eastern Ontario representative of Local 938, said the straw that broke the camel's back occurred Monday when "the company wouldn't send proper help to load piggyback at Trenton."

"Loading trailers on flatcars is a dangerous business and it's detrimental to a man's safety," he said, adding that truck drivers now are responsible for loading piggyback.

He said "top management" is coming to Belleville from Toronto and "we'll attempt to settle our problems. It's a question of local management not meeting the terms of our agreement, as far as working conditions are concerned."

Mr. Banks said the contract was signed by drivers and warehousemen on December 17, 1958, and expires in September, 1961.

"There has been no trouble," said Mr. Banks. "Everything is going fine."

Rotarians Told Cuba Treats Tourists Well

Cuba is a very relaxed country in which the tourist is made to feel very comfortable and is exceedingly well taken care of, local Rotarians were told yesterday afternoon by Dr. Sidney Rose. Dr. Rose, the guest speaker, was talking on his impressions of Cuba under the Castro government following a recent visit to that country.

Dr. Rose suggested that probably the reason for most of the confusion about Cuba is the fact that the Castro government is trying to do too much at once. An extensive school and hospital building program is going on throughout the country as well as various land reforms and the provision of cheap but modern housing for the working people and peons, he said. To effect these reforms and projects there have been numerous confiscations of land and property, but this has affected local owners just as much as it has foreign or American interests, the speaker observed.

LOT IMPROVES

Certainly the difference in the living conditions of the average worker and small farmer has changed considerably for the better from what they were under the former Batista regime, commented the speaker, who had previously visited the country. He advised his audience that the average wage in the sugar plantations has increased from 85 cents a day for 12 hours' work to $3.50 for eight hours' work.

Commentinfg on the current Cuban trade with the USSR, Dr. Rose stated that this apparently came about only after the United States, Canada, Great Britain and France, in that order, had refused to sell Cuba a few World War II aircraft. These were needed so the Cubans could patrol their coastline to discourage the bombing attacks by light aircraft operating out of Florida landing fields some 80 miles away. When Czechoslovakia offered Cuba the five aircraft it wanted it was the opening wedge for further trade with the Communist bloc.

Cubans do not appear to be worried about Communism, however, the speaker observed, and they do not regard it as being influential on their country and their lives. Castro appears to be a quiet, assured man quite full of energy, said the Queen's and University of Toronto alumnus. The impression which most North Americans hold of the Cuban premier as a fiery, demagogical type of person is a distorted view, suggested Dr. Rose, brought about by quoting his words out of context and by concentrating on pictures of the moments when he occasionaly exhibits an emotional outbreak.

Concluding his interesting address, Dr. Rose said that Cuba is now operating under a program aimed at making the county self - sufficient. Because of this certain luxuries are exceedingly hard to come by.

Questioned as to whether Canada might be able to render some service as an intermediary between Cuba and the United States, Dr. Rose said that he felt Canada could do a great deal in this direction but would probably follow the United States instead.

Denton Taylor thanked Dr. Rose for his remarks and observations and club president Bill Hurst confirmed the appreciation of the Rotarians.

Bank Robbers Elude Police

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)—Provincial police today called off the search for two suspected bank robbers in dense bush halfway between Victoriaville and Sherbrooke, about 125 miles east of Montreal.

A spokesman at search headquarters here said it was thought the men—suspected of a $1,800 bank holdup in the village of Ham Sud, near the search area—had eluded provincial police for the fourth time.

He said police had no idea where the men might be but suggested they could have escaped to Montreal.

A posse of 20 to 30 men armed with revolvers and two sub-machine guns had been searching for the men since the holdup last Thursday.

Little Is Known About Canadians' Fate in Congo

OTTAWA (CP)—Details were still vague today on the disposition of 247 Canadians in the strife-torn Congo—although word is trickling through of a few Canadians escaping.

External Affairs Minister Green said in the Commons Monday that communications with the newly-independent republic are poor.

The one Canadian official in Leopoldville, capital of the country which last week gained its independence from Belgium, was unable to learn the situation of Canadians scattered throughout the republic.

Mr. Green said, however, that most Canadian citizens in Leopoldville have been able to escape across the Congo River to Brazzaville in the former French Congo colony.

Roger Bull, acting trade commissioner at Leopoldville and the only Canadian government official in the republic, has sent his secretary, Miss Simone Morel, 42, and his wife and eight-months-old son on the five-mile ferry ride to Brazzaville.

NOW SAFE

A trade department official said late Monday night that Mrs. Bull, a native of Lindsay, Ont., and Miss Morel, from Montreal, were now "safe" in Brazzaville.

Mr. Bull, son of Frederick W. Bull, ambassador to Japan, stayed behind to work in th British Embassy at Leopoldville.

"The Canadian office and house in Leopoldville were undamaged," the official said.

Most of the 247 Canadians in the Congo are missionaries and their families, located at scattered up-country missions in th West African republic straddling the equator.

At Toronto, a spokesman for several missionary organizations with headquarters in Ontario said they had not heard from their workers in the Congo field since the country achieved independence.

One official, however, found some consolation in the belief that the African converts of the missionaries would stand by them.

FROM BEAMSVILLE

A. Earle Frid, Canadian secretary of the inter-denominational World Wide Evangelization Crusade, said a dozen Canadians trained at the crusade's Canadian headquarters at Beamsville, Ont., now are in the Congo. He spotted their locations as Imbabi, Nala, Paulis, Wamba, Niangara, Poko and Lubutu.

Mr. Frid said some of these missionaries had written shortly before the Congo achieved independence and said they had heard stories of threatening gestures from natives but they regarded the reports as exaggerated.

He said that in the 45 years the mission has been active in the region, it has made thousands of converts and built hundreds of churches.

"I feel sure they are permanent converts with a high standard of Christianity," said Mr. Frid. "They will stand true no matter what happens."

SINCE JANUARY

The leadership of the church in the area was handed over to natives in January.

The crusade missionaries now in the Congo are: Irene James, Toronto; Muriel Harman, Vancouver; Daisy Kingdon, Toronto; Hilda Martens, Abbottsford, B.C.; Colin Buckley and Mrs. Ina Buckley, both of Vancouver; Mrs. Mary Burgess, Dunnville, Ont.; Ruth Dyer, Haney, B.C., and Hilda Katona, Rainy River, Ont.

The Unevangelized Mission Fields Mission's Toronto office also reports no word from the many Canadians among the 55 Congo missionaries of the Philadelphia - based interdenominational mission.

Members of this group are largely in Stanleyville, said George Thomas, Canadian secretary.

Report Fires Immediately Says Ellis

TRENTON — Fire Chief Cecil Ellis has issued a plea to residents to report fires when they see them.

Chief Ellis said there have been numerous times lately when fires were not reported until it was too late to save the buildings involved because each person seeing the fire thought that someone else had called the department. An example of this was the fire on North Front St. in which Mrs. Hilda Calbury and Mr. Arthur Munro died several weeks ago.

Chief Ellis said it is important at this time of year to stop fires from spreading as soon as possible.

Not The Only Distraction

Once again we have seen a report on the effects of car ownership on scholarship.

The U.S. National Education Association says that 95 per cent of U.S. high school principals and teachers agree that a student owning his own car, or driving his father's car, gets lower marks than those who are carless. "One Idaho high school principal found that not a single straight-A student in his senior class had ready access to a car—but 83 per cent of his failing students and 71 per cent of his D students did!"

We do not question the accuracy of these figures, nor of the conclusion they suggest—that car ownership is a deterrent to good results at school.

At the same time surely we are not so naive as to regard this as startling news, nor to blame all or even most scholastic failures on the automobile.

There are some other things the possession of which is detrimental to scholarship.

There are, for example, girls—or boys if the student chances to be a girl. Any person who regards a car as more distracting than a cutey just has no experience with the results of worrying over a shimmy. The female of the species is many times more devastating to scholarship than the automotive type.

There is also the fact that cars and girls go together and, if it were possible to have one without the other, many of the car owners would find that garaging the automobile for the school term would do little or nothing to improve their grades.

Ought we not also to recognize that not everything that lowers performance at school is necessarily bad for the growing youngster? Besides cars and girls, other things which distract boys from their studies include pool, picnics, baby brothers, dice, chess, beetles, politics and peanuts. Granted, not all are as powerful distractions as cars or girls, but they all influence some boys. Girls are also influenced by a variety of things, including lipstick, hair curlers, dresses, shoes and even, in some few cases, dice, chess, beetles and politics. Some of these could be eliminated without any harmful results, but if one could erase them all from the lives of every teen-ager we should not want to be around to see the mess the world got in when they left school and had to learn all about these things while starting to try to make their own living.

As a former boy student, we stand firmly on the platform that girls, for instance, are essential.

We are not so sure about cars, but they may be the result of a prejudice based on the fact that they were not so plentiful in our student days.

A Wonderful Idea

"The principle that medical expenses beyond a certain level of income constitute a 'disaster' and hence should be at least partly a responsibility of the state is already written into our income tax laws," says the Winnipeg Free Press.

The only provision we know which bears even the slightest resemblance to the recognition of such a principle is the one which enables a man to escape paying income tax on money he spent for medical care, above three per cent of his income.

The Free Press, however, says: "If that principle were expanded to make available genuine security against financial distress caused by medical bills, any need for a compulsory state insurance plan would disappear."

The accuracy of that statement is self evident. Any time genuine security against financial distress from any particular cause is eliminated, the necessity for any other scheme to prevent that cause from causing financial distress is automatically eliminated.

We should, however, like to know how exemption from the payment of income tax on money spent for any purpose can be expanded to provide security against the handicap involved in making such payments.

If the Winnipeg Free Press can explain that point, it is obvious that the system could be extended to more than medical expenses and we could all be guaranteed against financial hardship in any form by merely being relieved of paying income tax on unavoidable expenditures.

Such a system would have even the most Utopian dreams of socialists and Socreds beaten to a frazzle.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

KNOWING GOD'S WILL

A philosopher once said that man has just two main duties in life — duties which embrace all his other activities. One of these is to know God's will; the other is to do it.

Though this philosophy may be stated simply, it is not a simple one to practise. Even the most devout Christians do not always find it easy to know God's will. Human affairs are complex, and accordingly God's will is complex, too. There is no single, easy rule for all to follow.

A first step to knowing God's will is to ask Him, in prayer, to reveal it, praying earnestly and sincerely for guidance as to what is right to do. The very act of stating our problem clearly to God often shows us, even as we put our question to Him, that there is only one answer. It is not always an easy answer, but it is the one to which love and charity direct us.

When we have asked to know God's will, we should be willing to listen to His answer. Sometimes our understanding of His will is not clear because we are so rushed by daily pressures, so distracted by demands of work, and time, and money, that we have not given ourselves the chance to hear. "Be still and know that I am God."

Fishing for the Birds

National Geographic Bulletin

Japanese fishermen use cormorants to catch trout in one of the world's most unusual angling operations.

For the long-necked birds, it's a somewhat frustrating experience since a ring around the neck of each allows them to swallow only the smallest fish. But for visitors, watching the cormorant fishing is one of Japan's most fascinating sights.

A good place to witness this ancient Japanese custom is on the Nagara river near Gifu, about 170 miles west of Tokyo. The fishermen work on summer nights, for a Japanese saying holds that "the beauty of summer is in its night, especially when the moon is shining".

Some observers watch the fishing from the river banks, but many prefer to board a restaurant-boat where they can dine while observing the beauty of the sight. As darkness sets in, gaily-lit craft filled with sightseers gather to await the cormorants.

Suddenly there is a sound of drums. In the distance appear the tiny lights of the fishing boats. The drums beat louder. Fireworks go off. Flares illuminate the sky. The first boat heaves in sight.

• • •

Amidships an assistant fisherman handles four birds. A sailor strikes a bamboo instrument to encourage them in their work, while a fourth man steers the boat.

At a signal, the cormorants swoop into the water and begin gobbling up fish that have been attracted by the light and noise. The master fisherman eggs them on by beating the side of the ship with a stick and shouting "Ho! Ho!" When he jerks a line, the bird on the end comes up and disgorges the fish it can't swallow. The master has to use all his skill to keep the birds from fouling their lines as they dash madly about in search of fish.

Depriving the birds of their catch seems cruel to many spectators but the cormorants need no sympathy. Some become so gorged with the small fish they swallow that the fishermen have to haul them aboard and remove some of the fish so the birds can continue working. A good bird can catch as many as 150 fish an hour.

The cormorants are caught young and carefully trained for their task. They are well cared for during the seven-month off-season and may live to a ripe age of 10 or 15 years.

• • •

Cormorants are familiar around the world. Englishmen used them for fishing several centuries ago. In the 17th century, King James I had a masters of cormorants as well as a falconer. But the sport has declined since.

In the wild, cormorants are active and dive energetically all day long. They may plunge 40 feet below the surface to get their prey. They have good appetites, eating as much as half their weight in a day.

The birds nest in the spring, usually on narrow ledges of high cliffs. The young get their pabulum by rummaging around in their parents' throat pouches for suitable morsels. Often a youngster's whole head seems to disappear down its parent's throat.

Strictly Personal

Language Of Command Universal

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Michael liked the trapeze performers best of all, and Barbie was fascinated by the man shot out of a cannon, but what interested me most at the circus was the language of command.

So far as I can tell, it is an artificial and international language that is not spoken anywhere on earth, except in situations of command. Bears understand it, and horses, and lions, and seals. So do soldiers.

The animal trainers at the circus came from many lands and spoke many tongues; yet all spoke the same sharp syllables to their animals, and were given quick response. It is a brusque staccato language, which depends on throat sounds more than tongue or lips, and must go far back to the primitive antecedents of mankind.

English is definitely not a language of command. It is too open and front-of-the-mouth. A drill sergeant never uses English to bring out the smartest in his troops: he reverts to the clipped, harsh, feral tones of the forest. "Harp, schtip, rraack, ggrungg!" is what the average drill command sounds like to the unmilitary ear.

Even the newsie hawking papers deserts the English tongue in order to achieve maximum impact. Nobody can understand a good newsie's cry, nor are we supposed to. He is reverting to a jungle-like call for attention. If he shouted in clearly cadenced English, the passersby would scarcely glance his way.

German (at least in its Prussian form) is much closer to the language of command, and this affinity may be related to the excessively martial history of the Germanic peoples. Teutonic orders somehow sound more authentic than ours, and almost approach the lion-tamer's growl of intensity.

French and Italian armies have been gallant in action, but nobody would call them military people — and the French and Italian languages bear this out: they are graceful, subtle, liquid and melodious. They are languages for making love or making puns or making deals — but not for making war.

The language used by all circus people, no matter what their origin, is the same everywhere, understood with alacrity by Arabian horses and Alaskan bears and Indian tigers and American dogs. One might almost call it a prelanguage, harking back to the deep instinctual roots of man's ancient supremacy over the animal world. If civilization means anything, it must mean the gradual substitution of persuasion for command.

Mounties Now Get the Girl

Toronto Star

The martinets of the RCMP have at last decided that the way of a man with a maid is something with which they must reckon. They have relaxed regulations to allow a Mountie to marry at age 21.

Until now, the old saw that a policeman's lot is not a happy one was especially true of the RCMP. Members of the force could not secure permission to marry until they had served satisfactorily for five years in uniform.

As a result, recruiting had fallen in recent years.

It was all very well to lure recruits with the glamor of the force, but the glamor of a girl can exert a powerful counteraction. Between the romantic traditions of the redcoats, and the romantic attraction of a damsel, the RCMP was too often a second choice.

Relaxation of the marriage restrictions seems sensible, in light of the need to keep the RCMP at strength. The marry-at-21 sanction will doubtless attract a new crop of young men to don the uniform, who will live up to the great traditions of their seniors.

That is, they will soon learn to get their man. The new feature is that they will also be able to get their girl.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

July 12th, 1940

Unheralded and driving his first race, 13-year-old Donald McGowan of Stirling, Ont., won the fifth annual Belleville Kinsmen Club Soap Box Derby, sponsored by the Ontario Intelligencer, besting 74 other youthful drivers from all parts of Eastern Ontario, down Derby Hill in Belleville last night. Upwards of 5,000 lined the race course to see young McGowan ride to triumph in winning the Canadian Soap Box Derby championship of 1940, for which he was presented the M. E. Coyle Trophy, and earned for himself the right to compete in the World's Championship Soap Box Derby at Akron, Ohio, next month. Prior to the race the youthful drivers paraded up Derby Hill before the large assembly, headed by the Belleville Municipal Band. The drivers were bedecked in their white racing jerseys and metal crash helmets presented them by the Chevrolet Division of the General Motors. Also in the parade were the previous winners of the Belleville Kinsmen Soap Box Derby, Ernie Young, the Wilson brothers and Walt Turner.

Give Castro Much Power

Montreal Gazette

In his Saturday speech, Premier Khrushchev came very close to publicly offering a unilateral guarantee of both the territory and the present government of Cuba, in the event of American armed intervention. Fortunately, when referring to Soviet support, he qualified his statement by saying "figuratively speaking, if need be . . ." Nevertheless, the speech was a threatening, dangerous and irresponsible one.

President Eisenhower had little choice but to make a reply. In order not to appear "second-best" in this public display of power and intention, he also was forced to make an extreme statement. This was probably deliberately intended to be a version of the traditional Monroe Doctrine, interpreted in terms of modern dangers. The United States would never, according to the President, permit "the establishment of a regime dominated by international Communism in the Western Hemisphere."

It is to be wondered whether either Premier Khrushchev or President Eisenhower realize the danger of explicit public statements of this type, at this time. Certainly, the two pronouncements give great power to Premier Castro of Cuba, a man who has never demonstrated the ability to use power in a responsible manner.

If Cuba were now to declare itself a Communist state, and to request the full support of the Soviet Union, Premier Khrushchev, because of his public statement, would have difficulty refusing support. President Eisenhower, because of his public statement, would have difficulty refraining from using armed intervention to prevent the establishment of a Communist state in the Western Hemisphere.

It is wise for the two greatest powers in the world to give an unstable nation the opportunity to exercise such influence on their policies?

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

WHAT TO DO ABOUT PARKINSON'S DISEASE

What can you do about Parkinson's Disease? Quite a lot.

First, do not dwell on the fact that the infirmity exists. True it is more difficult for a person to move, and the tremor or trembling is a nuisance — but it is far less an affliction than so many other things we know about. There is no hazard to life; there is no loss of hearing, vision, mental activity, etc. So avoid pity, excessive sympathy and the like, which serve only to make the trouble seem worse than it truly is.

Second, in clothing, zippers should be substituted for buttons. This makes dressing easier. Frequently-used articles in the home should be placed where they are readily accessible without undue reaching or groping.

Third, physiotherapy helps — and in this regard I put special emphasis on a very simple but useful thing: special exercises which can be performed at home. These can be readily learned at rehabilitation centres which these days are operating in most large communities. The exercises are not difficult, but they lessen the rigidity of muscles, improve balance, posture, co-ordination and gait.

Fourth, warm baths are helpful. (Relaxing, for one thing.)

Fifth, the patient should keep busy, or be kept occupied. He should be encouraged, quietly but helpfully. If he (or she) is still in business, moving his desk where he is not quite so conspicuous if his hand trembles as he writes or dials a phone. This may be a useful factor in making him more self-confident.

Sixth, various drugs can ease the muscular tension. There are a variety of them, and it is sometimes advantageous to change from one to another from time to time, depending on the effectiveness. Hence regular attention by the doctor is sound practice.

Seventh, and last, and most spectacular when it is suitable for a particular case and is successfully performed, is surgery. Since a very localized area in the brain is responsible for the muscle tension and tremors, it is possible in some severe cases to resort to surgery. In such cases, this small area is "short-circuited," or "paralyzed," with the result that the trembling or palsy, is mitigated.

This is a matter of brain surgery and therefore not a simple procedure to be attempted without due reason. All the same, in cases which warrant it, and give indications of success, surgery is proving to be effective.

Since medical treatment (all the things I discussed in the first six items today) is usually effective and helpful, it should be given a thorough trial before resorting to surgery. As always, my advice will continue to be: try the simplest, least expensive, safest remedies first, unless there is compelling reason for using drastic methods at once. And in this case, there is no need for haste.

Incidentally, as our older population increases, we naturally must expect Parkinson's disease to become more frequent. On the other hand, such cases, earlier in life, which are due to serious brain infection (encephalitis and the like) are decreasing.

"Dear Dr. Molner: What is the difference between low blood sugar and low blood pressure? — V. R. T."

The same difference as the pressure with which water spurts from a faucet, and the amount of "hardness" in the water. In other words there's no connection. The two can occur in the same person but one does not cause the other. Low blood sugar refers to the amount of sugar in the blood. Low blood pressure refers to the tension under which it is pumped through the body. "Low blood pressure" usually refers to a systolic pressure below 100.

Earp Flunked The Egg Test

Montreal Star

Wyatt Earp suffered serious loss of face at Niagara Falls. The eminent sheriff was present when a young Lithuanian threw an egg at the mayor of Moscow. Earp tried to stop him. He failed. Some accounts even state that his efforts only succeeded in deflecting the egg on to the mayor's coat. He then tried to catch the egg-thrower who, however, eluded him.

This is a lamentable performance. Colonel (Buffalo Bill) Cody used to think nothing of tossing an egg into the air and shooting it down before it hit the ground. He performed this feat twice daily for years. This man Earp couldn't even catch an egg with both hands.

Next time we see Earp on television, we're going to boo.

Politicians In Filmland

Brockville Recorder and Times

South African External Affairs Minister Eric Louw, who was on a hot spot at the recent Commonwealth conference over the Union's Apartheid policy, once took a crack at movie acting in Hollywood.

He played the part of a sheriff in a Western but apparently the call of politics was stronger and he has served South Africa for many years.

However, Hollywood has another politician in its midst. He is Anthony Nutting, minister of state in the Eden government. He is working now as a public relations aide for producer Sam Spiegel. It is Nutting's first visit to the movie capital to plug a picture.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

WASTE NO STROKES

One of the most interesting studies in this world is a "great" man or woman. I have known a great many of them intimately and have become acquainted with many. As have you.

About the first thing you notice is that he or she is about the same in looks as anybody else. Each differs from the ordinary in not being ordinary. But the most characteristic thing about either is that he — or she — wastes no strokes. Each works simply. And to the point.

If one is a business man, he gives the handling and working out of details to others. Though he always remains master of them himself. His mind grasps quickly, and it travels far. Go into his office and you see his desk clean. He has time to think. The great man concentrates. He does one thing and then passes quickly to the next. For there always is a "next one" to the man of action. Waste is a product of misdirection.

Note the expert golfer. In golf, it is not the power put into the stroke, half as much as in the way the stroke is executed, that gives the long distance to the ball.

Take your time. Think out carefully, in advance, the thing you want to see done. Then do it without wasting any strokes.

It takes courage to be big. The beginning process is always slow. Sometimes it is a long wait. Lincoln once said he knew his time would come, so he determined to keep preparing for it so he would be ready.

Be patient. Be strong. Be willing. Be helpful. Waste no strokes. Your turn will then come — soon enough.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The vogue of sun glasses has increased sharply this year partly because the beatniks and other intellectuals took up the fashion from the Hollywood and Florida backyard barbecue set, but also, according to a sun glass salesman I encountered, because shy people have discovered what a boon they are.

"Good big black sun glasses," said he, "are the perfect mask. The type of shy person who sits in agony in a bus unable to look at anybody can, from behind this mask, stare about with the greatest composure. As one fellow told me, he has always been petrified of pretty girls. If a real pretty girl comes within his view, he goes into a coma of shyness. But now, he says, with good black sun glasses, he can pretend to be facing forty-five degrees away from her, while, with his eyes slanted in her direction, all unseen, he can feast his vision."

So good a mask are they that bank robbers have taken to them. And in many poker playing circles, dark glasses are taboo. Anybody can be poker-faced behind smoked glass.

But the optometrist who fixes my reading glasses says you can even do more harm to your vision with the wrong sun glasses than in watching TV. Copyright: Canada Wide

FRESH ATTEMPT

The Bomarc offered no possibility of any real defence. It could not even differentiate between bombers and decoys.

He also suggested that Canada's contribution to North American Air Defence Command was "just a joke." The government had said that Congress should provide funds for Bomarc production but it wouldn't provide funds for a new RCAF jet interceptor.

Mr. Pearkes said Canada has lived up to all its NORAD commitments. No decision had yet been taken on possible replacement of the CF-100 interceptor in the nine home defence squadrons.

Mr. Hellyer said the government has only half an air defence policy which didn't jibe with Mr. Pearkes' own statements.

ASKS ELIMINATION

Mr. Winch later moved that the Canada-U.S. NORAD agreement be eliminated and a new one negotiated on the basis that NORAD was only a warning system for the U.S. As a defensive system for Canada, NORAD did not exist.

Mr. Pearkes said NORAD embraces all means of defence as well as a warning system.

Mr. Winch said it is useless against missile aggression.

Mr. Pearkes agreed that its weapons are not effective against missile attack "at the present time." But if war came in the next few years the main attack would be by bombers.

Mr. Winch's motion didn't come to a vote because there was no seconder.

lot Wednesday night (midnight EDT).

This situation spawned feverish activity on the part of Democrats of all shades of opinion hoping to get in on the ground floor of what they hope will become the first Democratic administration in Washington in eight years.

Missouri's favorite son, Senator Stuart Symington, was reported slowly recognizing the inevitability of Kennedy's nomination.

WON'T BE SECOND

Would Symington accept second place on the ticket? No, replied the senator's closest friends.

Governor David L. Lawrence of Pennsylvania, who led a majority of his state's 81 votes to Kennedy, thought a Kennedy-Symington ticket would be the best the party could offer.

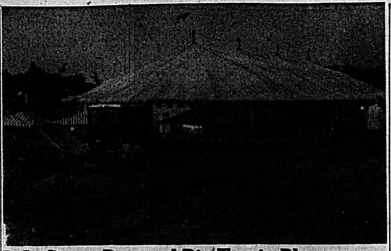
This surge was bolstered by the fact that Symington is a middle westerner, is more mature in years than Kennedy, has an agricultural voting record regarded as much more pleasing to the farmers than that of the Massachusetts senator, and is acceptable to the South.

If Kennedy is nominated, he plans to choose his running mate from the West. Mentioned as possibilities are Governor Orville Freeman of Minnesota, Governor Herschel Loveless of Iowa and Senator Henry Jackson of Washington state.

ENDORSE SIT-DOWNS

This was the public talk, the major talk, but behind it was the brooding darkness of the split between North and South. The party's platform committee had met in private. After a great battle of words, it finally agreed on a majority vote to recommend what amounts to endorsement of the Negro lunch-counter sit-in strikes in the deep South.

These strikes or demonstrations, demanding the right to eat at the white man's lunch tables, have been bitterly opposed by southern Democrats, or "Dixiecrats."



It Is Circus Day and Big Top in Place On Zwick's Island Here for One-Day Stand

Today is Circus Day. And that's no fooling. It was officially proclaimed as such last week by Mayor A. McLean Haig.

The Clyde Beatty-Cole Brothers circus, boasting the continent's largest big top and menageries, arrived overnight from Peterborough for a one-day stand at Zwick's Island before moving on to Kingston tonight.

The circus—the last travelling circus in existence in North America, featuring a full- two-hour card in the big top—was brought by the Kiwanis Club of Belleville. The club received 50 per cent of advance ticket sales and 10 per cent of the gate receipts for use in its work among various Kiwanis-sponsored local organizations.

Doors open at seven o'clock tonight and performances in the big top start at eight.

Hundreds of people attended the matinee under sunny skies and a slight, refreshing breeze from the west.

The big top and other tents, housing the travelling zoo, side shows, dressing rooms, horse tops and cook house, the canvas spread of nostalgic North American tradition, early today began to rise in picturesque circus pattern on the busy lot.

Scores of youngsters and oldsters were at the scene before breakfast, looking for the odd jobs that traditionally are reserved for local people.

ELEPHANTS RAISE POLES

While lions and tigers grumbled inside a large trailer truck, a dozen elephants were busy nearby raising huge poles under the 5,000-seat big top. Half of the seats were for reserved seat ticket holders while the remaining 2,500 were set aside for the general admission crowd.

The 600 people with the circus arrived while Belleville was asleep. By noon, the circus was ready for business.

Heading the star-studded roster of world renowned circus personalities are Clude Beatty, whose scarred body bears mute testimony to the fact that the big cats he trains under the big top aren't playful tabby cats; the Seitz - Mendez high - wire daredevils; Pinito del Oro, Spain's lovely "Goddess of Balanced Flight", who soars aloft while standing on her head on the bar of her wide - swinging trapeze; Gallaso, the man who stands on his forefinger; the Victors, an aerial comedy team; and many others.

Tickets are available until 5 p.m. at Bill Cook's Cigar Store on Front St. Tickets will be available on the circus grounds.

rassed. The widow of the president repeated what she had said in the presence of Stevenson earlier in the day—that front - running Senator John Kennedy couldn't win the presidency because of his religion and because of how the Negroes felt about him.

The embarrassment for Stevenson apparently is deepened by the fact that Kennedy, with the nomination virtually in his pocket, may offer the secretary of state portfolio to Stevenson if success materializes and the Democrats form the administration in 1961.

There also is a move to have Stevenson sweep aside the wishes of his persistent supporters and nominate Kennedy on Wednesday, just as Kennedy nominated Stevenson four years ago.

Apparently Mrs. Roosevelt isn't going to buy any of this. Stevenson is the better man, she said. Kennedy, a Roman Catholic, would be handicapped by his religion. The Negro vote might also go against him.

DROPPED A BOMBSHELL

Then, answering in a sweet, low voice, Mrs. Roosevelt dropped another bombshell.

Asked whether she agreed with former president Harry S. Truman, who maintains the convention is rigged in Kennedy's favor, Mrs. Roosevelt replied:

"I've never known a convention that wasn't rigged."

For political reasons, delegates were reluctant to insist on their rights, she added. But simply because the convention may be rigged is no reason to stay away as Truman is doing.

"I'm here," she said.

TRUMAN SAYS

tion is not Dwight Eisenhower, whether the 'strong' or the 'weak;' it is not Richard Nixon, whether the 'new' or the 'old'; the issue is our country's course —whether we can risk another four-year ride on the Republican train."

Who ordered the taming of the keynote speech? No one seemed to know, and Church wasn't saying. But the new party pattern was more in line with the personality of Kennedy than the "hell-and-fire" of Truman.

POSSIBLE CHANGE

American planes flying from British bases.

That was the first reaction to Russia's claim to have shot down another U.S. reconnaissance aircraft over Soviet territory.

The missing RB-47 took off from the U.S. Air Force base at Brize Norton, England — near Oxford—and many Britons want to know whether its flight was first sanctioned by Macmillan.

In a note to Macmillan's government, Soviet Premier Khrushchev accused Britain of being a "direct participant" in aggressive American acts and with assuming heavy responsibility for the possible consequences.

The Daily Mail (Conservative) in a front-page editorial today concedes that such secrecy is necessary but said "to disclose whether or not Britain is consulted before any American flight which may involve her in a grave international incident is a different matter.

"There is reason to believe," said The Mail, "that she is not always consulted. It is said that the agreement which allows our government to veto operational flights by U.S. aircraft does not cover reconnaissance flights."

The liberal Guardian of Manchester expresses doubt that for a spy flight the U.S. would use "a rather old-fashioned bomber" which "would be an easy target for fighters once detected".

But it asks:

"What was it doing on the Murmansk coast, if it really was there? How could it have got so far off the innocent course appropriate to its ostensible purpose of electro-magnetic survey?"

The right-wing Daily Express comments that the Russians "conduct many expeditions close to other nations' territories not only with aircraft, but also with submarines and trawlers."

"They least of all have any right to turn this unhappy incident into an international crisis."

In Paris, the right-wing L'Aurore terms the shooting down of the plane a "bombshell" by Premier Khrushchev to take advantage of the election period in the United States.

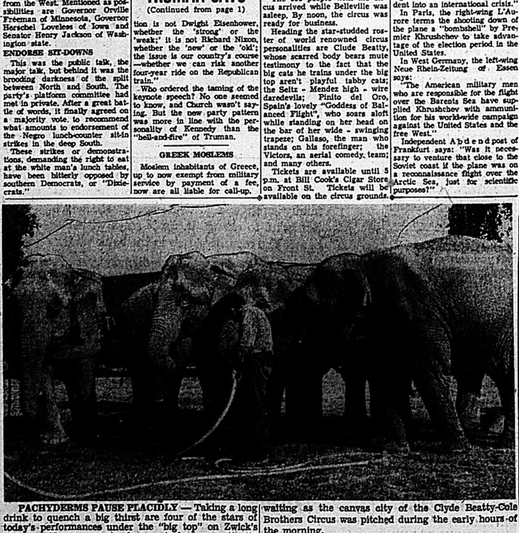
"The American military men who are responsible for the flight over the Barents Sea have supplied Khrushchev with ammunition for his world-wide campaign against the United States and the free West."

Independent Abdendpost of Frankfurt says: "Was it necessary to venture that close to the Soviet coast if the plane was on a reconnaissance flight over the Arctic Sea, just for scientific purposes?"



PACHYDERMS PAUSE PLACIDLY — Taking a long drink to quench a big thirst are four of the stars of today's performances under the "big top" on Zwick's Island. Numerous animals were to be seen patiently waiting as the canvas city of the Clyde Beatty-Cole Brothers Circus was pitched during the early hours of the morning.

MR. K. AND IKE

Eisenhower ordered U.S. officials to make no comment until he could study a full report from the state and defence departments on Moscow's charges.

Khrushchev asserted that "the ruling quarters in the United States, with the connivance of their allies in aggressive blocs, are obviously provoking a serious military conflict" and warned:

"The Soviet Union and our allies . . . will be able to rebuff any aggressor."

Khrushchev said that since the plane was stopped as it began its intrusion over Soviet territory, "the Soviet government limited itself to destroying the aircraft."

"The surviving members of the crew will be brought to court in accordance with Soviet laws," he continued. "Let the provocateurs and the executors of their ill-will not count on such actions going unpunished."

"ACTS OF AGGRESSION"

The incident, Khrushchev asserted, "testified that the U.S. government has not abandoned the policy of committing acts of aggression against the Soviet Union."

"The American people, like the whole world public, must know the truth. They must know taht the U.S. government is conducting a dangerous game with the destinies of the world, the destinies of the peoples."

In an opening statement, Khrushchev repeated the foreign ministry's account Monday that the U.S. plane intruded over Soviet territorial waters near Svyatoy Nos Cape, a 10-mile long projection into the Barents Sea from the Kola Peninsula; that it headed for Archangel, the Soviet arctic seaport 240 miles to the south, and that it failed to follow signal orders from a Soviet fighter plane to follow it and land. Two members of the crew were found.

"From their depositions, it became known that the six-engined RB-47 plane left an American military base on British territory, and was to have flown along the northern frontiers of the Soviet Union on an espionage mission and then to return to Britain."

Khrushchev also echoed his government's protest notes Monday to Britain and Norway.

His complaint against Norway was not clear. A Soviet note to the United States said the plane was to return to its British base, not to Norwegian soil.

The Norwegian foreign office in a statement Monday night said the first it knew of the RB-47's flight was the request for planes searching for it to land in Norway.

Russia did not disclose that it had shot down the American plane until Monday night—just a day after U.S. authorities had abandoned the 11-day search for the missing aircraft. The big turbo-prop plane carried a crew of six.

Presbyterians Hold Training Course for WMS

This week at Albert College Belleville, approximately 100 women are attending a five-day conference at the fourth annual Presbyterian Women's Missionary Society training centre, which is being conducted for the WMS synodical lay leaders of Montreal-Ottawa, Toronto, Kingston and Hamilton-London.

This includes children's, girls' and adult leaders' work, as well as officers' work, and centres around Bible study in the form of lectures, and teaching methods both in Sunday Schools and in mid-week group meetings. For adults it is an aid in the matter of facing each day in the Christian life with the various perplexities encountered. It also takes in every phase of workshop methods which deals with handiwork, and the "how-to-do".

The staff is composed of missionaries, both home and foreign, who deal with missionary work directly and indirectly with a workshop presenting the mission study for the year.

Four protestant denominations, Anglican, Baptist, Presbyterian and United Church, each has the same Mission Study with its own particular group adapting the common theme, "Into All the World Together", for its peculiar need.

Big Brewery Deal Looms

LONDON (CP) — Northern Breweries of Great Britain, controlled by E. P. Taylor of Toronto, has made a £4,000,000 takeover bid for Webbs, which operates 98 public houses in southern England and Wales.

The Financial Times says directors of Webbs have recommended that a share exchange offer be accepted.

If the deal goes through, says the newspaper, Webbs will continue to operate under its own name and its chairman, B. M. Lindsay-Fynn, will join Northern Breweries as vice-chairman.

Clifton Gamble, Consecon Lake tourist cabin operator, and son-in-law, Fred Clarke, hold 40-pound turtle trapped by visiting Americans. Americans have been trapping turtles in the lake for the past four summers.

Americans Make Large Haul Of Consecon Lake Turtles Weighing up to 50 Pounds

Already well known for its excellent bass fishing, Consecon Lake in Prince Edward county is also well on its way to becoming noted for its turtle trapping.

At least turtle trapping is the big attraction for two Canton, Ohio, summer holidayers who each season make the trek to the marsh area of the Prince Edward county lake.

One of the Ohio parties returned home last weekend loaded down with live turtles and iced turtle meat while the other half of the party is remaining over for more turtle hunting.

Ike Shaffer and Joseph Hann, both of Canton, during their week's stay, trapped 60 turtles weighing up to 50 pounds each. Their 2,500 pounds of "on the hoof" turtle [illegible] just too much liveweight to transport in their two wheeled vacation trailer.

Two other Canton holidayers, Bob and Clarence Marks, are staying over another week in an effort to boost their catch. To date they have caught 40 turtles, the biggest of them weighing about 40 pounds, for a total of about a half of ton liveweight.

Turtle soup and turtle chowder is apparently a delicacy hard to come by in the Ohio area, hence the attraction of Consecon Lake as a turtle hunting spot.

Turtle meat across the border sells for $1.35 per pound, and a dish of weak turtle soup in a restaurant costs 35 cents.

But the turtle trapping areas in that particular area across the border are just about depleted.

Clifton Gamble, tourist cabin operator on Consecon Lake says turtle trapping by the Americans has been going on at the lake for the past four years.

Four years ago Mr. Shaffer and Mr. Hann happened to drive by the lake and noticed the extensive marsh area in the west end of the lake where they felt certain there would be turtles to trap.

"They asked us if there were any turtles in the lake," noted Mr. Gamble, "When assured there were, they were all set to stay over and try their luck."

But the Gamble cabins were all taken so the Americans agreed to sleep in the Gamble barn while they tended their turtle traps.

The turtle trapping was so encouraging that they and the Marks brothers have been back each year since.

This year the Gamble cabins were again filled up when the Marks brothers arrived and they had to secure accommodation at the east end of the lake at Brady's cabins.

Trapping of the turtles is done with nets similar to minnow nets but on a much larger scale. The nets are placed partially submerged in the water and anchored to the cattails. Bait is placed in the net.

Mr. Turtle spots the bait, crawls into the net and then cannot get out.

The traps are checked twice daily, morning and evening.

The trapped turtle are kept alive in a special box on the lake shore until the hunt is over. Then if the load is not too great they are transported alive back to Canton. Back home the turtle meat is canned.

But the American visitors don't wait until next winter to enjoy their turtle soup. During their stay at camp, the soup pot is frequently heated up and everyone enjoys a dish of turtle chowder.

"We are actually glad to see the turtles trapped," noted Fred Clarke, son in law of Mr. Gamble. "Turtles can kill a lot of fish as well as kill their share of wild ducks".

"Anyway", interjected Mr. Gamble, "No one around these parts seems to be interested either in turtles or in turtle soup".

"For my part I like the turtle soup, but I don't want no part of the turtles".

BIRTH PANGS

In the last few months relations between the United States and Russia have reached their lowest point in years; tiny Cuba has become a major problem through Russian interference; the Americans will have to make efforts perhaps far broader and more intense than any ever made before to keep Latin America on the side of the United States.

REDS ARE READY

There will be the task of devising some new means, hardly considered necessary until recently, to keep the new republics of Africa out of communism; to prevent communism from getting ahead in weapons; to stand off Red China which in these next 10 years will probably become powerful and aggressive in a way unimagined now.

In these next 10 years, unless the signs are wrong, the world may be in a turmoil yet undreamed of.

Actually, these last 10 years—for the Communist world—were only a decade of preparation for the decade of the 1960s.

Federation Women's Clubs To Discuss World Problems

By EDNA BLAKELY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP)—More than 400 women here for the 30th anniversary meeting of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs today looked beyond their Canadian problems to tackle world affairs.

The morning session was to be devoted to the federation's role in the United Nations. Leading the discussions was to be Mrs. W. F. Baylay formerly of Brampton, Ont., and now of Moorestown, N.J.

At Monday's opening session of the five-day meeting, Mrs. Margaret Ashdown of Toronto reported that almost 70 per cent of Canadian federation clubs had special programs to commemorate United Nations Day in 1959.

Earlier, employment conditions chairman Eleanor Morely of Vancouver told delegates that equality of opportunity was the greatest problem of women interested in following careers in professions, business or other fields of employment. Her committee recommends that employers evaluate a job then consider applicants with regard to qualifications rather than the person's sex.

IS DISAPPOINTED

Miss Morely, co-ordinator of women's employment for the Pacific region of the National Employment Service, said the committee is disappointed at the response by employers to legislation passed by the federal government and seven provincial governments calling for equal pay for women.

New Brunswick, Newfoundland and Quebec are the three provinces without equal pay legislation, she said.

In many organizations equal-pay rates were established as a starting rate but the salaries differed at higher levels.

Victoria Ave. W.M.C. Views Indian Curios

The June meeting of Victoria Avenue Baptist Senior Women's Mission Circle was held in the form of a picnic pot-luck supper on the spacious lawn at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. Eric Quirk, Deseronto. Husbands were invited and many responded to the invitation.

Grace was said by the Rev. Gordon Woodcock after which the circle served itself from a buffet table spread with all kinds of delectable food, with a special dessert treat for all, a big slice of strawberry shortcake and all the trimmings made by Mrs. Eric Quirk.

Following the supper, the ladies and their husbands adjourned to the house, where a short meeting was held with president, Mrs. A. Orr, presiding. Mr. Quirk opend the meeting with prayer.

Mrs. Woodcock gave an interesting account of the Church Convention held in June at "McMaster University", Hamilton. She told of the eight new missionariess being sent to India, Bolivia and Africa.

Collection was taken and the regular order of business was dispensed with.

Mrs. Quirk gave a lesson on how to pronounce correctly some of the names in India of the Mission stations. Mr. and Mrs. Eric Quirk spent many years in India as Baptist missionaries.

On behalf of the Circle, Miss E. Nurse extended thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Quirk for their gracious hospitality.

The meeting closed by Mr. Woodcock.

Before leaving for home, all went to the recreation room where they were shown many curios and souvenirs that Mr. and Mrs. Quirk had brought back from India. Even the collection was taken in a tray, that had been used in a Temple in India.

Wedding

SOLMES — CUNNINGHAM

FRANKFORD — A lovely double-ring wedding ceremony was solemnized on Saturday morning, July 9th, at 11 a.m. in the Pentecostal Church, Peterborough, when the Rev. James Stevenson of Peterborough, and the Rev. Gordon Pierce of Frankford, united in marriage Doris Marian Cunningham, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Cunningham, of Peterborough, and Reginald E. Solmes, son of Mr. W. P. Solmes of Kitchener, and the late Mrs. Solmes.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Mr. R. C. Cuningham, Springfield, Missouri, was lovely in a floor-length gown of silk organza over satin, fashioned in fitted bodice and Alencon lace yoke trimmed with sequins and short shirred sleeves. The full skirt featured Alencon lace panels from front waist and formed a train effect, at back with scattered Alencon lace appliques. Her headdress of silk illusion was caught to a cap of organza and Alencon lace trimmed with tear drop seed pearls and she carried a cathedral cascade of gardenias and trailing ivy.

Her attendants were: matron of honor, Mrs. Ronald Best, cousin of the bride, and bridesmaid Miss Merilyn Fee, niece of the bride, who wore ballerina-length gowns of silk organza over taffeta in candy pink with puffed sleeves, scoop neckline and large bow at back with matching headdress and short veils. They wore white shoes and gloves and carried cascades of white carnations and Sweetheart roses matching their dresses.

The junior bridesmaid, Miss Judith Cunningham, niece of the bride, wore a dress of light pink organza over taffeta in the same style as the other attendants with matching headdress and short veil. She carried a colonial bouquet of pink roses, white carnations and sweet peas.

The groomsman was Mr. Bert Pinsett of Brockville, Ontario, and the ushers were: Mr. Cecil Solmes, brother of the bridegroom of Penetang, Ontario, and Mr. Frank Cunningham, brother of the bride, of Peterborough.

The reception was held in the Empress Hotel, where Mrs. Victor Fee, sister of the bride, received the guests, wearing a dress of blue organza over printed taffeta with white accessories and corsage of white carnations. She was assisted by Mrs. Earl Wood, cousin of the bridegroom, wearing a printed pink organza over taffeta with white accessories and corsage of deep pink Sweetheart roses.

The bride's table held dainty vases of summer flowers and a three-tiered wedding cake. The soloist sang "The Lord is My Shepherd."

The wedding music was rendered by Mrs. Spurgeon Johnsson and soloist was Mr. Roy Howard, who sang the selections "O Perfect Love," "Saviour Like a Shepherd Lead Us" and "Together."

The church altar was decorated with standards of white shasta 'mums, pink carnations and roses and stands of fern.

For their wedding trip to points east, the bride chose a linen sheath dress in white, embroidered with pink, pink hat and gloves, white shoes and purse and wore a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses.

The couple will live in Peterborough and later will be pastoring a church in Ontario.

Previous to the marriage a personal shower by Mrs. Victor Fee, sister of the bride, a miscellaneous shower by Mrs. Harry Halcrow and Mrs. Ronald Best, cousins of the bride, a linen shower in the home of Mrs. Bill Baker, a linen shower by the ladies of Elim Tabernacle, a miscellaneous shower by the Pentecostal Church, a presentation at the home of Miss Kay Milliard by the Out class.

Governor-General's Daughter Handles Medical Instruments As Deftly as Parlor Teacups

By ELIZABETH MOTHERWELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—A woman who could live in one of Canada's most stately mansions chooses instead to walk hospital corridors.

Dr. Therese Vanier, only daughter of Governor - General and Mme. Vanier, handles medical instruments as deftly as drawing room teacups. She's equally at home whether mingling in the diplomatic world or as a physician to underprivileged children.

The 37 -year- old pediatrician, who resembles both parents in finely sculptured features and easy way with people, spoke of her career in an interview during a visit to Government House between hospital postings.

Until recently on the staff of London's Great Ormond Street Hospital for children, she now plans a year of post-graduate work at Boston City Hospital, doing blood research in relation to children's diseases.

CLOSER TO HOME

"Boston is more accessible to Ottawa than London," she said, explaining her decision to return to North America.

Her London hospital day began at 8:30 a.m. and finished anytime after 7 p.m. "It was certainly different to this."

Dr. Vanier was born in England and has spent 25 years there. Two of her brothers were born at The Citadel in Quebec City, another in Geneva and the fourth in Montreal—an indication of how widely her soldier-diplomat father has travelled.

Educated in an English convent, she has a slight English accent. Her naturally curly hair is prematurely grey.

FLED FROM FRANCE

Asked about future plans, she laughed and said "I never think more than a year ahead." Her attitude is apparently the result of past experience.

In 1940, at 16, she fled with her parents from France and reached England in a sardine boat before the Germans entered Paris.

She could have remained in Canada for the duration of the Second World War but chose to enlist as a private in the Canadian Women's Army Corps. She saw service in Europe and rose to the rank of captain.

After the war she enrolled in medicine at Cambridge, rejecting the social life her father's post as ambassador to Paris would have given her.

STUDIED IN PARIS

She was among the first women granted a degree at Cambridge convocation. The ancient university had often bestowed degrees on women, but not at the convocation.

She continued her medical studies in Paris and completed training as a baby specialist at St. Thomas' Hospital, London, and Children's Memorial Hospital, Montreal.

She shares her father's love of books—her main packing problem on vacating a room she occupied in London.

"My books are at present filling a warehouse in London until I get settled."

Must Queue For Weddings In Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Bridal couples have literally to queue up to be married at Toronto's St. Agnes Roman Catholic Church on a Saturday.

So many couples want to get married at this Italian church that the priest, Boston-born Rev. Christopher Difiore, usually enlists the aid of another priest to read the mass while he performs the wedding ceremony.

Most of the grooms wed in the church are Italian immigrant workers who have sent for their fiancees after spending about two years in Canada.

Some Saturdays, up to 10 couples are married there. Last year more than 300 marriages were performed by Father Christopher, who believes this may be a record for Canada.

MODERN MANNERS

By Carolyn Hagner Shaw

QUESTION BOX

Question: There's to be a wedding in the family late this summer. If the best man is married, should there be a matron of honor, or is it all right to have just a maid of honor? Also, who is responsible for purchasing the ring bearer's pillow and who pays for the white suit the child carrying it should wear?

Answer: It makes no difference whether the best man is married or not. There may be matron of honor and a maid of honor, or one or the other, as you wish. The parents of the bride purchase the white satin pillow for the ring bearer. His parents are responsible for the clothes he wears.

Question: I would like to know the proper type of invitation to send out for a luncheon I wish to give for my daughter-in-law to be, to introduce her to my friends. It is going to be for ladies only, and it is not a shower. Is it proper to have the invitation printed, or to use an already printed card and fill in the blanks with the date and all the information?

Answer: It all depends upon the number of guests you are planning to invite. If only a few, a handwritten note would be the best approach. If a large number of persons are to be invited, I would suggest the use of the folded over, informal card. Your name and address may be engraved on the front of this card, and the invitation extended on the inside. Or you may use the blank informal card, placing your name and address (handwritten) on the front and the invitation on the inside. Frankly, this is much more gracious than to use a printed invitation, or the already printed card for this informal function.

National Gallery Has Best Canadian Art Collection

By Elizabeth Motherwell
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Kathleen Fenwick, custodian of 5,000 prints and drawings at the National Gallery, is house-proud, and with good reason.

Until the gallery moved into its new building early this year from the Victorian ramparts of the National Museum, she had a problem comparable to the old woman who lived in a shoe.

But despite cramped quarters—one inadequate room in recent years—she managed to build up Canada's collection during 30 years into the finest in North America.

Where once she could display only 40 works at a time, now she flits busily around four galleries superintending displays being enjoyed by thousands of visitors.

"She did wonders from that hole in the wall," says Mrs. H.A. Dyde of Edmonton, National Gallery trustee.

H.P. Rossiter, a Canadian who now is curator of prints at the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston, started the collection here in 1921.

"He set a high standard we are doing our best to continue," said Miss Fenwick, who operates out of a spacious office with storage space and a study room for visitors and students as well as the four galleries.

The collection dates from the middle of the 15th century to the present and contains works by such masters as Raphael, Remtrandt, Durer, Goya, Renoir, Picasso and Whistler.

Those who have worked with Miss Fenwick testify to her dedication and taste in handling the collection. Said Alan Jarvis, former gallery director:

"In England she would have been Dame Kathleen long ago, and she would have carried the honor with the same light-hearted bravura with which she carries the affection and admiration of countless specialists and artists from every corner of the globe.

"An untold number of Canadians have learned from her what values and standards mean, and have come away from the old Victoria Museum both refreshed and inspired."

Apart from caring for and cataloguing prints and drawings, Miss Fenwick deals with inquiries relating to graphic arts and helps arrange exhibitions in Canada and abroad.

Born in London in 1901, she studied art in England and Europe before coming to Canada in 1930 to become curator.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Henry R. — I don't want to tell Mother.

Ina R. — The news should come from us.

• • •

Henry R. — My wife and I have recently agreed upon a divorce after four rocky years of marriage. We have no children so there really should be no serious problems.

My wife, however, is making a big problem by insisting upon telling my mother about our breakup. My mother is elderly and has been quite ill recently. This is going to upset her terribly. If anything happens to Mother as a result of this news, I would hold Ina responsible.

I have given in to Ina in many ways. It's she who wants the divorce, but I don't want her going to my mother with a long list of complaints and grievance against me.

• • •

Ina R. — I don't think secrets like this can be kept, certainly not for long. Somebody will let the cat out of the bag. The news ought to come from us.

My aim is not to present a list of grievances. I simply want to be honest. My mother-in-law has been very nice to me and is fond of me. I don't want sympathy, but I would like her to understand that our marriage can't work.

I have visited my mother-in-law with and without Henry several times in the last few months and I think she already suspects the truth. Surely it isn't the best thing for her health to have all this uncertainty.

• • •

The Council: It is typical of men and women who are emotionally undeveloped and excessively dependent upon parents to take the attitude that various actions of theirs would be a death blow to one or both parents.

Men and women of this type are naturally ashamed to admit their childish fear of punishment or disapproval from a parent and rationalize their position by taking on the role of protector of their parents.

The mature individual who makes a rational decision is usually able to present his case in a way that makes sense to his parents. The parents may still disagree, and even suffer great anxiety about the course the son or daughter has chosen, but they recognize and accept the fact that their child must find his path in life. The parent who cannot accept this has, indeed, a destructive hold on the child's life.

Henry's statement is riddled with the fear of a guilty little boy. He seems to take the attitude that his wife is a school teacher and is going to report his failures to his mother. We suspect that he has a very strong sense of shame about his failure as a husband. The fact that he is willing to go along with the divorce simply because his wife wants it, apparently making no effort to save the marriage, indicates a lack of ordinary backbone.

Ina, on the other hand, seems to be holding this issue like a weapon over her husband's head. Possibly she still hopes to goad him into some manly action, or perhaps she wants to hit back at him for real or imagined hurts. We suspect that she is digging at this vulnerable point more than is necessary.

The mother in the case probably suspects the essential truth: that these partners have shared little love and have had no deep experience in their marriage. Her reaction, if told about their plans, would probably be to urge them to try harder to make something good of their relationship. We think they should make this attempt without taking their woes to her.

Cooking With Wine

By Mary Moore

Canadians have a tendency to look on wine cookery as extravagant or even just a little naughty. Actually it is neither.

Anyway today, for those who are forever ranging about looking for new and and intriguing taste ideas, I am giving you recipes that call for wine that I have enjoyed. The teetotalers in our audience may be interested to know that it is flavor that wine imparts. By the time it goes through a cooking process all of its small alcohol content has been evaporated.

FRUITS:

All during the summer and fall lovely Canadian fruits are in abundance. Try sprinkling fruits such as raspberries, blueberries, sliced plums and peaches, melon balls, sliced ripe pears — with a moderate amount of sugar and white wine or port. Cover and allow to stand for 2 to 3 hours. Drain. Spoon fruit into stemmed glasses. Whip some heavy cream and when it is stiff fold some of the drained-off wine-syrup into it — but not enough to make it sloppy. Spoon a dollop of this flavored whipped cream over each serving. Serve very cold.

CHICKEN OR TURKEY TETRAZZINI:

(Serves 5 or 6 and calls for 1 1-2 cups cooked cubed chicken or turkey).

1-2 lb. spaghetti, 1-2 cup sliced mushrooms, 3 tablespoons butter or margarine, 3 tablespoons flour, 3-4 cup consomme, 3-4 cup dry or medium dry white wine, 1-2 cup evaporated milk, 1 1-2 cups cooked chicken or turkey cubed, buttered crumbs, grated cheese.

Cook spaghetti in salted water until tender. Drain and rinse with hot water. Cook mushrooms in butter or margarine for 5 minutes. Sprinkle with flour; stir; add consomme and wine. Cook, stirring until smooth. Add evaporated milk and season to taste. In a greased baking dish put a layer of spaghetti, then a layer of turkey, and a layer of mushroom sauce. Repeat, ending with a top layer of spaghetti. Sprinkle top generously with buttered bread crumbs mixed with grated cheese. (Parmesan is good.) Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. until lightly browned and bubbling.

TRIFLE:

(Serves 5 or 6).

1 2-3 cups whole milk, 4 egg yolks, beaten slightly, 1-4 cup sugar, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla, 2-3 cup sherry, 1 sponge cake, 2" thick, cut into 2 layers and then into strips, 1-3 cup raspberry or black currant jam, 1-3 cup toasted almonds, split, whipped cream.

Scald the milk. Combine eggs, sugar and salt. Add scalded milk to egg mixture, stirring constantly. Turn into top of double boiler. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly, until mixture is thickened and coats the spoon. Cool. Add vanilla and 1-3 cup of sherry. Beat with rotary beater. Set custard in refrigerator to chill. Arrange sponge cake strips in glass serving bowl. Spread with jam. Sprinkle remaining 1-3 cup wine over the cake. Let stand while custard is chilling. Pour custard over cake. Garnish with whipped cream topped with split toasted almonds.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

If you can believe one "Droopy" Lidd, self-styled private eyebrow at the Country Club, there's quite a double-mesh two-way feud going on out there.

It cost me the price of two quarts of chain-store apricot nectar and a half-dozen Shopsy's eighteen-inchers to get the story from this Richard (in the rough) Diamond. I checked with Bud Trill and other members of the golfing fraternity but got a knowing smile—and no information.

When Droopy was up to his neck in nectar and bulging at the abdominal plimsoll mark with Shopsy's best, he started to talk.

"D'ya know," be burped, "I always was a sticker for the under dog. Now, I'm not so sure. Sometimes I think these so-called underdogs turn out to be top-prize pooches. The wise hounds, so to speak."

Reinforced by another noggin of nectar, Droopy went on. "For some time now," he said, "two golfers Fred (Hardshot) Hebden an d Dave (Divot Dick) Lunn have been teaching two proteges the finer points of the game. At least, so I am told."

"The two proteges, Jerry (Close-but-seldom-in) O'Connor and Bud (Weiser) Gill went for it hook, line and seven irons."

"The foursome played some two-three times a week, just those friendly foursomes—you know the kind I mean—but somehow the pupils never became good enough to take the good-hearted teachers."

Droopy inhaled another snort of nectar before he continued. "The boys were the best of friends. They laughed, joked and kidded each other about their respective games. O'Connor and Gill became known as the P.L.'s (perpetual losers) but they didn't care.

"Shucks, it was worth the nickel a hole they were paying their 'instructors.' Besides their game was improving.

"The P.W.'s (perpetual winners) took everything in good spirit, too. It wasn't their fault if their score cards were always better than those of their proteges. Besides, their piggy banks were almost filled with O'Connor and Gill nickels. The change was doing them good.

"And so it went on," Droopy said. "Everybody was happy. The P.W.'s kept winning. The P.L.'s kept losing. The Hebden-Lunn combo was filling piggy-banks faster than a fourteen-family housewife was plugging her grocery stamp books. The O'Connor-Gill faces wore broad smiles."

Droopy straightened up in his chair. "D'ya know," he said, "it was these continuous smiles that made me suspicious. I felt something was wrong. After all two guys are not going to keep on getting beaten, year after year—keeping two other guys supplied with church collection—and not do something about it.

"They were doing something about it, all right," he grinned. "But you must give me your word you won't mention it."

He leaned over and whispered, "Do you know that Jerry O'Connor and Bud Gill were taking secret lessons from some guy on another course. Cross my heart. I think it was Trenton, or Picton.

"It's true, swelp me," Droopy said. "I saw them taking off one Wednesday afternoon. After a half dozen trips they walked around the club looking like the cat that swallowed the canary. And mind you they were still playing the P.W.'s—and still losing. Those guys had something up their sleeves, and I made up my mind to find out.

"It didn't take long. Up to now the foursomes had been merely friendly, painless extraction affairs. Then came the Men's Two-Ball Tournament.

"The Fred-Dave duo went in there brimming with confidence. The Jerry-Bud pair smiled—and said nothing. They were confident, too. So much, they left their spare nickels at home.

"What happened? The erstwhile tortoises caught up with the hares. They not only caught 'em, they whumped, thumped and clumped 'em to win by seven holes.

"It took a long while—but they finally made it. O'Connor and Bud were on Cloud Eleven. They almost entered the Canadian Open.

"But that's not all," Droo py said. "There's more, and it's hot. Now, I'm told, Fred and Dave are being tutored on foreign courses. No upstart students are going to trim them and get away with it.

"Guess they mean it, too," said Droopy. "The other day they resumed their friendly little foursome, and I'll be danged if Fred and Dave didn't clobber Jerry and Bud by four strokes.

"What I'm looking forward to," said Droopy, "is the day the foursome meets unexpectedly on the Picton, Trenton, Napanee, Shannonville, Zwick's Island, or whatever course they're all taking special instruction on."

QUITS ARGOS

AURORA (CP) — Bill Bucek, halfback import from Rice Institute in Houston, Tex., quit the Toronto Argonauts when the Big Four team moved here for a two-week training session. "He is the first one I'm sorry to see leave the team," said coach Lou Agase Monday. "He might have helped us." Bucek, six feet, one inch and 195 pounds, was a defensive halfback.

Buc Hurlers Lead the Way

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP) — National League manager Walter Alston will go for an All-Star sweep Wednesday by sending Vern Law against the American League at Yankee Stadium. Law is a member of the Pittsburgh Pirate pitching staff which led the National Leaguers to a 5-3 victory at Kansas City Monday.

Law threw seven pitches in stopping a ninth - inning threat and preserving Monday's victory for teammate Bob Friend, who pitched one-hit ball for three shutout innings. It was the NL's 12th victory in 28 mid-summer meetings with the AL and the second for Friend against one defeat.

The game was played in sweltering 100-degree heat.

Relief artist Elroy Face, third Pirate pitcher, earlier had stopped another American League threat by getting Luis Aparicio to bounce into sixth-inning double play with the bases loaded.

SHARE IN SHUTOUT

The trio from the league-leading Pirates worked a combined 5 1-3 innings, allowing no runs and only one hit, a second-inning single by Baltimore's Ronnie Hansen off Friend.

American League manager Al Lopez, who used six pitchers, indicated he would start southpaw Whitey Ford of New York Yankees in the second game.

Ernie Banks, NL home run and RBI leader, slammed the first of the game's three homers off Bill Monbouquette of Boston with one on in the first inning to feature a three-run attack.

Del Crandall, Milwaukee catcher, walloped a solo shot in the second off Monbouquette, who was tagged for five hits and four runs before giving way to Baltimore's Chuck Estrada in the third.

Willie Mays, the San Francisco Giants star, had a first-inning triple, a second-inning single, and doubled later off New York's Jim Coates. He came within several feet of becoming the first man in All-Star competition to hit for the cycle when his drive to right off Cleveland's Gary Bell in the sixth was snared by Harvey Kuenn of Cleveland.

AL OUTHIT

The National League collected 12 hits to the AL's six, all but one of them in the first five innings when they scored all their runs for a 5-0 lead.

"It was a darn good game after the first inning," commented Lopez wryly. "Monbouquette had good stuff but he was a little nervous. The guy with the most rest was the worst pitcher I had out there today."

Eight of Lopez' 10 pitchers pitched Saturday or Sunday. Monbouquette's last outing was an 8-0 victory over the Yankees Friday night. The Chicago White Sox manager had to use two pitchers who worked Sunday, Detroit's Frank Lary and Kansas City's Bud Daley.

The only hit in their two innings was an eighth-inning pinch single by St. Louis star Stan Musial who established four records with his 18th game, 56th at bat, 18th hit and 35th total base.

BIG OVATIONS

Both Stan and Ted Williams, the brilliant Boston slugger, received tremendous ovations from the crowd of 30,619. Williams, in his 17th game, grounded out in his only appearance, as a pinch hitter in the second inning.

The American League used a record 25 players but only six of them hit safely against the five opposing pitchers. The big blow was an eighth-inning home run by Detroit's Al Kaline off Milwaukee righthander Bob Buhl. The drive came after Kuenn had reached base on an error and reduced the NL lead to 5-3.

The Americans threatened in the last of the ninth. With one out, Baltimore's Jim Gentile singled off Buhl after catcher Smoky Burgess of Pittsburgh had dropped his foul hoist, and Jim Lemon of Washington walked.

Alston, who managed Los Angeles Dodgers to a pennant last year, then summoned Law who got Baltimore's Brooks Robinson on an easy fly and disposed of Kuenn on a liner where Roberto Clemente, another Pirate, made the final out.

CHANCE IN SIXTH

The first AL threat came in the sixth when they scored a run off Giants' southpaw Mike McCormick on Nellie Fox' single. The AL had loaded the bases on one of four opposition errors, Bill Skowron's single and a walk.

With the bases still full and only one out, Face replaced McCormick and got Aparicio to ground sharply to shortstop Ernie Banks who started the inning-ending double play.

Forty-one of the 60 selected players took part in Kansas City's first All-Star game. The player pension plan fund got $183,892.12 from the game plus $250,000 in TV and radio receipts.

Only non-players besides pitchers were Cincinnati catcher Ed Bailey and Cleveland first baseman Vic Power.

Power left the bench after complaining of illness. "I could have used Power had he been available," Lopez said later.

Among the records set were a couple by Mays. His triple was his third in eight All-Star appearances, more than any other performer. He scored his 10th run in the first inning to tie Musial and Williams.

Transfer Now Official

Sugar Kings Could Be Jersey Reds

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP)—A formality, a new manager, and a new name are all that remain before the Havana Sugar Kings become Jersey City's entrant in the International League.

The formality—approval by the city commission of the team's transfer here—was expected today.

The manager — possibly Nap Reyes, Havana manager in 1957 —won't be named for another day or so, according to Paul Miller, general manager of the Sugar Kings.

And the new name may be the Jersey Reds, or the Jerseys, says Gabe Paul, general manager of the parent club, the Cincinnati Reds.

The Sugar Kings were officially transferred Monday after a two-hour meeting between Paul, International League president Frank Shaughnessy and Jersey City parks director Bernard J. Berry.

The team will play its first game in Jersey City's Roosevelt Stadium Friday.

The contract will run until next Oct. 15. The Reds will pay $7,500 rent for the 25,000-seat stadium, plus six cents for each admission over 125,000 during the season.

The contract has an option to renew by Dec. 15 for another year at $15,000 plus six cents for each admission over 225,000. It may be renewed for another four years by Sept. 1, 1961.

Speculation on a new manager centered on Reyes, who played for the Jersey City Giants in the 1940s. The former Havana manager is now a scout for the Redlegs in Cuba.

Some of the Cuban players, along with manager Tony Castano, said they would return to Havana, fearing relatives working for the Cuban government would be fired if they stayed. None, however, has left yet.

Paul indicated he may fill the vacancies with other International League players.

Seven Qualify For Juniors Golf Tourney

WELLAND (CP) — Three juniors, three juveniles and one bantam survived the Niagara District qualifying round Monday for the Ontario junior golf championships.

Championship final will be held at Toronto's Islington Golf Club July 25. Entries in the Niagara District trials totalled 23 juniors, 22 juveniles and nine bantams.

Was Stuck With Ticket; Horse Won

STAUNTON, Del. (AP)—Mrs. Eunice Connor, a mutuels clerk at Delaware Park race course, thought she was stuck Monday with a $10 ticket on Little Huskie to win the second race.

She thought the customer who purchased the ticket had said "$10 on Little Huskie to win." So that's the way she punched the ticket.

The customer, however, had bet Little Huskie to place and show, and he wouldn't accept the win ticket. Mrs. Connor had to buy it with her own money since it was already punched.

Little Huskie won the second race and paid her $522.

Nesbitt Signs With Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Import linebacker Gerry Nesbitt has come to terms for the 1960 football season, Ottawa Rough Riders announced today. Still unsigned are import lineman Larry Hayes and Canadian Merv Collins. A new face at training camp, the club said, is Wilson Allison, 24, a 240-pound tackle from Baylor.

Harness Racing

TORONTO (CP) — The fastest mile of the race meeting came from an unexpected source at Old Woodbine Park Monday when an overlooked pacing mare, Royal Aileen, owned by Harold Wellwood of Stratford, and driven by Bill Wellwood, sped the eight furlongs in 2:03 flat.

Royal Aileen, almost ignored by the public, returned $58.70 to win, $17 to place and $8.80 for show.

She came strongly on the outside in the stretch to outpace the second and third favorites, Argyel Sam, owned and driven by Dunc Campbell of Ailsa Craig and Hi Acres Rudy, owned by the Pastime Stable of Smiths Falls and guided by Walter Grant. The 2-to-1 favorite, Harold McKinley's Border Scot, got away slowly, though he did not break stride, and was seventh.

Softball League Sets Dates; Clears Playoffs

Representatives of all five teams were in attendance last night as the Belleville and District Softball League set dates for half a dozen postponed games and discussed the playoff situation.

The regular schedule winds up one week from today, July 19, but the postponements will carry over until the weekend of July 23. Beginning tonight a league game will be played every night, with the exception of Sunday, until all games are in.

Playoffs will see the first and fourth place teams meet in one half of the semi - finals while second and third clash in the other. Both series will be four-of-seven affairs, as will be the finals.

The starting time for daylight playoff games has been moved up from 6.45 to 6.30 p.m. Night games will commence at their usual times, 8.15 in Cobourg and 8.30 in Trenton.

After a lengthy discussion it was decided to go ahead with the "home umpire" system during the playoffs, and same as during the schedule. The only difference is that three umpires will be used instead of two.

Another meeting has been called to set the playoff dates. The meeting will be held at CNRA Park on Monday, July 25, at 7.30 p.m. Playoffs will commence that week.

Following are the remaining games to be played, including all playoff games. The game of Sunday, July 24th between Cobourg and Deseronto, at Deseronto, will not be played unless it has some bearing on the final standing.

Wagner Injury Not Serious

TIMMINS (CP) — Barbara Wagner, Olympic pairs skating champion who had her left thigh gashed in a skating accident Sunday, went back on the ice Monday and said "the leg is fine."

She only had a light workout and said the leg "is sore, but I can skate on it."

She was practising with her Olympic titlist partner Robert Paul when the accident occurred. Paul tripped while skating backwards with Miss Wagner overhead in his arms.

The back of her right skate inflicted a wound that took 10 stitches to close. Paul suffered a two-stitch cut in his left hand.

Miss Wagner said Monday that coach Sheldon Galbraith held her leg just above the wound for more than half an hour to stop bleeding.

Wings Star Signs Contract

Gordie Howe Sights 1,000 Points

DETROIT (AP)—Gordie Howe, five times the National Hockey League's most valuable player, today signed a contract for his 15th season with Detroit Red Wings.

The 32-year-old right winger, the NHL's all-time leading pointmaker, was the first Red Wing to come to terms for the 1960-61 campaign. Howe's salary was not disclosed.

"I think the big guy can score 50 goals this year," said Adams.

NEEDS 23 POINTS

Howe is aiming to become the first NHL player to reach the 1,000-point mark during the 1960-61 season. He needs only 23 more points, about two normal months of work for him.

The 200 - pound forward has scored 446 goals and 531 assists for 977 points in his 14 seasons. The only player with more goals than Howe is Maurice (The Rocket) Richard of the Montreal Canadiens.

The Rocket, who'll be 39 next month and who may decide to retire, has 544 goals to go with his 421 assists for 965 points. Howe passed Richard last season as the game's highest point producer.

Howe joined the Wings in the 1946-47 seasons as a shy 18-year-old from Saskatoon, Sask. He survived a series of injuries, one critical, and will establish a Detroit player longevity record at the start of next season. Eddie Goodfellow played 14 seasons with Detroit before hanging up his skates.

Howe was the backbone of the Red Wings during their championship dynasty of the 1950s, before the Canadiens started a ruling run of their own.

Last season, while the Wings were far behind the Canadiens, Howe won the Hart Trophy as the NHL's most valuable player for the fifth time, more than anyone else. He added 73 points to his impressive total in 1959-60 and was named to the league's first all-star team for the seventh time.

In-Kitchener Situation

OHA Protests Pro Action

KITCHENER (CP) — The Ontario Hockey Association executive has protested the National Hockey League's action in permitting a professional organization to try to form a club here.

The executive said the professional league is wrong to organize a club in opposition to Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen, who have carried Canada's flag twice in world competition.

The Dutchmen were organized in 1945 after the failure of a professional club in the late 1920s left Kitchener without hockey for nearly 20 years.

The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has also sent a letter of protest to the NHL.

Leafs Shade Buffalo 3-2, Royals Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bill Stafford has taken the words of New York Yankee manager Casey Stengel to heart. He can just about hear the rustle of that American League pennant money and the hurrahs that go to a pennant-winner and maybe a world championship team.

Stengel said the other day that the Yanks were seriously considering recalling Stafford, the pitching mainstay of the International League's Richmond Virginians, in a move to bolster pitching for the American League pennant run.

Stafford showed his willingness Monday night by shutting out Columbus Jets 6-0 for his eighth victory in 14 starts. The newly placed Jersey City entry— formerly the Havana Sugar Kings—beat Miami Marlins 3-0, Montreal Royals defeated Rochester Red Wings 4-3 and Toronto Maple Leafs retained their 6½-game lead atop the IL with a 3-2 victory over Buffalo after the Bisons had won, 2-0, the completion of a game suspended May 22.

Stafford, backed by home runs by Ken Hunt and Deron Johnson, gave Columbus only four hits in keeping his earned-run average below 1.80. The Vees vaulted to a 3-0 first inning lead against loser Bob Veale (5-3).

ALLOWED FOUR HITS

Jersey City, formally transferred Monday afternoon, scored single runs in the first three innings as Howie Nunn allowed Miami only four hits. The former Havana Sugar Kings are due to open at "home" Friday against Columbus.

Clarence Coleman's three-run homer in the first inning helped Montreal beat Bob Sadowski (0-1), as Nelson Chittum won his third in four decisions. Reliever Ron Perranoski had to put down a ninth-inning Rochester rally.

Jack Davis's two-run homer in the 10th inning of the suspended game won for Buffalo but Bobby Morgan's two-run homer and his double preceding Sparky Anderson's triple tripped the Bisons and loser Warren Hacker (4-6) in the regular game. Bob Smith (10-3) was the winner while Pat Scantlebury (3-2) lost the suspended game.

SIGNED BY ATHLETICS

QUEBEC (CP) — Rene Ouzilleau, 19-year-old third baseman with Quebec Indians of the Provincial Football League, was signed Monday to a tryout contract by Kansas City Athletics. Ouzilleau was signed after being picked as the top player at a three-day tryout camp by the American League team here.

Meets Chuvalo July 18

'Pete' Expects Rough Evening

A fighting - fit Rademacher, fresh from a 10-round TKO over Lamar Clark of Cedar City, Utah, indicated he has a lot of respect for the Toronto boxer.

"I've seen him in action, so I know he is a good fight," Rademacher said. "But I've gone 10 rounds with a real hard puncher and I feel I'm ready for Chuvalo."

He knocked down Patterson but was knocked out by the champ in the sixth round. He turned pro after winning the Olympic title in 1956.

"I figure I'm in better shape now than when I met Patterson." Rademacher reported. He expects to weigh 200.

Ontario Ladies Open

Gail Harvey Leads Field

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Gail Harvey, 17 - year - old amateur golfer from Scarborough, shot an 80 Monday to lead the qualifying round of the Ontario ladies' amateur open golf tournament at the Peterborough Golf and Country Club.

Miss Harvey, who won the crown last year, fired a pair of 40s and shot two birdies and nine pars over the par-76 layout.

Ninety-seven golfers started in the round, but two dropped out.

Sixteen golfers qualified for the championship flight and sixteen golfers qualified for the first, second, third, fourth and fifth flights respectively.

Mrs. W. C. McKay of Port Credit withdrew after posting an 89. Mrs. S. Sim of St. Catharines didn't complete the round when a back injury on the front nine forced her out of competition.

Last year's runner-up, Miss Kay Helleur of Woodbridge, failed to enter the championship flight. She shot a 14-over-par 90. She qualified for the first flight.

A 36-hole final will be played Friday.

French Open Rejects Palmer

NEW YORK (AP) — United States Masters and Open champion Arnold Palmer flew back home Monday night "not too angry" at being left out of the French open golf championship.

Palmer checked out of his Paris hotel earlier Monday after being advised that he would not be able to play in the tournament because he had filed his entry too late.

"I phoned Paris from England Friday," said Palmer when his jet landed at International Airport, "and asked if I could play. I received a wire Saturday advising me to head for Paris.

"But when I got there, I was told the wire had been sent by an unauthorized official and that I couldn't play. I'm not too angry."

Four Teen-Agers

St. Kitts Has Wonder Crew

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Last February an athletic coach in this Niagara Peninsula city of 40,000 advertised for candidates for a four-man rowing team. Only four teen-agers volunteered.

Today these three high school students and a machinist apprentice are Canada's representatives in the four-oared rowing competition at the 1960 Olympic Games.

The young squad won a trip to Rome Saturday, by finishing a one-mile 550-yard Olympic trials course two lengths ahead of a favored University of British Columbia crew. UBC, defending Olympic champions in the four-oar class, won the other spots on Canada's 15-man rowing team.

The St. Catharines crew was organized and coached by Alex Wilson, 29, a St. Catharines policeman who has rowed eight years, and coached for four.

COACH WON'T GO

Wilson will not go to Rome. UBC's Frank Read will coach all Canadian oarsmen in Olympics competition.

Only bowman Frank Zielski, 19, Clay Brown, 19, Bob Adams, 17, and Chris Leach, 18, answered Wilson's February call for candidates for a rowing foursome. All had competed under him last year, when he coached a St. Catharines Collegiate heavyweight eight, which won the Canadian junior eights and the United States intermediate eights championships.

After ice cleared in April, the four began twice-daily practices. For the two weeks immediately preceding Saturday's trials, they moved into Wilson's three-bedroom bungalow, living with their coach, his wife and two children.

They led from the start and won on a rough course in seven minutes, 44 seconds though on calmer practice waters they have covered the distance in 6:42.

St. Catharines supporters, who have never before had a team in Olympics competition, have started a fund to finance the crew in Italy.

Gridder Through With Boxing

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (AP)—Charlie Powell, former member of football's San Francisco '49ers and professional heavyweight fighter, says he's through with boxing.

Powell, now 27, is trying for a defensive end or linebacker spot with Oakland Raiders of the American Football League.

"I'm definitely through with boxing," Powell says. "You get cut up too many ways—and I don't mean cuts on my face."

So What! The Visitors Won Anyway

TORONTO (CP) — About half way through the playing of what was thought to be the Italian national anthem prior to an exhibition soccer game here Monday night, the fans started to boo.

The Polish - born public address system operator was playing the Austrian national anthem by mistake.

Sampdoria, top Italian team and in New York's International league, went on to crush Toronto Italia 11-1 before 14,000 spectators.

Palmer Skips Western Open

COOPERSBURG, Pa. (AP)—Golfing ace Arnold Palmer said today he's skipping the Western Open beginning in Detroit Thursday because he needs rest and practice with the larger American ball for the Professional Golfers Association tournament in Akron, Ohio, July 21.

Palmer, U.S. Masters and Open champion who missed a triple slam when he lost the British Open last week by one stroke, Monday night flew to this tiny eastern Pennsylvania community where his wife and two daughters were awaiting him.

"I've just got to get some rest if I expect to do any good and do justice to the PGA," Palmer said. "I've got to get back to playing the larger ball."

Larsen Says He'll Return To Majors

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP)—Pitcher Don Larsen has indicated there is no sour grapes about his demotion by Kansas City Athletics.

The fireballing righthander joined the Dallas-Fort Worth club of the American Association here when the Rangers opened a series with Charleston.

Larsen vowed that he will return to the big leagues.

"I know what it takes—hard work," he remarked. "That's what I need, too. I hope to pitch my way right back to the majors."

Larsen pitched a perfect game in the 1956 world series for New York Yankees. It was a record performanse against Brooklyn Dodgers.

This is Larsen's first stop in the minors in five years. He will be 31 years old next month.

Larsen, 6-4 and 229 pounds, said he hurt his left side in spring training. The pain is just below the ribs, he says, and he never recovered from the springtime ailment. He lost five straight with Kansas City.

The pair have pulled a total of 700 maskinonge out of local waters since 1910. Together with Frank Creed of Struthers, Ohio, and Joe Auer, of Buffalo, they have never missed a season here.

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Back in 1937 a shy youngster from the West Virginia hills won the Oakland, Calif., open golf hampionship and two days later caused some merriment when New York newspapers arrived in the West Coast city. They carried the champ's picture.

Sam Snead looked at it, scratched his head and wondered out loud how they got it "'cuz I've never been in New York in my life".

The story was recalled last week when Snead, golf's elder statesman, competed in the 51st Canadian Open at Toronto.

The stories are legend about the 48-year-old sad-faced Sam and the sweetest, at least to Snead himself, concern his victories and bank account. Since that memorable day 23 years ago he has won 104 tournaments, picked up more than $250,000 in official money earnings, plus untold thousands from endorsements and royalties on Sam Snead equipment.

OFFERED FISHING TRIP

He draws the largest galleries wherever he appears and tournament sponsors go to great pains to get his name on the entry list. For last week's Open, for instance, a three-man delegation went to the United States to lure him to Toronto.

The bait: An expenses - paid fishing expedition.

Snead, of course, has had failures and the most notable is his inability to win the United States Open. This is one of golf's most perplexing mysteries.

His infamous eight on the last hole at Philadelphia in the 1939 Open stands as the most astonishing collapse in a major tournament. He needed a five to win, but bumped into a peck of trouble and blew it.

He was runner-up in 1937, lost a playoff in 1947, just missed a tie with Cary Middlecoff in 1949 and finished second to Ben Hogan in 1953.

FAST PLAYER

Crowds automatically follow Snead whether he is in contention or not but another crowd-pleaser is Canada's Moe Norman, who practically runs around the course.

Moe, a native of Kitchener, Ont., and now a pro at a club just outside Toronto, irks some players but not Lionel Hebert of Lafayette, La. Hebert was in a threesome with Norman last week and praised Moe for his "courteous play."

"Sure, the guy plays as if ants were crawling around in his trousers, but he doesn't put me off my game," said Hebert who shot a three-under-par 69 while playing with the Canadian. Moe had 72.

"He's well-mannered and most polite, not like some of the guys I play with on the circuit."

Heebert said the Doug Ford of Crystal River, Fla., a notably fast-playing pro, "doesn't give a hoot about the fellows he is playing with."

"He takes a shot and then hurries off after his ball. He doesn't even wait for the guys in his threesome to shoot. I don't call that golf manners."

Three Teams In Senior ORFU

LONDON (CP)—E.G. Gilbride, President of the Senior Ontario Rugby Football Union announced Monday the league will operate next season with only three teams—Port Huron-Detroit Raiders, Sarnia Golden Bears, and London Lords.

He made the official statement after the league had been unsuccessful in finding individuals willing to operate a Senior ORFU franchise in Kitchener-Waterloo.

The 1959 Dutchmen executive stated they are unwilling to carry on because of financial difficulties. However, with the help of Montreal Alouettes, a Kitchener-Waterloo entry in 1960 may yet be possible if a new group is successful in putting an executive together within the next week.

President Gilbride said the Kitchener-Waterloo withdrawal is not considered permanent by either the league or Dutchmen supporters, but rather a one-year suspension of operations, pending solving of financial difficulties.

Oshawa Hurler Throws Perfect Softball Game

TORONTO (CP) — Ron Phillips retired 27 consecutive men Monday night as Oshawa Heffernman's defeated Owen Sports 15-0 in the opening night of the all-Ontario intermediate softball tournament in suburban New Toronto.

He struck out 12 men in his perfect, no-hit, no run game.

Ottawa Hosts Hoop Tourney

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa will play host to the 1961 Ontario high school golden ball basketball tournament.

Norman D. Fenn, chairman of the committee handling arrangements, said today the event will be played March 17 and 18 at local gymnasiums.

It will be the first time the tournament has been played in the capital.

Six top teams from across Ontario will battle for the equivalent to the provincial champion ship, won by Toronto's Runnymede High School for the last two years.

The event was played in Guelph last year.

PICK LEAF PLAYER

MONTREAL (CP)—The International League announced Monday that Frank Funk, Toronto righthander, is winner of the monthly award as the league's best player in June.

Funk, who pitched a no-hitter against Havana June 16, needed only two votes to win. Writers in the league's eight cities, entitled to one vote for each city, stayed close to home in making their selections for the award.

Players receiving one vote each were Don Landrum, Buffalo outfielder; Jim Pendleton, Havana outfielder; Gene Green, Miami catcher; Joe Altobelli, Montreal first-baseman; Ken Hunt, Richmond outfielder, and Bill Harrell, Rochester third-baseman.

TV—Radio Column

Carol Burnett Just Funny, Not the Wise-Cracking Type

Television personalities are holding forth in AP TV-radio columnist Cynthia Lowry's corner during her vacation. Here the funny lady of CBS' Garry Moore Show talks about the secrets of her success.

Written for The Associated Press
By CAROL BURNETT

Whatever success I have had in show business has come from my modest talent as a comedienne. For this I am grateful, because I can think of no more heart-warming sound than that of laughter coming from an appreciative audience.

However, for the record, I must state that I am not now, nor have I ever been, a particularly funny gal. This is an apparently paradox, I realize . . . but there it is. Let me explain.

There are two types of comedians and comediennes. One type consists of those who are naturally funny 24 hours a day. They can toss off more jokes, and make more genuinely funny remarks during the course of a quick lunch than the average gag writer can produce in a week of hard work. These are the comics who are always "on," who are the life of the party, and who can amuse any group at any time.

SECOND TYPE

Then there is the second type . . . like me.

When I attend parties, the life of them I'm not.

When I meet people for the first time, do I leave them laughing? Oh no, not me. I leave them wondering: "Is that a comedienne?"

And when I'm at a night club and the comedian's act is going well, do I feel so carried away with the hilarity of it all that I dash on stage to add my own inimitable humor to the happy occasion? That would be the day. If my life depended on it, I couldn't stand up and trade jokes with a night club comic.

The only way I can explain it is to say that what I really am, and what I really want to be, is an actress who specializes in comedy.

REAL FANCY

Among all the technical staff needed for TV coverage of the U.S. political conventions is a professional home economist to stock the refrigerators that will be demonstrated during the commercials.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Wednesday, July 13

General Tendencies: This is one of those days when you would be wise to concentrate upon all of the little details of charm, beauty, music, culture and entertainments of all type such as motion pictures, television and allied interests. Be sure also that you now live in accordance with the finest spiritual ideas that you can envision. Thus it can be a splendid day and evening.

..Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Attend to all private matters [illegible]ely now, especially with closest ties. Get all property affairs operating efficiently. P.M. assist those in need in a spirit of thankfulness that you are in a position to do so.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — The day is ideal for contacting those who are proven, loyal friends and meeting others who can be equally helpful in days to come. Attend meetings socially where individuals of similar ideas and tastes as yours can be found.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Every opportunity is yours now to make an excellent impression upon those in authority through your talents and capabilities, as well as inherited background. See that home or office is in charming order. Be active — advance.

Moon Children June 22 to July 21) — You can add so much to your current knowledge by being alert to opportunities and all the pertinent data about you, that it behooves you to be on your toes and more broad-minded. P.M. go out and meet important people.

Leo (July 22 to August 21) — By becoming more efficient now you can easily add materially to your income and property holdings. This applies both to business and civic affairs. Then tonight you can reach greater rapport with dearest attachment.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Associates in all spheres of your life now appreciate your true worth and give sufficient co-operation and backing. Evening is then fine for going to some delightful spot together and having an enjoyable evening.

..Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Now you know what is necessary to do so that you become more charming and if you get abode in better order, you can make an excellent impression upon Bigwigs who will then back you.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Don't forget to go out during free time and get expert work done at beautician's barber shop. Then make plans for that important social evening — be sure you contact everyone on your list. P.M. be dynamic, charming.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Anything connected with new ventures can be put in operation quickly and satisfactorily today. But take time to have a liesurely evening at home with friends or closest ties. Get into charming conversation.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)— Now is the time to get together with congenials and work out those plans that have every promise of success. Evening should then be spent at place of relaxation — be carefree and enjoy sports or hobbies you like best.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — By showing allies that you appreciate working with them, you regain their confidence and can impress them with your practical methods and outlook on life. Invest wisely — find ways and means to economize, too.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Be very circumspect in all business affairs. And if you are specific and use the direct approach, you can make great headway now. Your social life can then be made more pleasurable as well as profitable by using same methods.

If your child is born today . . . he or she, will inherit a very fine mind as well as physique, so it behooves you to give as thorough an education as possible, giving much thought to the spiritual Truths so that the sucess in this chart can be realized to the full. Ideal horoscope for any profession where the somewhat abstract can be brought up to the practical and sensible realm. A most interesting future here.

FALSE TEETH
Slipping or Irritating?

Don't be embarrassed by loose false teeth slipping, dropping or wobbling when you eat, talk or laugh. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH on your plates. This pleasant powder gives a remarkable sense of added comfort and security by holding plates more firmly. No gummy, gooey, pasty taste or feeling. It's alkaline (non-acid). Get FASTEETH at any drug counter.

Saskatchewan Requests Help With Uranium City Problems

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government should undertake long-term national planning for the uranium industry, two members of Saskatchewan's CCF government said Monday.

In a brief to Trade Minister Churchill, Mineral Resources Minister J. H. Brockelbank and Municipal Affairs Minister L. F. McIntosh asked the federal government to help the province solve the problems of Uranium City, Sask., which is facing a 20-per-cent population cut by the loss of uranium markets.

"Within the next 20 years uranium will doubtless become a very important source of energy besides having other peaceful uses—some already discovered," the brief said.

TREAT LIKE GOLD

"It would seem very foolish to allow this industry to fall by the wayside in a few years' time. We cannot help but think of the artificial maintenance of the gold mining industry in which Canada participates. We recommend some good long-term national planning for the uranium industry whose product has such great potential value."

Uranium City, like Elliot Lake and Bancroft in Ontario, faces serious economic problems because U.S. uranium purchase contracts are not being renewed. To ease the blow, the federal government arranged a stretch-out of deliveries under existing contracts to 1966.

In immediate relief for Uranium City, the Saskatchewan delegation asked the federal government, through the crown-owned Eldorado Mining and Refining Limited or some other agency, to buy up the homes of displaced miners at reasonable prices, and to adjust the income taxes of Uranium City businessmen in the same way that the mining companies have been granted tax relief in the initial stages of their development.

The Saskatchewan government is willing to step up its road-building program if the federal government will raise its contribution to the "roads to resources" plan, the ministers said.

Approve Plan To Form Federal Forestry Dept.

By ROBERT RICE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Like a proud parent, the Commons Monday night gave its blessing to the birth of a new government department to take care of Canada's trees.

After a seven-hour debate MPs of all parties unanimously approved creation of a department of forestry.

They endorsed Prime Minister Diefenbaker's plan to add a 21st government department — and a full-time cabinet minister as well —to the growing machinery of the federal administration.

The new department was conceived as a test-tube baby.

Its big job, said Northern Affairs Minister Alvin Hamilton, will be to foster research at a federal level into trees—what ails them, how more can be grown, what they can be made into and how best to sell wood and wood products abroad.

The bill, which also repeals the Canada Forestry Act, now goes to the Senate. It is to come into force on a day to be set by proclamation of the cabinet.

Some MPs, apparently delighted at witnessing the birth of a new department, tried to father twins. Others tried to get rid of some older departments. And several wanted to name the infant ministry something more specific than simply department of forestry.

Mr. Hamilton, in closing the debate, proposed two simple amendments which would, he said, make it absolutely clear that the federal government was not interfering with provincial rights over forest resources.

He also disclosed that the new minister—whose salary is to be $15,000 a year in addition to his MP's pay of $10,000—will automatically get about 1,302 civil servants from two other departments, 555 from the forest biology division of the agricultural department and 747 from the forestry branch of the northern affairs and national resources department.

EXPRESS APPROVAL

The bill sparked a rambling debate, with everyone who spoke expressing approval of the idea.

"I believe we need still another department," said W. F. Matthews (PC — Nanaimo). "I would suggest that a department of tourism and recreation be set up as soon as possible."

The opposition criticism was largely aimed at questioning whether the new department would be busy enough to need a full-time minister in charge.

Opposition Leader Pearson suggested it be put under Mines Minister Comtois, an arrangement he said could be made without any loss of efficiency and without diminishing the importance of the new department.

But there also were some misgivings about federal intrusions into forestry, which is in the provincial sphere. To allay these doubts, Mr. Herridge proposed a different name—the department of forest industries and forest research.

Douglas Fisher (CCF — Port Arthur) advocated tax incentives to encourage small woodlot operators to make use of scrub land for tree farms—even Christmas tree farms.

H. W. Herridge (CCF—Kootenay West) plumped for Col. John H. Jenkins, chief of the Forest Products Laboratory, as "just the man for the job" of deputy forestry minister. And Mr. Fisher said he has heard speculation the minister's mantle will go to Thomas M. Bell (PC — Saint John-Albert).

Mr. Hamilton gave one reason for proposing a separate forestry minister: With only forestry to look after, he could take time to work out the details of a co-operative fire - fighting scheme covering the 10 provinces and two territories.

There has been "a good deal of thinking" done on this subject, he said.

"As everyone knows, every six or seven years we have a disaster year. It seems only logical that there should be pools or reserves of forest-fire fighting equipment and men who are stationed in strategic places across Canada who could be called upon by the provinces during these emergencies."

Mr. Hamilton also called for co-operation among governments, industry and workers to meet the "tremendous competition" that will be faced by Canada as it attempts to hold its present percentage of world markets for forest products. To hold this percentage Canada would have to double its exports in the next 15 years.

False Alarms Divert Police From Holdup

TORONTO (CP) — Police said Monday night three gunmen who robbed a midtown bank of $10,600 Monday apparently tried to divert police from the bank area by phoning in false alarms before the robbery.

One false alarm was to another bank, the other was to the Canadian National Railways express station in downtown Toronto.

"These tactics are often tried but they don't succeed in pulling away all our men by any means," said Inspector Adolphus Payne of the holdup squad.

The robbers, wearing sun glasses forced customers and employees of the Royal Bank of Canada's Charles and Jarvis Street branch to stand in the main part of the bank while two tellers handed over the cash in their cages.

They put on hoods as they fled to a getaway car driven by a woman. Police believe they switched cars several blocks from the bank.

Ontario May Be Entering Decade Of Lengthy Cold Winter Weather

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario may be entering a decade of long, severe winters, with lower temperatures and more snow than in the past.

This is the suggestion put forward by Morley Thomas, Toronto superintendent of the transport department's meteorological branch, after a study of winter conditions going back more than 60 years.

Climatologists and meteorologists are not sure why this should be, Mr. Thomas says, but they feel changes in solar radiation may be responsible.

Some weather men feel the deterioration in winter conditions may be speeded by a reduction in air pollution. They suspect that warm air trapped by the smoke blanket covering most urban areas in winter will escape into the upper atmosphere if clean-air campaigns succeed in dispelling the smog.

This theory is supported by statistics which show winter temperatures in the comparatively smoe-free suburbs are lower.

Mr. Thomas believes some signs of the 10-year temperatures dip may already have appeared. Last winter, for instance, Metropolitan Toronto had its heaviest snowfall in 77 years. The recorded total of 83.2 inches was the highest since the 92.5 inches in 1882-83.

A heavier snowfall than the previous winter occurred last winter also in the Ontario snow belt, the area around Georgian Bay and north of Lake Huron.

Two winters ago Parry Sound had a record 213 inches of snow, 95 inches more thas the previous high in 1874.

Mr. Thomas suggests the province may face a decade of hard winters similar to excessive yearly snowfalls in the 10 years from 1867.

50,000-Foot Extension

Bata Shoe Given New Look

The recently completed 50,000 - foot extension to the main factory of the Bata Shoe Company has given the large five-storey building a face - lifting that presents a striking appearance to visitors as they approach the industrial building from any direction.

A 200 - foot pavilion - like canopy fronting the building shades the crystal clear glass walls and well - spaced horticultural wells that are filled with permanent shrubs of rare evergreens.

The addition was planned to fit into the existing building design and to incorporate the modernistic trend in industrial buildings that is both pleasing in appearance and practical from the useful standpoint. The new portion of the building provides much needed production space and also administration office space for within it is to be found head offices of the company's various divisions.

The building will incorporate conference rooms with all the latest visual aid devices, such as hide - away screens, felt - boards, several types of projectors. The decorating scheme throughout is ultra - modern from the dark mahogany panels with ebony black trim to the magic plastic ceiling which gives a continual warm glow of daylight without any apparent fixtures. Covering the entire north wall of the main rotunda is a giant mural of the map of the world is full color. From this space, which houses the reception desk and archway, a corridor leads to the main offices and entry to a series of small business reception rooms and the personnel offices.

BLEND IDEAS

The complete renovation gives the impression of magnitude and decorative originality which is not actually the case. Actually it is a blending of architectural ideas and planning, featured from many parts of the world.

Working closely with Dr. C. K. Herz, vice-president and managing director of the company in this project was A. E. Storey, property manager and company architect, who contributed many ideas to the growth of the village. His department has lent assistance to private home owners who have built homes in the new Sidney Crescent housing subdivision. The interior of Batawa United Church auditorium is another example of his work and has been completely renovated and modernized under his direction.

Another important part of the building program is the improvement of lawns and gardens on the company property which is directed by Stephen Choma who keeps a staff of gardeners busy at this task. Two examples of horticulture are seen on the approach to the village where one large flower bed spells out the name Batawa in floral colors. Closer to the plant, and in season, is a large display of tulips which are part of the Girl Guide Golden Jubilee Chain.

More than 20 flower beds flank Highway 33 on the approach to the village and carefully planned shrubs and trees add beauty to the industrial buildings.

GET INCREASE

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton plumbers Saturday accepted a contract giving them an increase of 40 cents an hour over 28 months, a spokesman said. Further 10-cent rises will come Jan. 1, 1961, and May 1, 1961, bringing the journeyman rate up to $3.30.

Hydro Union Charges HEPC Twisted Facts

TORONTO (CP) — The 9,500-member Ontario Hydro Employees Union through its executive, charged the Hydro - Electric Power Commission Monday with misrepresenting the facts concerning the breakdown of negotiations for a new contract.

Kealey Cummings, union president, said a Hydro press release last week neglected to mention the union's stand for retention of an escalator clause in a new contract. The clause would be based on a three-per-cent rise in the cost of living to give employees a three-cent an hour increase.

Mr. Cummings said the Hydro statement indicated the union is asking for 14 cents an hour in wage increases, but of this amount seven cents is already provided in the existing contract.

The contract, which expired in April is still in effect because of a continuing clause. The union has applied for conciliation services and Mr. Cummings said it will stand on its demands.

ASK FOUR PER CENT

The union seeks a four-per-cent pay increase across the board for its 4,000 tradesmen and 900 operators. This would mean an increase of 10 cents an hour for the top trades group, now receiving $2.52 an hour.

Hydro's last offer was seven cents an hour for the top trades group, with deletion of the escalator clause, he said.

The union's 4,200 weekly salaried employees are asking a three-per-cent wage boost on salaries ranging upward from $52 a week. The union spokesman said the last Hydro offer was for a one per cent increase.

About 400 construction workers are involved in the negotiation, although they are not concerned with wage demands.

200 Forest Fires Burning In Five Canadian Provinces

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The sullen glow of forest fires burned today in five Canadian provinces.

Today exhausted men summoned their strength for another round in the continuous battle against the fires mainly started by a combination of hot weather and lightning storms.

There were 66 forest fires in Manitoba, 65 in Ontario, 44 in northern Saskatchewan and 14 in the Nelson area of British Columbia. A smaller fire was reported in Nova Scotia.

Ten new fires flared up in northwestern Ontario Monday and aircraft, equipment and men were being brought in by air from Eastern Ontario forest districts to reinforce more than 800 fire-fighters.

IN NIPIGON

One of the largest fires has destroyed 2,000 acres in the Nipigon Provincial Forest. It has been out of control since the weekend in an unsettled area.

About 200 miles farther west a major fire in the Sioux Lookout district has been brought under control but there are 25 smaller fires in the region.

In a dry spell that has caused water-using restrictions in Winnipeg, 22 Manitoba fires were left to burn, 29 were out of control and 15 were being contained by more than 500 men.

INDIANS HELP

In Saskatchewan, 400 Indians and Metis were fighting fires in widely - scattered areas in the northern part of the province. Five fires, all in the Churchill watershed, were out of control and six new fires were reported Monday in the Lake Athabasca area.

None of the fires were in good commercial timber.

More than 2,000 acres 120 miles east of the Kootenay city of Nelson, B.C., were covered by a fire out of control Monday. Of 153 men fighting 14 fires in the Nelson district, 125 were working on the big one.

Mounties Charge Drive to Block Chinese Probe

By JOHN E. BIRD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — A tightly-organized resistance movement has built up across Canada to discredit and stop the RCMP's investigation of a Chinese immigration racket uncovered in May after 10 years of operation, a top RCMP official said Monday.

It seems obvious, he said, that the campaign—including charges of brutality against Hong Kong police assisting in the investigation—is inspired by racket ringleaders.

The official emphasized that the Hong Kong police are being employed only as translators and interpreters.

The resistance, he said, has gone so far that Chinese suspected of being illegal entrants are refusing to identify themselves to investigating officers.

He said this was the first time in his experience as a member of the force that he had bumped into organized resistance and open defiance of a police investigation.

Police officers—instead of racketeers responsible for an illegal operation involving thousands of Chinese—are being subjected to public criticism, he said.

The only way police could get evidence to prosecute the ringleaders was to talk to illegal entrants. The government already had given them assurance that they and their families would not bo prosecuted or deported.

Earlier Monday in the Commons, Justice Minister Fulton again denied that Hong Kong police are using improper methods.

Mr. Fulton said "nothing would better serve the interests of the racketeers than to have the Hong Kong police withdrawn." The charges of brutality "have at least one motive; that is, to try and force us, by creating prejudice against the use of the Hong Kong police, to discontinue their services."

RCMP officials said one form of defiance was a campaign urging Chinese to contribute $2 each to fight against the RCMP investigation and to have the inquiry stopped.

In Montreal, they said, two loudspeakers placed in the Chinese area campaigned for funds June 19. Speakers there had said the investigation was being conducted by "Hong Kong police whose members had been purchased by the government at a high price.

The Immigrants Committee of Montreal, Benevolent Society started to distribute tickets June 20 asking all Chinese over 18 years to make a minimum contribution of $2 to the fight, the official said.

Expect to Catch Counterfeiting Ring's Leader

ELLIOT LAKE (CP) — Police said Monday they expect to close in today on the leader of a [illegible] which has been passing counterfeit $10 bills.

George Gagne, 17, of Rouyn, Que., and Germain Mallet, 29, believed from Montreal, described in court Monday as legmen for the leader, were remanded on charges of uttering counterfeit money.

Detective Sgt. N. B. Cooke of the local police force said he has an idea where the leader of the ring is hiding and will take out a warrant this morning.

Gagne and Mallet were arrested Friday.

At Kirkland Lake, RCMP offi- reported passed in a cigar shop, cers have traced three fake bills, a food store and at a taxi stand.

In London, bogus $10 Canadian bills, passed there late Friday, began turning up at banks Monday.

RCMP said it now has reports on "at least" 20 counterfeit bills being passed in London stores.

Democrats Crush Revolt Over Negro Rights

Plank May Cost Votes In Presidential Race

LOS ANGELES (CP) — The Democrats have crushed a threatened rebel revolt over Negro rights. But it may cost them votes in the 1960 presidential campaign.

Rejecting protests and warnings of its southern delegates, the national convention Tuesday night approved the most powerful plank ever adopted by the Democrats in favor of improving the social status of American Negroes.

Ten southern states failed to smash the plank. They charged it would be foisting the machinations of a tyrannical government on the South; that it was a travesty of democracy; that they would boycott the ideas anyway.

But the protest and warning that it would cost the party votes next November fell on deaf ears. Northern delegates booed the South. The plank was adopted in a campaign platform that contained elements of paradise—something for everyone.

WOULD OPEN SCHOOLS

The controversial civil rights plank would have all southern schools opened to Negro children by 1963. It endorsed the Negro lunch-counter demonstrations in the South; promised to increase protection for Negro voting rights and aimed to end discrimination against Negroes in public facilities, housing and jobs.

"In every city and state in greater or lesser degree there is discrimination in voting, education, the administration of justice or segregated lunch counters are the issues in one area, discrimination in housing and employment may be pressing questions elsewhere," the platform statement said.

"The peaceful demonstrations for first-class citizenship which have recently taken place in many parts of this country are a sign to all of us to make good at long last the guarantees or our constitution.

"The time has come to assure equal access for all Americans to all areas of community life, including voting booths, schoolrooms, jobs, housing and public facilities."

The entire platform had the smell of vote bait. It promised stronger defence; higher farm supports; more federal aid for education, housing and harnessing of resources; medical help for the aged; full employment and aid for depressed areas.

All this would be done without higher taxes.

In the foreign field, the Democrats promised no recognition of Red China; an end to discrimination in U.S. immigration; a strong line against the Communists and a direct warning to Soviet Premier Khrushchev to keep his hands off Berlin, Germany or any other part of the West, including Latin America.

Britain Wants To Be Consulted On All Flights

LONDON (AP—Prime Minister Macmillan is expected to ask President Eisenhower for assurance that the British government will be consulted before American planes fly any missions other than local training flights from bases in Britain.

Qualified informants said Macmillan wants to make the Attlee - Truman agreement of 1951 — under which U. S. bases operate in Britain — more effective, more secure and more precise. The prime minister told the House of Commons Tuesday:

"I am taking up with President Eisenhower the question whether there should be any modifications or improvements of these arrangements."

Macmillan's statement came in reply to Labor questions on the downing by the Russians of an RB-47 reconnaissance plane that flew from a U.S. base in Britain.

Consultation between London and Washington already has begun. But it was authoritatively denied that Macmillan has any intentions of flying to the United States for personal talks with the president.

UN Observers From Palestine To Go to Congo

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — Dag Hammarskjold is reported planning to transfer United Nations military observers from Palestine to the Congo to help the new African government reorganize its mutinous army.

But diplomatic sources said today the UN secretary-general does not plan to send any troops since the Congo government only asked the UN for administrators.

These sources reported that the military observers, probably Scandinavians, will go to the Congo as army instructors and police advisers in a team of public administrators Hammarskjold is forming to help the regime end the chaos that followed the termination of Belgian control.

No military or political personnel will be sent in the first stages, although some of the administrative specialists will be men with military background.

Informants also reported that U.S. State Secretary Christian Herter telephoned Hammarskjold Tuesday to ask his opinion on whether the United States should grant a Congolese request for American troops.

Hammarskjold was against it, they said, because he feared it would produce a cold-war dispute, with the Soviet Union. President Eisenhower later turned down the bid for troops.

WANTED KILLER LOSES GUN DUEL WITH POLICEMEN

Hungarian Refugee Not Likely to Live

UNION, N.J. (AP) — Michael Fekecs, a Hungarian refugee accused of murdering six persons, was in a coma in hospital bed today, a policeman's bullet lodged in the base of his skull.

The end of one of the most intense manhunts in the state's history came Tuesday night when Fekecs tried to shoot it out with two policemen on a dirt road in a wooded area.

He fired a volley of wild shots before being brought down by a bullet fired by Policeman Walter Leamy.

Fekecs, a 25-year-old lover of sports cars, formal clothes and jazz records, was being sought by police for questioning in connection with the slaying of two policemen last Sunday.

The search gathered momentum Tuesday after Middlesex County prosecutor Edward J. Dolan said that Fekecs had killed the two policemen and had slain four other persons on a North Brunswick estate last January.

Police Sgt. Michael Barry, who was with Leamy during the duel with Fekecs, said Mrs. Laura Mariano phoned to say a suspicious - looking man answering Fekecs' description was prowling in the wooded residential area near the city line.

Fekecs spotted the two policemen first and opened fire. A return shot from Leamy ripped through the fugitive's forehead and brain and lodged at the base of his skull.

Doctors said the bullet had caused a massive brain hemorrhage and Fekecs was not expected to live.

The two arresting Franklin Township patrolmen, George Dunham, 31, and John Lebed, 30, took him to his apartment so he could fetch $250 for bail.

The policemen were later found slain on the floor of the one-room apartment. Each had a .32-calibre bullet in his right temple.

Dolan said ballistics tests showed the same gun used to kill the two policemen was used to kill four persons on the estate of Dr. Francis Clarke last Jan. 26.

An unknown person entered Clarke's home while he was away performing an operation, tied up four persons and shot each through the temple with a .32-calibre pistol.

The victims were Clarke's 57-year-old invalid wife, her companion, a maid and the cab driver who drove the slayer to the Clarke house.

Fekecs arrived here in November, 1956, shortly after the Hungarian anti-Communist uprising.

Man Arrested After Hold-up Try Hangs Self in Cell With Sheets

HULL, Que. (CP)—A Montreal man arrested Tuesday in a wild would - be bank holdup hanged himself Tuesday night in a police cell here.

Police said that Francois Gingras, 34, arrested near the scene of the holdup attempt, was found dead in his cell.

Police said he made a "rope" by tearing the sheets on his cot and tied them to bars of his cell door. Police indicated an inquest would be held today.

Meanwhile, police denied earlier reports that Gingras was shot in the hand during the holdup at the Caisse Populaire (credit union) de Saint Bernadette on downtown Carillon Street.

Gingras was arrested with Emile Couture, 27, also of Montreal and charged with armed robbery with violence. Couture is to appear in court today.

Police said they are also holding two women and another man in connection with the attempted robbery.

Bedlam broke loose in the bank branch when two men barged in an hour before closing time shouting "This is a holdup; give us all the money."

A gun was pointed at cashier Bernard Lafrance and the other gunman barged into the office of Manager Aldege Duquette, who was talking with Valmore Lemieux.

Mr. Lemieux lunged at the armed man and was hit over the head with a gun butt. Twelve stitches were required to close the wound.

Cashier Raoul Deziel, who said he had a gun pointed at him at the time, pushed the alarm buzzer.

When police rushed into the building both men had jumped through a rear window to a yard eight feet below. An estimated $2,500 lay scattered on the floor.

Police were investigating the possibility that one or both the men were also connected with a robbery of the same branch in December, 1957, when $3,000 was stolen.

THE CHALLENGER MEETS THE FRONT RUNNER—They met just briefly Tuesday, Sen. John F. Kennedy and Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, during meeting of the North Carolina delegation to the Democratic convention. Both Senators came with a bid for the state's 37 votes. (AP Wirephoto).

Kennedy Now Riding Crest, First Ballot Victory Likely

LOS ANGELES (CP)—Democrats name their presidential candidate tonight with Senator John F. Kennedy riding a crest his backers believe will give him a first-ballot victory.

A restive, noisy and generally disorderly convention which exploded with an ovation for Adlai E. Stevenson left the Massachusetts Senator's major opponents clinging to the cliffs of hope that Kennedy's tidal wave will recede quickly if it doesn't engulf them at the start.

But they had only a precarious hand - hold. Kennedy had what were regarded as solid commitments of delegate votes only 18 short of the 761 needed for the nomination. Nobody ever came that close in the past and then lost out.

This, moreover, was a convention thirsty for the wine of November victory. As such it approved Tuesday night a platform that included the toughest civil rights plank the party ever adopted.

Southerners interested in making a record for the home voters tried unsuccessfully to kill this declaration. But not a southern delegate walked out of the hall, as many of them have done in the past.

The most patent explanation of this was that they didn't want to upset by a bolt whatever chance Senate Democratic leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas might have to get the nomination.

Noted Plastic Surgeon Says New Drug May Cure Cancer

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — A famous plastic surgeon claimed Tuesday a "considerable breakthrough" in attempts to develop a drug to cure cancer.

The surgeon, Michael Wood, has been working in Nairobi on a research project with a team of American scientists from the Sloan Kettering Institute.

Wood said the new drug, a synthetic named methotrexate had saved the majority of 41 Negroe cancer sufferers who otherwise would have died.

The new drug appeared effective in the treatment of cancer of the face, nasal sinuses and cancer of the cervix in women, Wood added.

In cases of cancer of the cervix, large, craggy growths had disappeared completely within 10 days, Wood said.

U.S. Note Charges Russians Shot Plane Over High Seas

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States has charged that Soviet airplanes "wantonly" destroyed a U.S. RB-47 reconnaissance bomber over international waters in the arctic July 1.

A sharply-worded note to the Kremlin Tuesday warned of "most serious consequences" in the event of any repetition of the act.

The note also demanded release of two officers who survived the Soviet Air Force attack. Washington officials held little hope of accomplishing this, however. They said they expect the two to be tried on espionage charges.

The U.S. note rejected Soviet charges that the aircraft was on a spy mission similar to that of the U-2 high altitude jet shot down in central Russia May 1.

The RB-47, accused by the Soviet government of violating its air space in the region of the Kola Peninsula, was never closer than 30 miles to the Soviet coast, the note declared.

"It is therefore evident that pursuant to instructions of the Soviet government airplanes of the Soviet Air Force wantonly attacked the American airplane over international waters with the admitted loss of that aircraft and of the life of at least one of the members of its crew.

"Two other members of the crew have, according to the Soviet note, been taken into custody without any legal basis and are to be subjected to trial under what is called 'full severity of Soviet law.' The three other members of the crew remain unaccounted for."

The United States demanded the release of Lieut. John R. McKone, 28, of Tonganoxie, Kan., the navigator, and F. B. Olmstead, 24, of Elmira, N.Y., the co-pilot.

Canada's Battalion for UN Is Unlikely to Go to Congo

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's standby battalion for United Nation duty is unlikely to be used in the Congo situation, reliable sources said Tuesday.

The unit at readiness is the 2nd Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment, at London, Ont.

It was said here that the UN would be unlikely to want to use a white, English-speaking battalion in a black, non-English-speaking country when troops from African and Asian nations presumably would be available.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker made it plain in the Commons that Canada will not send troops to Congo at least until the UN has formulated a plan for assistance which would meet the wishes of Congo and other African states.

Population Now Almost 18 Million

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's population reached 17,814,000 persons at June 1 and should touch 18,000,000 by December, the bureau of statistics reported today.

The June figure, based on annual census estimates, was an increase of 372,000 or 2.1 per cent on the figure June 1 last year. It showed an increase of 1,738,000 persons or 10.8 per cent since the 1956 census.

The increase lagged behind growth last year because of lower immigration, said the report. Population increase totalled 394,000 persons over 1958-59.

All provinces showed increases with Alberta, Ontario, British Columbia and Newfoundland leading.

Newfoundland 459,000 (449,000); Prince Edward Island 103,000 (102,000); Nova Scotia 723,000 (716,000); New runswick 600,000 (590,000); Quebec 5,106,000 (4,999,000); Ontario 6,089,000 (5,952,000); Manitoba 899,000 (885,000); Saskatchewan 910,000 (902,000); Alberta 1,283,000 (1,243,000); B.C. 1,606,000 (1,570,000); Yukon 14,000 (13,000); Northwest Territories 22,000 (21,000).

Expect New Minister Named From Quebec

OTTAWA (CP)—Speculation on the appointment of Canada's first national minister of forestry pointed today to fulfillment of Prime Minister Diefenbaker's long-standing promise to name another Quebec representative to his cabinet.

A bill establishing the new department of forestry, passed Monday night in the Commons, is expected to be approved in the Senate next week. Piloting the measure in the Commons, Resources Minister Alvin Hamilton said he expected the appointment of a minister will not be long delayed.

Helicopter, Jet Craft Bring Out Nine Rapids-Stranded Yachtsmen

OTTAWA (C)—Nine yachtsmen stranded all night in the Ottawa River's rampaging Deschenes Rapids were brought to safety today by combined helicopter and jet boat operations.

The shallow draft jet boat ploughed three times through the rapids seven miles west of Parliament Hill this morning to pluck seven persons including the lone woman from two sailboats caught in the swollen rapids. All were safe and chipper.

A helicopter from the RCAF search and rescue unit at Trenton, Ont., equipped with para-rescue team, finally struck success after a frustrating night and lifted off the other two.

The rescue of all hands capped a series of swift changes in plans. Initially two of the men had elected to ride out the day until a tug could pull their yawl to safety upstream.

Three helicopters including one summoned from the RCAF search and rescue station at Trenton, Ont., had been unable to pull off the stranded sailors during the night.

The Talisman had been driven by a squall down the rapids just below the Britannia Yacht Club.

Mrs. Bobby Robinson, a pert brunette, was the first person rescued and a second trip brought in Don Book, Allan Bruce, Jack Hassall and Dave Midgley.

The jet boat operated by Maurice Belair and Art Charron spent a half-hour in the rapids in taking off Mrs. Robinson, wife of Lt. Col. H. M. (Max) Robinson, owner of Talisman.

She actually got some sleep, she said, but the four from the Negark said they stayed awake to keep warm.

The helicopters managed to get aboard food, clothing and radio equipment before the jet boat was summoned.

Belgium Rejects Congo's Demand Troops Get Out

U.S. Will Send Only Technicians and Money

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters) Heavily - armed Belgian paratroopers today took over control of this capital city without opposition after seizing Leopoldville airport in a brief gun battle.

Congolese troops in the streets did not fire a shot. They did not seem to know what was happening.

The paratroopers landed unexpectedly at the airport this morning.

Later, more planeloads of troops landed at the airport and headed for Leopoldville. Belgium was given the right to maintain forces in this former colony after it achieved independence.

SEIZE WHITES

Shortly before the paratroopers moved into the capital, Congolese soldiers surrounded the main hotels and rounded up white residents, but a Belgian official secured their release as the paratroopers were arriving.

In a matter of minutes, the paratroopers had taken up positions at the main city intersections.

An advance party of between 100 and 150 Belgium paratroopers led the way into Leopoldville, arriving there at 2:50 p.m. local time.

The paratroopers landed at the airport shortly after Belgian officials rejected Congolese demands for withdrawal of all Belgian troopsp to their bases.

Landing in Belgian air force planes, the green-bereted paratroopers opened fire at Congolese troops molesting whites.

One Congolese soldier was killed and three Belgians, including two women refugees, were wounded. A number of Congolese were taken prisoner.

At noon, the Belgian troops were in full control of the strategic airport, the main entry to the republic capital 20 miles away.

But in Matadi, the Congo's only seaport 150 miles from Leopoldville, the Congolese forces, who drove off the Belgians Tuesday, were reported still in control.

ATTACK WOUNDED

After today's airport battle, Belgian Gen. Roger Gheysen told a reporter: "The situation of the last few days could not go on. This morning some Congolese began brutalizing some wounded paratroopers flown in to Leopoldville. They attacked the airport first-aid room."

The paratroopers moved on the airport after it had been closed down and the local manager of the Belgian Sabena airline had been arrested.

They charged into the hall of the main airport building and opened fire on rebels stationed on the roof. The airport was reopened two hours after it closed.

The battle came shortly after Preeident Joseph Kasavubu and Premier Patrice Lumumba demanded the withdrawal to their bases of Belgian troops fighting mutinous Congolese soldiers throughout the infant republic.

The demand was rejected. Kasavubu and Lumumba said

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is reported willing to provide technicians and financial support—but no troops—for any United Nations force sent to put down the mutiny in the Congo.

Top officials outlined the administration attitude in the wake of a White House declaration that countries other than the United States should provide the forces the Congo government has requested to restore order.

President Eisenhower, at his vacation headquarters in Newport, R.I., late Tuesday, turned down the Congo appeal for 3,000 American troops. Eisenhower said via a White House spokesman "it would be better for the Congo" if no troops were sent from "any of the large Western nations" on such an emergency mission.

Authoritative officials said the United States did not propose to stand aloof entirely from any UN action which might be decided upon.

American planes and ships might be used to rush a UN force to the trouble spots, authorities said. And civilian technicians as well as funds could be allocated to meet other requirements.

The U.S. aircraft carrier Wasp is steaming toward the South Atlantic and could continue on to Africa to aid in evacuating Americans from the Congo if required, the U.S. Navy announced Tuesday. A spokesman stressed that this was purely a mercy mission, not a military action. The ship carried transport planes and helicopters.

The administration attitude appeared to reflect a determination to avoid involving American forces in what was viewed as a thankless task which well might wind up in a propaganda setback.

The Soviet Union, it was felt, would denounce any American intervention as blatant interference in the efforts of a newly independent nation to throw off the colonialist yoke.

Canadian Aid Appreciated by Chilean People

Aid given earthquake-torn Chile promptly and "without strings attached," by the Canadian government last May did a good deal towards fostering South American good-will for Canada.

This is the opinion of Flt/Lt. Bill Hoy of the Air Transport Command, Trenton Air Station, who participated in the RCAF "Air-lift" of badly needed supplies and medicines to Chile, following a series of disastrous earthquakes and tidal waves which reaped destruction on the South Amerian country.

Flt/Lt. Hoy was the navigator on the first of five North Stars which took off from the Trenton base on May 27th, loaded with 10,000 pounds of supplies, and a complete 30-bed field hospital.

In an address to members of the local Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon meeting Tuesday at the Kiwanis Centre, he disclosed the five aircraft "air-lifted" a total of 50,000 pounds of supplies to Santiago and Puerto Montt, one of the hardest hit areas. They were also used for shuttle service between Santiago and Puerto Montt, making 15 round trips, to transport 150,000 pounds of supplies and 30 passengers between the two communities. The aircraft also carried refugees out of the stricken areas.

He said Canada's contribution of supplies, a complete field hospital, medicines, and one million pounds of flour, was "very much appreciated" by the people of Chile.

"This kind of aid, given promptly and without any strings attached, did a good deal to promote goodwill between Chile and Canada and to raise Canada's prestige in South America," he said.

The RCAF officer said he and fellow crew members were impressed with the Chilean people.

"They were friendly and happy and didn't complain about the earthquakes, or being forced from their homes," he said. "People there seem to take it (the earthquake) as a matter of course."

Flt./Lt. Hoy said the approximately 50 Canadian airmen in Chile were warmly treated by the Chilean people.

With the aid of a map, the speaker traced the route taken by the North Star he navigated from Trenton to Santiago. He disclosed that landing at Santiago required some "tricky flying," as it's situated in a deep valley flanked by the Andes Mountains on the east and the high coastal belt on the west.

He noted one of the coincidences of the tragedy was that a new 6,000 foot landing strip at Puerto Montt, completed only two weeks before the earthquake struck, was undamaged. It was the only one large enough to accommodate Canadian and U.S. transport aircraft he said.

The speaker was introduced by Ross White and thanked by Donald Hickson. He was presented with a token of the club's aprpeciation by president George Tripp.

Flt./Lt. Hoy was accompanied by two pilots who participated in the airlift, Flt./Lts. R. Hayes and V. Peterson.

Other guests of the club included Salvation Army Major John Carter, who recently arrived in the city to succeed Major Victor Greenwood as head of the local Salvation Army Corps.

The meeting was under the chairmanship of President Tripp, who announced next week's speaker will be Dick Hart of Picton, who will give an address on the "Organization of the Harmsworth Trophy." Several French Canadian students from Quebec will be guests of the club at this meeting.

Special Committee Is Named To Negotiate With B of M Re Issuance of Debentures

A special committee to negotiate with the Bank of Montreal on the basis of issuing debentures for the retirement of the city's floating indebtedness was named last evening at a special meeting of council, the first such meeting held by city fathers since council adjournment for the summer recess.

Named to the committee after a full dress discussion on the matter, were Alderman Jack Deacon as chairman, with Ald. Ben Corke and Lorne McDougall as members.

The committee is directed to open negotiations immediately with respect to retiring the city's deficit caused through deficit financing over a several years period, together with financing of the Belleville McFarland's hockey club.

Discussions at last night's meeting of council revealed that negotiations with respect to the retirement of the city's floating indebtedness had been going on for some weeks.

One of the principal items under discussions was an amount of approximately $23,000 which had been refunded to the city by the Bank of Montreal in connection with arena account transfers.

Alderman Deacon stated that the Bank of Montreal was as much to blame as any other factor for the city's financial troubles and said he felt sure the bank realized its responsibility to the public of Belleville.

In a letter to Ald. William Jarvah, finance committee chairman, it has been suggested by Mayor A. McLean Haig that a single debenture be issued for the entire floating indebtedness of the city, with debentures to be dated at a suggested date of October 1st, 1960, payable on December 31, 1964.

Mayor Haig suggested that negotiations be commenced immediately with the bank to carry this debenture at 4½ per cent or its equivalent.

Last night council took no direct action on a finance committee recommendation for the floating indebtedness to be negotiated with the Bank of Montreal at no interest rate from January 1st, 1960, to October 1st, with callable debentures to [illegible] issued at the going rate of 5½ per cent or less.

Council approval was given, however, to formation of the special committee headed by Alderman Deacon to further negotiate with the bank on the debenture issue.

Also at last evening's meeting which was one of the longest of the year, council approved retaining of a firm of traffic consultants to do a traffic survey in the city. Estimated cost of the survey is up to $12,000, of which three-quarters would be paid by the Ontario government.

The traffic survey was recommended by the highway department prior to granting of full department approval for the institution of a one way traffic scheme in the city's downtown area.

Council also approved advertising the position of city clerk.

Deputy city clerk Adam Stalker, who has headed up the city clerk's department since last summer, following the death of Mrs. Anne Haggerty, will become city purchasing agent, a position recommended in a personnel study at city hall. Mr. Stalker will continue to act as deputy clerk until the appointment of a new city clerk.

Alderman Whalen noted that the decision with respect to Mr. Stalker's position at city hall was being brought up while Mr. Stalker was absent on holidays.

Mayor Haig, however, stated that he and city manager J. R. Reynolds had discussed the matter last week with Mr. Stalker.

Alderman Dr. John Barlow, chairman of city planning, brought to the attention of council the facts that a Hillcrest area resident was contravening the city building regulations by construction of a home addition after having been refused a building permit.

The entire Hillcrest area has been zoned as an industrial area and no new residential construction is to be done in the area.

The nome of the Hillcrest resident contravening the building regulations was said to be James Pearson.

On recommendation of Dr. Barlow council approved a motion calling for the building inspector to be instructed to issue no building permits for additions to any existing buildings which are being used, or may be used for a non-conforming use in the Hillcrest area, as this procedure contravenes the provisions of the zoning by-law.

Alderman Don Whalen suggested if council was going to enforce the industrial zoning regulations in Hillcrest, it may have to buy all residential land in that area.

Mayor Haig was opposed to Alderman Barlow's recommendation saying that it was in contravention to the existing by-law, but agreed that some action had to be taken.

The Board of Governors of the Belleville General Hospital brought to the attention of the council that while the city's five year capital works program provided for an amount of $1,000,000, the board's actual capital requirements during the period were estimated at $2,000,000.

No action was taken on the hospital board letter which was ordered to be filed.

And the street name Dundas Street West has apparently won out over the more familiar name of Trent Road.

Council last night approved of a planning committee recommendation calling for a roadway from Sidney Street to the westerly city limits be named Dundas St. West.

A recommendation calling for a remuneration of $400 per annum to the chairman of the parking authority committee and $300 for each member was laid over by council.

No action was taken regarding council approval of the Belleville Transit Commission budget. The budget still up for approval by council would be for the period May 1st when the city took over operation of the city buses.

BELGIUM REJECTS

they would use their own armed forces to protest whites in the republic but Belgian officials said they did not consider this assurance "sufficient in the light of latest events."

The Belgians told Congolese leaders that Belgium would withdraw its troops "as soon as order is restored either by us or by you or by international forces."

Lumumba and Kasavubu issued their demand for the withdrawal of Belgian troops from the Belgian military base of Kamina, where they flew Tuesday night after being refused permission to land at Elisabethville, capital of the breakaway province of Katanga.

Kasavubu and Lumumba had flown to Elisabethville in an attempt to prevent the secession of the province from the central government.

But Interior Minister Godefroid Munongo, acting on behalf of the provincial government, told them to "go away" and later said Katanga was independent and would have no dealings with Lumumba.

REPORTS OF SPLIT

Today's demand by Lumumba and Kasavubu touched off reports of a split in the Congolese government. Tuesday the rest of the central government in Leopoldville asked for American and United Nations military intervention to restore peace in the revolt-torn republic.

Belgian troops were sent to trouble spots throughout the Congo last week after several Europeans were killed and white women were rapied by mutinous Congolese sildiers.

Belgian paratroopers were forced to retreat from the Atlantic port of Matadi Tuesday after being outnumbered by the mutineers. Belgian troops also clashed with rebellious soldiers in several other parts of the country.

A pilot arriving in Northern Rhodesia from Luluabourg, in the south central Congo, reported that 55 whites had been killed in a mutiny by 2,000 African soldiers before paratroopers reoccupied the town Tuesday.

HOLD HOSTAGES

The rebels still were reported holding several Belgian women and about 30 Belgian officers prisoner at an army camp near Luluabourg. One refugee said women hostages had been rescued "naked and exhausted" from another camp.

In Jadotville, Katanga Province, 50 African mutineers were reported killed as Belgian paratroopers moved in. New trouble was reported from an army base near Leopoldville.

Europeans in Aketi, in the eastern Congo, radioed Tuesday that they were "entirely surrounded" by rebellious Congolese.

In Elisabethville, looting and arson were reported from the white quarter but the town was slowly returning to normal after a week of attacks by Congolese on white residents.

Belgian paratroopers guarded all the town's stratetic points and appeals were made for Europeans who have fled to Rhodesia to return to get the copper mines working fully again.

4 Air Rangers Home After 11 Days in States

TRENTON — Four tired but happy Air Rangers from the Trenton area, returned home Tuesday after spending 11 fun-packed days visiting points in the United States.

In all, eight Canadian rangers were chosen to represent Canada on this intergroup exchange visit. Two years ago, a similiar number of American rangers visited Canada, camping at Bon Echo. This year, foúr rangers from Ottawa and Jean Kitchen, Sharon Bunting, Pamela Ferguson, from Trenton and Dorothy Brooks from Stockdale, returned the visit. Two years from now an American group will visit Waupoos Girl Guide camp.

The Canadian rangers visited Westfield, N.J., Washington and Trenton, N.J. They spent several days at Camp Rockwood, near Washington, treating their American hostesses to a Canadian campfire one evening during their stay.

While in the capital, they visited scuh points of interest as Arlington Cemetery, the Thomas Jefferson Memorial, F.B.I. Headquarters, and the Smithsonian Institute. The girls commented that the "heat was terrific" in the States.

Board Members Tour Town's Park Sites

TRENTON — Members of Parks Board toured park areas in lieu of a formal meeting last night.

At Cottrell Park, on Dixon Drive, between Kerr Cresc. and Bowen Ave.. the front of the park area is beginning to show the results of the hot, dry weather of the past two weeks.

Board members were at a loss to know why one sizeable area in the middle of the park appeared to be quite green, while on either side the grass was parched and yellow. On suggestion was that there might be a leak in the water meter, located in the middle of the park.

In the park, the petunia beds are, for the most part, flourishing. Purple, pink and white are the predominating colors. A large, unwieldy park bench, with solid concrete legs which had been cemented into the ground, had been moved and was lying on its side. Recently-planted maple trees are flourishing behind their protective wire guards. A tree, guard and all, recently was uprooted from the park. None of the board members was able to say just what kind of maple the maple trees were. Leaves on the trees are outlined in white.

It was decided that signs. bearing the legend "Persons damaging this park area will be prosecuted", should be removed as they seem to serve no useful purpose and are unsightly.

The touring board members gave but a cursory glance at Allison Park, which is used as a playground area by the Trenton Recreation Commission. In the spring, this park was levelled and grass seed planted.

SHAPING UP

The front end of the Community Gardens, where top soil has been spread and flower beds planted against the building, was also given a once-over. More top soil will be spread and more grass seed planted to cover bare spots.

At Champlain Park, work on the new sidewalk along the north side green fence from Second to Third Avenue, was noted. Members were of the opinion that a bit of top soil and grass seed would not be amiss at High Park, in the upper Champlain Parks area.

Hanna- Park was given the most complete examination of the tour. Dilapidated picnic tables, which through age and ill-use were leaning at a 45 degree angle, will shortly be replaced by new tables. Members agreed that a great deal of weed cutting could be done in the park.

The landscaping at the new Prince Charles Public School was examined and approved.

At Bayshore Park, additional trees and flower beds were discussed. Fraser Park is at its loveliest at this time of year, and it's beauties were noted with complacency by the members of the board.

Board members taking the tour were chairman E.M. Parker, Jr., secretary Miss Marion Baker, and Norman Armstrong.

Union Certified To Represent City Bus Staff

OTTAWA — The Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers today announced that it had been certified by the Ontario Labor Relations Board as representative of the employees of the Belleville Transit Commission.

The application, filed by M. K. Carson, CBRT & GW representative, Toronto, on June 15, claimed 79 per cent of the employees as members of the Brotherhood.

The Transport and General Workers is Canada's largest national union, with approximately 40,000 members. In addition to railway and transport workers, it represents employees in railway hotels, airlines, canals, civic transport and coastal shipping.

Strikers Resume Work at Smith Transport

Forty Belleville members of Teamster's Local 938 (Ind.) returned to work Tuesday afternoon after a brief strike at the Smith Transport depot, Dundas St., East.

A company official said the workers' complaints were minor and could easily have been settled if they had approached the company.

The strikers included depot employees below the rank of foremen and excluded office staff. They were protesting what they termed unfair working conditions.

Depot manager Elliott Whiteman said the employees' complaints were "all minor stuff. No major issue was involved. Their complaints are being looked into now."

Included among the unfair working condition protests were lack of washroom facilities; no drinking water; use of only one man in loading piggyback railroad freight, which the union branded as unsafe; unsafe loading facilities at the depot; and the use of highway drivers for local pick-ups and deliveries while local drivers were on short hours. The latter complaint, however, was disproved by a company official who said it was shown that local drivers were not on short time and that some were on overtime.

Brigadier Bailey Inspects Summer Recruit Course Here

Brigadier A. J. B. Bailey, DSO, OBE, ED, CD, the new Commander Eastern Ontario Area of the Canadian Army made a brief inspection of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment's summer recruit course and armouries yesterday afternoon. It was the Brigadier's first visit to the regiment since taking over his new command in Kingston upon the retirement of Brigadier Eric Snow on July 1st.

Lt.-Col Angus Duffy met the inspecting party, which included Major J. Forrester, also of Kingston and staff officer in charge of training for the area. Brigadier Bailey observed several classes in national survival training and a class of parade drill involving the summer recruits and was interested in the progress which this group has made during its first eight days of training. A tour was made of the armouries and equipment also.

At the conclusion of his visit the brigadier expressed his pleasure with the progress of the summer recruits in their course, which [illegible] under the direction of Capt. W. O. Cochrane assisted by Lt. R. N. McLaughlen both of the regiment. He also expressed his satisfaction with the condition and cleanliness of the armouries. The brigadier's party then proceeded on to Trenton to inspect the armouries there.

The 46-year-old commander is a native of Comox, B.C., and has a distinguished and varied military service record. Before World War II he was a member of the Royal Canadian Artillery, Non-Permanent Active Militia. At the outbreak of hostilities he was mobilized for active service with the 62nd Field Battery and subsequently served in the United Kingdom, Italy and northwest Europe, rising, through a series of promotions, to the rank of lieutenant-colonel.

Following the war Brigadier Bailey has served several appointments in various capacities including one tour of duty in Ottawa as a General Staff Officer (1st Grade) in the Directorate of Military Training, another in Kingston as a member of the Directing Staff at the Canadian Army Staff College, also as commanding officer of the 2nd Field Regiment, Royal Canadian Horse Artillery in Korea for a year, and as Director of Artillery at Army Headquarters.

Brigadier Bailey comes to his current appointment which has coincided with his promotion to the rank of brigadier, following duty as Director of Military Operations and Plans at Army Headquarters, Ottawa for the past eleven months.

Home Town Man Wins Coe Hill Bass Derby

COE HILL—The fishing derby for the largest bass caught in Wollaston Lake, sponsored by the Coe Hill Chamber of Commerce, was a great success despite the inclement weather, and the bass caught over the week-end ranged all the way up to 5¼ pounds. Both the trout derby on the May 24th holiday, and the bass derby on Dominion Day, saw more boats on the lake at one time than ever before. They will be annual events. The first prize of $25 was won by Archie Hilts of Coe Hill. The second prize, fishing tackle, was won by Oscar Robinson of Toronto. Mr. Ray Harris of Toronto, came a close third, his fish being just one-half ounce less than the winner.

The success of the derby was largely due to the work of the derby committee, Charles Jarrett and William Hocking, with the assistance of Ken Seaborn and John Campbell.

Kiwanians Happy at Success Of Circus as Large Crowd Results in Doubling Profit

Belleville Kiwanians were jubilant today about the success yesterday of the Clyde Beatty-Cole Brothers circus which staged a one day exhibit at Zwick's Island.

Ways and means committee chairman Ken Pinder said the Kiwanis Club's profit of $1,230 was based on an actual ticket count of 4,203 paid admissions. The club will use the proceeds for community welfare work.

"Our profit was double 1958's when the circus was here last", he said. "But the number of people who saw the show probably was increased by another 1,000 if you consider the number of free passes that were handed out."

He said the public's response was "excellent" and noted that more than half of the tickets were sold to children.

Of the total number of tickets sold, children claimed 2,878, including 1,376 that were sold by telephone subscription back in March and April. The club's ticket office on Front St. sold 953 tickets (562 to children) July 4-11.

Club president George Tripp said the circus "went exceptionally well".

Mr. Pinder said the big top was filled to about one-quarter of its 5,000-seat capacity during the matinee, "but the place was nearly packed at night".

He was amazed at the "very, very clean operation of the circus".

The 600-member circus — the last travelling circus in existence on the continent — was on its way to Kingston shortly after midnight.

Biggest attraction of the circus was Clyde Beatty. Cracking a whip and firing a cap pistol at 18 Royal Bengal Tigers and Numidian lions in a large steel-barred cage, he exerted a compelling influence on beasts and spectators alike.

Despite the effect of his performance, the other acts by no means served as an anti-climax. A colorful parade of aerialists, clowns, equestrians, elephants, gymnasts and tight-rope walkers kept action at a high pitch until the two-hour performance ended.

Everyone who was there seemed to like the circus and no doubt many children suffered tummy aches last night after gorging themselves on ice cream, hot dogs, candy floss and popcorn.

But Clyde Beatty really stole the show, even if the other acts were excellent. Beatty, veteran animal trainer and movie actor kept his audience spell-bound while trying to watch a cage full of lions and at the same time predict their next moves. He once told this reporter that although the lions and tigers appear to be quite docile, he wouldn't trust one as far as he could throw it.

The cat trainer's whip is an instrument of authority and his cap pistol, which is fired frequently, distracts the animals when he figures they plan to do something which isn't on the program. The chair he uses would not amount to a hill of beans if a cat attacked in earnest, but besides looking good it is a traditional part of a trainer's equipment. It also comes in handy instead of sticking an arm down a lion's gaping maw and it gives a cat something besides a man in white on which to focus its attention.

The circus grounds were opened to the public an hour before the show started in the big top. Circus-goers took advantage of it to visit the sideshows and menagerie.

More than a dozen clowns kibitzed around the big top and rang gales of laughter from young and old with their zany antics. One of the clowns — Eddy Dullum — acts as teacher for 11 school-aged children associated with the circus. Usually he is able to give them only 90 minutes of lessons each day, but they get far more homework than the average student.

WEBB FINED

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Television's capt. Midnight, actor Richard Webb, is on probation for two years—and under court orders to avoid guns and liquor. Webb also was fined $150 Tuesday after pleading guilty to a charge of disturbing the peace. He was arrested a month ago by police who said he had barricaded himself in his home and challenged them to a gun duel.

Castro Right—For Once

Cuba's appeal to the United Nations security council to consider its relations with the United states should result in prompt action.

This is just the type of a dispute, between a great power and a neighboring small one, with which the UN is best equipped to deal.

If it finds the small nation in the wrong, it should have scant difficulty in bringing sufficient pressure to bear upon it to make it act in a reasonable fashion.

On the other hand, if the big nation is found to be at fault, world opinion will be against it to an extent which would never be true in a dispute between two major powers. Nobody likes to be known as a bully.

Perhaps Castro was frightened, as well he may be, by the readiness with which Khrushchev was taking up the cudgels on his behalf.

Nothing is more calculated to stiffen Uncle Sam's back in dealing with Cuba than the sight of Mr. K. standing in the background waving the Red flag and egging Castro on.

If any proof were needed of this assertion, surely President Eisenhower provided it when he said the U.S. will not "permit the establishment of a regime dominated by international Communism in the western hemisphere." If this were meant to be a mere reassertion of the Monroe Doctrine, it was scarcely carefully worded, for a valid interpretation is that the U.S. will not tolerate any orthodox Communist government anywhere in North, Central or South America. This may not be a new development in fact, but for the U.S. to bluntly state that it reserves the right to veto what form of government any of the sovereign nations on two continents may choose is hardly the way to combat charges of "Yanqui imperialism."

It is high time that Mr. Castro was told to sit down and shut up, before he stirs up a squabble in which he is completely out-matched, by so-called foe and so-called friend.

Hidden Asset

All the talk about the Democratic Party's fair-haired young man, John F. Kennedy, has been designed to prove that any red-blooded, clean-living American boy can grow up to be president, even if his religion does chance to differ from that of the majority of voters in the Home of the Brave.

It remained for The Canadian Press to toss in as a casual aside a fact which might very well be a factor in Kennedy's political fortunes—his father has a mere $200,000,000. It may be that the high-minded politicians south of the border have never given any consideration to this fact, but we must say that in Canada we know of no party which would object to having a candidate with such backing.

Dollars may not win elections, but we have never yet heard of them being proved to be a handicap.

Golfer's Radar

The Canadian Army is shortly to receive radar equipment so accurate that it can track the flight of a golf ball.

If President Eisenhower's term of office were not nearing a conclusion, this might easily raise the status of our Army to a hitherto unattainable height, perhaps bringing it campaign ribbons for operations on every major golf links on the continent.

The radar, though, while unquestionably a golfer's dream gift, is designed to trace mortar shells, back to their source. Then Canadian mortars can be brought to bear on the enemy mortars. If the enemy possesses radar of similar capacity, they will presumably play the same game.

Just how long motar duels are likely to be waged in any future war before somebody vaporizes the radar sets with an atom bomb is a technical question which might be worth some little study.

Posterity will blame us severely if we allow our finest wild flowers to become extinct and thereby rob future generations of what could be saved now before it is too late. There is no legislation of wild flowers in Canada unless they grow in our national and provincial parks. —Cape Breton Post.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

DOING GOD'S WILL

Yesterday we quoted a philosopher who said that man's chief duty was to know God's will and then to do it. We wrote, therefore, about how we may try to know God's will.

But to know it is not enough; we must try to do it as well. I say "try," because God's will for each of us is so challenging, so demanding of the very best of which we are capable, that we do not always succeed in fulfilling it.

Some qualities are especially helpful in doing His will. One is energy. No laxy or apathtic person ever carried out God's orders very well. We are given only a limited span of years on earth. If we are to acomplish anything, we must keep busy at it.

Another quality that aids us in getting on with the Lord's work — and our own — is cheerfulness. "God loveth a cheerful giver," and a cheerful worker, too. Gloomy, long-faced Christians do not add to their own effectiveness by their melancholy attitude, nor do they set a good example to others.

But the most important and necessary quality for doing God's will is love. Unless his own great love for us is reflected in our love for Him and for our fellow men, we cannot really do his will at all. "Love one another, as I have loved you."

D.N.A., the Secret of Life

From "Science Notes" by Ritchie Calder in UNESCO Features

Question: Mr. Kwame Adjaye, of Accra, Ghana, asks: "What exactly is DNA? I have seen it referred to several times as 'the chemical which holds the secret of life'. Is this true?"

Answer: No less. If, without going into a philosophic argument on "What is life?", we accept a limited scientific definition that a thing "lives" if it reproduces itself (like the cells of the body and the species of plants, animals and humans) then this is it. D.N.A., that is to say Deoxyribonucleic-acid, is a chemical which not only reproduces itself but provides the chemical mechanism by which the most complex living structures reproduce themselves. With R.N.A. (ribonucleic-acid) it is a basic chemical of the living cell.

The chemists had long known the constituents of D.N.A. — sugars, phosphates, and four different substances containing nitrogen. But that gave no clue to its biological action. They did not know how these constituents were arranged, nor in what way they influenced the living processes.

Then Watson and Crick, at the Cavendish Laboratory, Cambridge, suggested that the molecule of D.N.A. was a "double helical chain", like the twist of electrical flex. The physicists went even further, and with X-rays showed how the various atoms of the constituents were arranged along this flex. They found that the nitrogen-containing chemicals were always disposed in certain orders and upon the particular order depended a whole lot of things.

In fact the order was a chemical code which transmitted "instructions" from one generation to another. And by "generation" is meant not only from parent to child, but from cell to cell in the constantly renewing processes of the body. Thus the D.N.A. of a kidney cell would always reproduce another kidney cell, and so with the brain cell, and with the skin cell, etc. So, too, the germ-cells carrying an immense number of instructions would, chemically, transmit hereditary characteristics which would determine the colour of the eyes, the shape of the nose, the curl of the hair, or an aptitude for music.

• • •

If, in these transmitted patterns, the position of one of these nitrogen compounds got displaced and another was substituted for it, the characteristics would be changed but the new pattern would go on reproducing itself. This is what scientists call a "mutation".

Using natural D.N.A. biologists have been able to demonstrate this hereditary process. For example, Professor Jacques Benoit and his colleagues in Paris took the D.N.A. from the cells of one type of duck called "khaki" and injected it into young ducks of another strain, "Peking". The result was that, even in a duck already born the characteristics were changed. The "Peking" ducks were no longer completely "Peking", but they were not "khaki" either: an entirely new strain had been created.

The properties of DNA are still not properly known, but recently an important step was made in that direction when three French research workers, Messrs. Polonsky, Douzou and Sadron, described the peculiar electronic properties they had discovered in certain elements of living matter.

Back in 1956, Polonsky had suggested that the cells might be arranged according to an electronic type pattern. And early this year, Pierre Douzou and Charles Sadron, head of the Macromolecular Research Centre in Strasbourg, provided some basis for this theory by demonstrating that DNA is endowed with a "memory" and with a capacity for converting energy and for transmitting "information".

If other experiments confirm these properties of DNA, important new fields of study will be opened to biological research. Up to now, scientists have been unable to explain why the constituents of the cells are arranged in a given order, still less how DNA exercises a sort of "remote control", for example, in transmitting genetic "instructions", or in directing the fundamental life processes.

• • •

Question: Mr. P. Van der Haegen, at the University Sanitorium, of Eupen, Belgium, has various questions about the life process: "I should like to know what the present state of research is regarding the reproduction or creation of an elementary human being?"

Answer: We are a very, very, long way from producing test-tube babies. Scientists using radioactive tracers have convincingly demonstrated how plants convert the sun's rays and the elements of the atmosphere and of the soil into carbohydrates, the sugar and starches necessary as the energy-foods of the life-process. They have an inkling of how plants go on to produce proteins, necessary for the building and maintenance of tissues.

They know that there are twenty or more amino-acids, the chemical groups or "bricks", which build up the structure of protein. They can make most of them synthetically from elements in the laboratory. But they still have not shown convincingly how these bricks can be artificially compounded into proteins. Oh, yes, they have "made" proteins by feeding them with the chemicals on which they grow, just as they have made organs grow — when they had the natural cells of the organs with which to start.

They know the nature of D.N.A. and R.N.A. which are the active "architect's blueprints" by which the elements are compounded into cells and tissues and, in principle, into micro-, plant, animal, or human, -organisms. But that is still a long way from sitting down, planning and producing any organism, without the help of nature.

• • •

Question: Mr. Van der Haegen goes on to ask: "Have the scientists succeeded in synthesising protein similar to viruses?"

Answer: No. They have not yet reproduced the simplest cell, or the virus, or the bacterium. They have changed the cell, the virus, the bacterium and even ducks by artificial use of DNA. But the DNA was not artificial, in the sense that it was compounded in the test-tube from original elements. In the case of ducks, it was a matter of isolating DNA from the cell of one type of duck and injecting it into a duck of another type, whose characteristics were changed.

Question: He also asks: "Have any of the Nobel Prizewinners for Physiology done research work in this field?"

Answer: Yes. Very notable research work. Kornberg (USA) succeeded in growing DNA out of a chemical medium but he had to use natural DNA as the "primer". By giving it the elements which he knew it needed, he made it grow. In other words, he made a chemical reproduce itself from other chemicals in a test-tube. Thus, he made an elementary form of life. Since then claims have been made that DNA has been grown from a chemical medium, without a "primer". There is no theoretical reason why this should not be done. It will be. And man will have fabricated the pattern of the living process.

But not dramatically — like producing a manikin in a flask. The structure of a protein such as insulin is known. It can be modified and improved for the benefit of sufferers from diabetes but it has not been built "brick" by "brick".

Viruses have been produced in the form of crystals — inert. Those crystals in contact with a living substance come alive. Viruses are proteins plus DNA or RNA — the simplest form of the living process, yet still too complicated to make.

The important thing is not that the chemists should create a being — a Frankenstein — but that, in all this kind of study, scientists are learning about the nature of the cells. And, in that growing knowledge, will be found the answer to problems like cancer — cells which have run amok.

Ultimately, by changing the processes of heredity, man might produce a Superman — or a monster. But better that we seek to control and avoid hereditary diseases, which, to the scientists, are forms of transmitted protein, modified by DNA.

A rapid canal and a city on the St. Lawrence, a few miles west of Montreal. La Salle was granted a site there in 1667 by the Sulpician Fathers on which to erect a post for the defence of Montreal. Each summer has seen growing interest on the part of the boys and girls, and so far this year seventy-five have been enrolled in the Club. The plan is to encourage reading on varied subjects.

Mental Stress Frequently Is Most Exhausting

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Two scientists in San Diego have developed an electronic device for measuring fatigue. The machine, called an electromyograph, picks up currents from electrodes fastened to a person's skin, near a muscle.

Whatever specialized value this instrument may have, it will not be able to measure 90 per cent of the fatigue that patients complain about to doctors. And most patients visiting doctors cite "fatigue" as one of their chronic symptoms.

When a person in modern society says, "I'm pooped," or some more elegant variation thereof, he is rarely complaining about physical fatigue. Few of us work hard enough with our bodies, even athletes recuperate rapidly from strenuous physical exertions.

Almost all fatigue today is mental and emotional — and therefore unmeasurable by any electronic device. What exhausts us is the strain of working and living closely in a complex and unstable social order. Driving a car home in rush-hour traffic is little physical effort — but it can be pure anguish to the mind and feelings.

When one person says to another, "You make me tired," he is expressing more than a figure of speech — for some personalities actually have the power to fatigue us more than a 10-mile hike.

When I was a young man going out on dates, I would often suffer from a "fatigue syndrome." Acute tiredness would set in by 10 o'clock. I would stifle yawns and rub my eyes and feel dopey on a date with a girl who bored me. Doubtless many of them felt the same way with me.

• • •

The housewife who complains of fatigue usually has nothing organically wrong with her, and no instrument could measure the extent of her tiredness, just as no medicine could cure it. But such women spend millions a year in a futile quest for a remedy of one sort or another.

"Enough sleep" is not the answer, either. Ten hours of sleep a night would not provide sufficient rest to a person who is under a strain all day long — for sleep itself is not relaxing if the mind and emotions are in disharmony.

What we really need is a machine to measure the amount of emotional stress each of us can successfully stand, and then to live within the limits of that tolerance. But the physical sciences, alas, are not able to give us qualitative measurements; and it is the quality of the stress, not the mere quantity, that determines our level of functioning.

Laborers don't suffer as many heart attacks as executives, for the latter are driving hard, while the former are only working hard.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

OLD HEARTS CANNOT BE MADE YOUNG, BUT THEY CAN STILL SERVE WELL

"Dear Dr. Molner: Can angina pectoris be completely healed in a man of 71 years who has had it three years? — W. S. J."

"Dear Dr. Molner: I am 80 and short of breath on stairs and walking. What's the answer? Can I take anything if it is caused by heart? — B.C."

Angina pectoris (pain in the heart region) is a result of a heart that isn't getting its full share of oxygen. Shortness of breath (as in the second letter) may be due to a heart deficiency or it may be due to some other condition. At the age of 80, however, it is apt to be the result of the heart being somewhat below par.

Now let's face facts. At the age of 70 or 80, we have to expect that some of our physical machinery no longer works at peak efficiency.

An old body, like an old automobile, isn't good for races, or for long, hard effort. I suppose all of us who have reached the age of discretion sometimes think yet, when we take a second look we'd like to be young again; and at things, we wonder whether we would want to go through all the worries and troubles and strain and struggle again.

We spend a large part of our lives fighting our way from one emergency to the next — the school bully in the third grade, arithmetic in the fifth, learning a "speech" in the eighth. Algebra, first long pants, first date, learning to dance, starting to shave, finishing school, getting the first job, getting married, the first baby, buying a house, paying for educations, paying the wedding bills — I don't know whether I'd have the courage to go through it all again. It includes going through the tensions of depressions, wars, illnesses and all the troublesome things of life. Nerves, debts, problems.

We took problems as they came, when we were young, and I should hate to admit that we do not have the same courage when we are older.

Angina pectoris is pain which means that the heart no longer has the vigor it used to have. Healing is not a good term. But such a heart can still serve us well if we will give it such medication as it can use (nitroglycerin and similar aids) and if we will admit that the heart needs its work to be made as easy as possible.

The same is true if we begin to huff and puff because our hearts have begun to wear down a bit from 70 or 80 years of hard work. Again, periodic medication often is helpful. It is also helpful for us to take the stairs slowly, to break up our walks in shorter distances.

We can't make old hearts young again, but we can be sensible about it, and not demand too much. We wouldn't insist that a 1925 roadster go a mile a minute, or turn corners with the tires screaming. That would just invite a breakdown. But if we drove our 1925 car along at a quiet, easy rate, we'd expect it to keep going for quite a long time, even if it squeaked and labored. Our hearts will do the same.

"Dear Dr. Molner: My husband has had prostate gland trouble (the doctor says not magligant) for several years. If this could be maligant would it endanger the wife's health? — J. J."

Whether malignant or not, it will not endanger the wife's health.

British Use TV in School

Fort William Times-Journal

More and more the United Kingdom educational system is making use of television. The time may not be far off when the teacher's part will be little more than moderator or chairman in the classroom.

B.B.C. television school broadcasts now reach rather more than 2,000 schools in Britain as compared with something over 1,000 a year ago. In the new school year there will be more television programs for primary schools, with a series of "People in Many Lands" (two films for this series were shot in Nigeria early this year), and a new general interest series planned with the smaller and more remote schools in mind. For sixth forms there will be programs about the arts and contemporary affairs in addition to those about science; geography programs are being developed, both about Britain and the rest of the world.

Lastly, the provision for secondary schools in science is being doubled by adding to the well-established "Science and Life" a new and quite distinct series, "Discovering Science" which is likely to be especially welcomed by those teachers who, while teaching science, are not specialists in the subject.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

JUST BE YOURSELF

With so many millions of other people in the world, why should anyone want to be someone else? Each one of us is unique, and we should stay that way, for it was the way we were created. We are the most perfectly conceived piece of machinery ever created! Not a single nose, eye, ear, mouth or face exactly like someone else's!

Most of us are well born. There has been many a one who in this free land has risen "from rags to riches". And many a farm boy has distinguished himself. The fact is that in free America we have a "Who's Who" in hamlets scattered across miles and miles of territory.

Just be yourself and you will be distinguished. Try to imitate someone else and you are apt to be a nobody. Personality is something that has been born in one, and it takes little to bring out the fact. One thing is outstanding, however. The more intelligent the person the greater his or her personality is sure to be.

Courage, patience, humility, kindness and understanding are a few of the things that contribute to an outstanding personality. A kindly voice has often sent a message of love and good cheer around the world! Such a one may not be wealthy in money, stocks and bonds, but richer in character and personal charm. They are those who have feeling and sympathy toward all mankind.

Just be yourself and people will hunt you out! You will be remembered and beloved longer than any person, no matter how long numbered in years. Usefulness will keep you healthy and happy while you live here and now.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

All our civil defence instructions and programs are based on the assumption that if and when an enemy atomic rocket strikes, all husbands will be home from work, all wives will be home from shopping, all children will be gathered around their parents' knees. We will all be cosy family units, ready to take instant measures for our salvation.

It would be, we assume, around 3 a.m., when all respectable families are snug in bed and the only people abroad would be a few expendable revellers, some policeman and a handful of taxi drivers.

No enemy strategist in the world would launch an attack at such a time. To effect the maximum confusion amongst us, the blow would fall at a time when fathers of families were miles from home, when mothers could be anywhere shopping, when children would be scattered all over the enighborhood, and when traffic would be at its daytime peak, ripe for utter confusion.

Fatuous speculation about civil defence should not be allowed to diminish in the slightest measure the grim responsibility of governments to face up to reality. Copyright: Canada Wide

Girl Guide Camp at Waupoos Is One of Best in Canada

PICTON — One of the most unique Girl Guide camps in Canada is now in operation at Waupoos, 14 miles east of here. The 200-acre camp, which opened this month has a 53-acre reforestation plot, heavily wooded with pine trees. An 11-room house provides shelter for a large group of Brownies in the 8 to 11-year-old bracket.

Designated the Quinte Area Girl Guide Camp, the property has 1,800 feet of waterfront on Lake Ontario, far removed from cottage and speedboat localities. Buildings on the former farm property will provide dining room, offices and infirmary, and a large barn will be equipped with a stage for entertainment on rainy days and shelter during severe storms.

The camp accommodates 300 Guides under canvas at one time and more than 700 are expected before the Labor Day closing date.

The camp serves an area from Peterborough to Bath, near Kingston including Belleville, Trenton, Napanee and Picton. It was purchased at a cost of $20,000, and several thousand dollars have been spent in renovation. Guides and Brownies have contributed by raising funds in a score of different ventures.

Rome's Fall Fashions On Display

ROME (AP)—Rome's fall and winter fashion collections opened Tuesday with all the profusion of an oriental bazaar.

Two houses new to the couture ranks showed young, vivacious clothes. Lancetti, the designer for Aris, had a small group of separates made in deep-fringed black wool and sharp-colored knits. "Poodle pants," twice as shaggy as any dog, were tiered with raggedy-ann wool and teamed with a fire-engine pullover sweater.

The other new house, Giter, whose designer is Blanco, had coats, suits and evening clothes inspired by "the gracefulness of sails." The silhouette belled out in the back like a spinnaker full of wind.

WEDDINGS

FITCHETT — DEVOLIN

Roses and peonies formed a lovely setting in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Stirling, re- Presbyterian Church, Stirling, recently, for the marriage of Shirley Lamoine Devolin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Devolin, Stirling, to William Edward Fitchett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carmen Fitchett of Stirling. The Rev. W. H. V. Walker, officiated in the double-ring ceremony with the Rev. K. F. Rooney assisting.

Mrs. Harry Morrow presided at the console of the organ, and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Walter Warren, who sang "The Wedding Prayer" before the ceremony and "Because" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in her gown of white pure silk organza with chapel train. Sequins and French lace trimmed the Sabrina neckline, while a panel of French lace accented the front of the skirt and bodice. Her shoulder length veil of swiss net fell from a crown of mother-of-pearl sequins and she carried a cascade of red roses.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Paul Kawzenuk, sister of the bride, and bridesmaids, Mrs. Ross Bateman, Miss Ester Fanjoy and Barbara McElbrath wore identically styled street-length gowns of mauve silk organza, matching shoes, and mauve silk organza picture hats trimmed with sequins, mauve organza mitts. SCOTT — ELLIOT

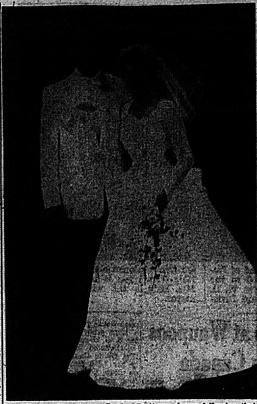
A very pretty double-ring wedding was solemnized on Saturday, July 2nd, in Christ Church, Belleville, when Archdeacon J. B. Creeggan, rector of the church, united in marriage Marilyn Elliot, of Belleville, only daughter of Mrs. Albert Elliot, to Albert Gordon Scott, of Torrance, Los Angeles, Calif., son of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Y. Scott. Tall standards of mauve and white delphiniums, interspersed with ferns, adorned the sanctuary and altar, and white satin bows designated the guest pews.

Mr. John Croyden Withers presided at the console of the organ for the wedding music, and accompanied the choir of eight boys who rendered "Praise My Soul, the King of Heaven," the "67th Psalm" and "Come, Holy Ghost" during the processional and Trumpet Tune and Air "Teccata" from Vida, for the recessional.

The lovely bride, escorted to the altar by her brother, Mr. William Elliot, and given in marriage by her mother, Mrs. Albert Elliot, wore a beautiful bridal gown of blush-white silk organza over taffeta in floor-length, fashioned with drop waistline bodice, accented by a large back bow, and having a rounded scoop neckline edged by handcut French lace accented by seed pearls, and lily-pointed sleeves. The graceful skirt was caught at the front sides by rosettes of matching lace. She wore a waist-length veil of blush-white with hand-rolled edge, and tiara teardrop, pearl-studded headdress and carried a white prayer book crested with white Shasta 'mums and trailing ivy. A gold cross and chain completed the nuptial costume.



Mr. and Mrs. Albert Gordon Scott are shown following their recent marriage in Christ Church, Belleville. The bride is the former Miss Marilyn Elliot, only daughter of Mrs. Albert Elliot, of Belleville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Rex V. Scott, of Torrance, Los Angeles, California.

Lounging Luxury

By VERA WINSTON

Pretty patio outfits, handsome hostess coats and costumes, and easy lounging pajamas help to make things comfy at home.

These lounging pajamas, nice for patio or indoors, are of red cotton with all - over embroidery and an embroidered, scalloped band at the hem of the blouse and pants. The separate cummerbund of black cotton does an effective job of minimizing the waistline beneath the cool, cropped top.

The outfit also comes in yellow with a red cummerbund.

PLAN HUGE PROECT

MONTREAL (CP)—Two Montreal architects have unveiled plans for a proposed Confederation Square in the heart of the city. Andre Blouin and Jean Gareau estimated the cost of the project at $95,000,000. The square would include a 10-acre pedestrian plaza, a 1,200-room hotel, a stadium and a covered parking lot to accommodate 11,000 cars.

The Pollock Farm: Number One Summer Stop

By Mary Moore

My summer peregrinations started with a restful visit to the Pollock farm on Round Lake in the Kawarthas.

The warmth of their welcome always charms me. Helen is an excellent cook. Cooking to her is both a vocation and an avocation, so you can easily understand our kindredship. Her husband, George, says we are two women wrapped around two stomachs. He's right too. Bless me, George is always right!

For our eating pleasure, and to help me with my work (and to shatter my calorie-conscious will power!) Helen made numerous luscious dishes, some of which I will give you today. The marinate venison steaks, which she served the evening that Reuben came to dinner, are particularly notable. Another marinade that she used on home-caught pickerel fillets, will be more generally useful to you, and will make friends of those who are not particularly fond of fish. It may be used on other white-fleshed lean fish fillets. Helen's frozen pineapple dessert made enough to serve 8 to 10 generously and is economical and good.

MARINATED VENISON STEAKS:

This amount will marinate approximately 2 lbs. (defrosted) venison steaks cut a little more than 1-2" thick. One-half cup white wine vinegar, 1-4 cup each cooking oil and sherry, 1-2 teaspoons each salt and sugar, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 1 garlic clove sliced. Mix all of these ingredients together and pour over venison steaks on shallow dish and allow to soak 3 hours, turning them over 3 or 4 times during this period. Drain well. Pan fry venison steaks in butter until well browned on both sides. Time depends on whether you prefer your venison rare or well-done.

MARINADE FOR FISH:

Soak pickerel or other white fillets in following and let stand overnight. Three tablespoons each sweet pickle juice and cooking oil, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 teaspoon grated onion, 1-4 teaspoon paprika, salt and pepper, 2 tablespoons catsup. Drain and fry fillets in butter 5 to 8 minutes.

HELEN'S FROZEN PINEAPPLE PUDDING:

One 1-lb. can evaporated milk, chilled and whipped, 1 box pineapple jello, 1 20-oz. tin crushed canned pineapple, juice from drained pineapple and water enough to make up to 1 3-4 cups, 1-4 cup lemon juice, 1 cup sugar. Dissolve jello in hot juice and water. Cool to room temperature and add lemon juice and sugar and beat until light and fluffy. Fold in chilled milk whipped until stiff. Add drained crushed, canned pineapple and gently fold in until evenly distributed. Turn into freezing trays and freeze until hard.

NOTE:

If desired this pudding may simply be chilled. Freezing is not necessary. Helen likes it better frozen though.

MORE PET PEEVES

Somehow the heat has a way of making one's "pet peeves" become more peevish as each day passes. Perhaps yours is listed among the following summer complaints.

There's the dweller in a small house, nestled in a row of other small houses. Because I live in one myself, I may be calling the kettle black. Perhaps your actions (and mine, too) bring long-suffering neighbors to the point of mayhem.

First, there's the "back yard party" that gets out of hand around midnight, with resultant bellowed "O Solo Mios." This is liable to go on for hours — and usually does.

Then, the guests who depart in the wee small hours with prolonged goodbyes — needless to say the top of the lungs is the voice pitch that is used. Added to this uproar there is much banging of car doors and farewell toots of the horns.

The barbecue grill does more than get smoke in your eyes. It may entirely smoke out the unfortunate who lives next door. Sometimes this can't be avoided, but at least an effort can be made to place the grill where it is apt to do the least harm.

Since homes without air-conditioning means open windows, it is to be hoped that you can't plead guilty to any of the following:

Blaring radios or TV sets can make even the most pious wish they had a hatchet, and no wonder.

Allowing Fido to sit in the backyard and howl his displeasure at being shut out is downright unkind — not only to Fido but to the humans who are forced to listen to him. Don't blame Fido. Blame his owners. They ought to be boiled in oil.

There is the owner of the power lawn mower who delights in using this noisy contraption in the early hours of a Sunday morning. What you think of him is best left unsaid.

Under the heading of general peeves:

The "heat whiner." "Isn't this heat awful? I could just die." This is the oft-repeated lament. Reminding people that it's hot is stupid. They know it without being told.

The "insistent host" who hounds you to take another drink, or what have you. People usually imbibe and eat less during hot weather. If you've had enough, you've had it. A good host will let well enough alone.

Folks who drop by without warning, usually "catching you "en deshabille" in your efforts to beat the heat. A peephole in your front door is the best answer to these pests.

Be honest now. Are you guilty?

The Experts Say

A Well-Equipped Home Often Means a Well-Equipped Barn

By EDNA BLAKELY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — When some motorists pass a farm with a well-equipped barn, they expect to see a run-down farmhouse, and vice versa.

The tourists will say: "There's a farm where the man is the boss," when they spot a spic and span barn.

But it isn't so, not in Ontario, anyway. Dr. Helen C. Abell, chief of the rural sociology unit of the federal agriculture department, has facts and figures to prove it.

The data is included in one of the first progress reports of a special study of Ontario farm homes and homemakers, carried on jointly by the federal and provincial agriculture departments.

"A well-equipped home generally means a well-equipped barn," says Dr. Abell.

Of the 353 farm women interviewed during June and July last year, all had stoves—all but 15 per cent of them electric or gas stoves. Other labor-saving equipment included refrigerators, owned by 95 per cent; freezers, 56 per cent; power washing machines, 98 per cent; automatic clothes dryers, 11 per cent; vacuum cleaners, 87 per cent, and electric floor polishers, 12 per cent.

Every home had at least one of the seven items and a few had all seven. The average was five.

In her report, Dr. Abell said in Ontario the family usually owns and operates the farm on which they reside. "Ideally both husband and wife desire and seek technological and mechanical aids to minimize arduous labor for all family members. This is one logical reason for expecting that there would be some sort of equalization between possession of items of equipment used to lighten both farming and home-making equipment."

MOST USEFUL

The washing machine topped the list as the most useful piece of home equipment and was followed by the refrigerator, stove, vacuum cleaner, freezer, iron and sewing machine.

To determine a level of living, the farm homemakers were asked 27 questions about such things as the type of home construction, the number of rooms for each person, the lighting system, furnishings, the type of floor and wall finish and the presence of newspapers and magazines in the home.

The highest possible score was 27 and the answers varied from 11 to 27 with the average score being 23. Scores from earlier studies in Alberta, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Quebec varied from 15 to 17.

In the Ontario survey 92 per cent of the women said they did some sewing, and 27 per cent said they had made at least one hat.

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

About a week before the celebration of our National Birthday, we had the pleasure of a conversation with someone who is 113 days older than Confederation. But that is only a small part of the attainments of the ninety-three - year - old gentleman.

Until only a few months ago, he walked to the post office — a distance of a male and a half —every day. We heard that he was making almost that mileage inside the hospital only a short time after undergoing a serious operation.

Last year was the seventieth consecutive church conference he had attended and he was very impatient of a spell in the hospital which kept him from the seventy-first. Looking not more than seventy-five, he has the alertness of mind of a twenty-year-old, with the wisdom and experience of years added.

Everyone who knows the subject of these few lines would say, we are sure, that it is the lively interest in such a variety of things which keeps this man young. And how rewarding the company of such a person is. His keen interest in the affairs of community and country alone brings forth many reminiscences. This man has heard and seen every Prime Minister of Canada since Confederation. As a minister of the church his first Sunday School secretary in Chatham, N.B., was a man called Richard Bedford Bennett, then only twenty-three years old. Mr. Bennett's ability was very evident at that age, for it was his advice and plan which put that church on a clear and firm financial footing.

Another lifelong interest of our nonegenaylon has been the observance of nature with a special interest in birds. It was he who told us of the original Audubon books in the Legislative Library in the Parliament Buildings in Fredericton which we later visited. Several folios like these have now been found, but for a long time the only other known one was in the Museum of Natural History in New York City.

These books are kept in a glass-covered case with one page being turned over every day. There are four volumes, double elephant folios, dated 1827-1838. The books are large, slightly more than a yard long and about two and a half feet wide. The New Brunswick set was bought from Little, Brown & Company of Boston in 1852 for eight hundred dollars. The illustrations are drawn from nature and published by John J. Audubon. They were engraved and printed and colored by Hovell and Son.

Another old book in the Legislative Library is a 1783 copy of the Domesday Book originally written in 1086. It was an attempt to assess the whole community for taxation purposes. It is written in Latin, and abbreviated Latin at that, so it was not very readable to us ordinary mortals.

But we are straying from the story of our venerable friend. He was comparing for us the speed of travel now to the speed of travel in his young days. When he was six years old, he travelled with his family from Richibucto to Shediac; this was forty miles by horse and buggy (if that is the correct term for the conveyance used) at the rate of six miles per hour. Then they went on from Shediac to Saint John — a distance of two hundred miles — in eighteen hours.

Last year, over eighty-five years later, he flew from Trinidad to Malton, a distance of three thousand six hundred miles, in thirteen hours.

It is interesting to this district to note that the church which our New Brunswick gentleman attends now has as its minister, Mr. Minnielly, formerly of Trenton. A former minister of the same church is Rev. H. Davis who is now at Bridge Street United Church.

As you can imagine, our delightful visit was all too short, but we are very grateful for having had it.

GETS PROBATION

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Marion Barnett, 32, who admitted thrashing her 13-year-old stepson with an electric cord, was given a suspended sentence Monday and placed on probation for two years. Mrs. Barnett said she stripped her stepson, tied his hands behind his back and thrashed him after he had come home late from school.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Michael A. — Marie doesn't know when to stop drinking.

Marie A. — I drink less than he does.

• • •

Michael A. — My wife and I are in our mid-30's and have been married nearly 15 years. We have four children and could be very happy — if it weren't for Marie's drinking.

I have no objection to drinking in moderation. In fact, I greatly enjoy a sociable evening in which there is lots of good talk and some drinks to loosen everyone up. But with Marie, there is just no limit. Once she starts drinking she doesn't know when to stop.

She has seriously embarrassed me on many occasions. It's a heck of a business taking home a drunken and raging wife after every party. I have tried to reason with her and each time Marie promises to behave, but then goes back on her word.

• • •

Marie A. — Mike is trying to show that I'm an alcoholic or something and I'm nothing of the sort. What he calls drunk is only a little high. I drink a good deal less than he does.

As a matter of fact, Mike always gets in a couple of cocktails during the day and I rarely touch a drop except at parties. When Mike comes home he usually has to sleep off the effects of his cocktails. Then he wakes up and is ready to start all over. By that time I don't even feel like going out.

Several times I've made up my mind to give up drinking but Mike doesn't like that either. He says it looks very queer and it gives people the impression that I'm an alcoholic.

• • •

The Council: There is a good deal of bandying of the word alcoholic here without much understanding of what it means.

We get the impression that to both Mike and Marie it means something that could only happen to the next fellow — not them.

Actually, they both show signs of this disease. It is characteristic of the alcoholic to deny that the problem exists for him, yet to continue drinking to excess.

Alcoholics Anonymous says the first step toward recovery involves the recognition that there is a problem.

It is time for both Mike and Marie to stop blaming one another and acknowledge that each of them has a battle to fight. As long as each can accuse the other, there is no hope for their stepping out of the vicious cycle.

A first step might be to locate an Alcoholics Anonymous unit in their community. This may seem like a drastic step, but the A's owe it to themselves to get real information about alcoholism.

As a result of what they learn, the A's will probably see there is an urgent need to break their close ties with a drinking crowd. There are many circles in which heavy drinking is a vital part of the social climate, and it is more than difficult to abstain.

Probably there is a great need for the A's to re-evaluate their life pattern and their goals. Excessive drinking may be a substitute for many things — an interest in life, genuine social enjoyment and the courage to do something to improve life, to name a few. One way of breaking away from this substitute satisfaction is to find some real ones.

Women's Activities

SHANNONVILLE W. A.

The monthly meeting of the W.A. of Shannonville United Church was held at the church hall on the afternoon of July 7 with an attendance of 17. Mrs. Sam Elliott, president, welcomed all and read a poem about the beauty of July. Mrs. Elmer Vivian, group leader took charge.

Mrs. Frank Doxtator read the Scripture lesson from the Ephesians 5. Mrs. E. Vivian read the lesson thoughts from the devotional leaflet, theme for the month being "Children of Light and Love." Mrs. Elliott gave a reading, "Love Your Life Thro." Mrs. Vivian gave a patriotic reading about the early pioneers of the country as Dominion Day was celebrated so recently and closed with a poem by the Canadian poetess the late Pauline Johnson who was born in Canada beneath the British flag. Mrs. Doxtator read "The Man in Glory" composed by an old man her sister knew. Mrs. Asa Cook favored with a lovely solo "In the Garden" accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Arthur Houston, who played for all the hymns used. Mrs. Ross Shetler read, "Help From a Waiting Room," about a woman who took courage as she saw so many patients waiting who were much worse off than herself, also one about a devoted Sunday School teacher who had such a good influence on the members of her class.

Mrs. Vivian closed the devotional with prayer.

Mrs. Elliott thanked the group and took charge of the business.

The secretary, Mrs. W. D. Robertson, called the roll and gave the minutes of the last meeting which were adopted as read.

A note of thanks was read from Mrs. Harry Murphy and Marion for card of sympathy they received at time of Mr. Murphy's death, also one from Mrs. George Reid for card when she was in Belleville hospital, several members contributed to the birthday box.

Mrs. Asa Cook, treasurer, gave her report.

The circuit picnic to be held at Mohawk beach on July 17th. Each family to bring dishes and food for their family. Dinner is at 12 o'clock. Appreciative thanks are expressed to Mrs. Orval Stratton, who convened the social so successfully.

Problems of Electioneering Aired in House of Commons; Decide Costs Are Too High

OTTAWA (CP)—The problems of federal electioneering were pondered in the Commons Tuesday. One conclusion was that it costs too much.

J. W. Pickersgill (L — Bonavista - Twillingate) called for "some kind of inquiry" into the possibilities of reducing election costs.

His was a personal view—not one formulated by the Liberal caucus. But it was evident during a day-long debate on amendments to the Canada Elections Act that many private MPs shared Mr. Pickersgill's thinking.

With this in mind, the Liberals—aided en route by CCF members—tried without success to add yet another Elections Act amendment to the long list of changes subsequently given approval in principle and committee - stage sanction by the House.

In effect, the legislation before the Commons during the debate repeals the present Canada Elections Act and substitutes a new act incorporating all the amendments recommended in a 248-page report of the House elections committee, tabled early in June.

Major change is a proposal for granting advance poll privileges to everyone who might be away from home on a federal election day. At present, this privilege is restricted to travelling salesmen, transport workers, fishermen and members of the RCMP.

Rejected by the House committee was a Liberal proposal that instead of having deputy returning officers and poll clerks named by the government-appointed returning officer, the deputies be named by the party which polled the most votes in the preceding election and the clerk by the party with the second most votes.

Turned down in committee, the Liberals Tuesday night attempted an amendment in the House. It was defeated 94 to 29, with four CCF members siding with the official opposition.

Defeat was not unexpected. When the former Liberal government faced a similar Conservative proposal several years ago, it also turned down the idea. Mr. Pickersgill said flatly that the former government was wrong in defeating it.

Acting State Secretary Balcer, piloting the amendments, branded it as a Liberal attempt to have the public, instead of parties, pay the cost. He also reminded the House that the election officers now must swear to act "without partiality, fear, favor or affection."

Leon Crestohl (L — Montreal Cartier) said Mr. Balcer's argument about the public taking over a party expense "falls flat on its face" because the expense for deputy returning officers and clerks already has been created and paid for by the public.

The British have set limits on campaign expenses, said Douglas Fisher (CCF — Port Arthur). "I can't see why we couldn't do something like that in Canada."

Mr. Pickersgill said he was concerned with the steadily - rising cost of "legitimate expenses" in an election.

There should be immediate consideration of "some kind of inquiry" into the possibility of reducing expenses.

He said the cost of campaigning could be reduced by making a "great many" of present expenses illegal and by putting an expenditure ceiling on both individual candidates and their parties.

Some expenses should be met from public funds, Mr. Pickersgill said. He described this as not necessarily a Liberal party view, but as one "I hold personally very strongly."

Reduction of campaign expenses was "one of the things that simply must be done if we are to maintain in this country truly representative government."

Mr. Fisher said he was most interested in Mr. Pickersgill's concern over campaign money.

"There have been rumors going around that the Liberals are having no trouble collecting election money. I'm glad to hear that things may be a little more difficult than rumors indicate."

Mr. Fisher said the CCF party is looking forward to being able to fight the next federal election with more money than it has had in the past.

He said much of the rising campaign expense is created by competition. Citizens were getting "fed up" with spot radio and TV advertisements, "big blurbs" in newspapers and use of sound trucks. The result was that much of the competition "cancels itself out."

One of his main objections: Daily newspapers charge election candidates a national advertising rate, 2½ times a local ad rate. This was "particularly vicious" and something should be done to seek a rate adjustment.

Some action also should be taken to bring about shorter election campaigns, Mr. Fisher said. At present the Canadian campaigns were much longer than those in the United Kingdom and "expenses build up to a crescendo."

Mr. Pickersgill said he hopes the day will come when campaign broadcasting will be a "public matter and it will no longer be possible for anyone to purchase time." The present system of charging election candidates gave "an advantage to him who has the longest purse."

Quebec Health Body Seeks Hospital Insurance Plan

QUEBEC (CP) — Provincial health authorities are meeting throughout this week with federal health representatives in efforts to establish a hospital insurance plan in Quebec by Jan. 1, 1960, Premier Lesage announced Tuesday.

He told a press conference his government wants hospital insurance and not study committees. He announced that the committee set up by the Union Nationale administration a few months ago to study hospital insurance has been disbanded.

The committee, he said, was not doing any work directly useful to establishing hospital insurance plan. Disbanding it would save the province $1,000,000. Salaries of the committee members and their staff alone amounted to $250,000 a year.

Quebec is the only province which does not participate in the nationale hospital insurance plan.

Mr. Lesage said his government will take into account the constitutional rights of the province and particular characteristics of Quebec's hospital setup in establishing a plan.

Premier Lesage announced a treasury board has been set up to control the government's spending, similar to the one in Ottawa. It would guard against what he called the abuses of the Union Nationale government spending methods.

The treasury board members are Premier Lesage, also finance minister, Mines Minister Paul Earl, Trade Minister Andre Rousseau and Lands Minister Bona Arsenault.

The board will verify every expenditure of more than $15,000.

Control on spending will be kept before and after payments are made. Mr. Lesage said two veteran civil servants have been charged with the task of setting up a system of controls. They will be assisted by technical advisers.

Said Mr. Lesage: "One may imagine the spending orgy of the Union Nationale government in connection with the election campaign when one notes a sum of $15,777, 575 spent during the 1959-60 fiscal year remained unpaid until the current fiscal year went into effect."

He announced the provincial government floated on the Canadian market two loan issues totalling $50,000,000. The bonds went on sale July 7 and were sold within 24 hours. One is an eight-year issue bearing interest at 5¼ per cent and the other a 21-year issue bearing interest at 5½ per cent. The sale price: $99.50.

FEAR FOR CHILDREN

WATERLOO (CP)—Two cartons of drugs, including deadly poisons, stolen Thursday from a drug representative's car at a hotel here, are still missing, police said. It is feared the drugs may fall into the hands of children.

"Jest a Second"

Gets Award For Highest Tobacco Yield

TILLSONBURG (CP) — Brant county farmer John Chmiel of Scotland Tuesday night was presented with the Rothman's gold leaf for flue-cured tobacco with the highest yielding crop.

Mr. Chmiel, who won from 4,300 other competing growers, had the highest yield since the award was introduced three years ago. His yield was 2,14 pounds an acre, which sold for an average of 62.05 cents a pound.

The championship crop this year averaged 312 pounds more an acre than the 1958 winner and 377 pounds more than the 1957 champion.

Mr. Chmiel worked on tobacco farms after coming to Canada from Poland in 1939 and in 1948 started farming on his own at Scotland, 22 miles northeast of here.

The award was presented by Everett M. Biggs, assistant deputy minister of agriculture, at the annual meeting of the Ontario Flue-Cured Tobacco Marketing Board.

Police Flush Berserk Man Out of House

TORONTO (CP)—Police called for tear gas to flush a berserk man out of an east end house Tuesday night but he gave up before it was used.

Police were summoned to the scene by neighbors who said a man had gone berserk inside the house, smashing windows, furniture and doors with an axe.

They called for tear gas after the man warned them: "If you come in I will start shooting and I won't be shooting blanks."

When the man came out be was returned to a mental hospital from which he had recently been released for further observation.

Police said the man was angered because a mortgage on the house, which had been his home, was foreclosed.

BURY AIR OFFICIAL

OTTAWA (CP)—Funeral services were held Monday for Air Vice-Marshal Keith L. Hodson, killed last Tuesday in a parachute jump from a disabled T-33 jet trainer over Fountain, Colo. Senior air force officers acted as pallbearers at the service in the Protestant chapel at suburban RCAF Rockcliffe station. Burial was in Beechwood Cemetery.

Manpower Survey Ordered; May Reduce Cost of Defence By Cutting Number in Forces

OTTAWA (CP) — The government may try to reduce defence spending further by manpower cuts in the armed forces and civilian staff of the defence department.

Reliable sources said Tuesday the government, possibly over the objections of Defence Minister Pearkes, has ordered the defence department to survey the effects of manpower reductions ranging from five to 20 per cent.

There now are about 168,500 employees of the defence department — 119,000 servicemen and 49,500 civilians—who are paid a total of some $660,000,000 annually.

A five-per-cent manpower cut in the department would lop about 8,600 from the payroll. Any cut likely would fall more heavily on administrative staffs than on combat forces.

The government order to conduct the survey fell like a bomb among defence planners. They have held that the armed forces need more instead of fewer men to carry out the services' assigned jobs.

For instance, officers have said the army has only about one-quarter of the soldiers it needs to carry out its civil defence role properly.

The RCAF soon will have to find about 1,500 more personnel to man seven new heavy radar stations.

The navy has already had to put warships into mothballs to provide the manpower for new vessels coming from the shipyards.

Mr. Pearkes is said to be opposed to any manpower reductions in the armed forces though he has been able to cut his civilian staff by about 5,000 in the last three years, including 1,500 this year.

He said in reply to a question by Harold Winch, CCF MP for Vancouver East, in the Commons defence committee last week:

"My own firm conviction is that to cut down the Canadian Army as you suggest would not provide the degree of security that this country should expect in the event of nuclear attack." The army has about 48,000 personnel, the RCAF 51,000 and the navy 20,000.

The government cut the defence budget this year to $1,596,000,000 from $1,695,000,000 in 1959-60, a drop of $99,000,000.

The slash fell most heavily on funds for new weapons and equipment. Defence authorities said it is hard to see how these funds can be cut any further. Reductions, if they were to be made, would have to be achieved through manpower cuts.

One reason for the manpower survey is said to be the desire of the government to grant the armed forces a pay increase without increasing the defence budget.

Seeking Safe Swimming Spot For Church Camp, 4 Drown

SUDBURY (CP)—Four teen-age boys were drowned Tuesday, three of them in an unsuccessful attempt to save a fourth from the fast - flowing Valley field Que., Keith Stone, 12, 20 miles northwest of here.

All four were searching for a safe swimming place for other boys at a church camp.

The victims were identified as Lyle Richards, 14, South Porcupine, Ont., Serge Clamens, 13, Valleyfield, Que., Keith Stone, 12, Ormiston, Que., and Gerhard Kapralek, 11, South Porcupine.

Three of the bodies were recovered. Dragging operations were to resume this morning for the body of the Kapralek boy.

The camp, the seventh organized at the same site by the Berean Baptist Church, Sudbury, was cancelled and the children were sent home.

Provincial police said the four boys were among a party of 12 who waded out from a shallow beach to test for holes in the river bed. They were accompanied by Rev. Yvon Hurtubise of the Valleyfield Baptist Church and another camp leader.

Rev. J. R. Boyd, minister of the Berean Baptist Church, said one boy apparently waded out too far and was swept away by the current. The other boys went out to help him and all four were carried under.

The river level was reported by residents of the area to be six feet higher than normal this year because of spring flooding and recent rains.

During dragging operations it was found that a fast current flowed under the seemingly placid surface of the river. Provincial Police Constable Evan Gilmore, an amateur skin diver, entered the river to search for the bodies and found himself carried steadily downstream as he swam against the current.

Forty-six boys registered Monday when the camp opened. The church had conducted nine similar camps elsewhere before establishing the Larchwood site.

2-for-1 Ratio In Soviet Trade Pact Criticized

OTTAWA (CP) — The new Russian - Canadian trade agreement was approved by the Commons Tuesday after a dispute between Opposition Leader Pearson and Trade Minister Churchill on the value of the $2-for-$1 ratio of Russian purchases to sales by Canada in the U.S.S.R.

Mr. Pearson contended this is "an undesirable principle" to embody in the three - year pact, signed in Moscow last April as a successor to a three-year trade agreement negotiated in 1956.

Instead of expanding trade, Mr. Pearson said, "it is more likely to limit trade." Wheat particularly was likely to be affected.

Mr. Churchill said the agreement provides for Russian purchases of $25,000,000 annually—half of it in wheat—and Canadian purchases of $12,500,000.

The $2-for-$1 formula represented a considerable concession by the Russians whose policy in trade agreements was to balance trade with each country. Canada was the only country from which Russia had agreed to buy more than she sold.

The formula was misunderstood and was not a restriction, Mr. Churchill said. The $25,000,000 and $12,500,000 figures were minimums. Trade beyond those amounts would be on a $1-for-$1 basis.

Defence Meet Held at Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian and two United States cabinet ministers began a meeting Tuesday on North American defence.

U.S. Treasury Secretary Robert Anderson said in a brief airport statement that the talks will facilitate further improvements in defence arrangements between the two countries.

Toronto Boy, 7, Falls 65 Feet Down Hollow Concrete Piling Escapes With Fractured Leg

TORONTO (CP) — Seven-year-old John Gallant was in fair condition in hospital today after being rescued from a 65-foot fall down a hollow concrete piling supporting a midtown bridge.

The boy slipped through a hole in the Prince Edward Viaduct where workmen were repairing the roadway and landed in 18 inches of mud and water Tuesday night.

Minutes after the fall construction worker Robert Stiller, 22, of Hamilton, one of a number of workers called to the scene, was lowered to the boy on an air compressor hose. He stayed with John until firemen arrived.

The Toronto Fire Department rescue squad lowered three ladders into the piling and Capt. George Kerr and Fireman Bert Hamilton went down. Together with Mr. Stiller they placed the boy on a cradle and after the boy had been in the hole 30 minutes he was hauled out.

Firemen took 20 minutes to pull him up along the ladders.

"I don't know how he survived," said District Fire Chief Ernest Price.

The boy was taken to hospital with a broken right leg and cuts and bruises to his chest and head.

Leo McGrath, 43, a service station worker said he heard cries while checking gasoline cans on the construction site and spotted the boy at the bottom of the three - foot - wide, eight-foot-long hole.

Member Sharply Criticizes New Liberal Govt. of N.B.

FREDERICTON (CP) — The new Liberal government of New Brunswick was sworn into office Tuesday night shortly after a Liberal member sharply criticized the way Premier Louis J. Robichaud chose his 12-man cabinet.

Paul B. Lordon, a Chatham, N.B., lawyer from Northumberland said in a statement issued at his home he turned down an offer to become Speaker of the legislature.

"I refused it as I considered it an affront to the people of Northumberland to have the member for whom they cast the greatest number of votes muzzled and excluded from all discussion of party policy," he said.

In a statement shortly after Mr. Lordon's remarks, the new premier said "It is perhaps understandable that there would be some disappointed persons in the formation of any cabinet but we are determined to do our best for this province and we shall so do."

Among ministers sworn in, including Mr. Robichaud, as attorney - general was Graham Crocker, a running mate in the June 27 election of Mr. Lordon. Mr. Crocker became lands and mines minister.

Mr. Lordon said he felt he had been penalized "Because I am an Irish Catholic." He said the election results indicated the Liberal and Progressive Conservative parties "split along pronounced racial and religious lines and the selection of the cabinet was . . . an attempt to cloud this fact and force it into the background".

Other cabinet ministers with their constituencies are: Provincial secretary-treasurer L. G. DesBrisay, Moncton City; public works Andrew —F. Richard, Kent; agriculture J. Adrien Levesque, Madawaska; health and social services Dr. George Dumont, Restigouche; labor Kenneth J. Webber, Charlotte; education Henry G. Irwin, Charlotte; municipal affairs Joseph E. Leblanc, Westmorland; industrial development—Michel Fournier, Gloucester; ministers without portfolio — Donald Harper, Westmorland; William R. Duffie, Sunbury.

Various Ways of Combating Unemployment Being Studied

OTTAWA (CP) — The cabinet and an interdepartmental committee are studying various methods which could be adopted by the federal government to combat unemployment, a government source said Tuesday night.

The source said the main study is being made by a committee of economists and other officials of the departments of labor, finance and trade.

He said the studies have not yet proceeded to a point where concrete recommendations can be made. However, he said there is a definite intention on the part of the government to put forward suggestions before long.

Labor Minister Starr has made several references in recent weeks in the Commons that the government is anxious to find ways to relieve unemployment. In his last comment he indicated that no decision has been made as yet on continuation of the federal winter works program.

OAC President J. D. Maclachlan said Tuesday tuition fees will go up to $200 from $100 and residence fees will be raised to $12.50 a week from $10 in the first fee increase in 20 years.

The Ontario government gives the college and institute $8,000,000 a year.

KENNEDY NOW

mination to place their favorites' names in nomination.

Sam Rayburn of Texas, Speaker of the House of Representatives, said he will offer Johnson's name with confidence the Senate Democratic leader will win out in the end.

Signs of a crack in the Kennedy armor showed up Tuesday night as the California delegation, which Governor Edmund Brown predicted would give most of its 81 votes to Kennedy, decided to provide its main support for Stevenson.

California said it will give Stevenson 31½ votes and 30½ to Kennedy. Kennedy had hoped to get about 50 from California. The big Pennsylvania delegation which promised to give Kennedy 66 of its 11 votes indicated it will have another look at its decisions if Kennedy doesn't carry the convention on the first ballot.

The convention got its first taste of the excitement delegates and spectators crave when Stevenson, twice the party nominee, paid an unannounced visit to the floor Tuesday night.

Surrounded by admirers as he reached the outer gates of the convention area, the former Illinois governor literally had to fight his way to the floor behind a cordon of policemen.

The previously lethargic galleries whooped and hollered as they have had few occasions to do.

While Stevenson is not an official candidate for the nomination he has said he will accept a draft.

Governor Buford Ellington of Tennessee and Robert G. Baker, secretary of Senate Democrats, contended Johnson had gained substantially in the last-hour manoeuvring.

They contended that Kennedy's failure to top Stevenson in a poll of the California delegation demonstrated this discontent. The Johnson forces hope Stevenson and Senator Stuart Symington of Missouri will muster enough votes to keep Kennedy from reaching the 761 mark needed for nomination.

On The Associated Press tally Kennedy had 743 votes.

There were other signs that Kennedy was encountering difficulties.

Delaware, on which some Kennedy backers had been counting, caucused today and threw its 11 first-ballot votes to Johnson.

Senator Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota said that an upheaval within the 31-vote Minnesota delegation seemed to have given Stevenson, instead of Kennedy, a majority there.

There was some momentary revival of hope in the Symington camp when the convention approved on a shouted voice vote a resolution extending a "cordial and urgent invitation" to former president Harry S. Truman to attend its sessions.

Truman, a Symington supporter, has changed his [illegible] twice about lending his [illegible] to a convention he said was "prearranged" for Kennedy's benefit.

Tracey Quinn Takes Over Store Business

TWEED — The partnership business known as Quinn and Quinn has been dissolved as of last week, and Mr. Tracey J. Quinn has purchased the interests of "Tony" Quinn and will carry on the general store business as formerly. Mr. Tony Quinn has purchased the late Ray Quinn men's and boys' wear business in the same Quinn Block and has already taken over possession.

The partnership agreement has been in existence for the past 25 years and the two Quinn merchants are well known and highly respected in this community and district.

Tony, who has been in charge of the grocery department of the Quinn and Quinn store since 1935 when the partnership was established following the death of Michael J. Quinn first joined the store staff in 1928. Previously, he was in Boston, Mass., for six months after his arriving from Ireland.

The Quinn store was established by Francis Murphy in 1867 and James Quinn, who came from Ireland, acquired the business having been a member of the staff.

It was Mr. Quinn who built the present block on Victoria Street. Michael J. Quinn, father of Tracey who had been operating a general in Sulphide, took over the business from James Quinn 1928. James Quinn's son, John, operated the Men's Department for several years and on his death in 1925, it was taken over by his brother, Ray Quinn. The latter passed away two years ago.

Tony Quinn plans extensive alterations to the store and an addition of 20x25 feet will be added to the north for the shoe department and storage purposes. The interior of the store will also be modernized with new "islands" added. He plans to have one of the most modern stores in the community.

Six Sure of Olympics Team

Records Go at Swim Trials

By AL VICEKERY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP) — Starry performances by four swimmers and two divers featured the opening of the three-day Canadian open swimming and diving championships and Olympic trials Tuesday night.

Cameron Grout, 24, of Montreal smashed two Canadian swim records while Sara Barber of Brantford, Margaret Iwasaki of Vancouver and Steve Rabinovitch of Montreal cracked one apiece to almost assure themselves places on the 10-member squad to go to the Olympics in Rome next month.

Pre-meet favorites Irene MacDonald of Kelowna, B.C., and Ernie Meissner of Kitchener, both easy winners in their diving divisions, also appear to have nailed down berths.

If the six do make the team, to be named by a seven-man selection committee at the close of the championships Thursday night, the remaining 194 competitors in the meet will have to battle hard for the four other positions.

Grout led almost all the way as he chalked up his first victory in the men's 200-metre freestyle final in a record 2:06.9. Toronto's Tom Verth was only four-tenths of a second behind Grout.

Grout's second triumph came in the 16-length, 400-metre individual medley as he churned to a record time of 5:25.6, knocking off almost 10 seconds from the previous mark set by Bill Slater of Vancouver in 1958.

Miss Barber, with experience in the Olympics, British Empire and Pan-American Games, pared 15 seconds from her own Canadian record as she splashed to victory in the women's 400-metre individual medley in 5:53.7.

Miss Iwasaki, 18, swam strongly to outlast clubmate Katy Campbell in the women's 200-metre freestyle final. She was clocked in a record 2:27.6, five-tenths of a second off her previous Canadian mark.

WINS BREASTSTROKE

Rabinovitch, 17, who performed for Canada in last year's Pan-American Games at Chicago, gave Montreal its third championship of the night as he outclassed his opponents in the 100-metre breaststroke final. His time of 1:13.3 was almost two seconds slower than his record-breaking time of 1:11.5 in winning his heat.

To take the women's three-metre diving crown, Miss MacDonald compiled 129.27 points as she thrilled the large audience with her performance off the springboard. Meissner's diving left little to be desired as he piled up 150.52 points, far in front of his nearest opponent, Tom Dinsley of Vancouver.

Miss Barber qualified for the final of the 200-metre freestyle, although she finished second in the first heat to Mary Stewart of Vancouver.

Another Brantford competitor, Jim Winegarden, placed second in a heat of the 100-metre men's backstroke but failed for qualify for the final.

Mary Lou Whitwill, also of Brantford, ended up third in a heat of the 100-metre women's breaststroke, qualifying for the final of that event.

In all events the seven fastest times in the various heats comprised the qualifiers.

Says Power Quit All-Stars To Win Hundred-Dollar Bet

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago American quoted an unnamed Cleveland radio announcer as saying Tuesday that the Indians' first baseman, Vic Power, ran out on the All Star game in Kansas City Monday to win a $100 bet.

Power was not on the bench when Chicago White Sox manager Al Lopez, skipper of the American Leaguers, wanted to use him as a pinch hitter.

In a story by staff writer Jim Enright from Kansas City, the Chicago American said:

"A Cleveland radio announcer and longtime friend of Power's charged: 'Vic took a run-out to win a $100 bet. He said before the squads assembled in Kansas City that Lopez wouldn't play him because of the bitterness that existed between them over a name-calling match two years ago. I covered the bet.'"

The newspaper quoted Lopez as saying that he picked Power for the squad because he figured to be an asset and anything that had happened in the past between them was forgotten.

Lopez was quoted as saying:

"Ted Williams was used up as a pinch hitter in the second inning, yet he was still on the bench at the finish yelling and talking to our players. . . . Yet, when you want to substitute for Power you have to send a special envoy to find him resting in the clubhouse and all he says is, I'm too sick to play".

Lacrosse

BRAMPTON (CP) — League-leading Port Credit Sailors were defeated 7-5 Tuesday night by Brampton Excelsiors in Ontario Lacrosse Association senior action.

The hometowners pulled the game out of the fire when they counted three fast tallies with three minutes to go in the final period.

Bruce Castator was the big man for Excelsiors with two goals, but top honors for the night went to Port Credit's Florie Tomtishen who scored four.

Soccer Results

Parsons Cleaners edged Wilson Concrete 1-0 in a well-played Bay of Quinte Soccer League match here last night.

The game was a hard-fought one from start to finish. Wilsons had an edge in play during the scoreless first half but Parsons came on strong in the second half.

Best Buy in Fenders—Volkswagen
Volkswagen makes sense for you in many ways. Everything was designed with your pocket book in mind—nothing has been changed to please a passing fad. Take spare parts, for example: Volkswagen's fenders are bolted to the body for quick replacement. (A rear fender costs $16.10). Or a complete engine can be exchanged in 90 minutes. Only two examples of what a soundly engineered car means for you.
Or think of the low initial cost: Volkswagen has maintained the same price ever since it was introduced in Canada eight years ago. The secret? Volkswagen has increased production year by year, from 8,000 cars in 1948 to more than 700,000 in 1959; making it the largest selling small car in the world—by far.
The logical result of maintaining and improving a sound basic design is a standard of quality which has made Volkswagen famous throughout the world. 1,526 Canadian Volkswagen owners have received the Gold Watch Award and Diploma for driving their cars 60,000 miles without major repair.

Has Field of 150

Ont. Amateur Under Way

By HARVEY SHEPHERD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Three of the four men who will form Ontario's Willingdon Cup team will be known following today's 18-hole qualifying round of the Ontario amateur golf tournament.

A field of 150 will tee off at the Sunningdale Golf Club here today and 64 will graduate from medal to Tuesday's match play. Eight players will be competing for the interprovincial Willingdon Cup team.

Observers say a 78 or better today is needed for a place among the 64 who will continue in the tourney, which ends Saturday. Par for the 6,549-yard course is 72.

Gary Cowan of Kitchener is virtually assured of a place on the Willingdon team because of his good 286 score in the 72-hole Ontario Open in June. The team is comprised of the four low men after totalling scores in the open and today's qualifying round.

CHAMP MAKES TEAM

But if the Ontario amateur champion, to be decided Saturday, is not among the low four, he will replace the high man on the Willingdon team.

Jack Kenney of Woodstock, Merle Noyes of Port Colborne, both with open scores of 298, and Mike Krowchuk of Fonthill with 299, the present leading contenders for the team, have a fight on their hands.

Tied with open scores of 300 are Bill Morland of North Bay, Bobby Panasiuk of Windsor, the defending Ontario champion, Nick Weslock of Burlington and Tom Woodall and Bob Rose of Toronto.

The field of 64 after play today will be further cut to 16 in two rounds of match play Thursday and to four in two more rounds Friday. Semi-finalists will meet Saturday morning and finalists in the afternoon.

Panasiuk last year, at 17, was youngest player to earn the Ontario crown. He defeated Cowan in the final.

Top contenders include Bill Morland's brother Dave and Bill Parkes of Woodstock.

TACKLE QUITS

AURORA (CP)—Wayne Bock, a six-foot-five import tackle with Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four football league, told coach Lou Agase Tuesday night he intends to quit football because of a chronic knee injury. Bock twisted his knee Monday.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Monday was a great day for we'uns of the National League. And by the time the newsboy hits or misses the front portico with this edition, we'll know if they repeated this afternoon.

Yankee Stadium probably was loaded with baseball-minded humanity. And one gets you five a large part of the mob were the foreigners from Coogan's Bluff, late hacienda of the Giants and from cross-river Flatbush, now a baseball cemetery where the Dodgers formerly thrived.

Still scarlet-faced from that Patterson-Johansson prediction, and having nothing to lose as a prophet, I told that Yankee-lovin' Gary A. what the Nationals would do to the Americans in the first half of the annual all-star bill.

I did that because Pat O'Meara told me at the harness meet Saturday night the American League would win. He also told me which horse would win the second heat of the third race. I bet on another—and it came in a six-dollar first.

So with four dollars worth of "face" back, I had no hesitation in informing young Mr. A. the Nationals would take the Americans. They did.

Yesterday afternoon I repeated the prediction. Young Mr. A. tossed a sceptical crew-cut and offered to bet three books of grocery stamps that Ole Casey and his "M" for Murder crew would take the Nationals for a ride, encase 'em in cement overcoats and submerge them in the East River.

This is being written during the "Peaceful Hour" on Front Street. It is the quiet of the post-dawning. There is a pinkish hue on the eastern horizon. Little fleecy clouds speckle the sky.

A police officer is on his last round of door-testing. A taxi-cab idles past the office door. The only noise is that of the city water-wagon as it rumbles up and down the main thoroughfares laying the dust and grime of a previous day.

A tourist car and trailer ambles along the street, occupants looking for an all-night restaurant. The skeleton structure of the new Victoria and Grey building looms across the way, shutting out the pinking eastern sky. It is as quiet as the inside of a mausoleum.

Inside the newsroom the teletypes staccato the overnight news. The janitor mumbles a quiet "g'morning" and deposits a carton of coffee on the city desk. The telephone shrills. It is an all-night poker party Maverick wanting to know the starting pitchers for today's all-star game.

After being told the probable selections, he wants to know who will win. He is given a personal opinion.

"That means I bet the American League," he says. "I recollect you called Patterson in the first and Johansson in the second. You picked Yvon Durelle over Moore and Cambridge to win the Boat Race. You selected the White Sox over the Dodgers and Princess Margaret to marry Townsend.

"You said the Ottawa Rough Riders would win the Grey Cup, and Toronto the International League championship last year. You called Palmer to take the British Open, and Victoria Park to grab the Kentucky Derby. You named the Red Wings to take the Canadiens for the Stanley Cup and the Whitby Dunlops to win the Allan Cup again.

"You wrote Sugar Ray would pound the pants off Pender, and Basilio would flatten Fullmer. You predicted Rocky Marciano would make a comeback for the heavyweight title and Mr. Manville would not take his twelfth bride.

"You prophesied the Russians, Czechs or Swedes would win the world amateur hockey championship at Squaw Valley, and Steve Bowerman would win the Bay of Quinte Golf Club men's title.

"Tottenham Hotspurs," you said, "were a cinch for the Football Cup, and the Los Angeles Rams would take the National Football crown. You predicted Kingston would win the first Eastern Pro Hockey League gonfalon, and the McFarlands to finish in second place.

"Your batting average to date is .000. But even a guy like you must be right some time. This could be it. Thanks, my money goes on the National Leaguers." Click.

Well, the guy did interrupt a start on the day's work, but it helped fill this otherwise blank paper.

For flooring that can take a beating and still look beautiful, come in to our store this week. Monthly payments arranged.

Nationals Even Money To Sweep Series

Law, Ford Hill Billies

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite their victory in Kansas City Monday and their superior punch in the starting lineup, the National League was no more than even money today to sweep the two-game All-Star set against the physically handicapped American Leaguers.

A crowd of some 45,000 was expected to see Pittsburgh righthander Vernon Law (11-4) and New York lefthander Whitey Ford, (5-5) face each other on the mound in the 29th mid-summer game and the first in Yankee Stadium since 1939. The Americans, despite their 5-3 loss two days ago, still lead the series, 16 to 12 but the Nationals have taken eight of the last 12.

AL manager Al Lopez and NL pilot Walter Alston have decided to stick to the same batting orders that faced each other in the 100-degree heat in Kansas City's municipal Stadium Monday.

LOTS OF SLUGGERS

Lopez, the Chicago White Sox skipper, once again will have the four Yankee sluggers — Roger Maris, Mickey Mantle, Bill Skowron and Yogi Berra—right in the middle where the strength is supposed to be. The quartet got only a single by Skowron and two walks by the crippled Mantle in 10 total appearances Monday.

Mantle's still nursing a sore leg and so is Detroit's Al Kaline, his understudy.

Ronnie Hansen, Baltimore's rookie shortstop, and Pete Runnels, Boston's veteran second baseman, both reported feeling better after suffering ill effects from the intense Kansas City heat.

Frank Malzone, Boston's brilliant third baseman, suffered blistered feet as a result of the scorching terrain in Municipal Stadium.

The temperature was expected to be about 20 degrees cooler for today's game.

PITCHERS IMPRESSED

Impressed by the one-hit pitching of Bob Friend in his three inning stint against the American Leaguers Monday, Alston decided to go with another Pittsburgh righthander today. Law, 30, was equally effective in the first tilt, snuffing out a ninth-inning rally.

It was Law's only appearance in All-Star competition. Ford, is an All-Star veteran but in six innings, he has allowed 12 hits and nine runs for an 0-1 record. He started in 1954, relieved in 1955 and 1956 and lost in relief last year.

The player the New York fans probably want to see the most is the magnetic centre fielder Willie Mays who again will lead off.

Monday Mays had a single double and triple and he came within a few feet of hitting a home run. No one in All-Star history has ever hit for the cycle although Ted Williams once hit two home runs and two singles.

Lopez, who now has lost both games in which he managed, may use Williams as more than just a pinch-hitter as he did two days ago. The Red Sox slugger grounded out in the second inning.

Stan Musial, who sets a record every time he comes to bat, also is certain to see action. The St. Louis star appeared as a pinch-hitter Monday and he singled for a record 18 hits in his All-Star appearances.

RACF Flyers Upset Bobcats

By GARRY ALEXANDER

RCAF Flyers snapped an eight-game losing streak and kept their B. and D. softball league playoff hopes alive at the Air Station last night by upsetting the short-handed Belleville Bobcats 10-8.

The Flyers jumped into a 6-0 first-frame lead in the loosely-played contest, blew it and trailed 8-7 going into the bottom of the seventh. A single by Smith, a walk and McDonald's base knock scored one run. The 'Cats brought Bob Hunter in from right field but successive errors by Brown at shortstop allowed two runs for the final 10-8 score.

Bobcats play host to Trenton at CNRA Park tonight at 6.45 and can pull into a tie for first place with a win. A Trenton win will give them a four-point lead as the schedule nears completion.

Bobcat manager Bill Old was forced to put himself into the starting lineup last night as Earl Cousins, Doug Hull, Dave Jones and Jackie Hughes were absent. The Flyers struck early with hits by Desimone, Smith and Hughes, plus three bobbles following a pair of walks, to open up the 6-0 lead.

The losers got two back on Faulkner's hit, a walk and an error in the fourth and another on Hunter's hit, a stolen base, passed ball and an error in the fifth.

Four runs in the sixth tied the score at 7-7. Two miscues, a walk and hits by Brown, Russell, Green and Faulkner did the damage. Beck's double and Desimone's ground out had plated one for the Flyers in the fourth.

A four-base error on Hayden's long fly ball in the top of the seventh gave Belleville the short-lived 8-7 lead.

Bob Butterfield, third RCAF pitcher, got the win in relief. He gave up three hits, fanned three and walked none. Ken Kibblewhite had allowed seven hits and walked two in the first five innings plus. Stan Elchuk was touched for two hits after taking over during the sixth-frame rally.

The loser was Bob Green charged with all the winners' runs and seven hits in 6 1-3 innings. He fanned five and walked four. Hunter did not allow a hit while whiffing one.

Harold "Bugs" McDonald and Ron Smith had two singles each to pace the RCAF hitters. Don Beck and John Hughes doubled while "Diz" Desimone singled.

Bert Faulkner had three of the losers' 12 singles while Johnny Batchelor, "Wiener" Brown and Bob Hunter had two. Floyd Crawford, Paul Russell and Bob Green bagged the others.

Ted Lindsay Had 16 Seasons

'Ole Scarface' Hangs Up His Gear

DETROIT (AP) — Ted Lindsay, one of the fiercest competitors hockey has ever known, is retiring after 16 seasons in the National Hockey League.

Lindsay, who will be 35 before the month is out, spent 13 seasons with Detroit Red Wings and the last three with Chicago Black Hawks.

It was the combination of Lindsay, Sid Abel and Gordie Howe that gave the Red Wings one of the most powerful teams in NHL history. Lindsay won the scoring title once but was as well known for his battles on the ice as for his playing ability.

"I don't want to become an athletic bum," Lindsay, a native of Renfrew, said Tuesday. "Hockey has been wonderful to me. The game and the people in it have made my life a good one.

STILL FIT

He added:

"I feel I could play one more year, possibly two. But I don't want to milk the thing. I'm leaving with a good feeling."

"I have three children and I want to be with them. My business is at the point now where I would be putting a couple of years of hockey against a business future and I know, after a great deal of thought, that now is the time to call it quits."

Lindsay and an ex - Detroit teammate, Marty Pavelich, are partners as manufacturers' representatives. The Lindsays reside in suburban Birmingham.

Lindsay oroke into the National Hockey League at age 18. He played his early hockey around Kirkland Lake.

His career with Detroit was punctuated by scrapes with other players and officials, and occasionally with general manager Jack Adams. The biggest contraded Lindsay to Chicago.

ASTONISHED

Lindsay never thought it would happen9 Adams said Lindsay had "outlived his usefulness."

The 5-foot-8-inch, 165 - pound Lindsay scored 833 points—365 goals and 468 assists—for an all-time NHL record for a left winger. He competed in 999 games, missing one last season because of injury that kept him from his goal of 1,000.

In his 16 - year career he spent more time in the penalty box than any other player — 1,635 minutes. He appeared in eight NHL all-star games.

Bravo Brothers Clash With Atkins, Russians

One of the wrestling games' popular brother combinations will headline the weekly card at Memorial Arena Friday night in another tag-team attraction.

The popular Bravo Brothers, Dino and Dominic, will clash with the rough and rugged pair of Fred "Hard-rock" Atkins and Ivan "The Terrible" Kalmikoff in the main bout.

Atkins, one of the toughest men in the business, hails from Australia while Kalmikoff saw the first light of day in Russia. They will stop at nothing to halt the dashing Bravos but Dino and Dominic will have a few tricks of their own in what should be an action-packed affair.

Two other bouts pit Bob Leipler against Jim LaRock and Sandor Kovacs against newcomer Bob Mandor.

Four Imports Quit Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—Four imports have walked out of the Ottawa Rough Riders training camp, cutting the roster to 55.

Coach Frank Clair tried to persuade Ray Reese, tackle from Bowling Green, Ohio, to stay. Also leaving was Maryland guard Tom Gunderman, part of the deal which brought end Frank Gilliam from Winnipeg Blue Bombers in return for back Don Clark, now with Montreal.

SURPRIZE LEADER

PARIS (AP)—Bill Johnston, a 36-year-old club pro from Provo, Utah, fired rounds of 66 and 70 Tuesday for 136 which gave him a surprising, one-stroke lead at the halfway point of the French Open. The strong advance favorite, Peter Thomson of Australia, shot two steady rounds of 70 for 140. Par is 72.

Benny Paret Knocks Out Garnet Hart

NEW YORK (AP) — Welterweight champion Benny Paret of Cuba knocked out Garnet Hart of Philadelphia in 2:36 of the sixth round of their scheduled 10-round non-title fight at Madison Square Garden Tuesday night.

Paret weighed 152¾ and Hart 153¼.

Coming out of head-to-head battling abruptly Paret shot over a right which sent Hart down to a sitting position. He tried to make it at 10, but still had one knee on the floor when the referee finished the count.

It was a slugging match from the opening bell, with the tireless Paret forcing the fight and keeping close, preventing Hart from getting punching room to unlimber his big guns. There was no jabbing.

It was the first non-televised fight in Madison Square Garden in exactly nine years, and drew the biggest crowd in some time —4,425 who paid a total of $10,244.

Travel Now, Will Pay Later

Canada Will Send 98 To Olympics

TORONTO (CP)—A team of 98 athletes participating in 14 sports will represent Canada in the 1960 Summer Olympics in Rome, James Worrall of Canada's Olympic Committee announced Tuesday.

However, Worrall said the team, still $50,000 short of necessary funds, will journey to Rome on a "travel now and pay later" basis.

All members, with the exception of swimmers and track and field participants, have been named. Trials for swimmers, runners and jumpers are being held in Winnipeg and Saskatoon this week.

Twenty - four coaches, managers, officials and chaperones will accompany the team.

14 SECTIONS

The sports represented and number of personnel are: track and field 15, boxing 5, basketball 12, canoeing 6, cycling 2, equestrian 5, fencing 1, gymnastics 3, rowing 15, shooting 7, swimming 10, weight-lifting 3, wrestling 3, and yachting 11.

The bodies governing the various sports were responsible for selections, Worrall said, commenting that the basis for selection was the athletes' ability to make a good showing rather than win "a gold or silver or bronze medal."

Athletes had to meet approved Olympic standards to qualify. Winning a Canadian championship was not enough.

Worrall, vice-president of the Canadian Olympic Association, said a fund was started in 1958 to pay for participation in the 1959 Pan - American Games and the 1960 winter and summer Olympics.

NEED FUNDS

The original budget was $258,000 but the committee still needs $50,000 for the estimated $155,000 budget for the Summer Games.

Biggest contributor has been the federal government which kicked in $60,000. The rest came from provinces, several municipalities plus business and industry and a small public response.

Worrall added:

"We still need money and will gladly accept donations made out to the Canadian Olympic Committee and sent to Suite 224, 12 Richmond Street, East Toronto."

Americans Win Golf Matches

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

BUFFALO (CP) — The United States defeated Canada in a playoff for the second straight year in the International Carling Cup golf matches Tuesday.

The series now stands at two victories apiece.

Ward Wettlaufer, 22 - year - old amateur from the host Buffalo club, sank a four-foot putt for a birdie three on the first extra hole to win the pro-amateur best ball competition for the U.S.

Last year in Toronto, the U.S. team won a playoff when amateur Ed Meister of Willoughby, Ohio, dropped a 15-footer to give the Americans a playoff victory on the first extra hole.

The eighteenan teams — four professionals add four amateurs from each country—finished in a tie Tuesday, each with six points. Then came the playoff.

Under the scoring system, one point is given the pro - amateur team winning each nine holes and another point is given for the match.

TWO SWEEPS

There were only two clean sweeps.

The Canadian team of pro Al Balding and amateur Bruce Castator, both of Toronto, won a maximum three points by defeating the American two-some of pro Paul Harney and his amateur partner, Bill Campbell.

The other 3-0 sweep was posted by the U.S. team of pro Doug Ford, and amateur Ed Meister over Canadian pro Bob Cunningham Jr. and veteran amateur Nick Weslock, both of Toronto

The other matches were tied. Stan Leonard of Vancouver and his amateur partner, 21-year-old Gary Cowan of Toronto defeated Wettlaufer and pro Dow Finsterwald, Tequesta, Fla., 2½ points to ½.

The Americans got their ½ point by deadlocking the Canadians on the front nine of the best ball competition.

This set up the playoff because an earlier match was won, also 2½ points to ½ point, by the American team of Julius Boros and amateur Chuck Kocsis of Detroit.

They defeated Montreal professional Jack Kay and 18-year-old amateur Bobby Panasiuk of Windsor.

STARS ARRIVE

QUEBEC (CP)—Barry Mackay and Chuck McKinley arrived Tuesday to complete the United States squad which meets Canada in the first round of the North American zone Davis Cup matches starting here Friday. Bernard Bartzen and Earl Buchholz, arrived Monday.

Mays, Gentile Major Leagues' Bat Leaders

NEW YORK (AP) — If Baltimore's Jim Gentile continues his hitting consistency in the second half of the baseball season he could become the first American League freshman to win the batting crown.

With the teams at the mid-season all-star break, Gentile has a .328 average, seven points ahead of his nearest pursuers. Al Smith of Chicago White Sox and Pete Runnels of Boston Red Sox are the runners-up at .321 each.

Meanwhile, in the National League, San Francisco's Willie Mays boasts a 13-point lead in an attempt to gain his second title. Mays is hitting at a .353 clip, followed by Norm Larker of Los Angeles Dodgers with .340.

The last rookie ever to win a major league batting championship was Pete Reiser, who hit .343 for the Dodgers and took the 1941 National League crown.

Gentile, a lefty first baseman who came up in the Dodgers' farm system, collected four hits in 12 trips last week. Second a week ago, his .328 average remained the same.

Mays went into a tailspin but remained a comfortable bulge over Larker. The Giants' outfielder, who showed signs of coming out of his slump with three hits in Monday's All-Star game in Kansas City, lost 18 points with 3-for-23. Larker went 5-for-15 and dropped one point.

Havana Manager Says He Will Quit Baseball

MIAMI (AP) — "Baseball has been a big part of my life for 24 years, but now it is over," says Tony Castano, manager of the former Havana Sugar Kings of the International League as he sadly marked the end of a career shattered by political developments.

The Havana team officially became a member of the league Tuesday when a contract was approved by the Jersey City commission. The team is to be known as Jersey City Jerseys.

"When I decided to return to Cuba," he told sports editor Tommy Devine of the Miami News, "I knew it probably meant I was through with baseball—but that's the way he had to be.

"When there's trouble, my place is with my wife and daughter. I am 50. I have a grocery store and can run it."

Infielder Borrego Alvarez and pitcher Raul Sanchez will not go to Jersey City. Pitcher Orlando Pena and shortstop Leo Cardenas are undecided.

Group Plans New Stadium For Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — A civic sub-committee formed to coordinate plans for a new Toronto baseball stadium is negotiating with a group willing to build an all-purpose sports stadium, alderman Albert Cranham said Tuesday.

Cranham, chairman of the nine-member sub-committee, said he is hopeful "there will be something definite from the group in the very near future." He did not give details.

Jack Kent Cooke, owner of the Toronto Maple Leafs baseball club and holder of the continental League franchise for Toronto, denied that his application for United States citizenship was responsible for any lack of interest in bringing major league ball to Toronto.

Cranham said earlier:

"Mr. Cooke dealt the whole thing a death blow when it was announced he is seeking United States citizenship. People who were behind the project a day before just lost interest after that announcement.

"I'm deeply interested in major league ball for Toronto," Cooke said. "It is a far better location than such a place as Kansas City which already has a team."

Cranham said Cooke was not connected in any way with the group negotiating for the all-purpose stadium.

Leafs Thump Buffalo 7-4; Royals Lose

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pitcher Herb Moford pulled Miami's welcome mat from under the new Jersey City entry in the International baseball league Tuesday night.

He shut them out with only one hit as Miami Marlins took a 4-0 decision over the former Havana Sugar Kings.

Pompeyo Davallo's infield single in the second inning was the only Jersey City hit.

Columbus Jets snapped a four-game losing string with a 4-3 victory over Richmond Virginians while Toronto Maple Leafs defeated Buffalo Bisons 7-4 to push their first-place margin to 9½ games ahead of the second-place Bisons. Rochester Red Wings defeated Montreal Royals 6-1 in a five-inning, rain-shortened first game of a doubleheader. The second game was postponed.

STRUCK OUT FIVE

Moford, 4-7, struck out five men and walked only two. Gene Green drove in two Miami runs and Moford singled home a third.

Columbus got four unearned runs to beat Billy Short, whose teammates committed three errors. Jim Pisoni had four hits in as many at bats for the Vees, including two solo home runs. But his error on a fly ball let in two Columbus runs in the first inning. Nino Escalera had three hits for the Jets while Clarence Bubellar drove in two runs.

Al Cicotte allowed Buffalo 12 hits in gaining his eighth victory in 13 decisions. Toronto wrapped things up with five runs in the second inning off loser Art Mahaffey (9-6). Bob Morgan homered for the Bisons.

Billy Harrel's grand-slam home run in the fourth inning broke open a 2-1 edge winner Willard Schmidt held over the Royals. Gene Oliver's homer with Harrell on base in the first inning scored the other two runs. Dick Sanders homered for Montreal as Willard Hunter (5-3) lost.

Minor Baseball

Carl Boomhower's power-hitting carried the Braves to a 12-7 victory over the Indians in a Bantam baseball league game last night.

Boomhower drove in six Brave runs with a pair of three-run homers. Dom Tomaso helped with a pair of singles while other Brave hits went to Robertson, Ross, Brant and Babcock.

Goodfellow and Dovey had two singles apiece for the Indians while Wiley had one.

Bob Boyle threw five-hit ball for the winners, fanning six and walking the same number.

Ted Young allowed eight hits in defeat, whiffing seven and not walking a batter.

Rainy Weather Worries Davis Cup Officials

By LAURENT CHIASSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC (CP)—Rainy weather had Canadian tennis officials worried today with only two more days before the start of the first round of the North American zone Davis Cup matches between Canada and the United States.

Officials have the problem of getting the main clay court at the Civil Employees Tennis Club dried up in time for Friday's two opening singles matches. All matches will be played on it.

Other matches in the best-of-five series are the doubles Saturday and the two other singles Sunday. The winners will advance against Mexico in Mexico City Aug. 6-8.

Both Canadian and U.S. teams managed to work out in hot and humid weather on the spare courts Tuesday before an early evening downpour.

CANADA'S CHOICE

Canada, as host country could choose either clay or grass courts and chose clay courts for the first time since the Second World War.

Bernard Bartzen, Earl Buchholz and Charles McKinley burned up the courts along with 17-year-old Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., for nearly five hours Tuesday. They were joined near the end by big Barry Mackay, who had arrived several hours earlier from New York.

Meanwhile the Canadian team composed of Bob Bedard of Sherbrooke, Que., Don Fontana of Toronto, Francois Godbout of Marieville, Que., and Roland Godin of Montreal practiced indoors in the morning and then two more hours on clay courts late in the afternoon.

The draw for the opening matches will be held Thursday at noon.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Thursday, July 14

General tendencies: Until night falls, all kinds of delays where outside matters are concerned face you and you would be wise to accept them in a philosophical fashion. However, the evening brings a decided lightening of conditions and an unexpected invitation or some surprise event causes you to suddenly be happy and cheerful.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — This is one of those peculiar days when everything seems to go wrong — higher - ups are critical, bills crop up you had [illegible] anticipated, etc. Be a stoic. [illegible] evening all becomes normal again and you will be able to have several happy hours.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — While you are very anxious to be out in the busy world of activity to find new outlets, it is important you first finish the work you have started. Then in the evening be sure to relax at home with loved ones.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Take care you do not carry through with ideas given you by a higher - up since he, or she, is not fully familiar with all the facts in your case. Be sure you get together tonight with good friends or kin for fun and gaiety.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21)— It is best you handle own private affairs today, since associates or advisers cannot seem to agree with you in your ideas. P. M. fine for impressing [illegible] influential person with your most constructive plans. Be specific, short.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Important you labor diligently and efficiently now or a good fellow worker may desert you. Then the evening should be spent doing research work and meeting interesting and influential people who can be helpful to you.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)— If you consult with that good personal adviser, you will know just where and how to economize so that you may in time have an abundance and not jeopardize present security. P. M. handle loved one very wisely. Be kind, yet firm.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)— Heed the advice of an associate during A.M. or the situation at home can depress you severely. This would be injurious to everyone. P. M. have a little social gathering at home. Lighten spirits of all.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — If you do not sit down and plan your time wisely, you may waste this valuable day by ricocheting between outside duties and those at home, and really accomplish very little. P. M. impress higher - up with your efficiency.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Seeking pleasure and entertainment today is fine, but it is important you are not extravagant. Enjoy social fun tonight also, but see that you meet some very worthwhile and fascinating people. Speak softly, charmingly.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — While it may be quite difficult to get family to follow your suggestions during daytime, by evening tensions should be eased and then a proper compromise reached. But you must prove that you are truly loyal and devoted.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — A private worry could easily permit you to waste this fine day, if you do not dismiss it from your mind early. Look at the affair objectively. P.M. coming to satisfactory agreement with associates will be quite easy.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — .Concentrated. thought will reveal how you can add to your income appreciably now. This may be rather a slow process during day time, but perseverance will bring right answers by sundown and on through the evening.

If your child is born today ... a great love of the art of investigation into the unknown and untried will soon manifest itself. However, the nature is rather impatient and many a mistake will be made during early years, if you do not train early to slow down and be thorough. Nonetheless, these very mistakes will be the first most important lessons learned. Give a wise course of education, as there can be great success here, especially where the public in general is concerned.

Many Area Orangemen Attend Orange Centennial Celebration

By MRS. PERCY MacMULLEN

STIRLING — A large number of members of the various Orange societies in the Rawdon-Stirling area, and their families, journeyed to Peterborough on Saturday and participated in the Centennial Orange celebration at the Morrow Park Exhibition Grounds.

Rt. Wor. Bro. Fred Bateman, Stirling, Past Grand Master of Ontario East Orange Lodges, was master of ceremonies throughout the afternoon. Bro. Clarence Wilson marshalled the parade of the 10 counties.

There were numerous Fife and Drum Bands, many in colorful costumes. The parade was headed by two grey horses, followed by a number of automobiles carrying Grand Lodge officers and veteran Orangemen. There were approximately 24 groups of L.O.B.A. members, smartly attired in white dresses and parasols or sun hats.

Approximately 12 Juvenile Lodges made a splendid showing. One group counter-marched in front of the grandstand and were congratulated for their efforts. The Juveniles were from Millbrook, Bailieboro, Pontypool, Cobourg, Oshawa, East Peterborough, Marmora, Port Hope and other points.

The boys and girls ranged in age from nine years to 16 years and many smaller children in majorette costumes headed the various lodges.

One group of L.O.B.A. ladies travelled in the parade via chartered taxis, but most of the ladies marched the parade route of approximately four miles.

Upon their return the lodges marched past the grandstand where the judges selected the lodges and bands to receive the nine awards.

The parade arrived back at Morrow Park at 3.30 and by 5 p.m. the lodges had dispersed. It was a colorful showing and the streets along the parade route were lined with hundreds of spectators. The grandstand at the park was also thronged with people.

Special guests were visitors from Ontario West lodges, including True Blue, L.O.B.A., and L.O.L., and Juvenile groups from Oshawa. The Caledonia Pipe Band headed a group from Ajax representing Ontario South. Several groups were from West Toronto and included group wearing plug hats of yes-L.O.B.A., and L.O.L. The bands and marchers were colorfully attired, the Oshawa Juvenile Band in black, white and yellow uniforms; a Juvenile lodge from Oshawa in blue costumes and carrying little baskets; and a group wearing plub hats of yesteryear.

There were several lovely new banners for the various counties which included Ontario South, Victoria, Haliburton, Centre Hastings, North Hastings, East Durham, West Durham, Ontario South, Northumberland, and Peterborough.

United Nations Military Forces To Go To Congo

Security Council Acts On Hammarskjold Plan

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) The Security Council early today approved Dag Hammarskjold's plan to quickly send a United Nations military force — drawn mostly from African nations—to the Congo in an effort to keep the newly-independent country, formerly a Belgian colony, from collapsing into anarchy.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker of Canada told the House of Commons in Ottawa Wednesday that he believes help to restore order in the Congo should come primarily from African states.

Immediately after the council acted, the secretary-general assured that first steps to put the force together would be taken "in a couple of hours." Initial elements of the force were expected to be in the Congo before the end of the week.

Approval of UN intervention came at an emergency 6½-hour session of the council that did not adjourn until 3:24 a.m. EDT.

AN URGENT REQUEST

Hammarskjold called the meeting after receiving urgent requests from the Congo government for UN aid.

For a time it appeared that his plea for quick action would be stymied by a dispute over the future of Belgian troops that intervened in the Congo after the native army mutinied against its Belgian officers and went on a rampage of violence and pillage.

But the council rejected Soviet demands that it condemn Belgium as an armed aggressor in the Congo, seek immediate withdrawal of the troops and stipulate that the UN military force be restricted to troops from African countries.

(Under the agreement giving the Congo its independence two weeks ago, Belgium was given authority to maintain troops in the central African nation.)

Then, by a vote of 8 to 0 with three abstentions, the council approved a Tunisian resolution calling for withdrawal of the Belgian troops without setting any definite date and authorzing Hammarskjold to take the necessary steps for dispatch of the UN force.

THREE ABSTAINED

Britain, France and Nationalist China abstained, opposing the direct call for withdrawal of the Belgian troops as an implied censure they said was not warranted.

Voting for the resolution were the United States, the Soviet Union, Ceylon, Ecuador, Italy, Poland and Argentina.

Before the vote, Belgian delegate Walter Loridan said his country would withdraw its troops when the UN force is on the spot and able to restore security to the Congo.

Loridan denied the Congolese government's charge of aggression by Belgium and said Belgian

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (CP)—Dr. Ralph Bunche said today the first of the United Nations troops being sent to help restore order in this troubled republic are expected within 48 hours.

The UN undersecretary spoke at a press conference as Belgian troops tried to enforce an uneasy peace in this capital. Congolese civilians had begun burning automobiles of Europeans.

Bunche said he expects that by early next week at least four battalions of UN troops will have reached this former Belgian colony. That could mean 2,400 or more soldiers.

The first contingents, he said, are likely to be drawn from the armies of five African nations—Ghana, Guinea, Mali, Morocco and Tunisia.

EXPECT WITHDRAWAL

Bunche said it was his understanding that the withdrawal of Belgian troops was a condition of the UN force coming to The Congo.

Belgian roops continued to flow into the capital of this newly-independent country in an attempt to quell an anti-white rampage of murder, looting and rape.

The troops occupied Leopoldville Wednesday in a lightning raid that touched off charges by African leaders that the Congo now is in a "state of war" with Belgium.

At least three members of the native army were killed by Belgian troops Wednesday night.

AMBUSH ATTEMPT

One was shot when a band of mutinous Congolese troops tried to ambush a Belgian army column taking 1,000 refugees to the airport.

The three deaths brought on a virtual general strike in the city. Many hotels were without staffs. Most stores were closed, and the few groceries still open in the white sector were besieged by

Congo Breaks Relations With Belgium

BRUSSELS (Reuters) — The Congo has broken off diplomatic relations with Belgium, it was announced today.

The break between the central African nation formed 15 days ago and the nation that ruled it for 75 years was announced in the lower house of parliament by Foreign Minister Pierre Wigny.

Relations were broken off in a note from Congo Premier Patrice Lumumba to the Belgian government.

Dogs Kill Sheep

SMITHS FALLS (CP)—Reeve Ed Purcell of South Elmsley Township said Wednesday he is calling an emergency council meeting to deal with an outbreak of sheep killings in the area by wild dogs. Farmers near Lombardy, five miles south of here, say they lost more than 50 prize sheep during the weekend.

Indian Strike Situation at Critical Stage

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — India's violence-ridden government workers strike entered a critical phase today as other unions started a 24-hour general strike in sympathy.

The port of Bombay was brought to a standstill when 10,000 dock workers failed to appear for the morning shift.

In Calcutta, bus drivers stopped work and many stores, banks and offices were closed.

The token strike was called by the Communist and Socialist-controlled All-India Trade Union Congress and two other labor organizations, claiming a total of 2,000,000 members.

The new challenge came to the government amid mounting sabotage and riots in the third day of the pay strike called among 2,000,000 lower-paid civil servants.

In Bombay a bus was set on fire, two railroad cars were derailed and at Budwan, near Calcutta, a 24-hour curfew was ordered in the locomotive shed area.

Hundreds of steel-helmeted police were called out Wednesday night to control Bombay crowds which jammed traffic and threw stones on the main streets.

The civil servants' strike was declared illegal by government order last week and widespread arrests were carried out. Some reports said arrests might be as high as 5,000 and by today some 50 strike leaders were in custody.

About one-fourth of the more than 2,000,000 government employees are in the unions which began the strike for a minimum wage equivalent to $26.25 a month.

32 WORKERS KILLED

To 'Miracle Boy', Muddled Dream, To Sister a Horrible Nightmare

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) To Rodger Woodward it's still a muddled dream, but to his sister, Deanne, the experience is a horrible nightmare.

Rodger, 7, was swept over the cataract and Deanne, 17, was rescued at the edge by two tourists, after a boating accident.

Lolling in front of the family trailer Wednesday, Rodger frowned when reporters asked his life's ambition.

"Well," he said after some thought, "I know I don't want to be a life guard."

His wild ride over the falls was a scramble of rushing waters, wild spray and sharp-edged rocks.

To Deanne, however, the realization of the harrowing escape was more lingering.

"I knew I was going to die," she said. "Every time my head went under, I thought 'this is it.' Yet somehow I knew I had to go on fighting.

"And in those split seconds, I had time to wonder, 'What is it going to be like to die'?"

Great relief and the burden of sorrow tugged at the hearts of the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Woodward. They were gladdened that their children were back at home, but they had suffered the loss of a friend, James Honeycutt, 40, with whom the children had been boating. Honeycutt's body was recovered Wednesday in the lower river, about 2,000 yards from the base of the falls.

Woodward, a carpenter at the Niagara power project, said he hoped the family could return to normal as soon as possible, but he continued to weigh several offers of trips and shows for the children.

Rodger, not certain of his future ambitions, is sure of one thing:

"If I ever go out in a boat again it's going to be one with a good motor on it."

Canada Insisting on Veto On Use of Nuclear Warheads

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker indicated today in the Commons that Canada must have a veto over use of American nuclear warheads on Canadian soil before it will accept them in this country.

He said Canada is asking the United States for some right of joint control as the United Kingdom has [illegible] connection with American nuclear warheads stored in Britain.

Replying to Opposition Leader Pearson and CCF House Leader Hazen Argue, the prime minister said that if and when nuclear weapons are acquired for Canadian forces they will not be used "except as the Canadian government decides and in the manner approved by the Canadian government."

He said such an arrangement with the U.S. would constitute "joint control" because the U.S. would retain ownership of the warheads and their use would require the authorization of the U.S. president.

Mr. Diefenbaker mentioned "joint control" for the first time July 6. Before that he had referred only to "Canadian control."

The prime minister said "joint control" would be consistent with the view he expressed in the Commons Feb. 20, 1959, that the spread of nuclear weapons to individual countries should be limited.

He said negotiations and consultations have been going on with the U.S. for a "very considerable time." They were still continuing in an effort to see that the Canadian conditions governing control of nuclear warheads in this country are met by the U.S.

Mr. Argue asked whether the government has considered keeping nuclear weapons out of Canada.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the conditions under which joint control could be achieved would have to be determined first.

U.S. Defence Secretary Thomas Gates told a press conference here Wednesday following a two-day meeting of the Canada-U.S. cabinet defence committee that arrangements for provision of American nuclear warheads for Canadian Bomarc bases should be completed by the time the sites are ready.

Bitter U.S. vs. USSR Battle Looming in UN Over Plane

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A bitter United Nations battle between Russia and the United States seemed assured today over the issue of which of the two great powers is responsible for threatening world peace.

The issue was sharply drawn Wednesday night when President Eisenhower accepted a Soviet challenge on U.S. aircraft flights and declared his determination to make a case "on the lawless actions and reckless threats of the Soviet government."

The challenge was hurled by the Soviet government when Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko a few hours earlier demanded an emergency session of the United Nations Security Council. In a cable to UN headquarters in New York he charged the U.S. Air Force with aggressive activities against Russia and said they constitute a threat to the peace of the world.

In a statement from his vacation headquarters at Newport, R.I., Eisenhower said the U.S. is "ready and willing" to go to the Security Council for a full discussion of what he called the "wanton shooting down" by Russia of an RB-47 plane July 1.

The U.S. told Russia in a note Tuesday that the plane was shot down over international waters at least 30 miles from the Soviet coast on the Barents Sea.

Russia had charged the previous day that the jet reconnaissance bomber had violated Soviet air space. A Soviet note to Washington linked the RB-47 flight with the May Day U-2 flight which went down in central Russia.

Radio Moscow claimed today that the Soviet government has proof that the RB-47 invaded Russian airspace. Washington authorities, who should be in a position to know, disputed this both privately and publicly.

The U.S. officials said flatly, as the state department publicly insisted Tuesday, that the plane was not on any mission over Soviet territory and was unquestionably shot down over international waters.

About the time that the president's statement was being released at Newport, the navy said in Washington that a Russian trawler which cruised close to the Atlantic coast last April was an "electronic spy ship."

The navy said the trawler, Vega, was engaged in bold reconnaissance activities. The craft showed up in the midst of tests being conducted by the U.S. nuclear submarine George Washington.

The Vega later cruised down the coast to as close as 12 miles off Cape Henry, Va. The cape is at the approaches to the big U.S. navy base and fleet anchorage in the Norfolk and Hampton Roads area.

The navy statement apparently was intended as evidence of how the U.S. treats reconnaissance in waters off the United States.

U.S. officials said the Soviet decision to take the RB-47 case to the Security Council on the broad charge of U.S. Air Force aggression was designed to serve two major Russian purposes.

The Soviet aims, as the U.S. government evaluates them, are to make it impossible for the United States ever to resume U-2 flights over Soviet territory and to stir up Allied peoples against U.S. bases in their countries.

FANATIC STABS JAPANESE P.M. AT HOUSE PARTY

Has Thigh Wounds, Assailant Held

TOKYO (AP) — A rightist fanatic stabbed Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi six times in the left thigh with a hunting knife today.

Doctors said Kishi would be out of the hospital in 10 days, and his ruling Liberal-Democratic party went ahead with plans to accept his resignation and elect Trade Minister Hayato Ikeda prime minister Friday.

Kishi was attacked at the prime minister's official residence as he drank "banzai" champagne toasts with party leaders in celebration of Ikeda's election earlier today to succeed him as party president. The party election was a preliminary to the government change which Kishi had promised after the controversial U.S.-Japan military treaty took effect last month.

Bleeding profusely, Kishi was rushed to a nearby hospital. A secretary said he was cracking jokes with visitors within an hour. One of his doctors said neither the artery nor the sciatic nerve were hit.

HOLD ASSAILANT

Police arrested the assailant, Daisuke Aramaki, 65, a member of a small, uninfluential rightist group. He refused to say why he had attacked the prime minister or how he obtained the Liberal-Democratic party badge that he used to enter the official residence.

The attack on Kishi occurred just a month after another rightist stabbed and injured a prominent Socialist, Jotaro Kawakami, near the Parliament Building. The two attacks aroused fears that Japan is in for a revival of the pre-war terrorism in which the notorious rightist Black Dragon society played a leading role.

Much steam has gone out of a leftist campaign against the U.S.-Japan treaty. The incoming Ikeda government said 210,000 persons would turn out for three waves of marching around the Diet building, the prime minister's official residence and police headquarters. Only 3,000 showed up for the first wave.

Ikeda, 61, is an advocate of continued close ties with the United States and also reopening of trade with Red China. He administered the U.S. occupation's unpopular anti-inflation policy and is known as tough-minded financial expert and administrator.

Deal Called Off

Huddled Half-Way up Mount Blanc People Await Mercury Bomb Blast

COURMAYEUR, Italy (AP)—This is doomsday for 100 people huddled in a building 7,150 feet up Europe's highest mountain, waiting for someone to set off a "mercury bomb" and tilt the world off its axis.

The followers of Dr. Elio Bianca, a bearded Milan pediatrician, were sure that the bomb, to be set off accidentally today but by whom they don't know, would send the seas boiling in over the lowlands of the earth. That's why they headed for Mont Blanc at the start of the month.

Instead of a bomb, the blast may come from a big fireworks display. The police said they had been told that "certain gay young spirits" planned to set off the fireworks at the predicted hour of doom to scare the daylights out of the cultists.

Bianca and his followers were dug in at a "survival" pavilion nearly half way up the 15,780-foot peak in the Alps. They sealed the windows of the lower floor with concrete in case the waters got too high. Cracks in the walls were plugged with cotton to keep out radiation.

There was one hitch in their plan: 10 boats they ordered to navigate after the deluge had not arrived from a sporting goods firm in Genoa.

Bianca also took along food reserves and even some television sets—although no one could explain what he would do with them with all TV stations under water.

The police followed Bianca and his cultists up to their stronghold, but not because they believed his predictions. They were there to control any traffic jam and stop the antics of scoffers.

Bianca announced he had no more room for last - minute believers. He had provisions for only 100 people. Anyone else would have to camp some place else on Mont Blanc or find another mountain.

In the Alpine Valley below people took the whole thing calmly. A dance hall proprietor announced a contest tonight to elect "Miss End of the World."

Young Senator Is Easy Winner On First Ballot

Faces Difficult Task Placating Southerners

LOS ANGELES (CP)—John F. Kennedy, a multi - millionaire's son with a common touch, scored a smashing first-ballot victory Wednesday night to become the Democratic party's first Roman Catholic presidential candidate in 32 years.

The handsome Massachusetts senator now faces the big job of trying to unite quarrelling North-South factions of his party and to drive for a White House victory against the Republicans next November.

It will be no easy task. Even after he was nominated at the Democratic national convention and Missouri moved that the nomination be made unanimous, some southern delegates said outside the convention they didn't go along with the choice.

In an attempt to placate southerners threatening to walk out in the ticket, there were reports Kennedy might turn to Senator Stuart Symington of Missouri as his running mate.

SEEN ACCEPTABLE

Symington, who mustered 86 votes to Kennedy's winning 845, is regarded as acceptable to the South.

"We shall carry the fight to the people and we shall win," the 43-year-old Kennedy said after he hurried to the convention hall to receive the adulation of a wildly cheering audience of some 19,000 persons and make a brief speech.

For Kennedy it was an easy walkaway.

It took 761 votes to win. Wyoming put Kennedy over the hump.

Far behind came the men who never really had a chance.

Senator Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, a wizard at controlling the Senate as its majority leader, couldn't control the convention.

But the tall Texan took it gracefully. He said he accepted the decision of the convention "with all my heart."

Symington hoping to the last for a Kennedy-Johnson standoff that never came about, didn't get his candidacy off the ground.

Neither did Adlai E. Stevenson, twice a presidential nominee and twice a loser, but still the master

Malton Airport Finished by '64

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Hees was tackled in the House of Commons Wednesday night by opposition Members of Parliament about plans for numerous air terminals across the country. His replies in nutshell:

Winnipeg—It will be ready by 1964 at the latest.

Malton, Toronto—completion by 1964 and sooner if possible.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.—Tenders will be called later this year.

How Voting Stood

Kennedy	806
Johnson	409
Symington	86
Stevenson	79½
Meyner	43
Humphrey	41½
Smathers	30
Barnett	34
Loveless	1½
Brown	½
Faubus	½
Rossellini	½

The Missouri switch subtracted 39 from Symington and added 39 to Kennedy. Then came the acclamation.

200 Die in Fire In Guatemalan Insane Asylum

GUATEMALA (AP) — More than 200 persons were burned to death Wednesday night in a fire in a Guatemala City insane asylum.

Authorities said the number of dead might rise to 300. The fire broke out shortly after midnight and quickly swept through the old building, which houses 1,400 persons.

About 600 persons were trapped in the inner part of the building and firemen, police and volunteers were unable to get all of them out.

Police said many of those burned to death were locked in cells.

Lawyer Swears He Told CBC Show Was Hoax

TORONTO (CP) — Ralph Norman Meakes, lawyer for Joan Campbell who says she duped the CBC with her claim to be a professional divorce co-respondent, today swore he told a CBC editor before the broadcast the Close-Up interview was a hoax.

Mr. Meakes gave Insp. Herbert Purdy of the Ontario Provincial Police a five-page sworn affidavit that a week before the May 26 television broadcast he told Close-Up's story editor George Ronald that the taped interview was "a fraud".

Mr. Meakes said Miss Campbell, for whom he had acted on another matter, phoned him after taping the interview and told him the show was a fake.

He said he then told Mr. Ronald, who said the show would not be run.

Car Thieves Are Remanded For Sentence

Two Montreal youths today pleaded guilty in county magistrate's court to theft of a car from Marysville and theft of a panel truck from Cornwall.

John Joseph Phillips, 21, and his brother, Edward Joseph Phillips, were remanded in custody for sentence next Thursday.

Police said the car was stolen from outside Holly's garage at Marysville on July 7 and recovered by OPP at Cobourg where the youths were apprehended. The vehicle was owned by William Waddingham, RR 1, Marysville.

The panel truck, owned by a sewing machine company, was stolen July 6 from a lot outside a service station at Cornwall and recovered near Gananoque.

The youths hitch-hiked from Gananoque to Marysville on their way to Toronto. They said they stole the vehicles to sleep in them.

"How stupid do you think I am," said Magistrate T.Y. Wills. "Do you expect me to believe that you stole these vehicles just so you could have places to sleep? They were driven about 100 miles."

"No sir," replied the older brother. "We used them for transportation, too."

Shepherd Dog Soon Finds Missing Boy

MARMORA (Special) — A 10-year-old German shepherd dog last night found a missing two-year-old boy four hours after the lad vanished from his parents' cottage on the Crowe River.

David Bonter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Bonter of Oakville, apparently wandered away from the cottage after dinner. The dog, "Tip," owned by James Reynolds, found the boy asleep in a nearby field.

The boy's father said he envisaged a sixth funeral in the Bonter family. The family had lost five of its members since March.

Skin divers and provincial police from Belleville were called and a resuscitator was taken to the scene in case the boy was found in the river. The cottage fronts on the river.

The dog sniffed a pair of the boy's overalls, then dashed across a field and found him asleep beside a barbed wire fence. The lad was not injured.

Belleville Man Helps to Keep Jets Flying

BADEN-SOELLINGEN, Germany—When Canadians think of their No. 1 RCAF NATO Air Division here in Europe, they usually visualize sleek jet aircraft streaking through the skies in the defence of the Western World, but that's only part of the story.

Before any jet fighter is "scrambled" on an interception or exercise, it has been re-fuelled, armed and inspected by the ground crew personnel who play a vital role in keeping RCAF aircraft in first-class condition.

An airman who serves as a machinist at No. 4 RCAF Fighter Wing here is Corporal Walter Theobald, 35, son of Bertram Theobald, 240 MacDonald Ave., Belleville.

Born in Quebec City and educated in Belleville, he joined the RCAF in 1949 and served at No. 6 Repair Depot, RCAF Station Trenton, Ont., and at RCAF Station North Bay, Ont., before his transfer to No. 4 Fighter Wing here in 1957.

He is married to the former Jean Lavature of Vancouver. They have three children and live in married quarters near the base.

Since coming to Europe Cpl. Theobald and his family have visited France, Switzerland, the Netherlands, Beligum, Luxembourg and Austria and plan to visit Italy this summer.

No. 4 Fighter Wing, situated near the picturesque Black Forest in Germany, is one of four operational fighter wings contributed by Canada to NATO in the defence of Western Europe.

Refugees continued to stream across the congo River to Brazzaville, capital of the former French Congo and a chief embarkation point for the refugees.

Arthur Djinn, representative of Ghana's Prime Minister Kwame Nkrumah, went into an emergency session of the Congo's cabinet today. He said Ghana was prepared to send troops in answer to an appeal from Premier Patrice Lumumba but wanted the Belgian troops out of the country first.

Four more companies of paratroopers were on their way to The Congo from Belgium, bringing to about 3,500 the number of troops flown out here since the anti-white rampage began eight days ago.

The Belgian government declared today Belgian troops will continue "their present mission" to defend the lives of whites until United Nations forces are in a position to ensure order in The Congo.

Premier Lumumba and President Joseph Kasavubu demanded Wednesday that Belgium order all its troops to withdraw to their bases and end their fighting with the rebels. The demand was rejected by the Belgian ambassador here and by the Belgian government.

Belgian troops were reported to have fought their way back into Jadotville, in the breakaway Katanga province, after being forced back by pillaging mutineers and tribesmen.

With the recapture of Jadotville, the whole of copper-rich Katanga appeared to be under control again. The provincial government in Elisabethville asked Belgian troops to intervene after breaking away from the central government and declaring itself an independent state.

Provincial Premier Moise Tshombe reiterated Katanga's secession from The Congo, saying the central government has "led us into anarchy and communism."

of words and an idol of the galleries.

In rejecting this trio of party stalwarts, the Democrats dared for only the second time in political history to put up a Roman Catholic for the presidency—to take on Vice-President Richard M. Nixon as the all-but-certain Republican choice.

It was the Democrats, too, who tried and faltered with another Catholic, Alfred E. Smith, in 1928.

A Boston Irishman, scion of wealth, a Harvard graduate with a broad "A" accent, Kennedy blitzed the convention. At 43, he became one of the youngest men ever awarded a nomination to the highest U.S. office.

Four years ago, at another Democratic convention, Kennedy was within 39 votes of the vice-presidential nomination only to lose out to Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee.

And for four years now he has been aiming for the next higher notch and working at it with overflowing energy and zest.

Wednesday night it all paid off. He became the Democratic man of destiny, in a world echoing with Russian rocket rattling, at an hour when the next moment could become eternity.

Here in a vast covered amphitheatre, to the acclaim of thousands of party followers, the senator watched Johnson get off to a quick expected lead with a push from fellow southerners in Alabama.

But quickly he pulled up even, then stormed out in front and stayed there.

'It was just a question of which state would claim the honor of placing the party's highest prize in his hands. Wyoming did it, with four votes to spare.

Johnson at that point had gathered in 409 votes. He wound up with that—far short of the 500 plus he had claimed in advance.

Kennedy reached 806 at the end of the alphabetical callover of states. Symington ran third with 86, Stevenson followed with 79½.

troops had intervened only because the mutinous Congo army could not maintain order and the lives of the thousands of whites in the Congo were threatened.

Hammarskjold told the council the big powers should be excluded from the UN force and care taken that nationalities used should not raise complications. This was regarded as notice that white troops would not be used.

The session was marked by a bitter denunciation of the Western powers, particularly the United States, by Soviet delegate Arkady A. Sobolev and an indignant reply from U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge.

Sobolev accused Clare Timberlake, the U.S. ambassador in the Congo, of intervention in the Congo's affairs and of using Ralph Bunche, the Negro UN undersecretary now in the new country, to broaden plans for Western intervention under the UN flag.

Lodge denounced Sobolev's statement was "outrageous and untrue."

LONDON (Reuters) — Reliable sources said today Britain hopes the UN emergency force for the Congo will be balanced between different races and colors representing Africa, Asia, Europe and Latin America.

Britain does not believe members of the UN security council should contribute to the force, the informants said.

It was understood Britain's main concern is that the UN troops should take over quickly from the Belgians so that there is no vacuum between the Belgian withdrawal and UN arrival. Failure to link the withdrawal and arrival was the reason why Britain abstained in the security council voting, the sources said.

BIRTHS

GUTHRIE. — Mr. and Mrs. Robert Guthrie, (nee Betty Cook), are happy to announce the birth of a daughter, Lu-Anne, on Sunday, July 10th, 1960, at the Belleville General Hospital. A sister for Vickey and Lori.

IN MEMORIAM

GOW, Joseph H. — In loving memory of our dear father.

How we wish, dear dad, you were back here again
Where fond hearts are thinking of you.
How we wish we could hear
Those old songs so dear
We sang with notes loud and so true.
How we wish for a day
You could just strut away
With the time step, straw hat and cane.
How our hearts long
For an old time song;
How we wish you were back here again.
You wait for us around the bend.
And on some golden day
You'll meet us there
'Cause you're not so far away.

—Sadly missed by daughters and sons.

GOW, Joseph H. — In memory of my dear husband, who passed away July 14th, 1952.

In my heart I hold a picture of the beautiful smile you wore.
And as each day goes passing by
I miss you even more.
There is no way to tell you how lonesome I have been
Since the Saviour came and took you,
But some day we'll meet again.
Now rest, dear Joe, in heaven,
And when my work is over
Please come to the gate and meet me.
We'll be together ever more.

—Sadly missed by wife Ethel.

SCRUBY. — Treasured memories of my dear husband, Henry, who passed away to the higher life, July 14th, 1954.

It is sweet to remember a husband so dear,
Though absent from me, he is always near,
Unseen by the world, he stands by my side,
And whispers, "My love, death cannot divide."

—Loving wife Maud.

Bowling Notes

On Wednesday the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club sponsored a mixed doubles tournament with 18 entries from Kingston, Bowmanville, Campbellford, Brighton, Trenton and Belleville.

The weather was ideal except for a brief shower near the end of the second draw, which certainly didn't dampen the spirits or hinder the keen bowling.

Mr. Charles Matthews, local greenskeeper, was given a great deal of credit for the excellent condition of the greens from the visiting clubs.

Presentation of prizes was made by the tournament chairman Orlo Smith, who thanked Pres. Bill VanTassel and Ralph Tuck for conducting the draw in his absence.

First three game high went to Mr. and Mrs. Dick Edney of Kingston, regular visitors to our club, and regular winners too. Second three game high went to that beloved old gent, who makes them weep, Morley Galt and his partner, Mrs. Pat Carlaw from Kingston. We are still trying to figure out how he does it but he's a regular winner too.

Two game high went to Ralph Tuck and his partner Mrs. Mildred Smith of Belleville, with the one game high going to Mr. Bill Fuller and his daughter, Mrs. C. Boyce of Trenton.

During the afternoon and evening the ladies served tea, coffee and sandwiches.

Gentlemen! get your entries in for Corbin Day.

Tried to Kill Flies With Axe, Given 60 Days

PRESQUE ISLE, Me. (CP)—Joseph Lebobe, 27, of Lennox Isle, P.E.I., was jailed for 60 days for trying to kill flies with an axe.

As the story was told in municipal court, Labobe became drunk by breathing fumes from a jug of high test gasoline at the woods camp where he works.

Pestered by flies in his bunk house, he began swinging at them. Whether he killed any couldn't be discerned—but his axe did manage to knock down one wall and cut holes in the others.

Labobe was found guilty of intoxication and malicious mischief.

CANADA INSISTING

The sites for the anti - aircraft missile are scheduled to be ready late next year but the bases are not expected to become operational until 1962 or perhaps 1963.

Mr. Gates said he assumes there could be "dual" Canada-U.S. control similar to Anglo-American control over American nuclear weapons based in the United Kingdom.

But he also said that American nuclear weapons must remain under U.S. control. Firing of these weapons could be done only by order of the U.S. president.

The prime minister of Canada "would of course be consulted," he added after some prompting by his cabinet colleague, Treasury Secretary Robert Anderson.

External Affairs Minister Green declined to discuss the matter at all except to repeat that the Canadian government hasn't decided whether Canadian forces will be armed with nuclear weapons.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker said July 6 in the Commons that he favors "joint" Canada - U.S. control of nuclear warheads. Previously, he had said there would be "Canadian control."

Mr. Gates was asked whether arrangements similar to Anglo-American dual control of warheads could be worked out.

He said this was up to Canada. Arrangements could be made "within the limitations" of U.S. law which stated that nuclear warheads must be under U.S. control.

At another point, Mr. Gates said there were some complicated provisions whereby joint control could be achieved "in a sense."

He made it plain that the U.S. defence department wants to see Canada's two Bomarc squadrons armed with nuclear explosives.

The ministers of the two countries issued a 650-word communique which had little to say except that a meeting had been held and that continued efforts should be made for resumption of meaningful East - West disarmament negotiations. Pending achievement of controlled disarmament "there could be no relaxation of defensive measures."

Nickel Meters In Effect At Weekend

TRENTON — By the end of this week, new parking meters, which will accept only nickles, instead of the customary pennies, will go into effect in Trenton.

Parking on Dundas St. West, the first block of Front St., from the town bridge- north ward, and the first block of Elgin St. west of Front Street, will cost one nickel for one half hour. Meters in the other locations will cost one nickel for one hour. The costlier parking is due to the fact that the locations are closer to the downtown area and thus more desirable.

Around 50 new meters are being installed in locations which have not been metered before. The area around the market square, Albert Street, Fraser Park Drive will be metered.

Wherever possible, dual parking meters are being installed, thus permitting the removal of unnecessary posts, and facilitating easier parking.

The meters will accept pennies no longer. This will save a great deal of wear and tear on the mechanism.

Monday through Saturday, the parking by-law will be enforced from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., with an additional three hours added to Friday night parking.

Local motorists will have the bitter pill of having to pay parking fees, and possible parking fines, sweetened in the near future, when a "Meter Maid" takes over the duties of coin collections, and enforcement of the by-law. However, the local police department, which has been responsible for these details in the past, will still be in on the act, as the Meter Maid will report to them.

Brownies, Guides, Rangers Repay $1000 Loan by Rotary

TRENTON — This spring, the Brownies, Guides and Rangers of Northumberland District were given the loan of $1,000 by the Trenton Rotary Club, towards the purchase price of the Guide campsite at Waupoos.

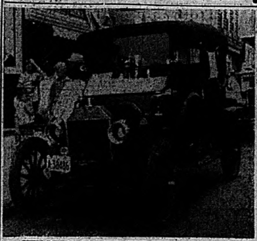
Yesterday, they paid back the interest-free loan in full. On hand to accept the repaid loan were Rotarians Tom Hetherington, manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, and R. D. McDonald, manager of the Trenton branch of the Bank of Montreal.

Presenting the cheque on behalf the three associations were Brownie Karen Louise Cranfield, 1st Brighton pack, Guide Karla Horcica, 1st Batawa company and Kathleen Hughes, 1st Trenton Air Rangers.

The Northumberland division includes Bayside, Brighton, Batawa, Frankford, Campbellford, Trenton Airport, Trenton West, Trenton East and Warkworth.

To earn money to repay the loan, the girls sold cookies and buns, collected and sold licence plates and rags, held Christmas tree projects and staged an Easter blitz.

Some packs and companies made special cash donations; others helped with the furnishings of the Northumberland Room (the infirmary) at the camp.



HEY MYRTLE, HAVE YOU SEEN MY MOTORING VEIL? One of the ancient autos taking part in the fourth annual London to Brighton tour which finished at Brighton yesterday afternoon. This 1913 Ford is the property of Ken Adams of Orono, Ont.

Twenty-Two Ancient Cars Visit Brighton

TRENTON — Yesterday, the village of Brighton played host, for the fourth consecutive year, to members of the Antique and Classic Car Club of Canada. Since the inauguration of the club the autos and their drivers have made four annual pilgrimages from the city of London to the village of Brighton. This event commemorates a similar pilgrimage made yearly from 1904 of cars from London, England to Brighton, England.

Altogether 21 ancient cars made the journey. Twenty two cars started out from London but one car developed trouble at Peterborough, yesterday and dropped out.

The "horseless carriages" included a 1910 Buick, 1913 Model "T" Fords, a 1913 Gray Dort Touring, a 1917 Cadillac and a 1916 McLaughlin Buick.

Later models included a 1940 Rolls Royce, a 1930 Pierce Arrow and a 1928 Willys Knight.

The autos were parked on Main Street in the village while their drivers ate their lunches and hundreds of spectators from the village and the surrounding area milled up and down the street, examining these nostalgic momentoes of a by-gone age in great detail.

A civic reception attended by municipal dignitaries was accorded the members of the club, in the memorial park. Plaques were presented to the various drivers.

Baby-Sitting Bingo-Widower Stages Revolt

EDMONTON (CP) — A baby-sitting bingo - widower finally found enough far too much.

The irate father thundered into the anteroom of a downtown bingo parlor and plunked three sleepy - eyed youngsters on the coat check counter saying, "I've had enough, you can check them with the hats."

The proprietor of the bingo house had some trouble finding the mother, but after calling for her from the stage eventually got an embarrassed response.

Trenton Legion Notes

TRENTON — As a direct result of the hilarious "greased pig" contest staged by members of Trenton Branch 110, Canadian Legion at last year's children's picnic, vice-president Ken Craddock announced recently that a 40-pound pig, lots of vaseline and a snow fence are in readiness for a similar contest at this year's picnic on August 7. If pigs and contestants hold out, this will be an annual event.

Orval Smith, sports' officer at the legion branch, reports that the horseshoe pits are about completed on the south-west corner of the Legion Hall and it is expected that members will be playing by the end of the week. A program of competitions has been arranged for the summer and the Trenton branch has been challenged by Port Hope for the district championship.

Chairman of membership, Carman Livingstone reports that he will have a number of names to submit to the general meeting of men wishing membership in the Trenton branch. The general meeting will be held July 18th.

William Menzies, chairman of Branch 110 conservation committee, reports that one of the picnic tables recently donated by merchants to the committee, and placed at No. 1 lock on the river, has been stolen. The table was donated by Douglas Whitley, Insurance and this information is printed on the top of the table. Anyone knowing about this missing table is asked to contact the Ontario Provincial Police or the Trenton branch of the Canadian Legion.

Branch president, William Lawson said this week that the public response to the peewee baseball tournament held last Saturday had been very good. He added that he wished to thank the Morton Parker Co. for donating the trophy, and Christies Bread and Moira Beverages Ltd. for supplying refreshments for the boys.

Equal Injustice

The Congo riots, uprisings and discriminatory actions taken by the natives and especially directed towards the white element in the country are appalling. That these should not take place until after Belgium had confirmed the Congo's independence indicates that a great hoax has been perpetrated.

It appears that the various parties of natives have been striving for independence not because they had reached that stage of development intellectually, morally and physically to be capable of self-government, but because they wanted to raise their own particular hell without any interference from an established nation.

Of course the actions of the Congolese may be the result of emotions and hatreds against whites which are being released now that there is no fear of retribution. The odd thing, of course, is that surely independence would not have been granted if the Belgian government felt that such action would immediately jeopardize the lives of any whites living in the Congo. It would seem that in either case the primitive emotions of the Congolese are causing these irresponsible acts.

Not all Congolese are tarred with this brush, however. There are those who do realize the responsibilities incumbent upon those who would govern and guide the destinies of their nation via democratic methods. Unfortunately they appear to be in the minority. The majority of the Congolese have exhibited no such tendencies. The majority do not seem to be even remotely prepared for self-government.

Equality has been an overworked word when referring to men, races, classes and nations. Equality in a free world can only be meant as the equality of opportunity for each to develop his ability to the best of his personal endeavor without infringing on anyone. This can be created by allowing equal rights, equal justice, equal education and such. But the theory that all men are equal is a myth wafted like an opiate by men who should realize the facts.

Oftimes we hear a clamor for equality but, human nature being what it is, if all men were treated exactly equal they would shortly be trying to create some form of distinction to set one apart from the other. Psychologically the individual basically seems to find some manner in which he is better than the next individual. If he finds himself frustrated in this effort through personal inadequacy or adverse conditions he may then clamor for equality as a temporary alternate.

To apply this to the situation in the Congo it is apparent that a man can not be made "equal" just by some act of legislation. Here also he must achieve this status through personal endeavor. The unfortunate thing is that the majority of Congolese, all of whom are to be equally responsible for the actions of their country, have not yet achieved that status. There are too many who are living but a stone's throw away from a very primitive state of society personally. They have neither the education nor the environment through which they may grasp or comprehend the responsibilities or complexities which man must face up to and deal with in this modern world.

The current situation should serve as an excellent example for the future guidance of those who feel forced to hop on the let's-make-everyone-equal-and-self-governing bandwagon. To do so is an injustice to those who are not prepared for it whether they may want it or not. It would be akin to putting a small child into a powerful car when the only thing he knows is that he wants to drive and where the accelerator is.

Self-government is a powerful thing. It is something which absolutely requires mature, intelligent and responsible leadership and support within the nation concerned. It is something too precious to confer lightly upon those who feel, no matter how strongly so, that they would like to "give it a whirl." It is not to be prostituted before the incompetent or those who would seek it as a means to an end. It is an end in itself and the proper operation of it may greatly benefit all within its reach. In the Congo it appears that they do not completely realize this fact.

Thus an equal injustice has been rendered; by the Belgians in conferring it and by the Congolese in abusing it. The former should have been in a position to know better and the latter should be in a position of better knowledge.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

GLASS HOUSES

In a fantasy of the future, the Russian writer Zamiatin once imagined a civilization where all the citizens lived in apartments where all the walls were glass. Everyone lived in view of the public.

Most of us would not enjoy living in glass houses. But think how our lives would be changed if we could keep none of our acts secret! I am thinking not of criminals but of ordinary men and women. Neighbors would not throw trash in each other's backyards. Students could no longer cheat in examinations. Cashiers could not short-change customers. Secret drinkers would have to cease or be exposed. Husbands and wives could not be unfaithful to each other. Life would be very difficult if there were no secrets.

The truth is, there are no secrets. All our private acts, however carefully concealed, are known to two minds: our own, and God's. We cannot escape the knowledge of our own secret sins, and if we think badly of other people of whose sins we know only part, what must we then think of ourselves, of whom we know all the bad? And how can we presume to face the judgment of an all-knowing and all-seeing God?

The happiest people are those who live as if they were in glass houses — who try to have so little to hide from others that they have nothing to hide from themselves, or from God.

Young Men Top Scientists

Kitchener-Waterloo Record

Most of the important discoveries which bring about revolutionary advances in science are made by men under 35. An article in a Johns Hopkins University Bulletin cites a number of instances showing that young men are the ones who have taken giant strides on which human advancement is made. It says history proves that a man's early years are his most significant, that older men are too careful, cautious and clannish.

Hippocrates, the Greek youth often called the father of modern medicine, brought the medical world out of an age of superstition. He defied the priest-doctors who believed that disease was the result of the patients having offended a god. Hippocrates was the first to state that illness was due to worldly causes. He and his young colleagues established the principals of careful diagnosis, experimental therapy and prognosis. They were the first to prove that diseases developed into widespread epidemics.

• • •

Copernicus was still in his 20's when he upset firmly entrenched astronomical beliefs and placed our earth with the sun as the centre of the universe. For this daring statement he was called a heretic, pagan, and godless. Many of his followers were burned at the stake.

Harvey, young English doctor, had just passed his 30th year when he published his revolutionary theory of circulation of the blood and brought down a storm of invective on his head.

Sir Isaac Newton defined his laws of gravity and motion, upset established theories of light and invented calculus before he was 25. He made some mistakes, later corrected, but much of today's science is based on the extension of bold theories proposed by Newton in the 17th century.

Closer to our own times, the German genius, Albert Einstein, a theoretical physicist, was only 25, when he evolved his theories of general and special relativity and added to the quantum theory.

• • •

It is pointed out that a recent survey of scientific history up to the present showed that 95 per cent of great scientific discoveries were and are still being made by scientists before they reach 35.

One reason for this is that young men dare to be different and question established beliefs. A famous educator once said "Only the young can afford to swim against the stream."

On the other hand, older men have a maturity and judgment necessary for a balanced development of science. They also have the experience needed to train younger men who do and will continue to break the scientific barriers of tomorrow.

Youth and age working together form the best partnership.

Illusions Seem Dearer to Us Than Realities

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices:

Proof that women dress for other women, and not for men, may be seen most clearly in their fastidious choice of shoes, not for comfort but for style — and no man ever looks at a woman's shoe, or can tell one pair from another.

We laugh at the savages who take a tribal pride in the size of their totem poles, but we ourselves judge the status of a citizen by the number and length of the cars in his driveway.

Men who carry their military titles into civilian life must feel frightfully insecure in peacetime.

The rise in juvenile delinquency doesn't disturb me nearly so much as the prevalence of juvenile skepticism about the traditional values of Western society; delinquent behavior can be curbed or transformed, but skepticism about ethical codes can permanently corrode the mind and pave the way for a Fascist outlook on life.

There are few exact synonyms in any language — for instance, no other word expresses desire with the same flavor as "hanker."

The best mot of the year, with a wry appeal to all tobacco addicts, was made by the anonymous wit who said: "When I was 15, I began smoking to prove I was a man; now, at 40, I'm trying to quit for the same reason."

The most effective thing a committee can do is appoint a subcommittee.

The trouble with current fiction is that the finest story tellers have nothing to say that is worth saying; while those who have something to say lack the narrative power to sustain our interest. Only once or twice a century does a genius come along, like Tolstoi, who combines both talents.

Almost all parents want their children to have "the best education possible," but these same parents resent a truly educated person when they come across one. This deep ambivalence explains much of the current school conflicts.

It is much easier to make a reputation than to keep it; making it calls up our strength; keeping it tests all our weaknesses.

A man who is deceived by a woman (or vice versa) never really knew her very well — so nothing is lost but illusion. Yet most of us resent the loss of illusions more than the extinction of reality.

Now that the witch-hunt has been concluded and the witch exposed what is anybody going to do? One thing which has not been considered seriously is a revision of the divorce laws which would make this kind of caper unnecessary. As is usual for our legislators, it is the symptoms of the illness which will be treated, not the illness itself.

Work Itself Never a Sin

Hamilton Spectator

The thought of children working in mines and quarries is revolting to the contemporary Western conscience. Such exploitation belongs to a remote and embarrassing past.

A report of the International Labor Organization in Geneva reveals that millions of children in Asian and Latin American countries are employed on hard physical labor.

"In some parts of the world", says the report, "working children under fifteen years old form a substantial part of the total labor force . . ."

It was — and perhaps still is — a weight-carrying test which decided pay rates in some Asian countries. A boy coolie became a man coolie when he could lift eighty pounds from the floor to his head and carry it fifty yards. His pay increased accordingly.

A sense of outraged pity is the natural reaction to accounts of children condemned to heavy toil that is beyond their physical strength. But this indignation should be reserved for the excess of toil and not for work itself which is essential at all ages for proper mental balance and physical health.

Our civilization tends to the view that childhood should be entirely free of responsibility and duty. The pendulum here has swung far in the opposite direction. However much automation we get in the future, there will still be need for individual work and service to family, community and country and teaching how to make this contribution cannot begin too early. It is a delicate matter to find the proper balance between education, recreation and the physical capacity to make this contribution. Even the tiniest toddler can render some service.

Without this gentle education in the art of work and service there will be no givers, only takers; no duties, only rights.

Some Asian and Latin American countries still suffer from the cruel necessities imposed in past times. Let us feel pity, but not make work itself a sin at any age.

Victorians Ate Heavily

Windsor Star

The modern man who spends two hours at a meal, even allowing for a tedious after-dinner speech by some visiting dignitary, feels that he has made a proud sacrifice to the gods of eating.

Not so our Victorian predecessors, dwellers in a more leisurely, formal, and presumably more indigestion-prone age. Menus from Victorian times show six-course dinners as the rule, even in middle-class households. And formidable dinners they were, light on salads and frills but heavy on meat, fowl, and similar hearty fare.

Let those who yearn for a return to the good old days ponder on these meals. At modern prices, only those who work so hard that they lost interest in eating as an art could afford a Victorian dinner.

Mathematics Is His Love

St. Thomas Times-Journal

Napoleon B. Williams, a youth of 18, is a student at a high school in Memphis, Tennessee, and he reads mathematics text books with the ease and pleasure that another youth the same age might read a book about cowboys. Because of his skill as a mathematician Napoleon has been awarded a $2,500 scholarship at Harvard University. He had the unheard-of score of 800 points out of a possible 800 in advanced mathematics for the entrance examination. A member of the board that examines the records of high school students for scholarships, said the lad already has the equivalent of a university education in that subject.

Interesting although this case is, it is more so because Napoleon is a Negro.

The case of Napoleon B. Williams should be brought to the attention of all Southerners. He will sit among the sons of gentlemen.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

POISON IVY SEASON IS AT HAND — STAY AWAY FROM IT

It's a dull person who doesn't learn by experience — and my experience tells me that along about now the mail will be fairly well stuffed with inquiries about poison ivy and what to do now that you have the itch.

It is, in fact a cinch that quite a lot of these letters will be written between the time I write this column and the day it gets into print. Of readers in areas untroubled by poison ivy, I beg indulgence. Other readers elsewhere are having miseries.

Of course the best way to avoid itching from poison ivy is to avoid contact with it. But you can't always do this. You brush against it when you aren't looking. The leaf, stem and root of the plant all contain the poison. Even "out of season" poison ivy can bother you. Or if somebody has grubbed the plant out and is burning it, the smoke can be irritating.

For that matter, since the poisonous sap is sticky, it can cling to the fur of a dog or cat, or somebody else's blue jeans, and if you are sensitive, you can get the poisonous itch on the first bounce.

Of course, some people are more sensitive than others. But anybody can become sensitive to poison ivy if sufficiently exposed to it. Yes, I know that as a boy I saw others who were more or less immune chew poison ivy leaves and get away with it. It's a risky business. Because sometimes somebody gets too much, and becomes sensitive, and then he's in a peck of trouble.

Not only stay away from it, but learn to recognize the typical there-leaf design of the shiny plant. If some of it is around your cabin, summer home or camp, get chemicals from a garden supply house and destroy the plant. Even if you aren't sensitive, maybe you have your boss out for a weekend, and he or his wife, or children may be sensitive. He itches — but you'll suffer with him.

So in spite of precautions of this sort, what else can you do? If you know you are sensitive, lotions containing zirconum oxide give some measure of protection, if you apply them before going out in the woods and fields. Or, if you've been out and think you've contacted the plant, prompt washing with a thick lather of soap will help by getting the sticky but invisible juice off your skin. Naphtha soap is best for this as a rule.

If, in spite of all, the itch has broken out, easing it until the attack subsides is the only course left. Starch baths are good. Soaking hands, arms or legs in a weak solution (1,000 to 1) of potassium permanganate can also help. This is a poison, so avoid getting it in or near the mouth. It also leaves a dark brown stain on skin, towels, or clothes. Compresses soaked in Burrow's Solution are good. Calomine lotion is soothing.

In severe cases, your doctor may give injections (or oral doses) of the steroid drugs — cortisone or Acth. Or, if you know in advance that you are sensitive to poison ivy, your doctor can offer desensitization treatments. But these have to be done in advance, just as hay fever desensitization has to be done before the hay fever season, not after you've started to suffer.

The fact that he surreptitiously skirted his son's trail in a station wagon detracts not one whit from his clain that "possibly we are doing a little bit too much of the paternalistic care of our young and don't give them an opportunity to develop self-confidence."

We'll buy that and so, we'll wager would today's youth — if given a chance.

FEAR OF CRITICISM

Criticism is frequently a good thing, but the fear of it is most destructive. Some of the finest acts of noble and able men and women are killed in their hatching nest — through fear of criticism!

As a matter of justice, about the only person deserving of severe criticism is the one who most fears it.

So long as this world is inhabited by humans, there is sure to be an element always present ready to condemn and find fault with any forward act.

The world of men is always very large — but sometimes not very big.

Your character caliber is sure to be judged by the manner in which you take criticism. But do not forget this — the greater you become in independence, force and power, the more fierce and ornery will be your critics and fault finders.

Do not judge a great artist or performer by the number, or kind, of his critics. Judge him by the way the people to whom he appeals, receive him.

Greatness strides — it does not step!

The appreciation of motive is the key to which sure and honest criticism may be given — and none other. To fear criticism is to walk the way of the man who "Either fears his fate too much,

Or his deserts are small,
That dares not put it to the touch
To gain or lose it all!"

THE PACKSACK

These new synthetic tans by means of which you can develop a beautiful walnut color even though you are strictly the indoors type have to be used with a reasonable artistic touch. On TV the other night one of the American sports newscasters sat at his microphone exhibiting the most magnificent sporting tan, as if he had been out all day with the championship golfers of whom he was speaking so chummily. And all the while he talked, he gestured athletically with his hands which were the color of suet.

On the bus last evening a breezy young lady, all afloat in one of those umbrella style skirts and with a coor that suggested she had been water-skiing morning noon and night, sat down on the seat in front of me. Behind her ears, she was pallid as a mushroom.

This is a wonderfully phony age in which we live. It is true that the number of young people disporting themselves in the open air, has vastly increased in the past ten years. But is the proportion greater? Aren't there just as many per thousand who merely want to look the part?

FIRE THIS MORNING — Local firefighters were called out at 11.08 a.m. today to 4 Bridge Street East, when a fire broke out in a back room of Rossit's Italian grocery. Traffic was held up across the Lower Bridge for almost an hour as the flames were confined and extinguished in short order.

Firemen Battle Fire in Store At Lower Bridge

Traffic across the Lower Bridge was at a standstill for about one hour this morning as firemen battled a blaze at the Rossit's Italian Grocery at 4 East Bridge Street. The fire apparently originated in a small, closed back room, eventually building up enough pressure to blow out the windows of the room, allowing the flames to spread to the rest of the store.

Firemen arrived at the scene at about 11:09 o'clock to be greeted by clouds of dirty, acrid smoke. Scott air-packs were donned by several firemen in order to get close to the flames with the fire-hoses. The flames did not spread to other parts of the building, which includes a shoe repair store, a laundry and several apartments, but were put out in fairly short order.

A crowd of several hundred stood in orderly fashion near the Four Corners watching the progress of the firemen and the activity also drew the attention of numerous office workers who watched from the windows of nearby buildings. The activity drew to a close shortly after high noon and the fire equipment cleared the street by 12:08 p.m.

Fire Chief Gerald Vance estimated the damage to the property, which was covered by insurance, as being in the region of $5,000.

Skull Fractured As Bottle Tossed From Auto

Carl Van Slyke, aged 15, R. R. 1, Foxboro, is still in a serious condition in a Kingston hospital as the result of injuries received when struck by a bottle thrown from a car.

Carl was riding his biycle at Chatterton on No. 14 Highway three miles west of Foxboro at 8.30 p.m. on Friday evening of last week when a bottle was thrown from a passing car.

The bottle hit him on the head, fracturing his skull. He was first admitted to the Belleville General Hospital and was later taken to Kingston, where an operation was performed on Tuesday.

Police believe that the car from which the bottle was tossed was a Ford product, 1949 to 1951, dark blue or black in color, wih a light hood, with two rear-view mirrors on the fenders and with a radio aerial, bearing streamers on the left-hand side.

Extend Order Setting Limit On Picketing

TORONTO (CP) — The Kaufman Rubber Company of Kitchener Wednesday obtained extension of an injunction limiting pickets at its strikebound plant.

Mr. Justice W. F. Spence allowed the injunction to run until the rubber company and Local 88 of the United Rubber Workers of America (CLC) take the matter to trial perhaps in the fall, or until the three-week old strike is otherwise settled.

Mr. Justice Spence said:

"The legal purposes of picketing may be accomplished by having certain numbers at or around the plant . . . but more than that threatens . . . breach of peace, intimidation, coercion."

The injunction limits the union to four pickets at the plant's gates.

The union, seeking a contract covering wage and fringe benefits, has asked the provincial labor department to intervene. James Metzler, deputy labor minister, said Wednesday the department had taken theh case under advisement but no decision had yet been reached.

Many Watch Swim Meet at Community Pool

Close to 260 parents and friends watched 68 young swimmers compete in a swimming meet yesterday evening at the Kinsmen Community Swimming pool. The meet, which was open to boys and girls between the ages of eight to 18 inclusive, was organized and run as an initial attempt to build up a local swimming team to represent this city at various community swimming meets in this section of the province.

Despite threatening weather during the early part of the evening the meet got underway as scheduled with 15 events being run followed by an exhibition of diving by Bill Rushlow and John Peoples, current and former Junion Ontario Diving champions respectively.

Another meet is scheduled for the 27th of this month, according to Doug Paton, manager of the pool, in order to give other interested swimmers a chance to qualify as well as providing an excellent practice for last night's competitors.

Results of the meet were:

Boys' freestyle (9-10 years), Eric Barriage, Gordon McCreary. (11-12), Bob Richards, Dave Hiuser, John Averams. (12-13), John Scott, Jim Black, Roger Scriven. (14-16), Dave Fisher, Jim Tilker, Harold MacDonald.

Women's Clubs Reaching Aim Says Speaker

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs is aiming to put itself out of business.

Toronto lawyer Margaret P. Hyndman, QC, told delegates at the federation's biennial meeting Wednesday the aim of the business and professional women's clubs is to work for the day the organization is not necessary.

The federation had many outstanding accomplishments.

Miss Hyndman, immediate past president of the International Federation, listed three outstanding examples: The insistence that women be allowed to serve in the armed forces, the opening of the highest administrative offices in all civil service departments to men and women equally and the "growing representation at civic levels, even if we have not achieved our full share on the provincial and national levels."

Another Chocolate Layer Cake

By Mary Moore

Years ago I gave you a recipe for a Devil's Food Cake that pleased me and plenty of you too, for you wrote saying so. Since then I have not made it once until last week. The convenor of the Press Club picnic, Dot Turcotte, telephoned asking me for a chocolate layer cake and this old-y came to mind. It turned out fine. I filled it with lemon filling (and even put some on top — see below) and frosted the rim and sides with pale green butter icing. It was pretty and party-ish on the buffet table.

It is a big cake and will serve twelve generously. So if you need such a cake to serve with a big bowl of raspberries this month here you are.

CHOCOLATE LAYER CAKE WITH LEMON FILLING:

(Note: I would like to call this Lily Pond Cake, because of the decorative topping, but it would baffle you a bit.

2 1-4 cups sifted cake flour, 2 teaspoons baking soda, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup margarine or butter, 2 1-2 cups light brown sugar firmly packed, 3 eggs, 3 1-oz. squares unsweetened chocolate, 1-2 cup buttermilk or sour milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup boiling water.

Sift the sifted cake flour with the soda and salt. Cream the margarine or butter until very light and gradually beat in the sugar until all is light and fluffy. Add unbeaten eggs, one at a time, beating very well between each addition. Melt chocolate over warm water and add to batter and mix well. Add sifted dry ingredients, one-third at a time, alternately with the sour milk, but fold them in — do not beat — just enough to blend. Add boiling water and vanilla. This makes a thin batter, Pour into 3 8 1-2" layer cake tins which have been lined on the bottom with waxed paper and greased. Bake at 375 deg. F. 25 to 30 minutes. Let stand in pans for 10 minutes then turn out and cool on cake racks.

Make clear lemon filling: In a heavy saucepan mix together 1 cup sugar, 3 tablespoons cornstarch, 1-4 teaspoon salt. Mix well, then stir in 1 cup boiling water. Add 1-2 cup lemon juice and 2 tablespoons butter and stir over high heat until thick and boiling. Cool. Spread between chocolate layer cakes. Reserve a little (if desired. to spread in a "pool" about 5 inches in diameter, on top. Just before serving time, sprinkle this pool of filling with silver dragees. They look like lilies floating on a pond.

Make green butter icing: Cream 1-3 cup butter or margarine until very light, then beat in about 1-2 lb. or a little more of sifted icing sugar, adding 2 1-3 tablespoons lemon juice, alternately with the icing sugar, until of soft spreading consistency. Spread generously on sides of cake, and around uncovered rim of top of cake, fluffing this rim up with a fork to make it stand high, like a bank around a pond. Lovely.

MODERN MANNERS

Carolyn Hagner Shaw

Question: Do you think it is proper for someone to give you a baby shower for your fifth child? There is a difference of ten years between the fourth one and this one! I don't want to let my cousin do this if you do not think it is right.

Answer: This is rather unusual, but I can see no reason why a shower should not be given when such a long time has elapsed. However, please do not let your cousin give the party! As I have preached so many times, a relative should never entertain in this manner for a member of the family. It's simple. Just because guests are supposed to bring gifts, it is not considered good taste for a relative to ask you to bring a present for one of their own. How about her getting some of your friends to host the event?

Question: I was very upset the other day when I took my ten-year-old daughter to a P.T.A. meeting given so that each mother could meet the other children in her child's class. My youngster sat over in the corner. If anyone spoke to her, she shyly mumbled "hello." Another woman's child, the same age, greeted the older people with a gracious how-do-you-do and a smile. She was completely at ease. The contrast was awful. How do I train my youngster to be at ease with older folks?

Answer: Allow her to be around them more often. Explain to her how much it means to you to have her be gracious with them. Show her, by example, how to greet people. Make a game of it by acting it out. Then ask several of your close friends to help by making it easier for the youngster when they come to see you. Get them to chat with her for a few minutes before you send her out to play. Soon the shyness will begin to disappear and she will get pleasure in the company of us oldsters.

Question: I am always confused about who gets in an elevator first, the man or the woman? Should I stand back and usher her in, and then, when we get out, let her go first?

Answer: It all depends. The procedure you have outlined above is correct if the elevator is not very crowded. However, if it is full, it just makes sense to let her go in first, and you exit first if it is more considerate to the other passengers. Pushing people around so that she may get off ahead of you is perhaps "minding your manners" to the letter, but it isn't being kind, or sensible.

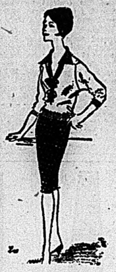
Bride-to-Be Feted With Gift Shower

DESERONTO — Over forty guests were entertained at a lovely shower in honor of Miss Dianne Lord at the home of Mrs. D. C McVicker on Wednesday night of last week. Conveners for the shower were Mrs McVicker, Mrs. M. Detlor, Mrs. M. Sherman and Mrs. Bernard Claus.

For the event, the house was tastefully decorated with pink and white streamers and bells and the fortunate bride-to-be opened her gifts beneath a pink and white umbrella. The centre piece for the table was a shower cake also decorated in pink and white with a miniature umbrella for decoration.

Mrs. McVicker, speaking for the assemblage, expressed their wish for the happiness of the couple and after opening the gifts Miss Lord thanked all for the wonderful array of presents. Miss Lord is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anson Lord.

Sweater Costume



By VERA WINSTON

The cashmere sweater, its place in the wardrobe secure, finds itself escorting its very own skirt or dress. Here it pairs with a skirt of navy and red or black and white dotted silk. The sweater, of red cashmere, has a collar and spaghetti bows of the silk to effect a fashionable tie-up.

Women's Activities

ST. ANDREW'S W. A.

WELLINGTON — The members of St. Andrew's W. A. met in the Town Hall on July 5th at 6.80 p.m. to enjoy a pot-luck supper and to hold their final meeting before the summer recess.

Mrs. Blower, the president called the meeting. The Scripture reading by Mrs. Hare, was taken from the gospel of St. Luke 15.

There were 14 members present. Reports were given by the treasurer; the G.A. leader and the J.A. leader.

The business of the evening was attended to and offering received.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Matthews on October 4th.

At the close of the meeting, Mrs. Blower presented Mrs. Smith, who is leaving soon for Germany with a going away gift. Mrs. Smith thanked the members.

A pleasant hour was then spent with Mrs. Smith showing some interesting colored slides of different parts of the United States and Canada.

"Lines on Life"

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

Forgive if you cannot forget. This is a lesson which maturity teaches. It is sometimes a costly lesson; a lesson for which many of us pay dearly — sometimes at the price of our happiness.

We are prevented by our pride from doing that which reason would have us do. Our false dignity mocks us, and makes dwarfs of people who could behave much bigger.

Here are two neighbors. They haven't talked to each other for years. By now, they can't even remember the real cause of their estrangement. Yet, neither will be first to say "good morning." Both are cowardly aching to do so; but false pride erects an iron curtain and stifles sound judgment.

Here are a man and a woman, tormented by a hate which is the product of trivia. Harsh words, caustic looks, hurtful remarks: these are the ingredients of a house of woe, unnecessarily destroyeing itself.

Add or multiply examples; they abound heavily on all sides. We could be a lot happier if we uncluttered our hearts and cleaned away some of the cobwebs of suspicion, distrust and skepticism.

Man's mind is a double-edged sword. It remembers the good and it prods him not to forget the good. But too frequently, we "remember too much" — we linger everlong on the hurt that some have caused us, without seeking the healing we need. Too often, we refuse to forget what should be forgotten.

But if we do not forget let us, at least, try to forgive what we cannot forget. Consider Joseph and his brothers. He could not easily forget what his own kin had done to him: he was wronged too deeply ,too early in life. Joseph could not forget and as long as he remained emotionally immature, he could not forgive, either. Then, suddenly, as in a storm, there came an unforgettable emotional experience in his life: All at once he grew up.

He was confronted by his brothers. Now he is in the saddle; and they are the weak pleaders for mercy. He teases them, cajoles them, torments them, He has had his opportunity to strike back at them for all of the childish wrongs they had inflicted upon him in his youth. But suddenly he becomes aware of his own childishness. Now that he has had his play, a mood for forgiveness floods him; he is emancipated from the juvenile spirit of vengeance. He becomes a mature ,forgiving person.

Joseph the slave, hated; Joseph the Viceroy of Egypt, forgave. As we develop inner security, we no longer need to hate. As we grow emotionally we feel safe; we trust ourselves to ourselves! We can grow without seeking our neoghbor's destruction!

DOUBLE CELEBRATION

FRIZZLETON, N.S. (CP)—Mr. and Mrs. David Carmichael celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary the same day their daughter Matilda and her husband marked their 25th anniversary.

Timely Hints On First Aid

OTTAWA — Summer is a time when any parent of young children can look forward to taking care of plenty of cuts, bruises and assorted injuries.

Some of the most common injuries and how to take care for them, are listed by St. John Ambulance, leading teacher of first aid in Canada:

CUTS — Wherever the cut, the important points to remember are "Control of Bleeding" and "Prevention of Infection".

Three simple measures to help control bleeding are: Rest—have the person sit or lie down; Elevate — when possible, raise wounded arm or leg; Pressure — apply direct pressure on the wound with a dressing or clean piece of cloth. Bandage the dressing firmly over the wound. If bleeding not quickly controlled, apply further dressing on top of first and bandage more tightly. Add pressure of palm of hand over dressing.

To Prevent Infection — Do not cough or breathe into wound—have your hands clean — use clean dressing (sterile if possible).

BRUISES — Apply a cold compress of ice wrapped in cotton. This will retard discoloration and swelling.

POISON IVY — Wash the affected area thoroughly with hot water and strong daundry soap and then wash off with rubbing alcohol. Apply calomine lotion.

SUNBURN — Prevention is the best advice as bad cases of sunburn are caused by prolonged exposure. The distress of minor sunburn can usually be relieved by applying cold cream or olive oil. However, if the sunburn seems serious or a very large area is affected, a doctor's advice should be sought.

STINGS — If you can see the sting, remove it using forceps or tweezers or the point of a needle which has been passed through a flame and allowed to cool.

Apply any one of the following — rubbing alcohol, weak ammonia, a solution of bicarbonate of soda or some milk of magnesia. Rubbing alcohol or ammonia should not be used near the eyes.

If the sting is in the mouth — where it can be dangerous — give a mouthwash of bicarbonate of soda (one teaspoonful to a glass of water) and seek medical aid as soon as possible.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Gary B. — Mother should give in.

Cora B. — Why should I cater to her?

• • •

Gary B. — I am trying to make peace in the family between two people who have every reason to be friends.

They are my mother and my aunt. They are both emotional women and have been very close sisters. Both have had serious problems recently and become easily overexcited about things. They had a silly little women's squabble and now they will have little to do with one another. They talk politely at family gatherings, but they never get together by themselves the way they used to.

I feel that my mother, being the older sister, should give in and try to make peace. So far I haven't been able to move her.

• • •

Cora B. — I have always been the one who has had to give in and apologize in any quarrel with my sister. It's true that I'm older, but my sister is also an adult and I can't see why I should go on treating her as if she were 10.

I would be willing to apologize if I felt I had been at fault, but I did nothing to harm Mary. The quarrel broke out when I told her I liked the outfit she was wearing. I said I thought she should always try to dress well. She screamed that I didn't realize how difficult things were for her and how she couldn't afford to dress well on her income.

My life is no picnic either. Why should I cater to her?

• • •

The Council: The peacemaker is seldom appreciated by two individuals who are so emotionally involved they can have serious quarrels. He usually winds up in the middle — attacked from both sides.

The fact is that Cora may now be taking a step in the right direction in her relationship with her sister. If she has ever let herself in for abuse, she has put herself in a wrong position and should step out of it.

We get the impression that Cora has acted as a mother figure to her sister. Mary apparently takes any implied criticism from Cora very seriously. Criticism from someone we do not respect or who has no power over us can usually be sloughed off lightly. The criticism that bites deep is from one who has a strong hold over us for emotional or social reasons.

Mary has apparently fought her sister's emotional hold over her, but she cannot win the fight unless she comes to the full realization that she isn't a child and that Big Sister has no real power over her. It is quite possible that in terms of action, Cora exercises little authority and has little desire for control over her sister.

The victim of repeated abuse must share some responsibility for creating an atmosphere in which such abuse is possible. At heart, Mary may resent her sister for the qualities that have led her on to shame herself by ugly and childish behavior.

The one way out of such a tangle may be to simply cut it apart for a while and let some fresh air in. If there is sincere affection between the sisters, they will eventually find their own path to reconciliation.

Women Seek Equal Pay Law In 3 Provinces

WINNIPEG (CP) — The provincial governments of New Brunswick, Newfoundland and Quebec can expect to be hounded until they adopt equal pay legislation for women.

Reviewing her report as legislation chairman, Mrs. E. Winnifred Gerry of Winnipeg told delegates attending the biennial meeting of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs considerable progress in the recognition of women and their place in society was made at the federal level during the past two years.

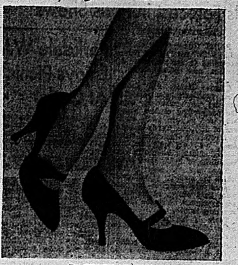
Later in an interview she commended the provincial and federal governments for their assistance in improving the status of women but warned that the clubs in the three provinces which have not passed equal pay legislation "will not relax their efforts to achieve this goal."

Mrs. Gerry said in the interview that women who decline jury duty are causing concern to her committee which pleads for equal rights. In her report, she complimented Ontario for its effective jury act as "the only act of its kind with teeth in it."

SLOT-MACHINE FUEL

LONDON (CP) — In three years' time it may be possible for housewives to buy their coal or smokeless fuel from slot machines, says the National Coal Board. The machines would be placed in the basements of blocks of flats and on street corners.

Elegance Afoot



By TRACY ADRIAN

Here's the perfect accessory for sophisticated evening costumes. It is a suave pump that is elegant understatement to both short and long after-five dresses.

Made of peau de soie, the shoe has a high, narrow heel and a self-fitting instep strap ornamented by a rhinestone-sparkled bow.

NO BREEKS

GLASGOW, Scotland (CP)—Mrs. Jean Roberts, Glasgow's first woman Lord Provost, refuses to wear the traditional uniform of her new appopintment, blue and red trousers. "I will do many a thing but I am darned if I will wear the breeks," she said.

NEED HANKIES

GAINSBOROUGH, England (CP)—The Anglican vicar of this Yorkshire town appealed for 6,000 handkerchiefs. His brother, a missionary in the Solomon Islands, had written that he was trying to teach 300 "sniffling native boys who never heard of handkerchiefs."

Return to Snug Silhouette Is Forecast in Paris Shows

By PEGGY MASSIN

PARIS (Reuters) — Fashions will be "fit" for Fall and Winter, according to ready-to-wear collections now being shown in Paris.

Couture houses and specialized, mass-production designers showing their collections before the pace-setting couture houses, scheduled to open theirs at the end of July, see trends in terms of a return to snug-fitting silhouettes, belted waistlines, and molded midriffs in smooth princess lines or below inset yokes.

These are the basic clothes which the majority of women in France are going to buy and wear next winter, regardless of any revolution which the couturiers may launch.

There is big news in three major silhouettes, interpreted individually by ready-to-wear designers, ranging from the couture "pret a porter" to low-priced manufacturers who chalk up the volume sales in the department stores.

SHIRTWAISTS, TOO

The sheath and the shirtwaist share top honors, with a well-defined fit obtained by belts or molded midriff. It would seem that the cycle of loose-waisted, relaxed fashions is on the ebb although many models compromise by featuring a tight fit at the front contrasted by loose, full-back treatments. Coats and suit jackets as well as dresses interpret this theme.

The third trend-setter will be the princess silhouette, re-adapted in the classic manner with shaping close to the body and modified flare to the skirt. A note to watch, especially in ready-to-wear clothes, is the indication of a lowered waistline, dropped to the hipbones and paired with slender pleated skirts.

Skirt lengths will continue high, with hems ranging anywhere from 16 to 18 inches above the floor. The exaggerated knee-cap length used by the couturiers and now to be seen on Paris streets in full-skirted summer dresses will be lowered this fall.

Hemline interest continues, however, in softly-folded hems, bands of contrasting color which cut the skirt horizontally, or the newest star—the divided culotte skirt, which combines the easy practicality of trousers with the femininity of a skirt, and emerges in sportswear as well as certain formal fashions. It is used by Madeleine de Rauch for a ready-to-wear cocktail dress in supple silk crepe intricately draped in a harem-style trouser skirt.

De Rauch likewise features unusual combinations of fabric in the same costume. Sheer lace bodices or blouses in silk chiffon are paired with rustic tweed suits or dress and jacket ensembles. One such model consists of a black and white tweed sleeveless jumper dress with scooped neckline, which can be worn alone or over an accompanying long-sleeved blouse of sheer, black marquisette.

Parkdale W.I. Enjoys Picnic At Outlet

Despite cloudy skies, two buses left Parkdale community centre Wednesday afternoon with 50 children and 21 adults aboard.

Arriving at the Outlet Beach swimming was enjoyed for an hour.

The convener, Mrs. A. Street, blew her whistle, calling both the children and their mothers to the races. For those that needed persuasion, the candy toss proved very effective.

Rattles were given to the small fry and pails and shovels to the under two's. Races got under way with the first straight race for ages 3 and 4. Every child in this race received a beach ball and the winners and losers were happy.

Boys 5-6 — Michael Burley, Dennis Cone and Rickey Palmer; girls 5-6 — Karen Priest, Robin Barriage and Debbie Wilson; boys 7-9 — Robbie Rolston and Johnny Kilpatrick; girls 7-9 — Kathy Palmer and Susan Robinson; boys 10 - 12— Ronnie Hebden; girls 10-12 — Hazel Miller and Sandra Cone.

The mothers showed their fitness during the ladies' races with Ginny Robinson and Dorothy Palmer winning the straight race.

A wheelbarrow race was next with children over 12 using their hands and the mothers their feet. Dorothy Palmer and Linda showed their team spirit in this race.

The ladies' bean race proved amusing with several losing their breath and their beans before the finish. However, Shirley Barriage and Carolyn Cone, had what it took.

The three - legged race for the boys and their moms saw Bobby Cone and Carolyn hop across the finish line first.

In the balloon race for children and their mothers, Karen Rolston and Lois Brown, won this one.

Boys' race, (any age), saw David Brown, Ronnie Hebden and Johnny Kilpatrick place 1, 2, 3. Girls'(any age), Linda Palmer, Hazel Miller and Sharon Morgan won the final race of the afternoon.

A bountiful picnic supper topped off with ice cream, was enjoyed by all before boarding the buses for the homeward journey.

Special thanks for the successful picnic are due Lil Street, who did an excellent job and to Anna McMillan, and Ella Calles, who helped beforehand.

LOTS TO DO — Resort hotels in the Canadian Rockies provide an ever-popular source of summer jobs for university students. Days off become occasions for hiking, swimming and mountain climbing, and the summer usually yields $400 in salaries and tips for hard-working waitresses, chambermaids, busboys and bellhops. Varsity Students Find Work On Lake Louise Enjoyable

By EDNA BLAKELY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LAKE LOUISE, Alta. (CP) — Some 500 university students who find summer employment in this mountain resort are having the time of their lives and getting paid for it.

At the end of the three-month season, most of the waitresses at the Chateau Lake Louise will have cleared $400 in salaries and tips.

The girls are up at 6:30 in the morning and aren't through with work until 9:30 or 10 p.m. but they have both morning and afternoon breaks and make good use of what spare time they have.

"Sometimes we sleep, but most of us find we don't need as much sleep out here," says Pamela Peake of Charlottetown. The 19-year-old student at Dalhousie University, Halifax, has been working at summer hotels for five years and this is her second year here. She hopes to get her B.A. next year, then become an exchange teacher in Europe.

PLENTY OF DATES

There are plenty of boys for dates, "sometimes too many," the pretty waitress says.

Days off are crammed with hiking, swimming, mountain climbing and hitch - hiking. It's not uncommon for the student employees to travel more than 300 miles on their day off visiting other parts of the 25,000 square mile Banff National Park.

Steak and weiner roasts are held frequently. "It's really wonderful; the boys do all the cooking," says Maxine Slater of Vancouver. Maxine, 22, University of British Columbia student, will teach primary grades in Vancouver next fall.

The recreation club, with membership at $1.50, provides movies and dances twice a week, bingo and a Sunday concert.

STAFF CONCERT

During the season the staff produces a musical show and synchronized swimming demonstration for the guests at the hotel.

Clothes aren't a problem. Uniforms are provided and laundered by the hotel. Slacks and shorts are worn in off duty hours.

"We get dressed up for an occasional dance," says Jenifer Stanley, 21-year-old McGill University student. Jennifer has her B.A. and will take a teacher's training course next term.

The hotel, which sends representatives across Canada each year to arrange for summertime help at universities, provides transportation to the hotel and return, providing the employee doesn't leave in mid-season.

The student help hold a variety of jobs including chamber maids, elevator operators and waitresses as well as busboys and bellhops.

Royal Commission Hearing Briefs on How Montreal Should Be Run in Future

By GEORGE FRAJKOR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — A seemingly never-ending search for a stable, efficient form of government is on again in Montreal where at least a dozen administrative systems have been tried in the last 170 years.

A provincially appointed royal commission headed by municipal Judge Paul E. Champagne now is hearing suggestions on how the city should be run in the future. The commission was ordered by the Union Nationale government to turn in a quick report so that municipal elections due in October might be held under a new system, if one was recommended.

However, the Union Nationale government was defeated by the Liberals in Quebec's general election in June. Liberal Leader Jean Lesage indicated the legislature would not be called into session in time to make any change in Montreal's election system for the October elections.

As a result, city officials began preparations for an election on the basis of the system used since 1940.

LARGE COUNCIL

At present the city has a mayor, elected by property owners and tenants, and a 99-member council. Thirty-three of the councillors are elected by property owners; 33 by property-owners and tenants, and another 33 are appointed by public bodies such as boards of trade, citizens' associations, universities and labor organizations.

The mayor and six councillors chosen by city council form an executive committee, the city's main administrative arm.

So far, a few briefs presented to the commission have defended the partly democratic, partly authoritarian system now in force. But in the main the briefs have said the present 99-man council is too big, that it is clumsy, that it doesn't truly reflect the opinions of taxpayers, and that it contains a bloc of appointed councillors responsible to no one.

There are demands for redistribution of wards, for fewer councillors, for an extended franchise. There have been suggestions that a city manager be appointed to relieve the executive committee of routine chores which prevent it from giving more time to major issues.

In the past, Montreal has tried large councils and small, elected councils and appointed ones, self-rule and provincial rule.

It was in 1787 that a committee of merchants first proposed that Montreal be incorporated and have a city council. They were tired of having the city administered by justices of the peace, whom they charged with inefficiency, corruption and partisanship.

COUNCIL PICKED MAYOR

Not until June 5, 1832, however, was Montreal chartered as a corporation. It was divided into eight wards, each electing two councillors. They picked a mayor among themselves.

The four-year charter lapsed during the troubled, rebellious times of 1836 and renewal was refused. Montreal was turned back to the justices of the peace. In 1840, largely because of the Durham report urging more local responsibility for the colonies, city council was set up again with the governor-general naming 18 councillors and a mayor.

Three years later there was another change. The city was divided into six wards, each of which had two councillors elected by property holders. The councillors then chose six more councillors at large, and a mayor from amongst their own number.

Within 10 years, there had been four different systems. Within the next 10 there were to be another two.

In 1845, the city was divided into three wards, each electing three councillors, and six suburbs, each electing two. This made a 21-man council, and the council elected one of its members mayor.

In 1852, every ward was given the right to elect three members and the mayor was to be elected by the citizens. Charles Wilson thus became Montreal's first popularly-elected mayor.

In 1898, under the administration of Mayor Raymond Prefontaine, a new system was introduced that ended its days in the city's first major disgrace. The city was divided into 17 wards, each electing three members to council, and elections were to be held henceforth every two years instead of three.

Under this system corruption became so open that a royal commission set up to investigate reported in 1909 that from 1892 the city administration had been "saturated with corruption, arising especially from the patronage plague."

Of the city's $5,000,000 budget at that time, the report said, fully 25 per cent went for bribes and malpractice, and of the rest much went for works whose value to the city was dubious.

The report cited factionalism, nepotism and favoritism and specifically named 23 councillors as corrupt. The term "23" became a term of odium, much as, later the number "35" and the term "Board of Control" came to be.

The board of control stemmed directly from the 1909 investigation and at first gave good service. It was an appointed board, which took over many of the administrative duties — particularly spending—of city council. In effect, it was the executive body and council the law-making body.

MORE

By 1918, the board of control had earned a reputation of giving contracts to the highest bidders consistently, and of making sure that the high bidders were friends of the board.

BOARD ABOLISHED

In addition, council was wracked by factional disputes and arguments over redistribution of wards again. Fed up, the provincial government stepped in and abolished the board of control and took over its functions.

From 1918 to 1921, a provincially-appointed commission under Montreal notary E.R. Decary ruled the city, acting as the administrative wing while council made the bylaws.

After cleaning up as best it could, the commission stepped down and the new system of 35 city councillors came into effect. This was to be the last democratic government of Montreal.

The 35-man council chose five of its members to form an executive committe, which acted as its administrative wing. Successive committees embarked on unchecked borrowing sprees.

DEEP IN DEBT

In 1921 Montreal's debt was $119,000,000. In 1930 it was $226,000,000. The depression forced the city to borrow even more, and various unwise deals didn't help. The city borrowed $16,000,000 to buy the Montreal Water and Power Company in 1927, and an expert estimated that the assets the city got were worth $2,000,000.

In 1931, the city's first independent audit showed that what council thought was a $1,600,000 operating surplus was really $1,500,000 deficit.

By 1934, the city debt amounted to one-third the assessed value of property. Montreal owed $300 for every man, woman and child on the island and couldn't possibly raise enough taxes to cover it.

In 1940, the executive committee under the chairmanship of J. M. Savignac announced an operating deficit of $6,500,000 on a year's operation. It also announced that it couldn't pay the interest on its bonds. Montreal banks got together and refused to lend the city any more money.

AVOIDED BLOCS

The provincial government told bond-holders they would be paid, and the Quebec municipal corporation took over administration of Montreal.

The existing 99-member council system was established by a legislature bill sponsored by Senator Telesphore Damien Bouchard.

For four years, council existed but had no real power. Then the Quebec municipal commission stepped aside and Montreal regained its autonomy.

Senator Bouchard said the large council was designed to bring in men who were not professional politicians or ward-heelers. It was made big so that "it is nearly impossible for bribers and schemers to form a bloc large enough to dissipate public funds." What he did not foresee was the advent of political parties.

In council now are the Greater Montreal Rally, headed by Mayor Sarto Fournier, and the Civic Action League, which backed former mayor Jean Drapeau.

BALANCE OF POWER

The Rally elected two members to the executive committee and so did the Civic Action League. Two more members were elected to the committee by the group of appointed councillors.

On contentious issues, Mayor Fournier has to depend on the votes of the two councillors from the appointed group, described by their critics as responsible to no one.

This feature which enables a small group of councillors to wield key votes is one of the main targets of objectors to the present system.

Former mayor Drapeau has suggested to the royal commission that political parties on the municipal level be formally recognized and that city council operate along the lines of Parliament or a legislature.

HEADS COMMISSION

Municipal Judge Paul E. Champagne heads a Quebec royal commission appointed to consider changes in the form of commission was appointed by government for Montreal. The the former Union Nationale government to make recommendations before the October Montreal elections. But election of a Liberal government in June likely will mean there will be no time for a session of the legislature to change the city's administrative system this year. (CP Photo).

Historic CNR Locomotive to Go to Museum

MONTREAL — A historic Canadian National Railways locomotive will be presented to the Canadian Railroad Historical Association July 21 as a contribution to the association's museum.

The presentation will be made by S. F. Dingle, CNR vice-president, operation, to Dr. R. V. V. Nicholls, president of the association, at the CNR's Turcot Yards.

Dr. Nicholls said the locomotive — No. 1165 — would have a place of honor among the relics which the association was collecting for the museum, to be located in the vicinity of Montreal. Fifteen pieces of rolling stock of exceptional historical interest have been collected so far, Dr. Nicholls said, including steam and electric locomotives, railway coaches and tramcars.

No 1165 is a choice museum item because it is a flat-valved ten-wheeler with direct historical links with the era of railroad construction in Canada shortly after the turn of the century. It was one of the most versatile engines to operate over CNR lines. Built in 1912 for O'Brien, MacDougall and O'Gorman, contractors, the 57-foot locomotive was first used on construction duties when the National Transcontinental Railway was being built between Moncton, N.B. and Quebec.

Afterwards, No. 1165 was primarily a branch line locomotive. During her operating life, she had a series of different numbers. Prior to 1920, while operating for the Canadian Government Railways, the locomotive bore number 4529, but this was changed to 1009 when the Canadian National took it over in that year.

In 1957, it was renumbered for the last time and during its final years of service the locomotive operated in both freight and passenger service between the Stellarton and New Glasgow areas of Nova Scotia. It was retired from service with the advent of dieselization.

July 21 was chosen as the date for the presentation because it marks the 124th anniversary of the opening of the first railway in Canada — the Champlain and St. Lawrence — which provided service between Laprairie and St. John, Que. and later became part of the CNR system.

No Protestant Missionaries Harmed in Congo

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

There are about 2,000 Protestant missionaries in the Congo but by Wednesday not one had been harmed, says the Rev. Theodore L. Tucker of the National Council of Churches in New York.

Tucker, who is executive secretary of the Africa committee of the council's division of foreign missions, made his report after rounding up messages coming by cable, shortwave and by telephone to mission board offices, the state department and ham operators along the Atlantic seaboard.

Although none had been harmed, according to the reports, there were at least 200 in trouble. An American physician, Dr. Mark Poole, radioed Washington that 150 Americans, mostly missionaries, are waiting to be evacuated from Luluabourg.

A radio operator at Nairobi in Kenya heard that more than 50 in American missionary families were besieged by Negro soldiers in the town of Aketi, 200 miles north of Stanleyville and had appealed to the White House for rescue.

The Americans at Aketi said they were exhausted and many were without food. They added that they were barricaded in their houses with 11 loyal Congolese and said there were 1,500 rioting rebels in the area.

Tucker said that of the 2,000 were Americans, 500 British and 300 Scandinavians.

DENIES STATEMENT

PRETORIA (Reuters) — Lands Minister Paul Sauer said Tuesday a report that 75 persons were sentenced to death in South Africa at secret trials was "devoid of all truth." He was commenting on a statement made in Birmingham, England, last weekend by David Ennals, deputy chairman of Britain's anti-apartheid committee, at a meeting of the United Nations association.

Ulster Orange Members Stage Twenty Parades

BELFAST (Reuters) — More than 100,000 members of Northern Ireland's staunchly Protestant and loyalist Orange order went on parade Tuesday to renew their pledge of allegiance to the Queen on Orangeman's Day.

At the 20 rally points where the Orangemen assembled with some 500 bands, contingents of police stood by to keep order.

Security precautions in the city were strict. In the side streets, police cars waited ready for the first sign of disturbance to call up reinforcements.

Prime Minister Lord Brookeborough told a rally at Ballinamallard in County Fermanagh:

"We are determined to maintain our unity with Britain and we shall continue to present a wholly united front to those who would destroy our constitution, whether from within or without."

DUBLIN (Reuters) — Work here was held up for 1½ hours Tuesday when dockworkers stopped work in protest against British flags surmounting a crane and tower.

About 100 men refused to work until the flags were removed.

The flags were put in place by crew members of a Northern Ireland ship to mark the July 12 Orangemen's celebrations.

Charge Broadcast Governors Favor Foreign, Paper, PC Applicants for TV Licences

OTTAWA (CP)—The Board of Broadcast Governors underwent a baptism of fire in the Commons Wednesday with reflections on its independence and criticism of its TV licensing recommendations.

The board was given a rough mauling at the hands of Liberal and CCF speakers but Revenue Minister Nowlan, who reports to Parliament on broadcasting matters, entered a spirited defence of the two-year-old regulatory body.

Mr. Nowlan, maintaining that the board is free from political influence of any kind, found himself sharply at odds with opposition speakers on all the following charges:

1. The board's recommendation of licensing TV applicants with non-Canadian financial backing represented a departure from the principle of Canadian ownership of the air waves.

2. The board had made a dangerous departure from previous policy in recommending licensing of a TV station controlled by the Toronto Telegram when there were non-newspaper applicants of equal merit ready to operate a Toronto outlet.

3. Political payoffs to supporters of the Progressive Conservative government seemed implicit in recommendations for the licensing of TV stations at Toronto and Halifax.

Besides these expressed and implied criticisms from Lionel Chevrier (L—Montreal Laurier) and J. W. Pickersgill (L—Bonavista-Twillingate) the broadcasting debate during study of the BBG's 1960-61 spending plans ranged over a variety of related matters.

Among them:

Mr. Pickersgill suggested the government and the board go slow on authorizing the establishment of a private television network to compete with the publicly-owned CBC whose revenues might suffer.

Douglas Fisher (CCF — Port Arthur) called for a "punch on the nose" instead of a slap on the wrist for private broadcasters who break the BBG's broadcasting regulations.

The greatest heat was generated over the Chevrier-Pickersgill criticisms of the BBG.

Mr. Nowlan, contending most of the attacks on the BBG were inspired by innueno and rumors spread by disappointed licence applicants, denied their attack in detail.

He said Mr. Chevrier was misinformed in stating one-third of the ownership of the successful Ottawa applicant—E. L. Bushnell Television Company — was held by Britain's Granada TV network and National Telefilm Associates Incorporated of New York. Mr. Chevrier said he understands that Granada is owned by Canadian publisher Roy Thomson in England.

Mr. Nowlan said the voting-share ownership was 24.9 per cent with non-Canadian interests, below the BBG requirement of no more than 25 per cent foreign ownership.

Mr. Chevrier maintained that if the government licenses the Bushnell applicants and a Halifax group that includes backing from Canastel Broadcasting Corporation—a wholly-owned subsidiary of Associated Television (ATV) of England—the Conservatives will not be heeding their 1957 and 1958 election campaign criticisms of American influence in Canada.

Both he and Mr. Pickersgill repeatedly referred to Conservative connections of those recommended for licensing — Finlay Macdonald of radio station CJCH who is concerned in the Halifax application and the Toronto Telegram in Toronto.

Mr. Nowlan categorically denied their implication of a political payoff, arguing their suggestion wouldn't hold water since unsuccessful applicants in Edmonton and Ottawa included prominent Conservatives — among them M. Grattan O'Leary, president of the Ottawa Journal.

Mr. Pickersgill took particular exception to the Toronto Telegram recommendation which, he said, led to undesirable newspaper control of a second medium of information. He argued the former Liberal government licensed newspapers in the TV field only where no other applicant of equal merit could be found.

Mr. Nowlan agreed that too much newspaper control of information media is undesirable but rejected any suggestion that this should bar newspapers from ever getting TV licences. Furthermore, there was no pattern in the BBG recommendations favoring newspaper applicants.

Mr. Chevrier and Mr. Pickersgill suggested the Ottawa, Halifax and Toronto applicants had said before the BBG hearings on their applications that their licenses were "in the bag."

Mr. Nowlan replied that he knew none of the applicants were in that position and allegations that the licenses were foregone conclusions were unfounded rumors or propaganda spread by disappointed applicants.

During the course of the debate Mr. Nowlan also denied any government interference with either the BBG or the CBC, stating that any government that tried to exercise political control over the CBC would be tossed out of office by the electorate.

Prankish, Childish, Doggish, Democrats' Method Works

LOS ANGELES (CP)—Democracy in the United States has strange ways of expressing itself. Take the Democrats' method of selecting their standard-bearer—wow!

At times they seemed to howl like mad dogs; parade like primitives and perform the pranks of children. And yet somehow the din and ritual made sense.

Through the repeated waves of organized hysteria there seemed to be a determination to fight the imposition of central control; a will to express the freedom of choice.

Not that there was much question Wednesday night of the nominee. Jack Kennedy walked away with the prize in a crushing, first-ballot victory that gave him more votes than even he had expected.

But there were some uneasy moments, especially when Adlai Stevenson's name came up. You could sense the drama building up. Stevenson had a lot of local support. They were mainly in the packed galleries and the streets. But they were well organized and they wanted to be heard.

More than that, they wanted to set off an emotional stampede in the convention arena in the hope that delegates might suddenly change their decisions and vote for Stevenson.

It didn't come off, but there was a moment of peril when Florida Governor Leroy Collins, the convention chairman, protested that the parade was turning into hoodlumism.

"This demonstration must be stopped," he shouted after 27 minutes of placard-waving, parading and shouting. "You are injuring the cause you are seeking by this demonstration. You want his name associated with hoodlumism? Stop the music; stop the band."

Collins might as well have been talking to himself. Converging onto the arena floor from several entrances, the Stevenson fans kept shouting "We want Stevenson, we want Stevenson."

Their shouts and sentiments were echoed in the convention galleries where a big portion of some 10,000 spectators suddenly displayed huge placards that had not been there before.

Collins, in desperation, ordered the lights be dimmed. The howling mob booed in protest. Into their weaving, pushing parade their tossed a huge white globe about six feet in diameter. Made of light material, it was rolled over the heads of delegates. Some didn't see it coming and fell to the floor in surprise as the big ball rolled towards them.

"You are acting like a bunch of hoodlums," shouted Collins above the din. "Boo, boo" was their reply.

It took a 75-year-old woman to help Collins out of what might have become a desperate situation. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, widow of the wartime president, was taken to the rostrum to make her plea on Sevenson's behalf.

It took a cordon of men, with their arms interlocked, to guide Mrs. Roosevelt through the jammed mob. But when Collins appealed to her to help end the parade, a word from her that the aisles be cleared brought the desired result.

GIRL'S BODY FOUND

FRANKLIN, N. H. (AP)—Search for Judith Ames, 17, ended today with the discovery of her body at the foot of a pine tree 150 yards from her home. Medical referee Paul S. Shaw ruled the death suicide by hanging. The girl's belt was around her neck. She had had a disagreement with her boy friend. Her father, Richard Ames, suffered a heart attack at the scene and his condition is listed as fair at hospital.

Pearkes Defends Canada's Defence Research Role

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada is doing as much as physically possible in the field of defence research without wastefully duplicating the work of its allies, the Commons defence expenditures committee was told Wednesday.

This was the summation of Defence Minister Pearkes and Dr. H. M. Barrett, chief of installations for the Defence Research Board, in answer to criticism on both points by opposition members.

Harold Winch (CCF — Vancouver East) expressed fear that Canadian defence research is being duplicated in Britain and the United States, and asked repeatedly what Canada is doing or could do that cannot be done by the richer countries.

Paul Hellyer (L—Toronto Trinity), opposition defence critic, said his fear was the opposite—that Canada is too restricted in its military research and development program. He suggested the DRB may be starved for funds.

Mr. Pearkes said the Defence Research Board's budget was raised this year to $23,900,000 from $21,900,000 last year.

"One of the main reasons we cannot do more is the lack of scientists who are available to us," he said. "We lost a number of them and it has been difficult to get the right type of men into this field."

BIOLOGICAL WARFARE

In reply to Mr. Winch, Mr. Pearkes said that Canada's research in biological and chemical warfare is all on the defensive side . . ." Seeing how to minimize the effects of chemical attack on humans and livestock."

Dr. Barrett said that there were U.S.-U.K.-Canadian meetings every year on chemical warfare research to avoid duplication and "our relations in this field are closer than in any other."

"The work we do in Canada is put in a common pool," he added. "The United States has a $150,000,000 program, with increased emphasis on chemical and biological warfare this year. We have access to all this work going on in the United States in return for our investment of $1,000,000."

Charge Driver Of Motorboat After Fatality

SUDBURY (CP)—Olavi Johannas Kauppi, 33, of Cleland Township, was charged Wednesday with criminal negligence in connection with the drowning Tuesday night of Jacques Richard, 18, of Cornwall.

Richard was drowned in Deer Lake, 15 miles southeast of here, when he was thrown from his rowboat which was struck by a motorboat operated by Kauppi. His body was recovered today.

Chinese Seamen Facing Charge

MONTREAL (CP)—Five Chinese seamen Wednesday pleaded not guilty to assaulting an officer on the British freighter Denmark Hill, disobeying an order and neglecting their duty.

Second officer Nicholas Mappas testified that the seamen attacked him July 8 after ignoring an order he repeated several times as the ship approached a Welland Canal lock. Mappas said he considered it an emergency order.

Translation difficulties slowed the trial and it was adjourned until today.

CCF Member's Praise of CBC For 'Close-Up' Divorce Show Arouses Ire of Pickersgill

OTTAWA (CP)—The CBC did a good job of arousing public opinion by broadcasting a television interview with a woman who claimed to be a professional divorce co-respondent and later denied it, Arnold Peters (CCF — Timiskaming) said in the Commons Wednesday.

Mr. Peters immediately ran into a barrage of criticism from J. W. Pickersgill (L—Bonavista-Twillingate) and Conservative members for what they interpreted was his support of public funds being spent to give publicity to a perjurer or self-confessed but unconvicted criminal.

The woman, 27-year-old Joan Campbell, appeared on the TV program "Close - Up" May 26. Known to the CBC as Mercedes Hunter, the woman was interviewed by June Callwood.

Mr. Peters set off the discussion during consideration of CBC spending estimates by saying some CBC dramatic programs are stupid because they seem to begin nowhere and end nowhere. However, public discussion broadcasts were "very constructive and very well done."

Mr. Peters said he was shocked that Revenue Minister Nowlan, who reports to Parliament for the CBC, would co-operate with Ontario Attorney - General Kelso Roberts in investigating the divorce broadcast. Participants on CBC programs should be protected, he said.

He also said he was surprised that Mr. Roberts claimed he didn't know that professional co-respondents could be hired to act in divorce cases.

Mr. Pickersgill found Mr. Peters' argument "astonishing." The CBC would not get itself into difficulty if it would not put people on the air who "get into trouble with the police," he added.

The interview was "a very grave error in judgment." The CBC should not employ "unconvicted murderers, burglars, thieves or perjurers, to boast of their crimes."

Mr. Peters asked if Mr. Pickersgill wouldn't regard the divorce show as "something in line with newspaper reporters who contact someone outside the law and interview them, and thereby tend to make changes in the status quo of the law."

"I don't agree with anything of the sort," said Mr. Pickersgill. "Newspapers don't have a right to protect people from the law. Everyone has a duty to report infractions of the law. So long as the law is the law. It should be obeyed."

Washington Lawyer Accused Of Handling Brockville Loot

CHICAGO (AP)—A Washington lawyer was accused Wednesday of having conspired with five other men already under indictment in connection with the robbery of the Brockville Trust and Savings Company in 1958.

The lawyer was identified as George Eric Rosden, 52, of Sumner, Md., who has offices in Washington.

James B. Parsons, assistant United States district attorney, said information on which Rosden's indictment was based was turned over to his office by the Swiss government.

He said it marked the first time the Swiss government has supplied U.S. prosecutors the results of a criminal investigation it has conducted in Switzerland.

The new federal indictment results from the May 3, 1958 burglary at Brockville, Ont., when a gang of safecrackers using blow torches took an estimated $3,500,000 in bonds, plus a small quantity of cash and jewelry. Most of the loot was recovered.

The men indicted were accused of helping dispose of the loot.

Besides Rosden, a specialist in international law, the indictment named Norman Rothman, 44, of Miami Beach; William Rabin, 52, head of a Chicago business consulting firm; Sam Mannarino, 63, of New Kensington, Pa., and Guiseppe Cotroni, 37, and Rene Robert, 31, both of Montreal.

Parsons charged that Rosden accompanied Rabin to Switzerland. He contended that Rabin posted bonds stolen in the robbery as collateral for a loan from a Basel bank.

The indictment charges that Rosden knew the bonds were stolen.

SWEPT TO DEATH

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A mother of four was swept to her death Wednesday when a reservoir wall burst and sent a 30-foot wave of water past her home. Mrs. Jean Aber, 39, was caught up in the surging water while working in her yard. The torrent of water carried her several hundred yards down a ravine.

Court to Settle Expropriation Disputes Urged

TORONTO (CP) — A member of the select committee on land expropriation Wednesday recommended establishment of a court to act as arbitrator in settling disputes involving the expropriation of private property.

Nollis Beckett, Progressive Conservative member for Toronto York East, suggested the appointment of a county court judge to settle compensation claims.

The judge, appointed by the federal government, would be impartial in his decision and independent of politics, Mr. Beckett said.

Allan Grossman, Progressive Conservative member for Toronto St. Andrew, said the 11-member committee might also consider the possibility of a special tribunal to handle the entire matter of expropriation, including compensation to be awarded.

But Charles W. Yates, general municipal counsel for the municipal affairs department, argued present expropriation legislation provides sufficient safeguards for the public.

CAN GO TO COURT

He said a person always has access to the courts as a last resort.

The committee is meeting at Queen's Park to discuss provincial legislation dealing with expropriation and a bill called the Land Compensation Act 1960, introduced during the last session of the legislature by Attorney-General Roberts.

J. D. Millar, deputy minister of public works said the bill as drafted would not provide a sound basis for use by his department.

He said the bill's provision for a six-month notice of expropriation would handicap the work of the department. Present 60-day notice under the Public Works Act was a sufficient length of notice.

He also objected to a section of the bill giving the land owner one year in which to claim "injuries affection" when his land is expropriated.

Mr. Millar said the six-months provision under the Public Works Act was sufficient.

The bill also provides payment of 50 per cent of the settlement before the department can secure possession, but in many cases when early possession is required there has not been sufficient time or opportunity to properly determine the amount of compensation.

A. M. Snider of Waterloo, chairman of the Ontario Water Resources Commission, said the OWRC has always paid a fair price for the land it expropriates for water and sewage projects.

Judges Age Limit Petition Altered by Defiant Senate As Safeguard to Autonomy

OTTAWA (CP) — A defiant Senate turned down Wednesday night the government's proposal to petition the United Kingdom Parliament for an age limit of 75 on county, district and Superior Court judges.

It fundamentally altered the government - sponsored resolution by striking out all references to district and county judges. In so doing the predominantly Liberal upper house presented the government with what most observers agreed was a most embarrassing problem.

One informed source said the administration had been placed "in an invidious and untenable position" by the unprecedented Senate action. The resolution has already been passed by the Commons.

The resolution called on the British Parliament to write into the British North America Act a provision that judges of the three courts must retire at 75. A parade of Liberal senators attacked it as a retrograde step damaging to Canadian autonomy.

They argued that Canada already had the power to retire district and county court judges at 75. It had been doing this under the Judges Act of 1913.

The government, on the other hand, felt there was some question as to the validity of the age limit as set out in the Judges Act. Justice Minister Fulton has said the provinces agreed to the course of action proposed by the government.

Senator David Croll (L—Ontario), who proposed the amendment, said: "The doubtful Thomases in the justice department must not be allowed to write our constitution."

He termed the resolution "a backward and retrograde step into the realm of colonialism."

There was no immediate indication what action, if any, the government might take to reconcile the two resolutions. As matters now stand, Westminster is asked to enact two quite different constitutional amendments.

One source said the government may accept the Senate amendment and change its Commons resolution to conform. The government's main objective was to have the judges of the three courts retire at 75.

There was widespread agreement, however, that for the government to do this would be to accept a humiliating defeat.

In the Senate, the amendment passed without a dissenting voice from the Conservative side. When the resolution as amended came up for decision, it passed with some Liberals shouting "on division." The party standing in the 102-member upper house is Liberals 73, Conservatives 23, Independents 2, Independent Liberals 1, vacancies 3.

One of the objections raised by the Liberals was that the proposed resolution was a breach of contract with Superior Court judges now on the bench. They had accepted their appointments on the understanding they hold them during good behavior, which in effect means of life.

However, Liberal Leader W. Ross Macdonald said he agreed that all Superior Court judges should step down at 75.

He argued that, if the government had doubts about the constitutional validity of the present practice, it should ask the Supreme Court of Canada for a ruling on retirement of county and district court judges.

A constitutional authority said that as an alternative to submitting a revised resolution to the Commons, the government might ask the Senate for a conference to consider ways of reconciling the two positions.

Kennedys Were Behind John In Battle for Nomination

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Kennedy clan—three generations of it—went to bat with money, sweat and stamina to get Senator John F. Kennedy the Democratic presidential nomination that he won Wednesday night on the first ballot.

Their team spirit got its start on the playing fields of Harvard. They found it could score for them in politics, too.

Alongside Jack were Kennedys ranging from his multi-millionaire father, Joseph P. Kennedy to the family's 16 grandchildren.

His wife, mother and sisters presided at political teas and receptions, shook thousands of hands.

Seventy - one-year-old Joe Kennedy, whose major ambition is to see his son president, kept out of the campaign front line and made no public speeches.

Joe Kennedy served as U.S. ambassador to Britain in the days of Munich and Hitler, and is still tagged with an isolationist label from those early war days when he tried to keep the U.S. out of the war "unless we are attacked."

He was called an appeaser, a charge he said was "false and malicious."

Though he later lashed out at Nazi brutality and persecution, Kennedy said in 1938 dictators and democratic countries, instead of hammering away at each other, should try to establish good relations. "We have to live together in the same world, whether we like it or not," he said.

Eight years ago, when son Jack launched his Senate career, father Joe tried to sever the cords of political inheritance.

Joe Kennedy declared he was "in complete disagreement with his son" on foreign policy. "I couldn't possibly have a worse argument with anyone about foreign policy than I have had with my son," he added.

The driving ambition of presidential candidate Kennedy doubtless comes from his Irish-Catholic father. Brought up in a moderately well-to-do Boston family, Joe Kennedy set out to be a millionaire by the time he was 35—and succeeded far ahead of schedule.

Today, Joe Kennedy's wealth, derived from banking, liquor, the motion picture industry, shipping and wall street interests, has been estimated in the tens of millions.

The Kennedy family, including all those married into it, are a tight-knit group. They are devout Roman Catholics. Cardinals have officiated at their weddings.

Success at a youthful age seems to be a family pattern.

President of a Boston bank at age 25, Joe Kennedy Sr. said: "it's no crime to be young."

Now his son Jack, at 43 one of the youngest presidential nominees in history, is fighting the stigma of a youthful appearance in seeking a venerated office.

Croll's Credit Cost Bill Wins Support From Women

OTTAWA (CP) — The ladies—consumers and welfare workers—are rallying behind Senator David Croll and his bill to have the cost of credit buying clearly disclosed.

Women from the Canadian Welfare Council and the Canadian Association of Consumers swept into the Senate banking committee Wednesday to tell the senators how much they liked Senator Croll's bill.

The Ontario Liberal senator has proposed legislation which would force finance companies, retail stores, dealers and others to disclose in writing the total dollar cost of all finance charges on instalment buying as well as the simple annual interest rate—or face criminal charges.

While the women asked the senators to favor the bill, the Canadian Retail Federation lambasted its provision for setting out the percentage cost as "confusing, perhaps deceptive and very possibly inaccurate." A Canadian Chamber of Commerce brief said the proposal would thereby increase business costs.

Mrs. D. L. Ross of Montreal, chairman of the family and child welfare division of the Canadian Welfare Council, told the senators of broken homes, nervous breakdowns, ill-fed children—all largely caused by families up to their necks in debt, she said.

"We believe it is their right to have full information about what their total indebtedness will be, and that the costs should be expressed in simple terms which they can understand," she said.

A Retail Federation spokesman called in Frederick P. Varcoe, former deputy minister of justice, to give a legal view on the bill.

Mr. Varcoe said he thought it was not within Parliament's competence — that Canadian courts would invalidate the law if it was passed.

The committee decided to hear more from Mr. Varcoe later.

now you know how far SIMCA goes on a gallon of gas

Here's the fact-backed report!

Much of the current mileage talk can be misleading to the average driver. Because most people do as much city and suburban driving as turnpike and highway. To get the facts and to give you realistic figures, Simca was tested under actual driving conditions.

THE SIMCA MILEAGE MARATHON

With USAC supervision, ten separate mileage runs were recently completed including a healthy portion of city driving at the start and end of each of the different runs. Results are tabulated below.

WHAT DO THE FIGURES PROVE?

Certainly they prove the Simca Marathon the biggest, most meaningful mileage test ever run on an imported car in North America. And they support the basic point that mileage varies with actual driving conditions. They also prove that, other factors being equal, Simca gets a good deal more out of a gallon of gas than most other automobiles. It's no accident, of course. Simca is designed for this kind of performance.

WHAT PRICE MILEAGE?

True, a few economy imports deliver equal or better mileage but at a tremendous sacrifice in room, comfort and handling. Simca is a 4-door, 5-passenger sedan. It has a 50 horsepower engine. It's heavier, huskier, and has more pep than most of its competitors. People tell us it rides better, too. Test drive Simca yourself and see!

SIMCA MILEAGE MARATHON

2,826.44 total miles. 45.7 average miles per Imperial gallon from point to point. (39.9 average miles per Imperial gallon in city travel.)

FREE pamphlet gives you all the details. Get your copy now from one of the Simca dealers listed below. Then prove for yourself the economy you can expect realistically from Simca!

Homers Spark Juniors Win Over Cannifton

By PETER CARVER

Bill Moxon's two homers, one a grand slam and circuit blasts by Gary Goyer and Jack Elliott paved the way for the Belleville Juniors' 11-4 victory over Cannifton last night.

The Juniors clinched the game with five runs in the opening stanza. They scored three more in the third, one in the fourth, and added two in the seventh. The losers scored pairs of runs in the first and sixth.

Glenn Dainard set Cannifton down on three hits, striking out three and walking five over the seven inning route.

Ron Masterson started for Cannifton, allowing five hits. O'Connor came on in the third and was also touched for five base knocks. They walked three and whiffed four.

Elliott on base by an error scored on Soden's fielder's choice in the first. Goyer's double, a walk and an error set the stage for Moxon's grand-slammer. Two walks and Forsythe's double gave the Clippers back two runs in their half of the first.

Mavety singled and then Soden got on by a fielder's choice. Both scored on Moxon's second homer to open up a 7-2 Belleville lead in the third.

Jack Elliott smashed out a homer to account for the Juniors' run in the fourth.

Goyer's homer and two extra-base hits in the seventh finished the Belleville scoring.

Don Forsythe with a homer and a double and Cole with a single were the Cannifton hitters.

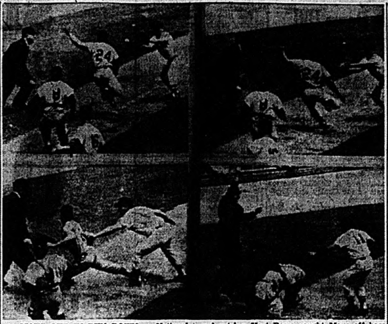
PLAYER RETURNS

CALGARY (CP) — Canadian guard Ron Allbright, who walked out of the Calgary Stampeders training camp one week ago, Wednesday rejoined the Western Interprovincial Football Union club. His reason for returning to the fold was as mysterious as that for his departure last Tuesday but general manager Jim Finks said "The coaches were happy to have him and no questions were asked."



MAYS OUT IN RUN DOWN — National League runner Willie Mays is shown during first inning of All-Star game yesterday when he was tagged out in run down between third base and home plate. American League third baseman Frank Malzone made the tag as he and catcher Yogi Berra caught Mays off base in attempted double steal. Umpire is Tom Gorman. No. 16 is pitcher Whitey Ford. Malzone was given credit for the out and an assist along with Berra on the play. (AP Wirephoto).

Weslock Leads Pack

'Amateur' Has Field of 64

LONDON (CP) — Sixty - four golfers were to tee off at the Sunningdale Golf Club here today in the first round of match play in the Ontario amateur golf championships.

Nick Weslock, Ontario Open and Ontario Amateur champ three times each, Wednesday stroked a five-under-par 67 to lead 146 golfers in a qualifying medal round for the 64 places.

A match round this morning was to narrow the number of competitors to 32 and another this afternoon was to bring that number down to 16. Two more rounds will leave four players teeing off Saturday morning and the final will be that afternoon.

Weslock, who plays out of the Mississauga club, Port Credit, was to meet L. A. Molner, a Brantford golfer who shot a 75 Wednesday, at 9:51 a.m. today.

Next to Weslock Wednesday was Jack Kenney of London with a 69, followed by Phil Brownlee, 19, of Toronto with a 70.

FOUR TIE FOR THIRD

Third place was shared by four golfers with par 72s — Tom Pendlebury, Windsor, Bill Hall, London, and Gary Cowan and Bruce Castator, both of Toronto.

Cut - off point for qualifiers Wednesday was 78 and 12 golfers played an extra hole to cull the four competitors for whom there were places in the allotted 64.

Bill Morland of North Bay, Mike Kane, 16, of Windsor, Merle Noyes of Port Credit, David Lee of Hamilton and Harry van Diepen of London received 73s. So did two Toronto boys, Rod McLeod and K. V. Taylor.

Other respected players on the course today include Bob Panasiuk of Windsor, the defending champion, Mike Krowchuk of Welland, Norman Goldman of Toronto and Bill Parkes of Woodstock. They all shot 74.

Also likely to liven things up are Tom Woodall of Toronto, Ken Doig of London and Sam Balsom of Welland, who shot 75s, Bob Rose of Toronto, who had 76, and Dave Morland of North Bay had a 77.

Cowan plays Balsom in the opening match at 8:15 a.m.

OPEN NEW POOL

MONTREAL (CP) — A giant oyster - shaped swimming pool, part of Montreal's multi-million sports centre project at Maisonneuve Park, opened Wednesday. Of Olympic dimensions, the indoor swimming pool has seating facilities for 1,200 persons and dressing rooms for 125 men and 125 women.

Name Willingdon Golf Team

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Ontario's Willingdon Cup golf team this year will consist of Gary Cowan, Toronto, Jack Kenney, Woodstock, Nick Weslock, Toronto, and probably, Merle Noyes, Port Colborne.

They earned their places on the team by having the lowest total scores at the 72-hole Ontario Open championship and the 18-hole qualifying round for the Ontario amateur championship here Wednesday.

Noyes, with a 371 total, has the highest score of the four and will be displaced by the Ontario amateur champion if the champion is not already on the team.

Low scorer on the team is Cowan, whose 72 Wednesday gave him a 358 total. Kenney, with a 69 Wednesday, and Weslock with a 67 both have totals of 367.

Weslock's hot round eased Welland's Mike Krowchuk out of fourth place on the team and nudged Noyes away from a safe third-place berth.

Before Wednesday's round, Krowchuk had 299 open points to Weslock's 300. Had Weslock's score soared Wednesday, Krowchuk and North Bay's Bill Morland would have been tied for fourth place in the standings with 373 strokes. Morland shot a 73 Wednesday.

Kenney and Noyes, if the latter stays on the team, will be newcomers to Willingdon Cup competition, scheduled for Ottawa Aug. 13.

League Approves Havana Switch

NEW YORK (AP)—The International League unanimously approved the transfer of the Havana baseball club to Jersey City at a meeting Wednesday.

The league also approved the formation of a corporation to operate the club in its new home.

The Havana team moved to Jersey City last weekend by league president Frank Shaughnessy of Montreal because of the political unrest in Cuba.

All clubs in the eight - team circuit except Toronto were represented.

City Commercial Softball Results

Belle Cleaners increased their Commercial league lead last night with a 5-0 victory over Jones Motors behind the two-hit pitching of Doug Ellis.

Ellis struck out three and did not walk a batter in his neat two-hit performance.

"Bunk" Young also threw well for Jones, allowing seven hits. He fanned two and walked only one.

Belle scored single runs in the first, fifth and sixth and wrapped it up with back-to-back home runs by Larry Potter and Frank "Shiner" Murray in the seventh.

Potter collected a double and his homer while "Shiner" Murray homered, Leo St. Denis and Dan Dafoe doubled, Doug Murray and Jack "Deacon" Whiting singled.

Stan Creeggan and "Bunk" Young solved Ellis' slants for one base-hit apiece.

Pete Rademacher Made Pro Debut In World Match

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The pencilled sign at the top of a dingy, narrow stairway above a Toronto west end poolroom advised visitors it would cost them 25 cents to watch "today's workout." There were no customers.

The only spectators were free-loading newspaper men, photographers and matchmaker Jack (Deacon) Allen, who peered over thick-lensed glasses at a cheap egg-timer and at three-minute intervals barked "go" or "that's it."

The temperature in the sweat-smelling room was about 95 degrees and prancing around like a punch-drunk pug was 31-year-old Pete Rademacher. He was alternately ducking, weaving, feinting and throwing punches at an imaginary opponent, skipping rope and whaling furiously at a punching bag.

On Monday night at Maple Leaf Stadium people will pay up to $5.50 to watch him fight Canadian heavyweight champion George Chuvalo of Toronto. But on this hot, muggy afternoon hundreds of persons sauntered by the Parkdale Athletic Club without even glancing at the headquarters of the fight mob.

FLOORED CHAMP

They probably didn't realize what they were missing for only two bits. Inside was a chap unique in the fight game. Rademacher is the only fist fighter in history to make his pro debut in a world championship bout.

The statistics of that 1957 fight in Seattle are in the record book. Rademacher had Champion Floyd Paterson on the seat of his pants in the second round and at 2:57 of the sixth the referee had reached the 10-count while Rademacher was on his back.

It marked the end of one of the biggest mismatches of the century, a setup for Paterson, and a pretty good payday for Rademacher, the 1956 Olympic champion who had formed a corporation called Unlimited Enterprises. The idea was to promote Rademacher into a title fight.

ONLY THE BEST

"The question before us was simple," almost-bald Rademacher said in an interview. "I wasn't going to fight just anybody. It had to be a title go. Should I go for a shot against Archie Moore, the aged light-heavy champ, or young Paterson, the king of the heavies?

"I was in between the two in age. Paterson was nearer my age, so I got in touch with his manager, Cus D'Amato, and he went for it.

"Then I got promoter Jack Hurley interested. At first he thought I was kidding, but when I told him he had a day to think it over, he didn't waste any time. He must have got in touch with D'Amato, because he called me back within an hour and said he would promote it."

Fans ridiculed the match and newspaper men panned it, but that didn't bother Rademacher. "I took up journalism at the University of Washington and I knew they had to write what they did."

Since that fight, the 200-pound six-foot-one Rademacher has met 10 others and has a record of seven victories, three losses and one draw. He refused to say how much he has won fighting, but whatever it is it's mostly his, and he isn't likely to end up walking on his heels in skid row.

Unlike other boxers, he hasn't a manager, trainer or anyone else cutting in on his purses.

"It's all mine. And I'll tell you one thing. This game pays better than being vice-president of a corporation. So, I'm not complaining."

Rademacher, you see, was vice-president of Unlimited Enterprises.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Us ole National Leaguers ain't had so much fun since grandpaw hid grandmaw's store teeth and every time she'd go to say something she'd bump her nose with her chin.

Monday the National Leaguers parboiled the junior varsity in that 100-degree Kansas City heat where you could pick roasted corn off the stalks, turned 'em over when they were done and fricassee'd 'em in sedate Yankee Stadium yesterday.

The citizenry of the Bronx whooped it up whenever an American Leaguer showed signs of life, but the real guffaws came from the Coogan's Bluffers and the Flatbush Faithful.

To them it was not so much a National League team shellacking an American League squad as the ghosts of the "Jints" as Der Maxie is wont to say, and the Dodgers whomping the bejabers out of the hated Yankees.

The powerful National League "rockets" blasted off again from baseball's Cape Canaveral in Gotham, and four of them went into orbit in the faraway places.

And Casey Stengel's "M" for Murder twins, Mantle and Maris couldn't be charged with even attempted assault. They with 19 other American Leaguers "died" on the runways as potent National hurlers snuffed out the punch at the plate or allowed no-damage hits.

"Say-Hey" Willie Mays gets the "M" for murder mantle. Willie blasted out six clouts in the two classics, one a homer in yesterday's whitewash. And an accolade to Stan the Man Musial who also orbited a fast homer pitch for a record-breaking nineteen hits in all-star games. And sharing retirement glory was Ted Williams, who hot-blasted a single in this swan-song epic.

"Say-Hey" Willie, you will remember, was the hero of the first all-star game last year. The Nationals won that one 5-4 when Willie blasted out a triple that sent over the winning run. Yogi Berra won the second tilt for the Americans with a mighty homer.

Stan the Man Musial's four-bagger recalls the all-star game of 1955. It was in Milwaukee, a thriller that went into the twelfth inning with the score tied at five-all. The first batter in the home half was Musial. Stan, like Berra, is a friendly cuss. Both are given to conversation.

"Howya doin', Yogi?" asked Stan.

"My feet are killin' me," said Yogi.

"Don't worry," said Stan comfortingly, "I'll get both of us out of here in a hurry."

He hit the first pitch into the right field bleachers for the home run that won the game. Always a thoughtful guy, that Musial.

One of the most spectacular blasts of all occurred in Detroit in 1941. The Nationals had the game all tucked away 5-3 with two out in the ninth. The next man walked and the next scratched out a hit.

Then Ted Williams strode to the plate. He crashed a thunderous blast off the top of the right-field pavilion to win it 7-5.

Some years later a reporter was talking to the umpire who worked behind the plate when Williams hit his game-winning four-bagger. The conversation worked around to Ted's mighty clout.

"As soon as Ted swung," dreamily said His Nibs, a "neutral," "I knew WE had won the ball game."

Defeat Trenton 7-2

Bobcats Take Over Top Spot

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Trenton Halloran's, after leading the league since the second week of the schedule, had one bad inning last night and it cost them first place in the Belleville and District softball league.

The Bobcats, after blowing their chance Tuesday night, made up for it in last night's tilt with seven runs in the sixth inning to overcome a 2-0 Trenton lead for a key 7-2 triumph.

Trenton jumped into a 2-0 lead in the third frame and with Gord Maroney hurling good ball appeared well on their way until the sixth.

A base-on-balls to Doug Hull started the trouble. Faulkner lined a single to centre and Mitts booted it allowing both runners to score for a tie game.

Batchelor was also safe on an error, and Cousins singled, followed by a throwing error for a 3-2 score. Hayden was thrown out at first but Brown hit a long drive near the left field foul line that Don Cole let go, apparently thinking it was foul. The ball dropped fair for a two-run homer and a 5-2 Bobcat lead. Little walked and Crawford's blast went for a home run.

Bobby Hunter, who hurled his fifth victory in as many starts, stopped the VW's over the remainder.

Hunter gave up six hits in all, striking out four and passing one.

Maroney stayed the route for Trenton, tagged for eight hits, whiffing half a dozen and walking four.

Three Trenton hits led to both their runs in the third. Don Cole and Defosse beat out bunt singles with none out and an error on the second sent one run home. Maroney singled and Drake's long fly plated the second run.

Floyd Crawford with a home run, his third of the year, a single and a walk, paced the winners' at the plate. "Wiener" Brown homered, Denny Hayden tripled and one-baggers went to Bert Faulkner, Doug Hull, Johnny Batchelor and Earl Cousins.

Doug Alexander hit a triple and a single for the losers. Harry Wickson, Don Cole, Ralph Defosse and Gord Maroney added singles.

Mays Sparks Nationals To 6-0 Victory

Musial, 'Ted' Out in Glory

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP) — They'll be talking about the second all-star game for years to come.

Not so much because the Nationals won 6-0, for an unprecedented sweep of the two-year-old two-game midsummer set.

Not so much because for the second time in three days was the victory credited to a Pittsburgh pitcher. Bob Friend won in Kansas City Monday and Vernon Law in New York Wednesday.

Not so much because National manager Walter Alston accomplished within 10 months a grand slam in baseball by winning a pennant, a world series and two all-star games, or because in losing, American manager Al Lopez suffered his sixth all-star loss, two as a player, one as a coach and three as a manager.

The 38,362 paying customers in Yankee Stadium will long remember the second 1960 all-star because of the heroics of three players who belong on any all-star team in any generation—Willie Mays, Stan Musial and Ted Williams.

HOMER AND TWO SINGLES

Willie the magnificent, back "home" in New York where he last played in 1957, smashed a single and a home run off New York southpaw Whitey Ford and another single off Detroit righthander Frank Lary. The San Francisco special also stole a base. In centrefield, Willie was his magnificent self, making four putouts. He made a 425-foot smash by Mickey Mantle look easy.

Mays, who also cracked three hits in the Monday game, now shows a .438 all-star average on 14 hits in 32 at bats.

The only person not excited about Mays' performance was Willie himself.

"Can't let it go to my head," he said. "When I find myself feeling good about something I done, I remember that next day could be a bad one. And man, I have had some bad ones."

At a nearby cubicle in the winning team's clubhouse was another smiling player — the ageless Musial.

FELT LIKE A HOMER

"You know," he was saying, "I really had a feeling I was going to hit a homer, I can't explain why you feel that way. But you do."

Stan, at 39, and playing in his 19th all-star game, was referring to the home run he hit as a pinch hitter, off Gerry Staley of Chicago in the seventh inning. It was a long smash into the third deckin right field and the fans gave him an ovation he will long remember.

The blow extended a flock of Musial records — most homers (6) most hits (19), most at bats (57), most total bases (39), and tied for most runs scored (11).

"Gosh," he said happily, "this is my 19th all-star game. Why, I don't think some of those kids out there playing with me are 19 years old." (Actually, Baltimore's Ronnie Hansen, at 22, was the youngest).

WILLIAMS PLEASES FANS

Ted Williams, the 41-year-old Boston Red Sox slugger, didn't disappoint the fans, either. He slashed a hard single to right as a pinch hitter in the bottom half of the seventh. It was one of the eight hits given up by six National League pitchers.

Williams who, like Musial, is playing his last year, has 14 hits, which includes four home runs, 12 runs batted in and 10 runs scored in 18 all-star appearances.

The only American Leaguer with more than one hit was Hansen. The rookie shortstop had two singles.

The other National League homers were hit by Milwaukee's Eddie Mathews and St. Louis' Ken Boyer.

Law, who retired the last two AL batters in the first game, allowed only one hit in the two innings he worked. Johnny Podres and Stan Williams of Los Angeles, Larry Jackson and Lindy McDaniel of St. Louis and Bill Henry of Cincinnati, also collaborated in the shut-out.

The best showing of any of the five American League pitchers was made by Early Wynn, Chicago's 40-year-old righthander. He retired six straight batters in the two innings he worked.

The National used 26 players, a record, and the American—21.

The American League's all-star games margin over the National has been narrowed to 16-13.

Played Yesterday

Power Says Bet Was Joke

NEW YORK (AP)—Vic Power, the Cleveland first baseman who was too sick to play in Monday's first all-star game, played Wednesday after a conference with baseball commissioner Ford Frick.

Power, whom American League manager Al Lopez intended to use in the late innings in the first game, laughed off a $100 bet he was reported to have made with a Cleveland radio announcer. Power was said to have wagered that he would not play in the Monday game at Kansas City, won by the National League 5-3.

In reference to the bet, Frick said Power "told me essentially the same thing about it being a joke. As far as I know, it appears the boy is in the clear, but I don't want to comment further until I've talked to the announcer."

Both Frick and Joe Cronin, American League president, said they had discussed the matter with Lopez.

Power, who complained of having dizzy spells at Kansas City, said "I feel better," Wednesday.

He took over at first base for Bill Skowron in the sixth inning.

Haddix, Spahn Start "Half"

PITTSBURGH (CP) — Harvey Haddix, the little Pittsburgh lefthander who pitched 12 perfect innings and still couldn't beat Milwaukee a year ago, opens the second half of the 1960 season tonight shooting for his fifth victory in a row against the Braves.

Milwaukee, five games behind the front-running Pirates in the National League, counters with its ace lefty, Warren Spahn, a fellow who used to beat the Pirates as regularly as the Braves once beat Haddix.

The game here is the only one scheduled for the day after the second all-star game in New York.

Rangers Will Train There

Pros Place Franchise In Kitchener

KITCHENER (CP) — Arrangements were completed Wednesday to place the Trois-Rivieres, Que., franchise of the Eastern Professional Hockey League in this city for the 1960-61 season.

Agreement on the terms of operation were reached at a meeting between a special committee of the Kitchener Auditorium Commission and a three-man group from the EPHL.

Ratification by both the league executive and the auditorium commission is still necessary, but expected to be only a formality and completed at today's regular commission meeting.

The EPHL ratification will be made at a meeting in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., this weekend.

MEMBERS AT MEETING

Present at the meeting to represent the EPHL were Ed Houston, league president, Murray (Muzz) Patrick of New York Rangers and Ken Reardon of Montreal Canadiens. Representing the auditorium commission were J. W. Scott, commission chairman, H. J. Ball, Michael Walters and H. M. (Bob) Crosby, auditorium manager.

Trois-Rivieres Lions are sponsored by the National League Rangers.

Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, who played last season in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series and represented Canada at the Winter Olympics, announced last week they are suspending operations temporarily.

Patrick said Wednesday the Rangers will shift their training camp from Niagara Falls, Ont., to this city. They will begin training Sept. 7.

Als Trim Roster

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes of Big Four Football Union Wednesday trimmed two American imports and four Canadians from their roster after studying movies of Monday's intra-squad game.

Halfback George Feiss, who played with a United States army team, and guard Harvey Stewart of Richmond, Va., were the imports dropped while homebrew Eddie Simms and Stan Fraser, both of Montreal, and Walt Sopinka of Stoney Creek and tackle Harold Catt of St. Thomas also got the axe.

Leafs Defeat Bisons Twice, Royals Split

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs found a couple of shortcuts in taking a bead on the International League pennant this year.

One is the combination of timely hitting and top pitching. The other seems to be the ability to beat their closest rivals, Buffalo Bisons.

Leafs captured their 11th victory in 15 games against the Bisons Wednesday night with a 3-2 and 2-0 doubleheader sweep that was highlighted by timely hitting and air-tight pitching. The wins boosted Leafs to an 11½-game lead over the second-place Bisons.

Miami Marlins handed Jersey City its second straight loss, 2-0, since the former Havana team moved its franchise.

Kent Hunt's grand-slam home run powered Richmond Virginians to a 4-0 victory over Columbus Jets while Montreal Royals and Rochester Red Wings split a doubleheader. Rochester won the first game 6-0 and the Royals took the nightcap 5-4.

Toronto scored two runs in the first inning of each game and added the clincher in the fourth inning of the opener against losing pitcher Hank Mason. Home runs by Sparky Anderson and Don Dillard got the first two home for winner Bob Chakales, who needed relief help from Pat Scantlebury before nailing down the opener.

Rip Coleman held Buffalo to four hits in the nightcap as loser Al Neiger paved his own downfall with an error that allowed the first run to score.

GRAND-SLAMMER

Art Ceccarelli was the beneficiary of Hunt's grand-slammer in winning his fifth in eight decisions. Jim Umbricht lost.

Fred Valentine's single with two men on base scored one Miami run and the second ran across when Jersey outfielder Jim Pendleton allowed the ball to go through his legs. Mike Cuellar was the loser and Bunky Stewart won.

Cal Browning held Montreal to three hits in the opener with Billy Harrell's homer leading the way against loser Bill Kunkel. Ralph Mauriello, with relief from four others hurlers, beat the Wings in the nightcap as the Royals chipped in with 10 hits. Gene Oliver and Jim Frey homered for the Red Wings. Dean Stone was the loser.

East Dominates Swim Meet

By AL VICKERY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP) — Eastern swimmers are dominating the 1960 open Canadian swimming and diving championships and Olympic trials at suburban Fort Garry's open-air pool.

Cameron Grout of Montreal and Sara Barber of Brantford have won three titles apiece. Steve Rabinovitch of Montreal has captured two championships, while Tom Verth of Toronto has taken three, Grout and Rabinovitch also were on the Quebec section team which won the men's 400 - metre medley relay.

Diver Ernie Meissner of Kitchener gave the East another crown when he swept the three-metre springboard event.

British Columbia women are making a game fight of the East-West battle at the three - day championships, which end tonight with selection of the 10-member Canadian Olympic swimming and diving team.

WINS DIVING

Irene MacDonald of Kelowna, B.C., won the women's diving title, Judy McHale of Vancouver the 100-metre breaststroke, Katy Campbell of Vancouver the 100-metre freestyle and Marg Iwasaki of Vancouver the 100 - metre medley relay for women.

Bill Slater of Vancouver is the one westerner to win a title in the men's division, swimming to the 1,500-metre freestyle championship.

Grout won the 100 - metre butterfly Wednesday night to add to his triumphs in the 200-metre freestyle and 400-metre individual medley. Miss Barber took the 200-metre backstroke after winning the 200-metre freestyle and 400-metre individual medley Tuesday.

Grout's and Miss Barber's times in the finals Wednesday night were slower than their record performances in afternoon heats.

Grout turned in a time of 1:01.5 in winning his butterfly heat, which Olympic team coach John Foulkner of the University of Western Ontario described as "approaching world standards."

BREAKS WORLD MARK

Miss Barber, 18, established a Canadian record in her afternoon backstroke heat as she was clocked in 1:11.2, which also was two-tenths of a second better than the existing world record for the 100-metre event. While Canada will recognize the record, it will not go into the world books as such marks must be set in pools at least 50 metres long. The Fort Garry pool is 25 metres.

Rabinovitch made it two straight in men's breaststroke events, winning the 200-metre in a record 2:42.3 Wednesday night on the heels of his 100-metre triumph the previous night.

Verth swam to a record 4:31.5 in the men's 400-metre freestyle final as he outdistanced Bill Slater of Vancouver.

Pair Plays For Cup, Cash

WINNIPEG (CP)—Al Balding of Toronto and Alan Johnston of Montreal will play off for the Rivermead Cup when they compete in the first 18 holes of the 54 - hole Canadian Professional Golfers Association tournament at the Niakwa course here Aug. 4-6.

CPGA tournament officials announced Wednesday night that Balding and Johnston, who tied with low score for Canadians in the Open at Toronto last week, will use the first 18 holes of the Niakwa championship as a playoff to break the deadlock. If they still are tied after 18 they will go into a sudden-death playoff.

At stake is $300 for the winner and $200 for the loser.

Total prize money for the CPGA is $8,500, with $5,000 representing the actual tournament jackpot and $3,500 the all-expense trip for the two leading players to join the Caribbean circuit where $41,000 is at stake.

Pat Culhane Nosed Out In Ladies' Open

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Roma Neundorf, Shirley Woodley, Joan Riddell, all of Toronto, and Mrs. C. McCarter of Lambton, advanced Wednesday to the semi-final round in the Ontario ladies' amateur open golf championship here.

Miss Neundorf won 2 and 1 over Sue Hilton, 16, of London Hunt, who upset defending champion Gail Harvey of Scarborough Tuesday.

Mrs. McCarter defeated Katherine Cartwright of Cataraqui 4 and 2. Miss Woodley won easily, 5 and 4, over Mrs. Lionel Ross of Cobourg and Miss Riddell defeated Mrs. B. Morris, Oakdale, 2 and 1.

In first-flight matches, Mrs. Eddy Creed of Oakdale, defeated Mrs. Alex Winter of Oakdale 3 and 2; Miss Marion Merritt of Aurora scored a 3-and-2 victory over Mrs. N. J. Carlson of Rosedale; Mrs. S. J. Williamson, Peterborough, defeated Miss Betty Gilbert, Islington, 2 up; and Mrs. George Ough, Barrie, defeated Mrs. Pat Culhane, Napanee, on the 19th.

Semi-final matches will be held today and a 36-hole final Friday.

Student of Schmeling

German Says He'll KO Archie in Seven

By JOSEPH CLARK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—When Archie Moore enters the Varsity Stadium ring here Aug. 8 he will be defending his world's-light heavyweight championship title against two men.

Archie will see just one contender—Erich Schoeppner, 28, for two years light heavyweight champion of Europe.

The second boxer will be there only in influence. He is Max Schmeling, last German to hold a major world boxing crown.

Schmeling was heavyweight champion and one of the few men to defeat Joe Louis. He retired too early for Schoeppner to see him fight. But this new German contender, ranked second among the world's light-heavies, has studied Schmeling's career and dreams of repeating it.

Schoeppner predicts he will knock out Moore in the seventh round and win the title Moore has held since 1952.

Schoeppner has been boxing 13 years, starting while still a high school student in Germany. He fought 279 amateur bouts throughout Europe, including performances which placed him sixth in the 1952 Olympics boxing competition, where heavyweight Floyd Patterson and Ingemar Johansson fought. As an amateur, he lost only 15 fights.

Since turning professional in early 1956, Schoeppner has been undefeated. Three of his fights were draws; 12 he won by decision; 16 by knockout.

This is Schoeppner's first professional fight outside Germany. His manager, Walter Irwin, is Germany's biggest boxing promoter, and has kept his top-drawing protege at home. A chance at the world title, and a $50,000 guarantee, drew them to Toronto.

Fighting in a foreign land unnerves neither Schoeppner nor his manager. In halting and English, and calling frequently on an interpreter, Erich claims "it is all the same."

But the German challenger is disappointed with his training camp site, set on the paved parking lot of a Toronto shopping plaza.

"A circus," Irwin calls it, "for publicity."

If he wins, Schoeppner says he will give Moore a rematch in Toronto. He says Toronto promoter Dave Rush gave him the chance at the title and he will repay Rush with the return bout.

Schoeppner has one other plan. He hopes to meet Floyd Patterson in a heavyweight championship ring.

May Televise Moore Fight

TORONTO (CP)—Dave Rush, co-promoter of the Archie Moore-Erich Schoeppner world heavyweight fight, said Wednesday night he expects the ABC television network will have a sponsor for the Aug. 8 bout by Friday.

Rush blamed the Democratic party convention in Los Angeles for the delay in signing the TV fight contract.

Rush, associated with Humbert J. Fugazy of New York in promoting the fight for Feature Sports, said the signing was delayed also by a financial hassle between ABC and Feature Sports.

The package deal for transmission of the fight, originally put at $351,000, was reduced to $287,000 following weekend conferences here and in New York with Lester M. Melitz, producer of ABC's Wednesday night fights.

The promoter said ABC had been unable to concentrate on finding a sponsor for the fight because it was too busy finding a sponsor for the Democratic convention.

He entered radio in 1953 with station CJOR, Vancouver, after working as a newspaper man in London, England, and Vancouver. Now with station CKNW, New Westminster, his trademarks are bluntness, sarcasm and a rich Scottish accent. (CP Photo).

Jack Webster Is Radio's Watchdog on B.C. Politics

By BOB TRIMBEE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP) — "Many people complain I'm never polite," says Jack Webster, 43-year-old Glasgow - born radio commentator.

"Well, there are enough people being polite. You have to work at being hard-hitting."

Webster stands out even in a city noted for its blunt newspaper and radio personalities.

Aggressive former labor reporter and city editor of the Vancouver Sun, Webster today is a radio commentator with thousands of listeners following his daily editorial discourses.

NOTED FOR SARCASM

His trademarks are sarcasm, pointed questions aimed at government, civic and police officials and a rich Glasgow accent which has prompted a columnist to describe his programs as "foreign language broadcasts."

"As a commentator I have two objectives," says Webster, a former London newspaper man and onetime city editor of The Daily Sketch. "I put the spotlight on what I consider government dishonesty and keep watch on police tactics which I consider questionable.

"I'm not shy about embarrassing public officials. . . . I've also proved that people will listen to private radio in Canada if we are aggressive enough."

Born in a Glasgow tenement, Webster quit school at 17 for newspaper work. After service with various Scottish and English newspapers and five years as a British Army officer in North Africa during the Second World War, he moved with his family to Vancouver and joined The Sun as a labor reporter.

UNION SCANDAL

In 1948 he uncovered corruption within the Vancouver local of the International Woodworkers of America. He obtained copies of financial statements which showed $235,000 had been taken from the union's strike fund.

Aided by Bill Mahoney, now Canadian head of the United Steelworkers of America (CLC), sent here by the old Canadian Congress of Labor to eliminate Communist influence in the IWA, Webster wrote daily accounts of the IWA's activities. The result was a wholesale shakeup of the local's executive and elimination of the Communists.

Conflict with the Sun's management underscored his entry into private radio. He joined CJOR as news editor in 1953.

His radio "break" was the Tupper royal commission investigation into Vancouver police department corruption. Webster broadcast more than 1,500,000 words on the hearing and as a result won the Ohio State University award for top radio regional news reporting.

HAS FREE HAND

Today Webster broadcasts 30 programs weekly for CKNW New Westminster, working as much as 60 hours a week gathering material. He never misses a press conference.

"I have a free hand in my work. It's got to be that way, otherwise I wouldn't enjoy my work."

A favorite with listeners are his caustic interviews with politicians, entertainers and businessmen visiting the city.

"I throw in comments during these interviews and leave it up to my guests to deny any implications. Two provincial cabinet ministers refuse to talk to me now because of this practice."

NO POLITICAL TIES

They are Attorney - General Robert Bonner and Highways Minister Phil Gaglardi.

"Mr. Bonner hasn't spoken to me since I said he was not fit for his office because of his disgraceful handling of the Robert Sommers case. And Mr. Gaglardi accused me of distorting his statement in an interview on government immorality."

All three political parties in opposition to the Social Credit government have approached Webster to run as a candidate.

"I'm not a politician," says Webster. "If I ran and lost I would then only be a defeated politician and my comments would ring hollow."

Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC (CP)—The draw for the first two singles matches of the first round of the North American Davis Cup tied between Canada and the United States will be made today, some 24 hours before the start of play on the clay courts of the Civil Employees Tennis Club.

Players for Saturday's doubles match will be named by team captains at least one hour before start of play. Two other singles matches are scheduled Sunday.

U.S. team captain David Freed of Salt Lake City, Utah, indicated Wednesday he may go with veterans Bernard (Tut) Bartzen of Dallas, Tex., and Barry MacKay of Dayton, Ohio, in the opening singles. Vicenzo Wins French Open In Hot Finish

PARIS (AP) — Roberto De-Vicenzo of Mexico overhauled a six-stroke lead by Bill Johnston of Provo, Utah, Wednesday and won his second French open golf championship in a blazing finish with 275.

Johnston finished tied for second place with big-hitting Leopoldo Ruiz of Argentina at 278, three strokes back.

DeVicenzo cut three strokes off the lead with a morning round of 68. He collared the pace-setters early in the afternoon and finished three shots ahead on a last round 65.

The husky transplanted Argentine, now a teaching pro in Mexico City, nailed nine birdies in his spectacular final tour of the 6,714 - yard, par-72 St. Cloud course.

Peter Thomson of Australia, who seized the lead from Johnston at the 54-hole mark, also faltered in the stretch. He tied for fourth with Sebastian Miguel of Spain, who shot 72-69—279.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Friday, July 15

General tendencies: Now you have a fine day and evening to forget all of those tensions with usual authorities and contacts who are about you and who seem to be in a bad humor today, and to seek those schools of thought and standpoints which can bring you a far greater insight into modern ways of lif. and how you can personally expand into greater success.

Aries (March 21 to April 19)—Steer clear of that powerful person today and concentrate upon untried outlets and methods, new friends so that you can be successful upon the merit of own efforts alone. But you must be more broad-minded to get the very best results.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20)—If you follow the advice of a new and seemingly affluent individual, you could get into quite a bit of hot water now. Consult with that fine and experienced advisor instead so that you can advance steadily and surely.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21)—Be sure you confer with that practical and loyal associate today and show your loyalty in some tangible way. Steer clear of that calculating and crafty adviser since he, or she is not working to your best interests.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Avoid pessimistic and depressing partner now and co-operate with hard-working co-workers who also have some excellent suggestions to offer. P.M. get clothing in good order and take treatments to improve your health. Become dynamic.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Attend to only the most necessary duties today and this evening so that you may go out and enjoy the company of charming and interesting personalities. Seek some new environment that will enliven your spirits. Be happy.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)—You are tempted to be extravagant in order to amuse yourself today, but it would be far wiser to spend the money on more practical and important things. This will be highly appreciated by family ties, too. Be wise.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)—An early start is very wise today, especially where business affairs are concerned, shopping and the like. P.M. be with intimates with whom you can thoroughly enjoy yourself.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—Take particular care while out driving and avoid possible accident. Also, think before you speak. You may lose a valuable contract. P.M. handle all money matters with extreme care, caution.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Instead of using today's time simply going over old accounts, take advantage of fine aspects by deliberating upon new and untried outlets that have promise. Also any latent talents. P.M. go out socially, meet fine people.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)—Since you are not thinking very clearly now, it would be wise to consult with good advisors or friends. They may have just the information you need. P.M. fine for romantic leanings. Be gentle and courteous.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)—A secret anxiety could keep you at home or away from the persons and activities that could be most helpful to you, if you permit. Put it behind you and then full speed ahead. P.M. go out socially and make new contacts.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20)—Get away early from that depressing person who is full of self-pity. This is something that could be quite contagious and ruin your day. Much is to be accomplished in the outside, busy world. Be charming and courteous with everyone.

If your child is born today—he, or she, will have such a jolly nature that persons of sombre, serious disposition will always be avoided. And it is very likely that the greatest success can come by working in foreign countries so be sure you give as thorough an education as possible without neglecting the foreign tongues, different philosophies and economics. A fine mixer here.

Flashback in History

50 Years Ago Radio Helped Track Down Doctor Wanted In Grisly British Murder

CP FLASHBACK

Written for The Canadian Press

By H.H. GORDON

Fifty years ago a transatlantic chase brought about the arrest of an American doctor sought for one of the most grisly murders in London's history.

It marked the first use of radio in tracking down a criminal since Guglielmo Marconi first received signals from England in Newfoundland in 1901.

Front-page reports of the cat-and-mouse drama excited readers on two continents. Its climax landed unsuspecting Hawley Harvey Crippen and his paramour, shy Ethel Le Neve, in the arms of a Scotland Yard officer on July 31, 1910, at the little pilot station at Father Point, near Rimouski, Que.

Wireless crackled between British, Canadian and United States ports and ships at sea to set the trap. But the lovers, masquerading as father and son, walked the decks of the CPR liner Montrose, unaware that their identity had been virtually established shortly after the ship left Antwerp for Quebec City.

FOUND HUMAN REMAINS

Crippen, London manager for Munyon's Remedies, an American patent medicine firm, was wanted for the murder of his Brooklyn-born wife Cora, known in British vaudeville as Belle Elmore. She had disappeared the previous January, but the manhunt and the headlines did not start until mid-July when police found parts of a human body buried in the couple's home in London's Camden Town.

Meanwhile, Captain Henry George Kendall of the Montrose became suspicious of two passengers listed as John Philo Robinson and his son, John George Robinson, after the ship left Antwerp July 20. In the Belgian port he had read reports of the killing and descriptions of Crippen and Miss Le Neve. Kendall decided that Robinson and son, his only English-speaking second-class passengers, were the wanted pair.

He sent a lengthy report to Scotland Yard and as a result Chief Inspector Walter Dew set out in pursuit, leaving July 23 on the fast White Star liner Laurentic. The ship was scheduled to arrive at Father Point a day ahead of the Montrose.

WIDE COVERAGE

Forty newspaper men converged on the St. Lawrence River village to give the world the story of the arrest of the little homeopathic doctor and his attractive mistress and the subsequent extradition proceedings at Quebec City.

The prisoners were taken back to England Aug. 20. Interest in the case was maintained at a high pitch from the time Dew made his gruesome discovery until Crippen was found guilty of murder Oct. 21 and sentenced to death.

Crippen was born in Coldwater, Mich., in 1862, was educated at the University of Michigan and earned his MD at Cleveland Homeopathic Hospital. He later obtained a diploma as an eye, ear, nose and throat specialist at New York Ophthalmic Hospital.

From 1885 to 1897 he practised in many cities in the United States. He married Charlotte Bell in San Diego, Calif., in 1897 but she died four years later and he went to New York. There he married 19-year-old Cora Turner. Her real name was Kunigunde Mackamotski—her father was a Russian Pole and her mother German.

WIFE PROMINENT

The Crippens lived 10 years in London. Their social life was largely confined to the music-hall set in which Mrs. Crippen was a flamboyant figure although she was a failure as a variety artist.

Her husband was little more than a spectator in the semi-bohemian life she adopted but he appeared content to enjoy the attention his extravagant wife attracted.

They moved to 39 Hilldrop Crescent in 1905. Gradually Crippen's affection waned in the face of his wife's inordinate vanity and her interest in other men. But while life in the home was sordid and quarrelsome, they kept up an appearance of happy domesticity.

It was about this time that Crippen's liaison with Ethel Le Neve developed. She was a typist for a dental concern with offices in Albion House, Oxford Street, where Munyon's Remedies was located.

SECRET MEETINGS

At first they held secret daytime rendezvous at London hotels but following Mrs. Crippen's disappearance they were frequently together in public.

In March, Miss Le Neve quit her job and went to live with Crippen at Hilldrop Crescent. When she was seen wearing expensive jewels and furs known to have been prized by Mrs. Crippen, friends of the missing woman went to the police.

They were suspicious of the 48-year-old doctor's explanation that his wife had died while on a visit to California but the first search produced no evidence of foul play. Crippen told the inspector his 35-year-old wife had left him for another man and to avoid scandal he had invented the story of her death.

Inspector Dew mulled too long over this story and when he decided on July 13 to continue the investigation, the doctor and the 27-year-old typist had made a clean getaway.

CAPTAIN SUSPICIOUS

Further search of the house revealed human remains under the cellar floor.

The crime created a sensation. The police, accused of blundering in failing to keep Crippen under surveillance, ran into a storm of public criticism. Warrants for the arrest of the missing pair were issued July 16 and descriptions circulated.

Capt. Kendall became suspicious because "Mr. Robinson" was unduly affectionate toward his son; "Master Robinson" rarely spoke; his table manners were ladylike and a safety pin secured a tuck in the back of his ill-fitting trousers; the pair had only one small bag; they were always together and reticent toward other passengers. The height of his passenger — five-foot-three—tallied with the description of Crippen.

A day after Kendall reported to Scotland Yard, word leaked out and, while the Montrose steamed westward, Canadian, American and British newspaper men jammed the little hamlet of Father Point.

DRESSED AS PILOT

The arrest was dramatic in its simplicity.

"Good morning Dr. Crippen, I am Chief Inspector Dew," said the Scotland Yard officer, who wore a pilot's coat.

"Good morning Mr. Dew," was the reply.

But when a Canadian police official stepped forward and said, "I arrest you in the name of the king," Crippen snatched the warrant from his hand.

"Murder and mutilation," he muttered. "My God!"

Then he recovered himself. To onlookers it seemed that the weight of months of suspense had been lifted.

"I am more than satisfied," he said to Inspector Dew, at the same time protesting his innocence. "The anxiety has been too awful."

Miss Le Neve collapsed in her cabin and required medical assistance.

SENSATIONAL TRIAL

The pair was taken to Quebec City. In jail pending his return to England, Crippen was detached and cool.

Provided with women's clothes, Miss Le Neve—her real name was Ethel Neave—was distraught for some days after her arrest but finally regained her composure.

At a jury trial before Lord Chief Justice Alberstone in London's Old Bailey, the Crown declared Crippen had killed his wife by giving her a large dose of hyoscin, a powerful narcotic poison.

A crowded courtroom was shocked when R.D. Muir, a top criminal prosecutor, told how the body had been skilfully dissected. The head, limbs, bones and sex organs were missing from the cellar grave and the Crown was unable to say how they were disposed of. One theory was that the job was done in a bath and the missing parts burned.

Spectators gasped, but the prisoner was unmoved, as pieces of skin, preserved in formalin were passed around in a soup - plate for inspection.

HAD BOUGHT POISON

A. A. Tobin for the defence called experts who testified that nothing had been advanced to prove the remains were those of a woman, least of all those of Mrs. Crippen. They claimed that the alkaloid in the remains might not have been a vegetable alkaloid such as hyoscin introduced into the body during life, but an animal alkaloid produced by putrefaction in a dead body.

It was brought out that Crippen had ordered five grains of hyoscin not long before his wife disappeared. A half grain would be a lethal dose.

Late in the four-day trial the prosecution produced some damning evidence—a portion of a pyjama jacket found with the remains. It was identified as similar to several pair Crippen had bought in 1909.

Crippen was hanged in Pentonville Prison, London, Nov. 23 after the death sentence had been appealed unsuccessfully before the Court of Criminal Appeal.

Ethel Le Neve, charged with being an accessory after the fact, was found not guilty before Lord Alverstone. She swore she had no knowledge of the murder.

The man responsible for capture of the pair, Capt. Kendall, was prominent again nearly four years later. He commanded the Empress of Ireland which went down near Rimouski May 29, 1914, with loss of 1,012 lives. The big liner was in collision with the Norwegian collier Storstad and only 465 survived.

After serving with the Royal Navy in the First World War he became the CPR's marine superintendent in London. He retired in 1939 and now lives in Orpington, Kent. He is 86.

MURDER VICTIM—This is Cora Crippen, Brooklyn-born actress in British vaudeville who was the victim in a grisly murder 50 years ago for which her husband was hanged. Parts of her poisoned and cut-up body were found in her London, England, home six months after she was reported missing. Her husband and his mistress were arrested in Quebec in July, 1910, after stepping from a transatlantic liner. The captain was instrumental in tipping Scotland Yard police by wireless radio on the identity of his two passengers. (CP Photo).

DEMOCRATIC TICKET — Here's the Democratic presidential ticket, Senator John F. Kennedy in the No. 1 spot and Senator Lyndon B. Johnson as his running mate, as they posed together late yesterday in the convention headquarters hotel in Los Anegels. Kennedy, chosen to head the ticket at the Democratic national convention designated Johnson as the man he wanted to run with him. (AP Wirephoto).

To Dismay of Some Northern Liberals, Kennedy Picks Johnson as Running Mate

LOS ANGELES (CP) — To the surprise and dismay of some northern liberals, presidential nominee John Kennedy picked Senator Lyndon Johnson, a powerful southern conservative, as his running mate in the November general election.

There were rumblings and a few cries of "double-cross," but the Democratic national convention — without a formal vote—accepted Johnson, the man who fought Kennedy for the party's presidential nomination and lost.

"We have resolved our differences," the wealthy Texas rancher remarked Thursday night as he was led to the convention rostrum to receive the acclaim of the delegates as the party's vice-presidential candidate.

APPEASEMENT BID

The decision, frowned upon by party leaders in such states as Michigan, Minnesota and California, had all the appearance of a bid by Kennedy to appease dissident southern Democrats who backed Johnson almost right down the line for the presidency and lost.

Southern Democrats were angered by the strong civil rights plank adopted by the convention and they felt that Kennedy, a northern liberal and a Roman Catholic, would be committed to enforcing its promises of lifting restrictions against the rights of the Negro in the South.

This situation, the southerners felt, would cost Kennedy a lot of votes in the November balloting.

Initially, Johnson was reported to be reluctant to accept the No. 2 post because he already has tremendous power in the government as majority leader in the Senate. But he finally agreed.

Kennedy formally accepts the Democratic presidential nomination to night. He could placate the liberals bemoaning his endorsement of Johnson as his running mate with a liberal acceptance speech and the choice of this dissenting group to succeed Paul M. Butler as the party's national chairman.

Senator Henry M. Jackson of Washington was tabbed as a leading candidate for Butler's job.

There was one report, quickly denied by both the Kennedy and Johnson camps, that Johnson was chosen at his own insistence. The report came from John S. Knight, publisher of the Knight newspaper group in the U.S., in a copyrighted story he wrote for his newspapers.

Johnson, as Senate majority leader, has been a target for Americans for Democratic Action (ADA), the liberal appendage of the party. He has been criticized by chairman Butler for ignoring the recommendations of the Democratic advisory council.

Governor G. Mennen Williams of Michigan, a pre-convention supporter of Kennedy, said his delegation feels the nomination of Johnson was "a mistake."

Robert R. Nathan, head of the District of Columbia delegation and an ADA leader, wanted to put up the name of Governor Orville L. Freeman of Minnesota to oppose Johnson in a floor vote. But Freeman scotched that.

California and Wisconsin delegates complained about the choice of Johnson but the convention wasn't in a mood to challenge any request Kennedy made.

Civil Servants' Strike in India Losing Support

LONDON (CP)—The strike of Indian civil servants, though marked by violence in some areas, was reported today to be losing support.

Published reports in Britain and diplomatic messages to India House here indicated the labor unrest is most pronounced in the industrial cities of Bombay and Calcutta. The centre of government in New Delhi is practically unaffected. Communications with London have not been disturbed.

Indian sources in London said Prime Minister Nehru is in a strong position. There is no feeling here that the strike poses any immediate threat to his administration.

The Daily Telegraph, in a dispatch from New Delhi today, says the strike shows signs of petering out in many places.

Other British newspapers have given little space to the dispute.

FEW INCIDENTS

Scattered incidents were reported across the country during the week. Trains were stoned in many centres, railway services were disrupted in the Calcutta area and work in railway yards around Bombay was temporarily paralysed.

The strike call is sponsored by the Praja (People's Socialist Party), with encouragement from Communists.

It is understood here that the main grievance is the extremely low salary paid to civil servants, particularly in the junior grades.

Indian officials say the salary scales were set by a pay commission, taking into account costs and prices. Nehru is reluctant to allow general increases without consulting the commission.

Cool Weather Over Weekend

TORONTO (CP) — Weekend weather outlook for Southern Ontario, reported by the weather office:

The dry cool air that arrived in Southern Ontario Thursday is warming up under sunny skies so that afternoon temperatures today and Saturday will range in the upper 70s with some localities touching the 80-degree mark. Another wave of cool air from Hudson Bay region is spreading into Northern Ontario and present indications are for this cool air to edge into the lower lakes region Saturday night. A few widely scattered showers or thundershowers are likely late Saturday with the arrival of the cool air. Prpspects for Sunday are for considerable cloudiness and cooler temperatures.

Bearded Canadian Gate-Crasher Made Whoopee Like Any Delegate

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Take it from a Canadian who knows—gate crashing at political conventions is easy.

"Just look as if you belong—and yell louder than anyone," is the advice of beatnik-bearded Les Cohen, 19, who hitchhiked here from his home in Timmins, Ont., at a cost of $2.56.

Cohen had no trouble getting into the sports arena, where the Democratic national convention was held. The trick, he said today with a touch of justifiable pride, was whooping it up with delegates on the convention floor.

"That's where all the fun was," Cohen said. "It was like a circus."

When Cohen arrived here, dusty but determined, he quickly signed up with any candidate who'd provide a button, placard and — if possible—a ticket to the arena.

Once inside, he joined up with any mob waiting to stage a demonstration and then—chanting and shouting with the others—marched triumphantly onto the closely-guarded floor.

"Lyndon B. Johnson had the noisiest," Cohen said, "but I like the Adlai Stevenson bunch best—the people were friendlier."

When the demonstrators were cleared from the floor, Cohen remained. Sometimes he ducked into an unoccupied seat of a delegate. Once he hid for a time under a canvas-covered television platform. Several times he was thrown out.

"But I'd always get back in by joining up with another demonstration," said Cohen modestly.

When the demonstrations ended, Cohen took out his flash-equipped box camera and sneaked past guards by pretending to be a press photographer.

Thursday night was the toughest to sneak onto the floor, said Cohen. But when all the hollering and hoopla ended, there was Cohen sitting in the New York delegation's section.

Appropriately, he was wearing a "Kennedy" straw hat, a "Johnson" button and was waving a large sign reading "A time for greatness."

Cohen already is mapping plans for the Republican convention in Chicago July 25. Rubbing his black chin whiskers, he said:

"With this beard they'll think I'm Abraham Lincoln."

Today's Chuckle

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis:—Sunny skies with near seasonal temperatures prevail over southern and central Ontario. Over the northern portions there are cloudy skies and some showers or thunderstorms. This is in association with a mass of cold air which has pushed into northern Ontario. The cold air will spread southward during today and Saturday accompanied by some clouds and showers and by late Saturday all of Ontario will be cooler.

UN Advance Guard Leaves Palestine for Congo Duty

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) The United Nations hurried a 22-man advance guard including Canadians to the Congo today and assembled an international African military force to help restore order in the chaotic African republic, newly-independent from Belgium.

Maj.-Gen. Carl Carlsson von Hirn of Sweden, since 1958 head of the UN truce supervision organization in Palestine, leaves his Jerusalem headquarters by plane today to become commander of the new military force.

Going south with him were five radio technicians, five security guards and 11 military observers to serve as advisers and instructors to the mutinous, 25,000-man Congolese army, now in revolt against its Belgian officers.

Diplomats here said the observers were officers of the truce organization from Canada, Denmark, New Zealand, Norway and Sweden.

UN Undersecretary Ralph J. Bunche told a press conference in Leopoldville he expected four battalions — perhaps 2,400 soldiers — to be in the Congo early next week. The first of these was expected by Saturday.

The UN called for 17 French-speaking volunteers from its headquarters security force to go to Leopoldville to guard Bunche, an American Negro. The first four volunteers included two Negroes from Trinidad.

UN Secretary - General Dag Hammarskjold also asked the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain, India and Italy to transport the troops and supply food to meet a shortage in Leopoldville.

The U.S. already had offered such assistance, and President Eisenhower approved the airlift of 300 tons of American surplus food to the Congo from stocks in Europe.

The Soviet delegate to the UN Arkady A. Sobolev told reporters he had passed Hammarskjold's request to his government and hoped it would be "considered sympathetically." The Soviet Union has refused to contribute to the support of the other UN military force, keeping peace between the Egyptians and Israel, terming it an illegal organization.

Diplomatic sources said Hammarskjold asked Britain for the use of a big airfield at Kano, Nigeria, as the main staging area for the UN troops. They said the request was under consideration in London and in Lagos, the Nigerian capital.

Tells Committee Govt. Bill Could Hinder Hydro Growth

TORONTO (CP)—The Hydro-Electric Power Commission Thursday urged the re-drafting of a government bill designed to make uniform the procedures for determining compensation in land expropriations.

Harry Hustler, Hydro's director of property, told the 11-member select committee on land expropriation meeting at Queen's Park that the legislation, if passed, could hinder Hydro's growth across Ontario.

The bill calls for an expropriating body to file surveys and various forms and other lengthy procedures. Mr. Hustler said Hydro had to start many of its work projects on short notice.

The Land Compensation Act 1960, being studied by the committee before debate in the legislature this November, might be interpreted in such a way that Hydro would lose some of its special authority and power, Mr. Hustler said.

He said the bill might result in a single land owner being able to delay the installation of a short power line into a farm or summer cottage property. Some 8,000 of these lines were installed last year.

Lorne McDonald, general counsel for Hydro, said Hydro has special powers that permit it to acquire lands for transmission and distribution line purposes. Such authority, when exercised, is not termed expropriation.

"We submit that the spirit and tone of the act . . . appears to be founded upon the premise that land is taken suddenly, without notice, and much to the surprise of the owner," Mr. McDonald said.

"Almost invariably the owner . . . is fully aware not only of the fact that his land is to be taken but, as a result of friendly negotiations, of what he may expect approximately to receive by way of compensation."

Mr. McDonald said a tribunal should be established to determine compensation in cases of actual expropriation.

Earlier, Allan Grossman, Progressive Conservative member for Toronto St. Andrew, said it would be wise to study the possibility of the establishment of one expropriating body to work for all government departments.

"In the old days a man's home was his castle . . . but not today," said Hollis Beckett, Progressive Conservative member for Toronto York East. "There are too many public bodies with too much power."

The Liquor Control Board of Ontario is an example of an agency with "the widest of powers," he said. The board can expropriate property without even giving the owner proper notice.

James Abra, assistant comptroller for the liquor board, said the agency has had powers to expropriate since 1946 but has never exercised them.

Federal-Provincial Parley On Taxes Will Start Monday

OTTAWA (CP) — Provincial premiers will sit down with Prime Minister Diefenbaker here on Monday, July 25, to stake their claims to more cash from the federal treasury.

Whether they will succeed — and to what extent—remain unanswered questions as the federal government prepares for the first round of talkes to hammer out new tax - sharing arrangements to take effect in 1962.

Finance Minister Fleming, who will be a key figure in the critical conference of heads of governments, has left the impression in his Commons statements that Ottawa will listen first to what the premiers have to say.

It wouldn't be in keeping with the purpose of this conference, he said Monday, for the federal government to submit "firm and definite proposals."

The three-day conference July 25-27 will be followed by one, and possibly two, other meetings later this year. Government aim is to have the tax-sharing issue settled in time for legislation next year, well ahead of the expiry of the present tax agreements on March 31, 1962.

Will Never Produce Scheme For Disarmament

TORONTO (CP)—The United Nations will never produce an acceptable scheme for nuclear disarmament, Sir Lesie Munro of New Zealand said Thursday.

Sir Leslie, special representative for the General Assembly on the Hungarian question, said it "is absurd to expect that the United Nations can produce a scheme of disarmament which will be acceptable to the Western great powers, the Soviet Union and Communist China."

This was especially true because Russia, in spite of all its protestations, refuses really to grapple with the vital questions of control and inspection, he told the first anual congress on outdoor advertising.

"When Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev refers the disarmament problem to the United Nations," he said, "he knows perfectly well that he is embarking on a propaganda exercise which he hopes will, at least, blind the vision of many neutralist countries."

GREEN WANTS CLOSE TIES WITH LATIN AMERICA

Hemisphere Outlook Is Urged in Commons

OTTAWA (CP) — Fresh evidence that Canada is becoming more hemisphere - minded than perhaps ever before came from the House of Commons Thursday.

External Affairs Minister Green, piloting his 1960-61 departmental estimates through the House, said Canada would be wise to develop more of a western hemisphere outlook.

Latin-American nations were developing very rapidly. By 2,000 AD there would be many millions more people south of the Rio Grande than there are north of it.

"All the nations there are very anxious to work more closely with Canada and I suggest that Canada would be wise to develop a western hemisphere outlook to a much greater extent than . . . at the present time."

It was the strongest of a series of statements by the external affairs minister on the need for closer ties with Latin America. Mr. Green visited a number of countries in South America in May.

ASKS OAS STAND

Paul Martin (L—Essex East), who followed Mr. Green in the debate, demanded a clear - cut statement on whether the government intends to lead Canada into the Organization of American States.

The minister avoided direct reference to this question in his own remarks, simply noting that a Canadian observer will attend the next meeting of the OAS at Quito, Ecuador, next winter.

This will mark the first such step by Canada with regard to OAS, which binds together the U.S. and all 20 Latin-American republics in the promotion of hemispheric co-operation. Canada has a standing invitation to join the grouping.

Mr. Martin also suggested that Canada should offer its good offices to try to smooth the present tense relations between the United States and Cuba.

The U.S.-Cuba dispute affected everybody in the Americas, and "could easily affect the balance of our position in the world vis-a-vis the Soviet Union."

WANTS MEMBERSHIP

Heath Macquarrie (PC—Queens) went even further than Mr. Martin. He had called for Canada's immediate membership in OAS.

Mr. Macquarrie, an influential member of the Conservative camp who is believed to have a strong say in the framing of government policy, might be assumed to have cleared his speech with Mr. Green beforehand.

Mr. Green said he hopes Canada will soon open its first embassy in Central America where at present the only Canadian representative was a trade commissioner in Guatemala. Lack of an embassy in the Caribbean areas was a blind spot.

Mr. Green said President Arturo Frondizi of Argentina has been invited to visit Canada after the first of the year, and noted that a Canadian minister will go to Mexico in a few weeks for the 150th anniversary of Mexican independence. He recalled that he had announced previously that the external affairs department was establishing a Latin-American division.

Largest Rocket Research Program To Be Launched by Defence Board

OTTAWA (CP)—The Defence Research Board this year will launch Canada's greatest rocket research program.

Dr. A. H. Zimmerman, board chairman, said in an interview that 12 to 15 rockets will be fired from Fort Churchill, Man., between now and this time next year.

Purposes of the rockets are upper atmosphere research, testing of solid propellants developed by the board or a combination of the two. Three of the rockets will be used to study a newly-discovered phenomenon causing communications blackouts: Polar cap absorption of solar rays.

Dr. Zimmerman said he is hopeful that a Canadian-developed rocket—known as the Black Brant II—will become a standard research tool not only for Canada but for other countries as well. The board may be able to sell it to the United States, for one.

Dr. Zimmerman said the Canadian program is complementary to that of the U.S. and Russia and will fit into the U.S. family of research rockets.

"The U.S. and Russia have left the upper atmosphere behind and gone right out into space. This has left a tremendous number of problems in near space which have to be solved. This is the area in which we have been and will be making a real contribution."

Canadian research in the upper atmosphere is mainly concerned with phenomena which affect northern communications such as aurora, solar flares and cosmic rays. Rockets are merely the tools to get instruments into the upper atmosphere to study and measure these phenomena.

The history of the Black Brant is one of continuous success so far. Twenty-five feet long and 17 inches in diameter, it was developed by the board's establishment at Valcartier, Que. It has had 15 successful static—ground test—firings and four successful launchings out of four tries from Fort Churchill last year.

Ghana's Troops First To Arrive In Leopoldville

Congolese Leaders Have Rough Time at Airport

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (AP)—Ghana today delivered the first token detachment for the international military force ordered by the United Nations Security Council to the Congo to help restore order.

Maj. - Gen. Henry Alexander, British commander of Ghana's army, and a small detachment of his troops set up headquarters in a downtown hotel to roars of approval from hundreds of Congolese gathered outside.

"All we are trying to do is to get everybody to put down their arms and not to do anything Ghanian spokesman said.

Alexander, after a talk with UN Undersecretary Ralph Bunche, held a staff meeting in the hotel lobby.

The commander of the UN force, Swedish Maj. - Gen. Carl Carlsson von Horn, leaves Jerusalem by plane today for the Congo.

WILL SEND SOLDIERS

Tunisia dispatched an advance party of six police officers Wednesday night. The North African nation said it would send 500 soldiers.

Bunche said Wednesday he expected perhaps 2,400 troops by early next week, from Ghana, Tunisia, Morocco, Guinea and Mali.

U.S. Air Force planes were expected to start landing at Leopoldville Airport in a few hours with the first part of 300 tons of flour President Eisenhower ordered sent to the hunger-threatened new African nation.

Arrival of the first tiny UN detachment seemed to create a new and more relaxed atmosphere. Some stores reopened.

Belgian troops still were in control of the city and had fanned out over a large part of the country Belgium gave independence only two weeks ago.

HAS 6,000 SOLDIERS

Belgium has more than 6,000 soldiers in the Congo, including 4,000 holdovers from colonial days by agreement with the new republic and 2,000 others flown in when the disorders broke out after independence. The UN resolution authorizing the special force calls for their withdrawal, LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters) — Tension neared the breaking point Thursday night when whites at the Leopoldville airport swarmed around Premier Patrice Lumumba and one refugee struck a grazing punch at the Congolese leaders chin.

The Belgians shouted "Break their necks" and "On your knees, murderers" to Lumumba and President Joseph Kasavubu.

"How would you like it if we raped your wife?" they taunted.

Belgian paratroopers watched the refugees crowd around Lumumba and Kasavubu but made no move to interfere.

Lumumba and Kasavubu took off for Stanleyville but had to run the gauntlet of angry Belgians for a second time when their plane was forced back because of alleged mechanical fault.

Belgians again shouted insults at them and rocked the small airline bus in which they sat waiting to be driven into the capital.

Lumumba exchanged bitter words with Belgian commander Gen. Roger Gheysen during the airport incident.

"We don't need your protection," Lumumba said as the Belgian general saluted him.

"We need your honesty," Gheysent countered. "We are here to protect Belgian lives. Belgian women have been raped."

Lumumba stalked away.

Refugees arriving in Leopoldville from Djolu told reporters of a night of horror Tuesday when women were raped repeatedly by Congolese rebels.

MANY RAPED

Karel Stragler, a former Belgian administrative officer, said his wife had been raped between 20 and 30 times. She was covered with bruises as she waited for a plane to carry her to Belgium.

The soldiers also repeatedly raped a seven-year-old girl and three nuns, Stragler said.

Refugee Indian women arriving in Uganda from Stanleyville also recounted stories of rape and beatings at the hands of the Congolese mutineers.

The women said they were stripped, starved, beaten and raped repeatedly.

"They looked as if they had been through hell," said one rescue worker who met them at the airport.

Food was running dangerously short in Leopoldville today and American aircraft were flying in 300 tons of flour for the city.

The country's essential services also were near the breaking point as Belgian officials and technicians fled for home and vowed to reporters they never would come back.

Butter, Cheese Output Higher

OTTAWA (CP) — Output of dairy products, except for skim milk powder, rose during January-June compared with the first half of 1959.

Other gains: Cheddar cheese, to 47,121,000 pounds from 40,692,000; ice cream, to 19,317,000 gallons from 18,500,000; evaporated whole milk, to 163,730,000 pounds from 154,699,000.

Liberals Back CCF Move to Cut Voting Age

OTTAWA (CP)—The CCF, with Liberal support, sought Thursday to have the voting age for federal elections reduced to 18 from 21 but the proposal was voted out by the big Progressive Conservative majority in the Commons.

The Conservatives outvoted the combined opposition forces 142 to 43 after Prime Minister Diefenbaker indicated his disfavor and Acting State Secretary Balcer said the government regarded the CCF move as a motion of non-confidence in the administration.

The Commons then voted 190 to 0 to pass the government bill incorporating all the Canada Elections Act amendments recommended by the House Elections committee on its report to parliament. Chief among them is extension of advance - poll voting privileges to all persons who have reason to believe they will be away from home on federal election day.

Forest Fire Hazard High Says Official

The forest fire hazard this weekend is going to be extremely high, according to Mr. Mac Wilson, head of the Forest Protection division of the Tweed District of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests. Extreme warm weather coupled with high winds, both of which combine to dry out the forest quickly, and the anticipated record crowds of people, the cause of over 80 per cent of all forest fires, will contribute to this high hazard rating.

Two forest fires broke out yesterday in the Tweed district. The first, located at Elbow Lake, just northeast of Mazinaw Lake, was started by lightning, which has been increasing lately. The fire was extinguished through the use of aircraft before it got a chance to spread very far.

The second fire, caused by a careless smoker, was in the southeast section of the Mazinaw Lake area and was difficult to get at. Forest fire fighters had to travel by truck, boat and finally overland by foot in order to get to the fire. Fortunately it did not catch on too quickly before being extinguished.

Smokers travelling in the woods or on the highways adjacent are cautioned to be extremely careful of where they put their cigaret and cigar butts and pipe heels. They should not be carelessly discarded.

Campers and picnickers should be sure of properly extinguishing any fires they may have started. Soaking the ashes with water and covering them with earth or sand is the safe way of making sure no forest fire will result from any embers.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced the government decision to send two officers in Commons Thursday.

Front St. Paving to Proceed, Highways Dept. to Pay Part

Motorists driving along Front Street north of the four corners will soon be having a smoother ride.

Following confirmation received this week that the Department of Highways would pay half the cost of the work, Alderman Jack Ellis, public works department chairman, has announced that the centre section of Front Street from the Upper Bridge to the four corners will be re-topped with a new asphalt surface. Cost of the work is estimated at $16,000, half of which will be paid by the province and the remaining 50 per cent by the city.

Pending location of an asphalt mix plant in the immediate Belleville area, the work is expected to be started in three or four weeks time.

The resurfacing will be a combined effort on the part of the city public works department which will do trucking of all materials and the McFarland Construction Company, which will supply the asphalt and spread the material with a highway type asphalt laying machine.

The centre 30 feet of the roadway will be ripped out to a depth of three inches and the new asphalt laid.

It is expected the entire job will be completed in one day—possibly on a Wednesday when the least disruption of normal business would result.

"It won't be a complete repaving job, but it is all the city can afford at this time," noted Alderman Ellis. "The retopping job should last for possibly 10 years when possibly the city will be in better shape to do a complete repaving job.

May Shift Cuban Charge

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) Efforts were reported under way today to shift Cuba's charge of U.S. economic aggression from the United Nations security council to the Organization of American States.

A delegate said the council's two Latin - American members, Argentina and Ecuador, are expected to submit a formal resolution to that effect after Cuban Foreign Minister Raul Roa addresses the council and U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge replies. This may last through Monday and Tuesday.

A Cuban source said that the decision on whether to put its case before the UN or the OAS rests with Fidel Castro's government. But he added that Cuba's main object is to clarify its point of view before world opinion.

Fishing Experiment Success On Lake-on-the-Mountain

By W. J. CHRISTIE

July 1st marked the opening of Lake-on-the-Mountain to public fishing after a closure of 38 years. This is a small (240 acres) lake situated on the height of land 170 feet above the Bay of Quinte, 5 miles east of Picton, Ontario. Its greatest depth is 96 feet, but it is primarily a warm-water fish lake, as the average depth is only 31 feet.

An iron foundry which had been powered by water from the lake went out of operation after World War I and the Department of Game and Fisheries (later the Department of Lands and Forests) purchased the property, and established the Glenora Provincial Fish Hatchery in 1922. At this time, the lake, which had received limited fishing pressure, was closed to angling.

The original native species o. fish are not known. Those known to be present in the lake are; lake herring, northern pike, largemouth bass, smallmouth bass, brown bullhead, yellow perch, rock bass and pumpkinseed. The pike and bass at least, were introduced in the latter part of the last century by the foundry operator. Soon after the establishment of the hatchery a coarse fish removal program was undertaken and tons of perch, rock bass and bullheads were harvested from the lake annually for stocking elsewhere, for many years. For the past few years the lake has not been used for this purpose and this was a factor in the decision to permit fishing once again. The lake continues to supply water to the Glenora Fisheries Station (which came into being after the closure of the hatchery in 1956), however, and so that the water would remain uncontaminated, prohibition of the use of powered boats was made a conditioner of the opening.

In the few weeks prior to the opening of the bass season small amounts of angling were carried out, and a (relatively) small number of pike were caught. For the opening of the bass season, however, heavy fishing was anticipated and it was decided to make fish examinations and collect angler success data by means of a creel census.

A census station was set up in the Provincial Park fronting the lake. This was manned by two clerks from 9 a.m. until 10 p.m. on each of the first three days of the fishing. About one-half of all the anglers during this period were interviewed, and their catches examined. The following is a brief summary of the information collected.

The average catch per man-hour for the first day (0.34) was fairly high and even the grand average (0.27) is likely above average for Ontario waters. As these figures indicate, a pronounced drop in fishing success occurred over Saturday and Sunday, when rain and windstorm restricted fishing. The peak of fishing for the weekend occurred early Friday morning, when 33 boats were counted on the lake. Shore anglers were more or less restricted to the public front of the lake and only contributed 13.4% of the total estimated fishing effort. In general, their efforts were less successful. An estimated total o f1607 man-hours of fishing effort was expended over the three days.

Smallmouth bass	143
Largemouth bass	166
Pike	132
Total	441

During most of the angler interviews, all fish seen were measured, and weighed, and scale samples for age determination were taken. The basses were all of exceptionally large size, while the pike were smaller than might have been expected. Average weight for largemouth, smallmouth and pike were 2.4, 2.3 and 3.9 pounds, respectively. The largest fish reported was an 8 pound pike, and a 5 pound largemouth and 4 3-4 pound small mouth were the largest bass seen. Age determinations are complete on this series, but those bass scales (both species) which have been read indicate that average age is quite high (9 to 15) and suggest that the rates of growth are probably quite slow.

It is indeed a rare event, nowadays when anglers have an opportunity of fishing a virgin stock, in Ontario, The unusual size and abundance of these fish provided many nimrods with unforgettable thrills. It must be recognized, however that sustained heavy fishing pressure will soon thin out the large old fish and reduce the level of fishing success to a more "normal" level. The Department of Lands and Forests is continuing its study of the effect of this year's angling on the fish population in order to determine the best means of reducing this slump, and maintaining the fishing at the highest possible level.

TCA Head Says Airline Jet Fuel Not Hazardous

MONTREAL (CP)—Trans-Canada Air Lines Thursday denied that the use of JP-4 fuel on its turbine-powered aircraft is hazardous.

TCA President Gordon McGregor, replying to a charge made in London by Lord Brabazon of Tara, said the airline chose JP-4 fuel after "the most rigorous technical study" and did so in the interests of operational safety though told by oil companies that the fuel would be more expensive than kerosene.

Lord Brabazon, chairman of the air registration board, told a board luncheon Thursday that some American, Canadian and Belgian airlines are indulging in "disgraceful practices" by using JP - 4 as fuel for jet aircraft rather than kerosene, which he said was safer but more expensive.

Mr. McGregor said in a statement that some airlines use kerosene but others prefer JP - 4 for "well established technical reasons.

"While it is true that kerosene is less inflammable than JP-4 under some conditions," he said, "the reverse is also true and JP-4 has very real safety advantages under certain in-flight conditions when static electricity and other factors become involved.

"There has never been a fatality in passenger-carrying turbine aircraft using JP-4, at least in the Western world."

Hitch-Hikers Ask Police Aid

Either tired of hitch-hiking or having run out of money with which to purchase meals, two young Montreal boys on their way back home from Niagara Falls asked for the assistance of police to get them back to the parental roof.

The boys, both 15 years of age, had hitch-hiked to Niagara Falls and were on their way home when, at the Salmon River Motel east of Shannonville, they decided to call it quits. The pair, neither of whom could speak very good English, asked the motel proprietor to call police.

Provincial police picked the boys up shortly before midnight and today the boys' parents are on their way to Belleville to return the boys home.

Hog prices were $1-$1.60 per hundredweight higher. Lamb prices were $1 per hundredweight higher with buyers sorting carefully.

Cattle receipts, estimated at 6,200, were some 200 head fewer than the same week in 1959.

Arrive Monday

Fine Program Is Arranged For Eleven Quebec Students

Eleven Belleville and district students who have spent the past two weeks in Quebec, and an equal number of French-speaking students with whom they have been staying, will arrive in Belleville Monday.

The group of 22 who are participating in the annual Inter-community Visits project, jointly sponsored by the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews and the Visites Inter-provinciale, will arrive at the C.N.R. station at 1.38 DST.

They will be met at the station by Paul Mercier, representing the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, chairman of the exchange student entertainment committee, and Mayor McLean Haig, representing the city council.

The French exchange students will be officially welcomed to the city and presented with a Highlands of Hastings brochure and a schedule of entertainment planned by the local chamber, during their two-week stay as guests of the local students.

The 11 Quebec students, 10 girls and one boy, are from Roberval, Victoriaville, Dolbeau, Drummondville, Kenogami and Valleyfield.

They will remain in the city until August 1st.

During their visit to Belleville they will be guests at the Kiwanis Club luncheon meeting on Tuesday at the Kiwanis Centre, followed by a tour of the Avon Jewellery Company, as guests of Abe Mazer. On Saturday, they will be treated to a wiener roast and swim party at the Outlet Provincial Park, under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce. Food and soft drinks will be provided by the Chamber, and Mr. Ron Chapman will accompany the party as a lifeguard, courtesy of the Quinte Aqua Divers' Club.

One of the Belleville and district students who arrived in Quebec July 4th, reported in a letter that the group had a wonderful time in Quebec and were met on arrival at their various destinations by the mayor, representatives of the local chambers of commerce, and local press.

Local and district students are: Janet Carruthers, Debby Shulman, Elaine McNish, Carolyn Worley, Fay Courtemanche, Kathy Heard, and Mary Musgrove of Belleville; Donna Spencer of R. R. 1, Belleville; Beverly Trounce of R. R. 1, Carrying Place; Eric Berger of Trenton and Frances Pospisil of Batawa.

Mrs. J. C. Coutts, social convener of the Trenton Ladies' Lawn Bowling Club, is shown above beside the beautiful rock garden at the northwest corner of the bowling green. Mrs. Coutts has labored long and lovingly planning and executing her ideas about changing the terrain surrounding the green from a dry, stony slope of ground into an oasis of beauty. She was assisted in her efforts by other members of the club and by members of the nearby Trenton Country Club.

To Prepare Rough Estimate On Cost of Altering CNR Bridge to Carry Cars Also

TRENTON — Trenton council met for 2½ hours yesterday morning as a committee of the whole, to discuss the most controversial agenda in months. Items considered included the possible conversion of the CNR railway swing bride at the corner of Front and Division Sts. into one which would support vehicular traffic; the possible re-development of certain substandard housing areas in town; the necessity for quick action to provide an ambulance service for the town, and the town's parking meter situation.

Some time ago, the town clerk was instructed to write to Canadian National Railways authorities to sound out its attitude towards having the swing bridge reconstructed so that a one-way stream of traffic could be accommodated for two hours of the day, during the evening rush hours. The traffic would be allowed to move in an east-west direction only, and would be allowed on the bridge between the hours of 4.20 p.m. and 6.00 p.m., thus taking the load of home-coming cars from several large east-end industrial plants off the town bridge.

In reply to this enquiry, the CNR asked to be acquainted with certain details, such as the expected volume of traffic, the method of controlling entrance to and exit from the bridge the type of railing to be used to safeguard traffic, the rental which the town would expect to pay for the use of the bridge; how long it would need to be used and an estimate of the cost of the project.

CALLED ENCOURAGING

"That's an encouraging reply," noted Councillor C. V. Graham, who was acting mayor in the absence of Mayor MacDonald.

"Well, it would be cheaper than building another bridge," opined Councillor D. R. Fraser.

"How much cheaper?" asked Councillor R. J. Whitley. "I'll bet it would run to 50 or 60 thousand dollars, or even a hundred thousand to plank the bridge and install a railing., approaches and so on."

"You're just guessing at the cost," said Councillor Vagn Lange. "They talk about rental. Maybe the CNR will pay for the conversions and charge us rent, on a 20-year basis, for instance."

"We're jumping to conclusions", said Councillor Graham, "The CNR merely want us to estimate what we think the cost of the work would be".

"The engineer is busy enough without taking on a survey of this sort", was the opinion of Councillor Fraser.

Town engineer Walter Murray told council that it would take him six months to prepare an estimate of the cost.

"You could give them a rough estimate and come within ten thousand of the actual cost", said Councillor Lange, "But the first thing is to get clear if all the council is enthusiastic about the plan. We seem to be split 50-50".

"I can give you a rough estimate within a week", offered Mr. Murray. Council agreed to this.

"Don't hire any extra men," warned Councillor McNair.

J. F. Brown, a representative of the planning and developing branch of the Department of Municipal Affairs, who recently discussed re-development of certain areas of the town with council, had sent a resume of the discussions covered at the meeting to council. Mr. Brown suggested that a survey could be made of the town's housing problems.

"Well, we haven't any money, so forget about it", advised Councillor Whitley.

"We could at least get a survey of the town ready for next year's council", suggested Councillor Fraser. "The mayor suggested a pilot survey of a particular area and a pilot re-development program in this area, but I think we should have a survey done of the whole town and carry out the re-development in one area".

Counil decided to consult with the mayor on the subject, before making any committments.

SURVEY PROPOSED

Citizens Research of Canada Ltd. had written to say that it could do a survey of the town, covering such angles as tax basis, tax problems, the promotion of good municipal government etc.

"What is this, a preliminary survey of the survey?" asked Councillor Fraser.

"There's too many experts involved in our affairs", grumbled Councillor McNair.

"I can see that I'm wasting my time", said Town Clerk O. W. Larry, "These people are experts. The tax payers are complaining about their taxes all the time; we should find out a few facts".

"I'd like you to tell me if any man on earth could have done better than I did this year", offered Councillor Vagn Lange, chairman of finance. "A great many expenses are out of council's hands. We can't control the size and number of schools or certain expenditures demanded by the public utilities or the Ontario Water Resources Commission, any more than we can control the size of families".

"Your comments indicate that we're sure of all the facts and nothing can be done about our financial situation", said the clerk.

"There's lots of men in this town who could pull us out of the hole", said Councillor Whitley, "But you won't listen to anyone but experts".

"Lots of them would put us further into the hole", observed Councillor Lange.

"I'd welcome advice from some of these men you mention", said Mr. Larry, addressing Councillor Whitley.

It was decided to put the offer of the Citizens' Research Company before the mayor and the finance committee. The cost of the survey would be in the neighbourhood of $300.

The clerk read a letter from the Trenton Chamber of Commerce asking that council either agree to subsidize the Weaver Ambulance Service to the extent of $1800, in order that ambulance service might be provided to the end of the year, or provide ambulance service for the town after August 1st., when the Weaver service will be discontinued. Mr. Ralph Weaver notified the town some time ago that, as his firm had lost money over a period of years on this service, it would be forced to discontinue the service. A previous suggestion of Mr. Weaver's that the town subsidize the operations had fallen on deaf ears.

"This is a hot issue," observed the acting mayor. "It's a serious matter; this is July 14."

"I started the first ambulance service in this town," said Councillor McNair, "You'll find that as soon as there's only one funeral service in town, the owners decide the ambulance service doesn't pay. Weaver talks about his overhead and his underfoot and he won't admit the ambulance service brings in funeral business."

"Some service club might provide it," suggested Councillor H. G. Aziz. "I'd like to see us try a system they've got in Montreal." said Councillor Lange. "They have the police ride around in station wagons fitted out for ambulance service instead of cruisers."

"What about out-of-town calls?" asked Councillor Aziz.

"Let's worry about Trenton." advised Councillor Lange.

"You'd probably have the police involved in house calls which couldn't be termed emergencies," warned Councillor Fraser.

Council decided to consider the suggestions made by Councillors Aziz and Lange.

ASK 'METER MAID'

The clerk advised council that he had been requested by the recently formed Parking Committee, headed by Lloyd Weese, to insert advertisements in the town papers for a "Meter Maid" to collect coins from the new "nickel meters," and ticket cars whose owners were guilty of parking violations and who would be responsible to the police department. The person hired must be "single," (widowed is allowable), neat in appearance, over 18 and would work 48 hours a week for a starting salary of $2,600 a year.

"I'm not in favor of a young woman for this job," said Councillor McNair, "Give a married man a chance, I say."

"For $2,600 a year?" enquired Councillor Graham.

"It's been proven that women do a better job at this than men do," stated Councillor Aziz.

"Considering the town's unemployment picture, I agree with Councillor McNair," said Councillor Fraser.

"Since we gave the parking committee the authority, I think we should go along with its recommendations," said Councillor Graham.

Council will decide whether it is to be a Meter Maid or a Meter Man by Monday night.

Chief of Police, F. J. Taylor had written to council to protest the placing of meters along the front and south side of the police station. He said that the police, firemen and persons having business in the police station park their cars in these areas.

"On market days, it would be chaos," warned the chief constable, "Putting meters in these areas is like putting them at the back of the municipal building," he added.

Council was agreed that these spots should be left free of meters.

WILL ENLARGE COMPOUND

The police chief also asked that the compound for seized vehicles on Ontario Street be made larger and the exit made bigger, as it was often necessary to move three cars to get one out.

The engineer was instructed to have the compound doubled in size.

Chief Taylor admitted that he was at a loss to explain the fact that several painters had come into the police station with sealed tenders for painting the front of the police station.

"You will recall," said the chief, "that some time ago the Trenton Board of Health deemed the inside of the station as 'unfit for human habitation', and if money is to be spent, it should be on the inside. Any outside work is a waste of the tax payers' money."

Town engineer Walter Murray admitted ruefully that he had called for tenders to paint the market side of the police building.

Trenton's fire chief, Cecil Ellis, had written council to ask that four new water hydrants be installed on Trenton streets for fire protection. One hydrant is required at the corner of Dufferin and Wilkins Sts.; one on Dufferin St. near the new public school; one on King St. near the hospital, and one on Hawley St., behind the municipal office. "This is almost a must," said Councillor Graham. "We have got to have them." "I can't see see "gotta," said Councillor Whitley. "We've lived without them for a hundred years. The fire department's got you scared."

The engineer will check and if he recommends the additional hydrants, council will accept his verdict.

With Water All Around It, PUC Still Has Complaints

TRENTON — Members of the Trenton Public Utilities Commission have decided that "you can't please all of the people all of the time," and certainly not if you have a limited budget to work to.

At a special meeting in the commission board room yesterday afternoon, the members decided reluctantly they could not extend a water main in front of the property of L. Chouinard on Orchard View Drive, which lies outside the town limits.

At the beginning of last year, the commissioners passed a by-law to the effect that they would not extend services beyond the town's limits. Now, in order to supply Mr. Chouinard with water, they would have to rescind this by-law, and in servicing this property they would no doubt open up the "flood gates" to other residents of this same area, who would, in all probability, want the same attention, a courtesy which the 1960 budget of the PUC would not allow.

The area, moreover, is under consideration for annexation by town, and this factor could add to possible problems in connection with the servicing.

Also the commissioners turned down a request from the town fire chief, Cecil Ellis, that the Fox Pond, one source of the town's water supply, be stocked with trout. At the present time there are brown trout in the pond and a few fishermen take advantage of this. It was felt if more trout were added the area would be crowded with would-be Izaak Waltons and the drinking water would be anything but sanitary. The dam near the pond was posted last year, but the posting was ignored to the extent that fishermen removed the logs from the dam.

Also, a "No Shooting" sign near the pond has been almost shot away. The commissioners discussed, as they have at every meeting for the past nine months, a bill tendered from Mr. G. A. Weaver for $105.

Mr. Weaver claims that due to a leaky hydrant on Elgin Street, a heavy advertising sign on his property became weakened and had to be removed.

The commissioners failed to report the matter to its insurance agent within 90 days, and furthermore they agreed to pay part of the bill at one stage of the proceedings. Now, the insurance company refuses to have anything to do with the case.

The commissioners decided that pay they must, but made no decision as to when, at yesterday's meeting.

James Page, utilities manager, reported that the Sidney Street well should be ready for use by the end of August. Several pieces of equipment have yet to be installed.

The well will not come into operation any too soon. One day last week, water consumption reached an all-time peak of 4 million gallons, without the canning factory using any.

One commissioner remarked that a great deal of water was being used to water the hospital lawn.

Mr. Page said that the utilities seemed to be in very good financial position at the moment and that when the new water and hydro rates began to show up in the financial picture, money matters would have brightened up to the extent that the commission might be able to pay off debentures at the end of the year.

The Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission had written to thank the commission for forwarding several copies of the 1959 report. The provincial body complimented the manager and his staff on the efficient way in which the Trenton utilities is run.

Quench Cheer Instant Beer No Good Here

TORONTO (CP) — Beer drinkers and brewers here turned up their noses Thursday at reports of the newest beverage—instant beer.

The beer—just add carbonated water—was anything but an instant success among those interviewed.

John Piesley, brewmaster at Molson's Brewery, said he doubted if the brew, developed by Bass Breweries of Britain, would be the same as real beer.

One drinker declared:

"Knocking the top off a bottle is instant enough for me."

Must Have Veto Over Use of Nuclear Heads

TORONTO (CP)—E. R. Pepper, assistant director of public prosecutions, said today the Crown will immediately appeal a county court judgment that a hotel beverage room is not a public place.

The case arose when Frank Keddy of Toronto was charged with being drunk in a beverage room. He was convicted at trial, but Judge Robert Forsythe Thursday dismissed the conviction.

Defence counsel Arthur Maloney admitted Keddy was intoxicated, but said Keddy was not drunk in "a public place."

The judge held that a beverage room was not a public place because people could be ejected from it and the types of people allowed to enter were restricted.

Too Timid

Discretion may be the better part of valor—but it is also a poor substitute for it.

Discreet to the point of timidity appear the initial reactions at Washington and Ottawa to the Congo Republic's appeal for assistance in easing its birthpangs.

The Congo asked that the U.S. provide forces to restore order. The U.S. decided that it would send technicians and financial support but not troops.

This decision is understandable. "The Soviet Union, it was felt, would denounce any American intervention as blatant interference in the efforts of a newly-independent nation to throw off the colonialist yoke," reported the Associated Press early Wednesday. But before the day was out Moscow had made that accusation anyway.

Even more timid appears the reaction of Prime Minister Diefenbaker. The United Nations' secretary-general, he said in answer to a question, has in mind the dispatch of UN technical personnel to restore order and discipline. "I hope they will be drawn from the African states so there will be no suggestion of intervention of other states in Africa."

In this hope Prime Minister Diefenbaker appears to have company. The UN Security Council later authorized the despatch of UN troops and it was stated it was hoped the force would be drawn primarily from African countries. It is noteworthy, though, that a dissenting voice was raised. Britain would prefer the force to represent all racial groups, but would bar troops from members of the Security Council, thus excluding participation by the world's major powers.

At first sight, it might appear that both Washington and Ottawa officials were overlooking the fact that this appeal for aid came not from a colonial power, or even from a multi-racial governnment, but from a Negro government. There are, however, two distinct currents in the Congo, one the persecution of whites and the other a quarrel between different elements of the native population. In many cases white colonialism cut across tribal boundaries and the colonies contained people of different races. It is admittedly prudent for white nations to avoid any appearance of taking sides between these groups, but by the same token is it fair to ask the independent African states, almost all of them in their infancy, to shoulder the burden and face the same risk? Surely the legacy for Africa could be a most unhappy one.

It is of more than passing interest to note that on the very day when these developments were in the news the Montreal Gazette, (a supporter of the Diefenbaker Government, by the way), said editorially: "The time has certainly come when the countries of the West must cease to stare in awe, and begin to give help, provided this is done in co-operation with, and by the authority of, the Congolese government."

The Gazette's advice, though, seems to have come too late. The U.S. and Canada appear to have burned their bridges. For, later on the same day that they were being so discreet, the Belgian Government made a similar plea to the Congolese Government for outside assistance in restoring order. The U.S. and Canada can hardly respond to this plea now, even if asked to do so by the U.N., for if they do they will leave themselves open to the charge of ignoring the Negro regime but heeding the call of a white nation.

All of which suggests that there are occasions on which one should be discreet about showing discretion.

Tit for Tat

The United States has accused Russia of "wantonly" destroying a U.S. RB-47 reconnaissance bomber in the region of the Kola Peninsula on July 1. The U.S. alleges that the plane was never closer than 30 miles to the Soviet coast and warns of "most serious consequences" in the event of any repetition of the incident. The U.S. would be justified in taking retaliatory action and in the interests of us all we suggest that it publicly announce its intention of doing precisely that—shooting down any Russian reconnaissance bomber which comes within 30 miles of the United States.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

DONE IN THE RIGHT WAY

Years ago Toscanini sat before a loud speaker listening to an orchestral concert which was being broadcast. The orchestra was playing a number which Toscanini had led hundreds of times. He knew every note. Suddenly Toscanini winced. No one else was conscious that anything had happened, but Toscanini knew that something had gone wrong and he knew precisely what that something was. One of the clarinet players had flatted on a note. Toscanini, hundreds of miles away, heard this and winced.

As soon as possible he went to the conductor of the orchestra. Yes, the conductor admitted, the clarinetist had flatted on a note. Then Toscanini asked to see the musician. The clarinet player proved to be a young man and, when he heard that the conductor and Toscanini wanted to see him, he realized that he was in trouble.

Toscanini explained how distinctly he had heard the flat note. "You are an excellent technician," he said, "but the trouble is that the music comes out of your fingers and your mouth, not out of your soul. There is no heart in your music." Then in a most kindly fashion he explained to the young man what he lacked and how he could overcome his lack.

The end of the story is pleasant indeed. The clarinetist who had made a slight mistake which nobody but Toscanini and the conductor were aware of turned out to be one of the best performers of his generation. And always he looked back in gratitude to the man who not only pointed out his mistakes but who, in a spirit of brotherly love, even parental affection, showed him how to overcome his inadequacies.

Youth welcomes counsel provided it is given in a spirit of love.

Historic Hastings

The Iroquois Confederacy

(Article 125 in the series sponsored by the Hastings County Historical Society)

(Note: Last week the historical societies of Hastings and Lennox and Addington counties held a Mohawk Airport on the Tyendreserve near Deseronto. Among the points of interest visited was a cairn to Deganawidah, an outstanding Indian leader. Since the story of Deganawidah is little known, we present the following essay by Miss Deanna Hill of R. R. 1, Deseronto. A student at Moira Secondary School in Belleville. Deanna lives with Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Hill.)

To every race of people there are born outstanding leaders and Deganawidah occupies this position in the early history of the Iroquois Nation.

About the year 1550, Deganawidah, a Huron Indian, was born on Eagle Hill on the shores of the Bay of Quinte. Eagle Hill is about two miles west of Deseronto, and relatively close to the Mohawk Airport on the Tyendinaga Indian Reserve.

When Deganawidah was born, according to legend, his grandmother hated him because he was born to a virgin mother; and, she tried desperately to kill him three times. First she tried to drown him through a hole cut in the ice. Next she buried him in a huge snowbank, and thirdly she tossed him into a blazing bonfire. However, each time when she returned home, Deganawidah was home safe and sound with his mother. This frightened the grandmother extremely and she suddenly realized that there was something very unusual about him. This didn't increase her affection for the child, but increased her hate for him. One night as she was desperately thinking of a way to dispose of her grandson, the Great Spirit appeared to her and said: "Three times have you tried to kill Deganawidah, and three times, have you failed. Do not try again for I have sent him to the Iroquois people. Watch him carefully because when he grows up he shall perform a deed that shall never be forgotten". After this the grandmother was afraid to try again to kill the child.

When Deganawidah was still an infant his people were raided by the Mohawk Indians, who captured and eventually adopted him.

When Deganawidah was a young man, probably in his early twenties, he built a canoe of white rock and paddled across Lake Ontario to the land of the warring tribes who later became the Iroquois Confederacy. Deganawidah told them that the Great Spirit was sad because they were always at war with one another. He also said: "I came from the Creator to build the Great Peace and to give you the Great Law". They saw that he travelled in a stone canoe and knew he did speak for the Creator.

(Next Wed. the results of Deganawidah's mission to the Iroquois).

Pakistan 'Plans' Families

By Zafar Mansoor of Pakistan Information Service

One of the foremost problems confronting the less developed and technologically backward countries like Pakistan, is to alleviate poverty and to secure a comparatively modest standard of living for their under-nourished, ill-clothed and ill-sheltered millions.

To achieve this goal, Pakistan is making a determined effort to expend its internal economy by increasing agricultural and industrial output sufficiently to provide for the basic needs of the people.

In addition to the newly-established projects division whose responsibility it is to pave a way for the effective implementation of development schemes, Pakistan has also drawn up its Second Five-Year Plan, (1960-65), to attain progress in an organized and concerted manner.

• • •

But along with the planned endeavor aimed at the country's economic expansion, the need for a population policy is being increasingly felt in Pakistan where population is rising by two per cent annually.

According to a recent estimate, Pakistan's population by the end of the current census decade will have increased by 13 million from 76 millions in 1951 to 89 millions in 1961, or by 14 per cent as compared to an increase of 8.5 per cent in the last decade.

This rapid increase in population constitutes a serious threat to all plans for self-sufficiency.

What is really happening in the under-developed countries is that while policies and plans are formulated for economic growth, the ultimate gain in terms of a really substantial improvement on a wider scale is counteracted by a disproportionate increase in population.

Thus, the economic planning in the past has shown that the raising of people's living standards is a struggle between the country's overall production and the growing population — the latter outstripping the former.

To Pakistan, this realization came rather late and it was left to the realistic approach of the present regime who took a serious view of the rising population and decided to curb it on a nation-wide scale.

• • •

The government has therefore launched a One-Year Plan as the spearhead of the attack on the population menace.

Some of the main features of the One-Year Plan of family planning launched by the government are as follows:

First, family planning will be the normal activity of all the government health institutions — hospitals, dispensaries and maternity and child health centres — especially in the urban areas.

In rural areas, for the present, village-aid workers and elected representatives of the basic democracies will be entrusted with the task of educating the public. However, they will not give any clinical help.

At first family planning will be a subject in the curriculum of the village aid institutions. Later, rural health centres or sub-centres will take over from, or share with village aid workers, this responsibility.

Directives have been issued to the provinces immediately to start training the personnel required for this job.

• • •

Second, free sterility service for both males and females has been recently provided in all major governments hospitals.

Third, all government dispensaries and maternity centres have been, or are being provided with contraceptives.

Fourth, training courses will be organized to instruct doctors, nurses and health visitors to tell them what family planning in general means — not only limiting the family, but making a happy family, to give them sex education and to instruct them in marriage counselling.

The number of the existing maternity and child health centres in the country is over 430.

The government, as well as voluntary agencies, is conscious of the barriers in the form of popular prejudices sometimes disguised as religious objections, which must be effectively broken. The press, radio, official information media, basic democracies and village aid workers, the government hopes, will succeed to a great extent in breaking these barriers.

Year's Pulse Is Now Strong

Halifax Chronicle-Herald

This is the heart of summer when the year's pulse is steady and strong. Gone now is the urgency of spring; this is the period of growth toward maturity. No longer a stirring bird chorus at dawn. Gone for another cycle is the rush of preparing the soil and placing seeds in the Earth's breast.

Thin lines of green that made symmetrical patterns above brown soil are widening and new crops push steadily toward maturity. The country boy watches the orchard trees, for it will soon be time for the season's first fresh apple pie.

The solstice is passed and the year is once again slanting downhill; but one does not think of that as the sun travels a high arc across a burnished sky.

Dusk still comes slowly. When a day is done and shadows inch valleys, farm families gather on porches and savor the summer evening. The turning years seem to go faster as a man travels his trail, but if he has faith in the verities, he knows that each cycle adds meaning to this experience we call life.

The magnificent work of all the chapters of the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire in Canada, in raising funds for the purchase of a Bolingbroke bomber for presentation to the Canadian Government, is an evidence of the spirit which animates the women of Canada. The work of the Belleville chapters of the I.O.D.E. deserves highest praise for the loyalty and devotion of the members of the chapters, and the response of the citizens to the cause of liberty has been enthusiastic. The presentation of the bomber is being made at Ottawa on Saturday by the national president of the I.O.D.E. to the Minister of National Defence.

Strictly Personal

Every Culture Must Heed Its Best Crackpot

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The headline shrieked "Disaster at Sea," and the boy asked his father what a disaster was. "It's a bad accident," the father said, and the boy was satisfied.

Overhearing this, I wondered if the father knew that "disaster" was a word of ancient astrology. It means, literally, "under an evil star," and was used when people believed that the stars influenced our lives.

Now, I have read in some learned scientific journals, there is hushed talk in astrophysical circles that perhaps there may be more truth in the old superstition than the modern mind is willing to accept.

Scientists do not believe that the constellations in the Zodiac have any personal meaning for us, but there is at least a suspicious feeling that earthly phenomena are ruled by some obscure electrical forces in the solar system.

• • •

This is why every culture must be respectful toward its "cranks" and crackpots, its intuitive seers and prophets — even when they turn out to be crazy or fraudulent. Much, if not most, of modern scientific advances have emerged from the dark pit of magic and superstition.

Ancient astrology gave rise to the spectacular findings of astronomy. The arcane rituals of the "alchemist" in medieval times — who kept trying to turn lead into gold — foreshadowed the development of modern chemical discoveries no less miraculous.

Te Pythagorean sect in old Greece, who felt that "numbers" ruled the universe, had a profound effect upon mathematical research. Some of the most basic theorems were devised in a mystical magical-religious setting that modern skeptics would only sneer at.

And, in our own time, the science of psychoanalysis grew out of the frightening art of "Mesmerism." The hypnotist, a century ago, was little more than a charlatan and a showman; but the hypnotic studies of Charcot and Breuer led Freud to his monumental achievements.

• • •

Art, religion and science — the three distinguishing marks of the human species — all have their roots in the deep underground of magic, in the primitive tribal hopes and fears and passions. These are the sources of everything good (and everything bad) in human endeavor. We may refine and re-examine and reinterpret them in the light of modern knowledge; but we ignore them only at the risk of drying up the roots of creativity and discovery and the adventures of the soul.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

TAKE NECESSARY EXERCISES EVERY DAY TO MAINTAIN HEALTH

If you happen to suffer from leg cramps, you know how aggravating they can be. And I know from the number of letters on the subject I have received as well as from my own direct observations that cramping of the legs is a problem that becomes entirely too common as we get along into middle age and beyond.

Now, while there are a number of remedies which are very successful in getting rid of these cramps, a remedy is no good unless one uses it. That's why I quote from the following letter:

"Dear Dr. Molner: To make a long story short, I want to express to you my deep appreciation and gratitude. To make clear what I'm raving about, your advice on leg cramps has been the means whereby I am doing the thing myself that is bringing about restful sleep, something that had just about become ancient history.

"Do you know what I'm doing? Those Buerger's exercises. As I lie on my back, raising and lowering each leg as directed, I take one of my husband's big woolly hunting socks (that I've been wearing in cold weather to keep my feet warm)and I 'saw' it back and forth across the sole of each foot to coax the circulation. Last night was the first honest-to-goodness sleep I've had for months.

"I'm a little past 59 and had been spending money for and that in treatment for leg cramps and here I am getting relief from your column that has cost me almost nothing. Please forgive me for taking your time in this recital, but I am so pleased and I had no other way of telling you. God bless you. — Mrs. W. M."

To be sure, faulty circulation is not the only thing that can cause leg cramps, but it is certainly one of the common afflictions that is liabe to beset us as we reach the age of good sense.

Sometimes drugs help. Indeed, I have found that certain of our old familiar drugs (and at times some newer ones) are useful. But since improving the circulation depends on getting blood to the legs and then back again, Buerger's exercises are of unmatched value.

These exercises are very simple. They consist of raising and lowering each leg as you lie on your back. A reasonable number might be to raise and lower each leg 10 times, holding the leg in each position (raised and then lowered) for a minute or so.

Mrs. W. M.'s invention, sawing a woolly sock back and forth across her foot, sounds to me like a very logical addition to the process.

But my dear friends, you have to keep it up! While such simple remedies for foot and leg cramps have such startlingly good results, remember that you must repeat the remedy, every day, You can't eat tomorrow's breakfast today. You can't exercise one day a week and say that you "exercise regularly." A few minutes every day is better, far better, than exercising seven times as much one day a week!

You are familiar, I'm sure, with the housewife (everybody knows of at least one in the neighborhood!) who goes into a frantic scramble of housecleaning every spring — and wonders why the house is so dusty the following winter. A little bit every day is so much better than an exhausting excess once in a while. And the same is true in taking care of your health. A little bit every day — and you won't need heroic measures to "catch up."

• • •

"Dear Dr. Molner: My two-year-old son was constipated until, quite by accident, I discovered that a handful of salted nuts worked wonders for him. — J. M."

Interesting, and quite to be expected, since the nuts increase the bulk residue in the stool. This can be fine for adults, but a word of caution about giving nuts to children: A child is apt to choke on them, and a nut, trapped in the bronchial tubes, can be a serious problem. For children you can add more bulky vegetables and fruits in the diet and get the same effect.

• • •

"Dear Dr. Molner: How do you account for fraternal (not identical) twins looking so much alike that you can't tell them apart? — R. S."

This is not too unusual, for they are brothers or sisters with the same parents, and conceived under identical circumstances.

—Hold Down Costs

Kingston Whig-Standard

Our unemployment is a result of our inability to keep costs down so that we can compete on some terms of equality with the rest of the world. This is a simple and well-authenticated fact by now and all the talk about differentials in wages and currency are simply evasions.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

CONFESSION

They say "confession is good for the soul," but I will tell you something that confession is better for than the soul. It's better for the brain, the stomach, the nerves, the liver than it ever could be for the soul. For these things keep the soul in health.

Confession is Regeneration — re-Creation.

So long as you have the courage to confess, to acknowledge error, just so long are you your fine, wholesome human self.

But keep your confessions to yourself! You are the one most interested in your own mistakes and blunders. You are the one who benefits most when you render service. Confess to yourself. Get to the point where you and yourself are on the best of terms — regular boon companions.

Don't give other people the chance to gloat over your failures and toe-stubs. Get alone with yourself, as often as you can, and give yourself the most penetrating criticism. Draw a picture with your mind's eye and in it put your "lacks." Scrutinize your failures and determine to clean up the picute by eliminating the useless and undone for the helpful and serviceful.

Form the habit of daily, quiet, personal confessing over and over again to yourself. It is better than a tonic!

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

At a garden party I had the fortune to sit under an apple tree with three or four notables one of whom was a doctor and another a well-known physicist. These two engaged in a conversation that was high over my head, having to do with some new vista of science.

"I take a lot of pleasure", said the physicist, "out of reading some of the papers delivered at the Royal Society back in the eighteenth century. Even some of Newton's speculations are pretty fantastic, and many of the papers delivered in the early part of the nineteenth century are hilarious, in the light of modern science. It is difficult to believe that thinking men would hold many of the ideas and views expressed at the Royal Society less than a hundred years ago."

"That's why I," said the doctor, who is a famous leg-puller, "never read papers at our medical conferences and societies. I don't want anybody laughing at me, a hundred years from now."

"Aw, but . . ." said the physicist.

"I imagine," said the doctor, "the profound opinions and truths you hold today will excite as much hilarity when read a hundred years from now as is inspired in you by those early papers of the Royal Society."

I think if the apples above us had been bigger and riper, one might have dropped on the physicist's head. Copyright: Canada Wide

U.K. Parliament Likely to Get 2 Resolutions

By JAMES NELSON

Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — An unprecedented legal and procedural tangle involving the Senate and the House of Commons may be allowed to work itself out without special action by either chamber, Parliament Hill authorities said Thursday.

As a result, Superior Court judges will be required to retire at age 75, as Supreme Court judges now do. But district and county court judges may have to be retired through fresh legislative action next year, one informant said.

The tangle arose Wednesday night in the Senate when it refused to pass a resolution in precisely the same terms as one previously introduced by the government and passed by the Commons.

The proposed resolution asked the British Parliament to amend the British North America Act to retire Superior, county and district court judges at 75. The Senate struck out all references to county and district judges. So Parliament appears to have spoken with two voices—those of the Commons and of the Senate. But a basic principle of the British system is that Parliament can speak with only one voice.

SEND THE TWO

The two resolutions, having been passed, will both be forwarded to the Queen to be laid before the British House of Commons and Lords.

Action on Canadian constitutional amendments by the British Parliament is routine.

In this case, it is expected the British Parliament will act on those parts of the two resolutions which are in agreement, and ignore the parts which differ.

The Senate amended the resolution because it felt Canada already has power to fix a retirement age for judges.

Martin Thinks Green and Chief Differ on Views

OTTAWA (CP)—Paul Martin suggested today that Canada's actions in foreign affairs have been inconsistent with the government's avowed intentions and that Prime Minister Diefenbaker and External Affairs Minister Green hold divergent views on certain aspects of policy.

Speaking in a foreign policy debate in the Commons, the Liberal MP for Essex East cited as examples Canadian actions at the Geneva disarmament conference and statements by Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Green on cessation of nuclear testing.

He said Mr. Green maintained in February that Canada had disarmament proposals to make at Geneva and that they were part of a strong, independent line in foreign affairs by the Canadian government.

But the boldest step taken at Geneva by the Canadian representative, Lt. - Gen. E. L. M. Burns, was an assertion that disarmament might be achieved through a series of balanced concessions and a stage - by - stage process.

NONE A PART

None of the points advanced by Mr. Diefenbaker in the Commons in February as disarmament proposals had been made on Canada's part at the Geneva talks.

With regard to cessation of nuclear testing, Mr. Martin said Mr. Green had stated clearly last winter that Canada's policy favored an end to tests with or without international controls.

But the communique issued by Mr. Diefenbaker and President Eisenhower after their Easter conference in Washington had referred to the aim of the two leaders as being cessation of tests "with effective international control."

Mr. Green interjected to say Canada's policy differs from that of the United States. It remained a policy of favoring an end to tests with or without controls. Mr. Martin was trying to imply the policies of the U.S. and Canada were identical.

New Rates For Painters

TORONTO (CP)—Painters and decorators in the Brantford zone are assured increased minimum rates of pay under new regulations published in the current edition of the Ontario Gazette.

The new rates set a minimum of $1.95 an hour for spray painting and $1.85 an hour for all other work up to March 31, 1961. The rates increase to $2.10 an hour for spray painting and $2 an hour for all other work thereafter.

The regulations, under the Industrial Standards Act, also provide for minimum overtime rates and holidays.

Jobless Man Shoots His Wife, Then Himself

TORONTO (CP) — An unemployed father shot his wife and then himself as his two small sons pleaded with him not to shoot.

Nearby residents said the children screamed "Mommy . . . daddy . . . don't do it." during the shooting beside a car parked in a playground in suburban York Township.

Lorene Palmateer, 29 died beside the car with a bullet in her head. Her husband Clare, 22, died of a similar wound an hour later in hospital.

Police believe the mother was sitting in the car with the children and pushed them out and told them to run when her husband came out of their nearby basement apartment with a [illegible] calibre rifle.

The [illegible] and Glen, 6, were taken to the home of an uncle, Paul Palmateer.

Several children were playing nearby at the time of the shooting.

Palmateer, son of Mrs. Louella Palmateer of Morganston, 25 miles southeast of Peterborough, had been unemployed since last fall. His wife, the former Lorene Youmans, was born in Havelock, 20 miles south of Peterborough. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Youmans, live at Cordova Mines.

The couple were married in 1952.

No World End, 'Just Be Happy We Were Wrong'

COURMAYEUR, Italy (AP) Somebody goofed. The world didn't end as scheduled.

But the bearded Milan pediatrician took the reversal philosophically. "Anybody," he said, "can make a mistake."

"Be happy we were wrong," he told a crowd gathered at the salvation station halfway up Mount Blanc. Bianca and 100 followers had hoped to hole up there while boiling seas, rolled by a "mercury bomb" explosion, engulfed hapless mankind below.

Bianca had aroused people with his prediction of a mystery blast that would tip the world on its axis and touch off a second deluge Thursday.

Belgians Call Chaos in Congo Plot by Reds

BRUSSELS (AP)—Several high Belgian government officials claimed today there is growing evidence that chaos in the Congo is the result of a long planned, well organized Communist plot.

They charged Congolese Premier Patrice Lumumba has given his support to such a plot and that it is aimed at outright dictatorship.

Two Calvary Temple Pastors Get Honorary DD Degrees

The pastors of Calvary Temple, the Rev. Laurie H. Price and the Rev. Hope M. Smith, have been granted Honorary Doctor of Divinity degrees by the Colonial Academy of Rockford, Illinois, for outstanding service in the Christian ministry. The degrees were conferred by Dr. Alan E. Haw, D.S.L., Ph.D., Litt.D., representing the Rev. Dr. Robert J. Hansen, president of the seminary.

During their fifteen years together in the service of God, Doctors Price and Smith have built three churches; one in Verona and two in Belleville. The new Calvary Temple, at the corner of Dundas East and George streets, is a beautiful example of modern church architecture, with a seating capacity of 900. At the opening service earlier in the year there was an overflow crowd of over 1,200 in attendance.

The pastors of Calvary Temple are in great demand all over Canada and the United States as special speakers at conventions, camp meetings, church openings and evangelistic campaigns. Thousands have been won to Christ through their ministry. They have influenced scores of young men and women to attend Bible College and some of these are now outstanding evangelists, pastors and teachers.

"The privilege of conferring these honors on such outstanding men of God is a source of real satisfaction to me," said Doctor Haw. "Having worked closely with them for ten years I can vouch for their complete dedication to the cause of Christ and their courage and faith in the face of all obstacles. They are men of prayer — fervent, intercessory prayer — hours, many hours of agonizing, travailing prayer. That is the secret of their success.

"Prayer is the key that men of God in past ages have used to tap the resources of infinite power, which enabled them to overcome all obstacles, make history and helped to change the world of their generation. The prayer of faith is the power that can move mountains of opposition. It is the force that can break the grip of the powers of darkness oppressing millions in our land. Intercessory prayer is the means that can spare our nation the horrors of an atomic war. Determined prayer by faithful prayer warriors can make the successful gospel invasion of the foreign fields. And as for the intercessor himself, he who makes prayer a business, will be able to look back at the end of the years, and have the certain knowledge that his life has been a successful life."

Doctors Price and Smith are eligible for life membership in the Delta Chapter of the Epsilon Delta Chi Almuni Society, whose world wide membership includes many of today's most eminent theologians and educators.

Back From Land of Lobsters, Salvation Army Head Here Says He Is Roast Beef Man

MAJOR JOHN CARTER

Major John Carter has arrived in Belleville from Moncton, N.B. to become the new Salvation Army corps commander here. He replaces Major Victor Greenwood who has been transferred to Toronto.

Major Carter, his wife, Joan and their four children arrived in the city last Friday after serving the Army in the Maritimes for four years. They were stationed at Charlottetown, P.E.I., and Moncton. Before going to the east coast, Major Carter was with the Army in Toronto, his birthplace.

The Carters were welcomed last Sunday at services in the Salvation Army Citadel on Pinnacle Street. On Tuesday, Major Carter was introduced to the Kiwanis Club.

Major Carter said in an interview he is looking forward to serving the Army for many years in the Belleville district. This is the first time he and his family have been in the district, although they are acquainted with several communities west of Toronto.

Usually, anyone who spends more than a few weeks in the Maritimes comes away with a taste for lobsters and oysters. But not Major Carter. "Give me roast beef anyday. I'm not a sea foods gourmet".

Major Carter will assist at the Army's music camp at Roblin Lake week after next. He says he plays the piano and trombone, "but I'm not very good at it".

The Carters have taken up residence at Salvation Army quarters on Henry Street. Their children will attend public school in the fall.

Soviet Charges Planes Buzz Ships at Sea

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union charged in formal notes Thursday that planes of Western powers, including Canada, deliberately and frequently buzzed Soviet ships on the high seas.

The notes said the incidents endangered the Soviet vessels and violated the rights of shipping in international waters.

The notes were delivered to Canada, the United States, Britain, Denmark, France and Norway.

The note to the United States, in the form of a memorandum, said American planes during a period of years had been responsible for more than 200 such incidents.

In Ottawa, external affairs department officials said Thursday they have not yet received the Russian note. It would take some time to transmit it to Ottawa from Moscow. Meanwhile, the officials declined comment.

American Oil Money Boosts Price of Slaves

LONDON (Reuters) — American oil company money flowing into Saudi Arabia has increased the demand for slaves and the price paid for them, the House of Lords was told Thursday night.

Labor member Lord Shackleton said the Arabian Peninsula, particularly Saudi Arabia, is still the chief centre of slavery in the world.

He added that many Africans are enticed to Arabia and forced into slavery. Some wealthy African moslems on pilgrimage used servants as "living travellers cheques" by selling them into slavery.

Shackleton called on the British government to do all it can to ensure that international anti-slavery conventions are respected.

He said escaping slaves in Africa are publicly executed. He quoted an eyewitness as saying "it seems that the enormous wealth pouring into Saudi Arabia from the American oil companies has greatly increased the demand for slaves and the price paid for them."

Shackleton was supported by Conservative Viscount Maugham, nephew of writer Somerset Maugham, who said he brought a 20-year-old slave in the French Sahara last year for $105. He said the transaction was "just like you buy a piece of meat."

Maugham said the slave now is a free man.

Teardrop Line Features Rome Fashion Display

ROME (AP)—Fontana's prophetic "teardrop" line and ravishing evening clothes won applause Thursday in the Roman couture showings.

His major look was a low torso line and pear-shaped skirt. The silhouette was unfitted, hip-waisted, and called the teardrop. Versions turned up in short-skirted black and white souffle tweed, spongy wool and crisp silk shantungs and laces.

Although the teardrop shape was the news of the collection, Fontana departed from it and went off in all silhouette directions. The result was a bit of the new and a lot of the past.

The accent on evening continued with the Gattinoni collection, which was saucy with backward motion on skirts and fiery with dazzling embroidery.

There was a lot of black magic shown, in wools, silk jerseys, and sooty velveteens, most of it dipping with jet glitter.

Wedding

RODGERS — THOMSON

The sanctuary of Trinity Anglican Church, Frankford, was adorned with white chrysanthemums and white carnations for the marriage of Virginia Elizabeth Thomson, of Frankford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Thomson, to Robert Stephen Rodgers, son of Mrs. Arthur Rodgers, of Oshawa, Ontario, and the late Mr. Rodgers. The Reverend Russell Gale, of Stirling, officiated in the double-ring ceremony.

The church organist provided the traditional wedding music and accompanied the boys' choir in their several selections.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a charming down of white peau de soie featuring a fitted bodice and full skirt. Her finger-tip veil of tulle illusion was held by a coronet headdress studded with seed and drop pearls, and she carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses. A pearl necklace with matching earrings, the bridegroom's gift, completed her ensemble.

Miss Valerie Anne Thomson, twin sister of the bride, was her only attendant, gowned in mint green organza, with matching hat and gloves, and carrying a cascade of white carnations.

Mr. Keith Andrew McGee, of Stirling, attended the bridegroom.

The reception and buffet luncheon was held at the bride's parents' home, where the bridal table was appointed with the traditional white damask, white candles and bouquets of white 'mums, and centred by a three-tier wedding cake.

The guests were received by the bride's mother and the bridegroom's mother, the former wearing sapphire-blue lace with beige accessories and corsage of pink roses, and the latter in olive green with beige accessories and corsage of yellow roses.

For travelling to the west coast, Roseville, California, and Mexico, the bride wore a lemon-toned silk sheath with beige accessories, and corsage of baby-pink carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Rodgers will reside in Oshawa, Ontario, upon their return.

Guests were present from Toronto, Waterloo, Hastings, Frankford, Batawa, and Stirling.

The bride is a teacher at Woodcrest school, and the bridegroom is a teacher at the Vincent Massey School.

Girls Not Magically Endowed With All Arts of Homemakers

OTTAWA (CP)—Girls are not born magically endowed with all the "insight, foresight, virtues and graces" required of a good homemaker, says the Canadian Association of Consumers.

Its monthly bulletin says the skills required to be a good wife and mother must be acquired and adds:

"Let our nation's educators take heed lest we become the lamentable victims of an intellectual snobbery which overlooks the tremendous importance of universal training for future homemakers and consumers."

It mentions as essential the qualities of a good cook, nutritionist, child- and husband-psychologist, economist, teacher, nurse, interior decorator, hostess and manager.

"As soon as wedding vows are exchanged the bride is responsible for the physical health, moral tone, spiritual insight and economic stability of one of the country's integral units which will determine the ultimate character of the nation itself.

"These highly-skilled jobs must be learned. . . . If they are not learned before marriage, dangerous shoals may wreck the ship. If they are never learned, the home that results becomes, almost inevitably, a national liability rather than a national asset, producing irresponsible, selfish, delinquent and even dangerously-criminal citizens."

Alberta Girl New President Women's Fed.

WINNIPEG (CP)—Members of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs attending their 17th biennial meeting here took a nostalgic look at the federation's 30-year history today.

Dorothy Heneker Cummins of Como, Que., the first president of the federation was chairman at a luncheon honoring the founders of the club.

Guest speaker Josephine Dauphinee of Vancouver scolded modern parents for "bringing up our children with habits of living that do not prepare them for life and certainly not for life in the atomic age."

She said young people have no worry for the future, take too much for granted and are aggrieved if denied any request.

Una MacLean, daughter of an Alberta homesteader, was elected president.

Vice-presidents include Margery Pewtress, Cobourg.

Provincial presidents include Helen Gibson, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

Over 40 people enjoyed a potluck dinner in the kitchen.

The children enjoyed quiet games on the lawn and the regular meeting was held at 2.15 p.m. in the school room. The children came in later to enjoy the program.

Mrs. Roy Tucker welcomed the visitors and presided over the meeting which opened with the Ode and prayer. Correspondence consisted of letters regarding the national convention in Vancouver, B.C. in 1961, the Guelph holiday and a display at Belleville Fair. No action was taken on these.

There were 16 members present for the meeting.

The souvenir spoons were displayed and all were sold. It was decided to order 50 more.

BUSINESS PERIOD HELD

Mrs. Clayton Thompson of Hoards showed an interesting movie film entitled, "Summer in Seymour Township". These pictures were taken in 1959 by the Rev. Gordon Whitehorse and were most interesting. The scenes depicted old fashioned mowers with horses, up-to-date harvesters, hay baling, pea harvesting, various scenes where group of teen-agers were busy with the harvest. There were cute pictures of ducks, kittens, pups and baby chickens, with the old mother hen; also many farm scenes of various kinds of machinery, both horse-drawn and tractor. The human subjects in the pictures were all residents of Seymour Township. The movie closed with several views of Burton Morton's apple orchard. Both children and adults enjoyed the movie.

Miss Gail Morrow contributed a piano solo. Mrs. Jack Bush gave a brief message on "Safety Education". Miss Grace Heasman told of the new method of "mouth-to-mouth" artificial respiration.

The group re-assembled in the school and after a brief business period, Mrs. Percy MacMullen thanked the conveners and their assistants for both the dinner and the program, with a special thank-you to Mrs. Thompson and her mother, Mrs. Charles Hoard, who were guests.

◆ DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES ◆

STIRLING W. I.

The annual Stirling W. I. holiday plans were completed at the July meeting held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. B. Reed.

Highlights were given of the district annual, held previously at Uniondale, with the same W.I. as hostess. These were: — Mrs. G. Foster, the new board director, congratulated West Hastings branches for their 100 per cent reports for the district annual. "History teaches that Champlain was the first white man to visit Belleville. Ninety years ago the Ontario School for the Deaf was opened.

Words of Wisdom from the report on 'Citizenship' were: — Good citizenship begins at home, the members of your family should be polite, thoughtful and courteous to your neighbors".

The correspondence included four "thank you" messages. On behalf of IODE Chapter, Mrs. William Morton thanked for dishes from Stirling Women's Institute, when the above chapter entertained the 'new Canadians' in the Community Hall, Stirling. The Stirling WI again sent their bales of used clothing to the Scott Mission, Toronto, saying in part, with thanks, "It is only through your efforts and kindness, we are able to carry on our work."

Mrs. L. Rodgers, West Hill, a former member, sent a friendly letter, thanking the secretary for literature required.

Miss Janet Ayerhart, a July bride, sent a thank you note, for a gift received from this W.I.

Mrs. Harry Rollins', Belleville letter, explained the Women's Institute exhibits at Belleville Fair.

The Thousand Island boat trip will be July 27. This is the annual treat, the Stirling Women's Institute gives its members.

Mrs. B. Reid gave a humorous reading, "The Oxen and the Bride". Mrs. E. Foster's reading was on "Harmony".

"Adult and child Education, with the Eskimos", was an interesting topic, given by Mrs. M. Ayerhart. Home economics for the housewife, and for the men, manual training, were the courses taught these Eskimos. A remarkable advancement in education, that still can be given to Canadian people, young and old.

Mrs. R. Stapley favored with several favorite hymns on the accordion.

Historical Research, one of the standing committee, with Mrs. Earl Luery as convener, gave part of her report at this meeting, taking for the beginning chapter, "St. James' Cathedral Anglican Church, Adelaide and Jarvis Street, Toronto". In 1797 there was set apart by the Royal Charter, a place for this building. This Cathedral's spire is the tallest in Canada; the clock in the tower was presented by the citizens of Toronto in 1865. The inscription at the entrance of this church reads — "This is God's House, and it is a House of prayer; leave it not without a Thanksgiving to your Almighty God."

A Biblical contest was put on by Mrs. B. Reid and won by Mrs. Luella Bronson.

A tasty lunch was served and the social time enjoyed.

Mrs. Luery expressed thanks to the hostess, Mrs. Reid and committee, Mrs. C. Wright and Mrs. E. Foster.

RYLSTONE W.I.

RYLSTONE — Mrs. Jim Gray was hostess to the Rylstone Women's Institute on Wednesday afternoon, when they held the July meeting at the Sunday School room of Zion Church, at Petherick's Corners. Seven members attended and there were three visiting ladies. There were also eight Girls' Club members, who, with their leader, Mrs. Gordon Osbourne, presented the program.

Mrs. Don Kerr, Institute president, was in charge of the opening.

Bills were presented and dealt with. Mrs. Osbourne was convener for the balance of the program, including a reading, "The 4-H Club Pledge, as a Challenge," given by Mrs. Jack Watson. Barbara Watson gave a piano solo, "Over Hill and Dale." A club exhibit, "Provinces of Canada," was presented by Carol Symes.

Donalda Kerr gave an account of the 4-H Club convention, which she attended, at Guelph Agricultural College in June. Judith Oddie conducted a contest on words from the 4-H Club words. Norma Tinney presided at the piano in the absence of the Institute pianist.

The club girls who finished their projects, were presented with silver spoons. Two of the girls, Barbara Watson and Joy Wright, also received county honors, and were presented with ceramic vases by the Institute.

After the meeting closed refreshments were served by the hostess and club girls. The programs for the year 1960-61 were distributed.

SPRINGBROOK W.I.

BONARLAW — The regular meeting of Springbrook W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. Arthur Burkitt, with a splendid atendance of members and visitors. Mrs. G. Burkitt, president, opened the meeting in the usual manner followed by the roll call, "What makes a good farmer's wife," which proved quite interesting.

Mrs. W. J. Barlow dealt with the correspondence and it was decided that $10 be sent to the "Retarded Children's" Fund.

Thank-you cards were received from schools for First Aid kits that had been donated. It was also decided to hold a meeting to finish the Ladys Tweedsmuir book up-to-date.

A picnic will be held at Glen Allan Park on July 27th, all are cordially invited to attend.

MODERN MANNERS

Carolyn Hagner Shaw

THE UNINVITED GUEST

During the summer months my family and I get a great deal of pleasure spending weekends at our beach cottage near my home town.

Unfortunately, being the possessor of a "home at the beach" is sometimes not as pleasant as it sounds.

Last Saturday morning we were enjoying ourselves thoroughly. The peace and quiet of no telephones and no visitors had us all in a comfortably relaxed state. Suddenly a raucous automobile horn announced the arrival of someone in front of the cottage. With a sinking heart I went to investigate.

It was the Inexperienced's, accompanied by two of their children. They all greeted me with shouts and Mrs. Inexperienced rushed over saying, "My dear! We just happened to drive down this way to get away from the terrific heat. Remembering that your cottage was in the vicinity, we just couldn't go by without saying 'hello'!"

Needless to say, the Inexperienced's took their departure in the wee hours of Sunday morning, trailed by two worn-out, whining children. They left behind them a group of exasperated, and just as worn out, people. Frankly, I'm sure that they would have stayed the night if they had been asked, let alone urged!

Naturally, it had been necessary to offer the hospitality of our home. Two meals and several varieties of liquid refreshment had completely depleted the larder. As the nearest sore is ten miles down the road, our Sunday was not a happy one.

Perhaps I am unreasonable and selfish. But it seems to me that it is extremely thoughtless to "drop in" on friends and acquaintances who have summer cottages. After all, the owners of these "havens of refuge" have their rights. One such right is to invite their own visitors!

Too often, acquaintances, whose names you've even forgotten, suddenly become close friends (in their opipnion) when you buy that cottage at the beach! They think nothing of stopping by to spend the day. These unwanted and uninvited guests make themselves at home and, in most cases, accept their unwilling hostess' food and drink as if it were their just due.

And what can the unhappy hostess do? Nothing but take it as graciously as possible, or be downright rude, which, naturally, is an unpleasant task for most people. The best remedy is for every guest to make sure he is never an uninvited one!

ANCIENT MILLS

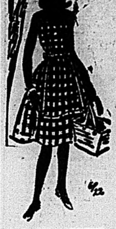
Popular Gingham



By VERA WINSTON

Here's yet another version of the ubiquitous checked gingham made popular by Bardot.

Grand for country wear, morning, noon or night, is this red and white tablecloth-check gingham number, glamorized with insets of white grosgrain that describe an apron - like panel.

The front of the belt is in white, the back is in the checked fabric.

Present Gifts To Departing P.S. Teacher

STIRLING — At the close of school the trustees and a group from River Valley school section gathered at the home of Mrs. Reg. Coombes and presented her with a table lamp.

Mrs. Coombes, who has taught at River Valley S. S. No. 19 for several years, has accepted a position in Frankford for the next school term.

On June 28th at the school house the Junior Red Cross group conducted a special program under the direction of the president, Lois Morrow. An appreciative address was signed by the pupils and read by Carol Lindenfield.

Cheryl Utman and Robert Morrow made the presentation of a hostess table and china cup and saucer.

The recipient expressed her thanks for the lovely gifts.

Readers' Friday Column

As told to Mary Moore

QUESTION:

Following is the recipe I use for Dill Pickles and which I have used for something like 20 years. Usually this makes a pickle that stays crisp and is of excellent flavor and is very popular with my family. Brine: 5 1-2 cups water, 3 cups vinegar, 1-2 cup pickling salt. Bring brine to boil and let cool before pouring over cucumbers and dill in sterilized jars. Seal. However, from time to time I have had to throw out a few jars of my dills as several days after making, the brine becomes cloudy and then a white sediment settles to the bottom of the jar. The pickles themselves appear to be edible but the flavor is definitely impaired. Last year of the twenty quarts that I made, 5 quarts were not usable. I usually make up 3 or 4 quarts at a time, as the cucumbers in our garden come along, so the cucumbers are definitely fresh. I have spoken to numerous people who have had this same trouble, without an inkling as to what they are doing wrong. They are using different recipes from mine, in most cases calling for the brine to be poured over the cucumbers when it is hot, so I don't suppose the fact that I cool my brine before pouring it over would be the trouble. Have you had any experience with this trouble? Would you have a recipe for a sweet dill pickle? — Peggy.

Dinner Menus

FRIDAY

Marinated Pickerel or Ocean Perch Fillets (see Wednesday); Shoestring Potatoes; Quick-cooked Cabbage with Cheese Sauce; Lettuce, Watercress and Cucumber Salad; Helen's Frozen Pineapple Pudding (see Wednesday); Coffee.

ANSWER:

Yes, I have had experience. While iodized salt may be used, salt that has been treated to make it free running should not be used as cloudiness will appear in the brine, especially in dills where the proportion of salt is high. Be sure to use common untreated bag salt. Since you are careful to use fresh-picked cucumbers, this should solve your problem. However, if our readers have anything to add to this I would be grateful to receive their comments.

SWEET (CANDIED) DILLS:

1 qt. dill pickles (bottled), 2 tablespoons mixed pickling spices, 2 cups sugar, 1 cup vinegar.

Wash pickles in cold water to remove brine. Cut pickles into long slivers or thin, round slices, and place them in a stone crock or a glass or china container. Place pickling spice in a cheesecloth bag. Boil vinegar and sugar with bag of spices for 5 minutes in covered saucepan. Pour hot syrup over dills, letting spice bag remain on top. Cover. Repeat this process, using same syrup and spice bag twice more, at 24-hour intervals. On the third day, pack the pickles into glass containers if you like, but they will keep beautifully in a crock. Cover with the syrup.

Quinte W.I. Members Visit County Home

2nd THURLOW — Several members of the Quinte W.I. gathered at the County Home on Monday night to entertain the "Older Folk" of the home.

The president took charge of the program and after a few appropriate remarks, introduced herself as president of the W.I. Mrs. J. Parrott was pianist and Mrs. Insley song leader. Several community songs were enjoyed, such as "Pack Up Your Troubles," "My Bonnie Lies Over the Ocean," "Bicycle Built for Two." By request from the older folk, "Darling Nellie Gray", "Red Wing," "Annie Laurie", "The Old Gray Mare," with all heartily joining in the singing. A solo by Keith Greatrix, "Some Call it Canada, but I Call it Home"; piano duet, Marlene and Carolyne Mitchell. Several hymns were sung; piano duet, Mrs. J. Parrott and Jimmy Wright; instrumental by Keith Greatrix; solo, Mrs. Insley.

Several favorite songs concluded the evening's entertainment.

On behalf of the residents Mrs. York thanked the ladies of the Institute and those who took part in the program.

Mesdames J. Parrott, F. Mitchell, A. Mitchell, C. Mitchell, H. Insley, F. Bell, M. Jeffery and D. Atkins took assorted cookies and ice cream was furnished by the W.I. A socail hour was spent visiting with friends there.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Louise R. — She should retire before she is fired.

Jane M. — I don't like to sit around doing nothing.

• • •

Louise R. — My problem involves my closest friend, Jane. We have known one another since childhood and are now past 70. All our children are married and we share a home.

We both went to work after our children were grown, but I retired more thas five years ago. Jane, however, is still working.

I feel very strongly that she should retire now. If she doesn't, she's going to be fired and that will hurt her very much. Her eyesight is failing and she gets slower and slower, mentally and physically. It is ridiculous for a woman of her age to travel to and from work and put in a full day when it isn't economically necessary.

• • •

Jane M. — It's not true that my eyesight is failing. I see just as well as I did five years ago. The doctor hasn't changed my glasses in years.

I find that I'm well able to keep up with the work. I'm a little tired when I get home, but who isn't? Louise insists on treating me like an old, feeble woman. I have always been healthy and I haven't missed a day's work in years. Nobody has yet complained about my work. Louise says they're just being kind to me, but I don't believe it. I rarely make an error.

I have worked hard all my life. I'm not the kind of person who likes to sit around doing nothing. Louise enjoys herself visiting friends and family but I prefer work.

• • •

The Council: Louise's belief that Jane's employer may be suffering in silence out of kindness to her is probably way off base. The best-hearted employers manage to rid themselves of unwanted employees without too much bloodshed on either side of the firing line.

Undoubtedly Jane's employer has found, like so many others, that older workers are extremely dependable, their attendance record is excellent, and when they are in the right spot, their performance is equal to, or better than, the younger employees.

Louise expresses herself in terms of concern for Jane, but her attitude suggests something else. She seems to have a keen eye for signs of deterioration in Jane, but is less observant of Jane's admirable health and spirit. She expresses herself in threatening terms. Friendly concern should take the form of encouragement rather than discouragement.

It is quite possible that Louise's unpleasant suggestions have thoroughly frightened Jane and forced her to cling to her job even harder than she would ordinarily care to. In reaction to Louise's "You are much too old to work," Jane may have stiffened her back to prove she isn't yet ready for the rubbish heap.

After five years of retirement, Louise may be bored with herself and probably is deteriorating far more rapidly than Jane simply because of lack of vital connection with the workaday world. Perhaps it is hard for her to watch her girlhood chum still going strong.

We think Jane should work as long as she cares to, but she shouldn't hold on to her job out of fear of falling into hopeless disuse. With her spirit, she can well look around for new interests so that eventually she can retire simply because there is something else she wants to do.

Canadian Council May Have to Ration Support

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canada Council, viewing expansion of the country's artistic life with both gratification and concern, said Wednesday that because of its limited funds it may have to apply rigid rationing of its financial support in each area of interest.

"One of the most encouraging signs of the last decade is the remarkable increase of interest in the arts, humanities and social sciences in this country," the council said in its annual report tabled in the Commons.

Little more than 10 years ago the massey royal commission on the arts, letters and sciences had reported that there was perhaps no civilized country more dependent on the universities in the cultural field than Canada. That statement would not be entirely accurate today.

Sunday School Lesson

What Is National Security?

By ROY L. SMITH

With the question of "defence" uppermost in the minds of millions of Americans, and with both the Russian and the U.S. governments spending in excess of $40,000,000,000 for military purposes, it may not be amiss to ask a simple question. What is national security?

MILITARY SITUATION

Through a period of a few years following the close of World War II. when the United States was the one nation that was known to be in possession of the secret of the atomic bomb, the American people developed a marked superiority complex. They assumed that their traditional "know how" was destined to give them an eternal advantage.

> The Uniform Sunday School lesson for July 17: "Amos Warns Against False Security", Amos 5:14-15; 6.

Then came the shock when it was announced that the Russians had detonated an atomic bomb, and had perhaps pulled up along side the Americans in nuclear equipment. This was followed by the launching of the Sputnik, and then the orbiting of the rocket about the moon. Suddenly an awareness dawned on the mind of the public that we were in competition with a people who were displaying amazing ability.

As of the moment, the two giants of the world are almost equally matched militarily. Each is capable of destroying the other. Enough atomic weapons are now stockpiled to reduce the continents of Europe, Asia and North America to rubble, within the space of hours. The total prospect is staggering in its terrible aspects.

There is no possibility of either side winning a military victory. Any declaration of war is an international suicide compact.

ECONOMIC SITUATION

For the past quarter of a century, at least, the whole world has been at the mercy of the American industrial machine. As a prominent Australian once put it, "No housewife in all Asia can buy so much as a darning needle without paying tribute in some form to the American manufacturer".

During the first 15 years following the cessation of hostilities American funds were poured out in a veritable tide in an effort to assist the rest of the world in making an economic recovery.

The demand for American manufactured goods, the desperate need for the establishment of heavy industries, and the depleted food supplies of the world. all had the effect of draining off American capital and consumer goods. But now Europe has recovered and is flooding the American market with manufactured goods. The economic isolation of 15 years ago has been followed by a competitive market that is producing an altogether new and different situation.

From this point on the American people will have to work their level best to maintain their position, for they are in competition with a world that is working. Overconfidence can cost the nation its economic security.

SPIRITUAL SITUATION

The ultimate victory will go to that nation, or that block of nations, that is prepared to pay the cost of supremacy in terms of superior workmanship, more efficient work, a higher sense of honor inside factories and offices, and a stern determination to achieve justice for all men regardless of their color, their economic status, or their ancestry.

Today, as never before in the history of the nation, such qualities as thrift, initiative, individual integrity. and personal honesty are demanded of all men. He who lacks in these lacks in patriotism.

The nation cannot afford the luxury of a leisure class. Just as, in war time, the women from the boulevards and the women from across the tracks, sat down together to wind bandages for the boys on the battlefields, so, today the citizens of all classes must unite in a common devotion to the highest moral and spiritual interests of the nation.

No crooked generation can expect the blessing of God. Our national security depends upon our national character.

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Dino and Dominic Bravo, the handsome Italian duo, take on a tough pair of hombres tonight in Memorial Arena. They meet Ivan Kalmikoff, one-half of the noted Kalmikoff Brothers, who teams up with brawny Fred Atkins, the hardrock from "down under."

Atkins is well-known and "well-disliked" in these wrestling parts. He's a member of the old school, and old wrestling "dog" who knows all the tricks and has learned a few new ones. He is a tough-hard-boiled wrestler, who is as good today as he was ten years ago when he was the terror of the times around these parts.

Yessuh, Tovarich Kalmikoff has got himself a nice tough biddy-buddy, and the pair should make it mighty interesting for the good-looking duo from sunny Italia. But these Bravos are good, too. They're nobody's fools when it comes to chucking the foemen around. They're fast, agile, strong and clever and tonight's activities should make for a lively brawl.

There are stories going the rounds that pro wrestling is on the decline this side of the Atlantic. That is pure rumor, but it is no secret the sport is enjoying imemnse popularity in Europe.

From Le Havre to Naples and Paris to Istanbul the faithful are pouring in arenas to see the unusual—and getting it.

An imaginative French Jew, Alex Goldstein, is masterminding the sport and his diet of fright and fantasy is making millions happy. He has 200 wrestlers under his wing and controls some fifty arenas throughout Western Europe.

The sport was dying out across the pond when Goldstein took over in 1940. It was practically dead on its feet until 1958 when something new was injected into the European scene. A masked man, huge in stature, leaped into the ring, slugged one of the competitors from behind and tossed his unconscious body out over the ropes.

The incident triggered a new and thrilling era in European wrestling and a startling overnight success for Goldstein. The old American "masked villain" came into being amid the crunching of bones and the tinkling of francs.

Goldstein introduced other innovations — some of them not so good. There was a long line of hooded bullies with an occasional hero chucked in for good measure. The color of the mask was changed from black to white for the speedy "White Angel," a beautifully-built giant whose specialty it is to render opponents helpless by cracking their spines over the top of brass ring-posts.

Then there was the "Human Beast." The Beast was a revolting sight, but fans got their thrills seeing him being torn to pieces, so to speak, by the dashing heroes.

Earlier this year the "Beast" was replaced by another monstrosity billed as "Quasimodo," after the leading character in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame."

The wrestling Quasimodo was a Pyrenees miner who had a yen for things bigger and better than a pick and shovel. He lined his sights on the lucrative pro wrestling business, had all his teeth extracted but one, covered his bare body with an old burlap bag and sought out Goldstein, tooth protruding and sackcloth reeking. "He was too repulsive, even for this game," was the promoter turn-down comment.

But Quasimodo proved to be an immediate sensation and one of Europe's top attractions. Other top wrestlers besides the White Angel and Quasimodo are the Masked Hangman, the Strangler, and the Phantom.

The Phantom enters the ring clothed completely in black, except for the white outline of a skeleton which is drawn with iridescent paint on the front of his costume. When the house lights go out, the skeleton glows in the dark and the crowd goes wild.

The Phantom leaps at his victim in the semi-darkness and the foeman screams occasionally as he writhes in the clutches of the "bones." At the finish the lights go on and the usually victorious Phantom slinks away to a secret dressing room.

The newest sensation is handsome Bobby Duranton, a youngster with a physique, curly hair and a classic profile. He's the darling of the gals and the lady reporters. He is the Ricki Starr type, dances and has effeminate gestures. He goes Ricki one better by dabbing his entire body with expensive perfume.

All Paris, it is said, is awaiting with frenzied anticipation the night Duranton squares off with the Phantom. Says promoter Goldstein: "There'll be hell to pay that night—and 20,000 customers will be paying it."

Mathews Blasts Homer, Triple, Double

Braves Blank Pirates 4-0

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

Ed Mathews was in a slump so bad he was even talking about it. Milwaukee's slugging third baseman hadn't hit a home run in 19 games, and his batting average was down to .266 with just two hits in 27 trips.

The second place Braves were stumbling along the same way, losing 11 of their last 19 games. What's worse, they had managed to beat first place Pittsburgh just three times in 13 tries. And they were 0-4 against little lefty Harvey Haddix of the Pirates.

They buried the slumps and the Haddix jinx but good Thursday night, winning 4-0 at Pittsburgh as Mathews walloped a home run, a triple and a double while driving in three runs behind the five-hit pitching of Bob Buhl and Lew Burdette's neat, ninth-inning relief.

The loss, coming in a make-up game while the rest of the major league clubs were resting after the all-star games, trimmed the Pirates' lead to four games.

HIT ALL-STAR HOMER

It was during the all-star games, which don't count in regular season statistics, that Mathews mentioned the slump he was trying to shake—and showed signs of shaking it by belting a two-run homer in Wednesday's 6-0 victory over the American League at New York's Yankee stadium.

Oddly, the left-handed hitting Mathews broke the slump against three left-handed pitchers. It was Yankee Whitey Ford who gave up his all-star jolt, and it was Haddix and reliever Fred Green who were tagged for six extra-base hits at Pittsburgh.

Billy Bruton, Del Crandall and Mathews each had three of the Braves' 15 hits against the Pirates, and a dozen of them were off Haddix, now 6-5 for the year.

Bruton's leadoff single and Mathews' double gave the Braves a 1-0 lead in the first inning. Then, with Bruton on base again, Mathews walloped his 17th home run in the fifth inning. It was the seventh ever to clear the roof of the double-deck right field stands at Forbes Field, and the second Mathews has sent over that barrier.

The Braves got their final run in the ninth, when Mathews tripled and scored on Joe Adcock's squeeze bunt.

FOURTH FOR BUHL

Buhl (9-3) won his fourth in a row on the fourth try. He gave up singles by Dick Groat, Bob Skinner and Bill Mazeroski in the first three innings, but then no-hit the Bucs until the ninth, when Skinner and Dick Stuart singled for what looked like another of the Pirates' last-inning rallies.

But Burdette then came on and shut 'em up, retiring Roberto Clemente, Smoky Burgess and Don Hoak in order for the Pirates' third defeat in the last five games, and their ninth in the last 17.

While the Braves move on to Philadelphia and Cincinnati pulls into Pittsburgh tonight, the rest of the NL gets back to business after the all-star picnic with third place Los Angeles at San Francisco and Chicago's Cubs at St. Louis.

The Dodgers, hottest club in the NL at the moment, go with Don Drysdale (6-10) against the Giants' Sam Jones (11-8). The world champions have won six of their last seven and have lost just three of the last 14. The Giants, tied with St. Louis for fourth place, have dropped five of their last six.

163 Athletes Vie for Olympic Track, Field

SASKATOON (CP)—A total of 163 athletes were on deck today to compete for 15 places on Canada's track and field team at the Olympic Games in Rome next month.

Successful athletes will be announced Saturday night. The weather outlook was good, with light winds and the temperature in the low 80s forecast.

Finals were scheduled in nine events in the late afternoon. They were the men's 10,000 metres, 1,500 metres, 400 metres, 100 metres, 110-metre hurdles and 3,000-metre steeplechase, and the women's 800 metres, 100 metres and 80-metre hurdles.

British Columbia sent one of the strongest teams of the meet. Twenty specialists, including four who have equalled or bettered international Olympic standards, will be on the line.

Harry Jerome, Sig Ohlemann, Terry Tobacco and Lynn Eves all have met the Olympic standards. Only two others at the meet, Joe Mullins of Glace Bay, N.S., and Calgary distance runner Doug Kyle, have made the Olympic mark.

Jerome, whose sister Valerie is considered a top contender in the women's section, was rated a cinch in the sprints. Some west coast folks rate him the greatest Canadian sprinter since Percy Williams of Vancouver who dominated the 1928 Olympics. Mullins was given a good chance to pick up the 800-metre crown.

Ontario had 19 entries in the trials.

86 IN GAMES

ROME (AP) — Eighty-six countries have officially entered the Olympic Games opening Aug. 25. The deadline for entries was midnight, June 30. An entry from the African Republic of Somalia, which became independent after the deadline, has been accepted.

Indians Tackle Senators

Yanks-Tigers Open 4-Game Series

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

The American League resumes its pennant battle tonight after two humiliating defeats to the National League in this week's all-star baseball games.

New York Yankees are on top, leading Cleveland Indians by 2½ games after dropping three straight to Boston Red Sox. Chicago's defending champion White Sox are third, three games back, with Baltimore Orioles fourth, another game behind. There were no league games scheduled Thursday. The Americans lost 5-3 and 6-0 in the all-star clashes.

Going into the opener of a four-game series at Detroit tonight, Yankee manager Casey Stengel mentioned the possibility of resting right-fielder Roger Maris, the ailing belter who leads the major leagues with 27 home runs.

It's probable, however, that both Maris, bothered by a sprained wrist, and sore-legged Mickey Mantle will be in the lineup against Tiger southpaw Don Mossi (7-6). Righthander Art Ditmar (7-5) is the Yankee choice. He has lost two games in a row after winning five straight.

SENATORS FIRED UP

The Indians, who play three games against New York beginning Monday, get back to business against the fired-up Washington Senators. Righthander Pedro Ramos (5-9) goes for the Senators, tied with Detroit for fifth place. The Senators have won seven of their last eight games.

Righthander Jim Perry (9-4) is Cleveland's starting pitcher as the Tribe tries to get out of a rut. They have lost five of six engagements after moving to within one-game of first place with a five-game victory streak.

The White Sox send Billy Pierce (7-4) or Frank Baumann (5-4), both lefthanders, against Baltimore and Milt Pappas (7-6). The Orioles, who have lost seven straight at home, have a four-game road winning string on the fire.

Philly Pitchers File Suit Against 'Time'

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Two Philadelphia Phillies pitchers filed suit in United States district court Tuesday, eac asking $100,000 damages against Time Inc. because of a story in the weekly magazine Sports Illustrated June 13.

Dick Farrell and Jim Owens also asked a retraction, saying the article damaged their reputation and hurt their chances of getting off-season employment.

Cornelius C. O'Brien Jr., their counsel, alleged in the suit that the story was meant to give readers the impression that Owens and Farrell were "irresponsible, heavy drinking, loose living, brawling and hot-tempered."

Ontario Amateur Golf

Castator Meets Brownlie in Third Round

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Bruce Castator, 33, former Canadian amateur champion, was to tee off this morning against the youth he has said is "the man to beat" in the Ontario amateur golf championship.

The Toronto Weston shotsmith was to meet Phil Brownlee, 18, 120-pounder from Toronto Scarboro. They are among 16 who advanced to the third round in Thursday's two rounds of match play.

Also in the running are Nick Weslock of Port Credit, veteran amateur who netted a five-below-par 67 in Wednesday's medal-play qualifying round, Jack Kenney of Woodstock, who was second with a 69, and Toronto's Gary Cowan, who had a 72 and was top amateur in the recent Canadian Open.

But defending champion Bob Panasiuk, 18, of Windsor was eliminated 4 and 2 in Thursday's second round by Dave Morland of North Bay after slipping badly on the back half.

Weslock provided the most exciting moment for spectators Thursday when Ernie Bentley of Toronto Weston forced him to 19 holes in the second round. Weslock won with a par four on the 19th after being two down after the 15th.

Castator edged out Norm Goldman of Toronto 3 and 1 and Brownlee eliminated David Lowry, Windsor, by a handy 5 and 3.

Junior golfers in the fight include Gary Black, 16, of St. Catharines, who beat David Lee of Hamilton 5 and 4 and Ted Talbot, 17, of Sarnia, who downed Chuck Egleston of London 2 up.
